Flambeau Editor Kidnapped

Flambeau Editor Davis Whiteman was kidnapped yesterday by a group calling itself "the April Fool's Liberation Front" which demanded that the newspaper's April 1 edition be a "spoof, to mark April Fool's Day."

Consulting Editor Tom Kirwan, serving as spokesperson for the collegiate daily, said the kidnapers demands as outlined in a ransom note found shortly after the abduction, "would be met to a 'T', as in 'Tom.' And it's K-I-R-W-A-N, not W-I-N."

"We're not going to do anything that might jeopardize Davis' life," Kirwan told a group of newsmen late yesterday. "Consequently, the news pages of Monday's Flambeau will not contain a single word that is not a joke. Actually, we were going to do it anyway."

Whiteman was first reported missing early Sunday when he failed to appear at the Flambeau's third floor Union offices. His roommate told police that Whiteman said he was leaving for work "around 11:30 a.m."

"He always went to campus at around 11:30 or 12 on Sundays," the roommate said. "God, I hope they find him and he's alright. He owes me $8."

Police theorize that Whiteman's car, a 1968 blue sedan, may have been stopped by the kidnapers somewhere along Lake Bradford Road.

"It would follow the pattern," said police spokesman Al Goodell. "I would imagine that one car pulled out in front of him and one pulled in back of him and he was trapped. It's the safest way for kidnapers to abduct their victim."

Whiteman's car was found by police later yesterday afternoon in a vacant, overgrown lot on Jackson Bluff.

"We urged the people at the Flambeau to follow the kidnapers' demands, explicitly," Goodell said. "We figure they don't have that much to lose if they do. We pretty much consider the articles in the Flambeau to be a joke already, ha ha."

At 6:20 yesterday evening, a small cardboard box was discovered in one of the Flambeau's third floor darkrooms. The box was addressed to Consulting Editor

Kirwan "and the students of FSU." According to Kirwan, the box contained a

Whiteman's plea

"I am being held by the April Fool's Liberation Front. I can assure you that I am in fine shape and I have not been harmed by these people. They have treated me very well since taking me from my car earlier today (Sunday).

"They tell me that they are asking you to print a special April Fool's Day Flambeau, with everything contained therein a joke. Don't do it! Don't jeopardize the integrity of that newspaper just because my life (scuffling sounds, untranslatable shouts) . . . Please follow their every demand as my life is in the balance.

"Please don't worry about me while I'm gone. My captors assure me that I won't be harmed unless their demands go unheeded.

"If, by some chance, I should not be able to make it back to you, please set up some kind of scholarship or building or something in my name. Please take care of my puppy for me (sniff) and please (click)." End of tape.

FSU boredom traced

University President Stanley Marshall said FSU is "about 333 acres of land located in the center of Tallahassee and is a state institution" in his State of the University address Friday.

"Florida State has come a longway since its beginning in 1857 as the Seminary West of the Suwanee," Marshall said to a crowd of about 12 students, faculty members and alumni. "The University has seen many changes in all areas since the all-women Florida Female College and later the Florida State College for Women. In 1947, men found a place here when it finally became the Florida State University."

Marshall pointed out that both FSCW and FSU came to be known for their quality programs

"Between 1905 and 1947, FSCW was one of the most outstanding and highly recognized colleges for women in the United States," Marshall said. "Just so you'll know something about all these people, fall 1971 enrollment showed 9,990 men, 8,377 women, 3,394 graduate students and 511 law students. Of these, 2,151 are from out-of-state and 16,216 are Florida students."

"In the academic area, Florida State's research programs have seen tremendous growth in the last few years, and, in turn, the number of graduate students has increased as well," Marshall said. "In addition to research conducted in various academic divisions, a number of facilities and institutions are devoted to specific research interests in government, social science, human development, human learning, molecular biophysics, nuclear science, physical education, urban planning, business administration, hotel planning, humanitarian philosophy, ring and topological mathematical studies, occult sciences, aqua-marine oceanography, micropaleontology, hardware education and computer science. Research is a very important part of Florida State, but the undergraduate is not forgotten. Many professors have made their most important project the development of more effective

FSU's FIRST DEAD STREAKER is helped into the history of streaking by his two assistants at the FSU Dairy Farm.

First dead stalker hits ground

FSU recorded what may well be its last "first" in the rapidly dying sport of streaking Saturday when an unidentified nude male appeared at the FSU Dairy Farm. The man was dead.

Witnesses told the Flambeau that the dead man, carried by two assistants, emerged from an automobile, was laid in the grass for several seconds and was then carried back to the car which sped away.

"I'm pretty sure he was dead," Sherman Pickens told the Flambeau. "I mean, he wasn't turning any weird colors yet or anything, but his tongue was hanging out of his mouth and his eyes were rolled back in his head."

A spokesman from FSU's University Police said that they were making "every effort" to attempt to identify the dead stalker.

"If he's not a student, we'll turn over whatever we can find to the Leon County Sheriff's office," the spokesman said. "If he is a student, we're going to see to it that his dead ass is suspended right out of this university."

FSU west end to be demolished

BY RICHARD LEE

In the spirit of the current excavation frenzy, the FSU Physical Planning Division (PPD) has decided to demolish every building west of Woodward St.

"All of them buildings is in piss-poor shape, and should have been blown back to the stone age years ago," remarked a spokesman for the PPD.

"We've been keeping our powder dry on this one for a long time, but all the boys in the office has been getting a little edgy for some good old destruction," the spokesman added whimsically.

The decision to raze the buildings followed the completion of a string of less ambitious projects initiated by the PPD. Included in these was the trenching of the grassy areas near the University Union and Tully Gym, under the pretense of laying new plastic drainage pipes.

The most recent scheme undertaken by the PPD is the renovation of the Westcott building, which was gutted by fire four years ago. The cause of the fire, according to the spokesman for the "boys in the office", was a "strange electrical short-circuit."

"We're absolutely sure that the fire wasn't the work of an arsonist," the spokesman said as he ignited a model house, constructed of matches.

The only dissenting voice heard on the proposal to devastate the west end of the campus was that of Stephen McClellan, Vice President for Student Educational Services.

"There lurks a hideously sinister aspect beneath the deceptively charming surface of building demolition behavior," McClellan observed.

According to a moderately well-informed source, McClellan will be joined today in his outcry against the PPD plan when other administrators, whose offices are also located on the west side of campus, learn of the intended liquidation.

Responding to the possibility of administrative protest on this issue, President Stanley Marshall announced Saturday that "no one will be tossed out into the streets."

"We have plans already underway to relocate the Education Building in the Burger Chef on Tennessee Street," Marshall said.

"However, I want to make it perfectly clear, at this point in time, that my office will countenance no administrative foot dragging over this necessary obliteration, which, I hasten to add, is in the best interests of the students of FSU," Marshall rejoined.

Marshall added that the only administrators who would balk on this proposal are "cry-baby bedwetters with an 'edifice' complex."

and meaningful courses and teaching techniques."

Marshall added that "change is one of the most significant things we can be sure of."

Marshall then talked briefly on the nine academic divisions within the university to the rapidly tiring audience.

"The academic division of FSU include the College of Arts and Sciences, School of Business, College of Education, School of Home Economics, College of Law, School of Library Science, School of Music, School of Nursing and School of Social Welfare."

Marshall went on to explain how FSU operates and then outlined the primary goal of the university.

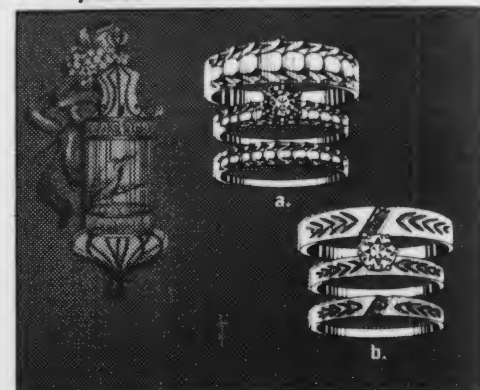

"Florida State operates on the quarter system in order to utilize facilities on a year-round basis and to enable those people who have other obligations during the year, such as teachers, to attend during the summer," Marshall said. "Florida State's primary goal is to maintain an intellectual climate of learning in which students develop respect for and excitement in the discovery of truth.

Developing new programs and improving those already in existence have become a major part of the strategy to create excellence in all areas of higher education."

"I thought he was going to go a little deeper than he did," said one professor who managed to sit through the speech. "He didn't even mention faculty raises."

Competitive Greek Week opens

FSU's "Greek Week" got underway this past weekend as fraternities and sororities across the campus attempted to out-do each other in just about everything imaginable.

Activities kicked off on Saturday morning at the Tully Gym rest rooms with the First Annual Vomiting Contest. Top honors were taken by Donald Grey of the Alpha Theta Theta fraternity, who attributed his victory to "three fifths of tequila last night and the support of my brothers this morning." Second place went to Walter Smith of Phi Omega Epsilon while third place was garnered by Louis Snyder of Sigma Delta Kappa.

Saturday afternoon was highlighted by the "Most Toilet Paper In A Tree" competition which attracted the participation of every fraternity on campus. The overwhelming victor in this contest was the Kappa Psi Chi fraternity, which wasted 313 rolls of toilet paper in ruining 17 trees. Chapter president Kelly Norton chalked up the victory to "our experience at this particular event and the support of my brothers." Second place went to Theta Tau Alpha which used 176 rolls on 13 trees and third place honors were picked up by Gamma Gamma Gamma which threaded 11 trees with 159 rolls of paper.

As the sun came down Saturday evening, the first coed event of the week - "Most Girls Laid" for the guys and "Most Times Said 'No'" for the gals - began. The winner in the male division was Donald Edgeworth of the Kappa Chi fraternity who claimed to have met with 23 girls in the course of the evening. Edgeworth pointed to "a family tradition of endurance and the support of my brothers" as the chief reasons for his victory. The women's division winner was

DONALD GREY of Alpha Theta Theta took top vomiting honors in the opening contest during "Greek Week." Grey attributed his successful heave to tequila "and the support of my brothers."

Mary Rose Gahler of the Beta Omicron Beta sorority who turned down 18 masculine advances in a five hour period. Gahler said that a condition she's had since childhood and "the support of my sisters" helped her resist the temptations of the evening.

Sunday morning saw the commencement of the fifth event of the weekend as all sororities participated in the "Straightest Part" competition. Awards were presented to the women with the straightest, most distinct part in their hair. The winner was Vickie Bach of Gamma Beta Mu sorority whose part was measured to be only 3.7 angstroms off center. Betty Jo Phillips of the Alpha Alpha Epsilon sorority took second with a part 4.5 angstroms off center while Amy Dougherty of the Beta Beta Beta sorority captured third with 5.2 angstroms miscue.

On Sunday afternoon, fraternities participated eagerly in the "My Father Can Beat Up

Your Father" event. The winner was C.G. Patton of Iota Iota whose father, James Patton, trounced the father of Sigma Kappa Alpha's Ted Linder - Al Linder. The Linders were awarded second place honors for reaching the final bout of the afternoon. In third place was Charles Shelby of Kappa Delta Lambda whose father, Ernest, downed Dr. Elias Jefferson, father of Leon Jefferson, Nu Kappa Sigma. Patton said his father could not have taken the first prize were it not for "his long reach and the support the brothers were able to give him."

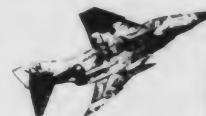

The weekend's festivities were wrapped up last evening with the "Most Innovative Dress Style" competition. With both men and women competing for the same prizes, this part of the weekend is always one of the highlights of Greek Week. First prize, in the only tie thusfar, went to Tom Prater and Sheila Shurof, who both wore the shirts of their Greek organization with the tag sticking out. Because of the tie, there was no red ribbon awarded, so third place went to Stan Ross of Theta Epsilon Chi. Ross wore his fraternity shirt with the tag tucked neatly into his double-knits.

Among the activities coming up during this week are the How Many Guys Can Fit In The Fountain, Chugging, and Dirty Stories contests, all to be capped off next Friday by the annual "I'm Alexander the Great, You're Helen of Troy" dance.

"We're involved in so much this week, I'll hardly have any time for my classes," said an Inter-Fraternity Council spokesman. "It's great to be a Greek."

If everybody could be a Marine, we wouldn't be the Marines.

For almost two hundred years, we've kept our standards high and our ranks small.

Today it is harder than ever to be a Marine. We're a tough club to join, a tough team to make. And that's exactly the way we're going to keep it.

We want quality, not quantity.

We want men who are proud of their Country and want to serve it proudly.

We want men who seek a challenge and aren't afraid of tough physical training.

We want men who believe that while nobody likes to fight, somebody has to know how.

We want men who want to become part of an elite force of extraordinary men.

We want good men - and then we make them better.

If you are a college man who is ready for leadership and responsibility...

If you've got it and you want to stand with the Marines, you'll be welcome.

We train our men the way we've always trained them.

No compromises. No shortcuts. No promises except one: You'll be a Marine.

We don't care one way or the other

The university administration has recently announced a new policy in the procedure of admitting a high school graduate to FSU.

It seems that this new policy demands that all persons applying at this institution must include on their applications the social security numbers of both their mothers and their fathers.

In the past, the university had asked only for the social security number of the applicant. The admissions office also required that the hopeful include his name, age, current address and high school.

The only information it had previously asked on the parents of the applicant was their name and address (if different from the applicant's).

"The reason we want to get the parents' social security numbers is really quite good," said Registrar's Office spokesperson Ella Lyons. "But I don't remember exactly what it is right now. When you called, I was back behind the 'Panama Canal Zone branch' desk getting high."

Vice President for Student Educational Services Steve McClellan's office said that Steve had the flu. The phone in President Stanley Marshall's office rang seventeen times before we hung up.

The Flambeau sees nothing wrong with asking that potential students be required to submit their name, age, current address and high school on their completed application form. We don't see anything wrong with asking for the student's social security number or his parents' names and addresses (if different from the applicant's).

And the Flambeau doesn't care if the university asks that all applications received require the social security numbers of the mother and father of the student who is applying.

It just doesn't seem to be that big a deal and the Flambeau doesn't care one way or the other

Seriously...

The editors wish to explain that this edition was conceived and executed in jest—except for the announcements on page 9—and should be read with that in mind. We mean no malice or indignity to the individuals and institutions herein spoofed. We are simply following an old tradition with the Flambeau, by having a little fun, and placing the joke above the fact every April 1.

Child molesters seek rights

There are very few minorities left in society which receive the open abuse and hatred of the majority of the population. In the early 1960s, blacks made great strides forward in their attempt to gain an equal footing with their white neighbors. In the late sixties and early seventies, women, young people and Chicanos were able to edge closer to the center of the society. Now, even the homosexual is making some headway against the intolerance he or she was once forced to withstand.

We've come a long way in accepting our minorities for what they are — equal human beings, though not like the majority — but I think we still have a long way to go.

One place we can start this long journey is with the child molester or, as we prefer to be labeled, Young Person Tamperers (YPTs).

No element in society is more misunderstood than the well-intentioned seducer of little boys and little girls. The grim accounts pour in from every corner of the nation. In Maine, a YPT is sentenced to twelve years in prison. In California, another receives a free pass to the home for the criminally insane. In Texas, we hear stories of a father who took the law into his own hands and cut off the arms of one YPT with a scythe.

Such a brutality and disregard of personal rights did not exist even among blacks living in Mississippi in the early sixties.

What, after all, is wrong with a full-grown man tampering with a young person? Both the YPT and the young person live in a free country. Why are they not allowed to do as they please? If the young person is old enough to decide whether he is hungry or not, why is he not old enough to decide if he wants to be tampered with?

GUEST COLUMN

The FSU chapter of the Young Person Tamperers Coalition (YPTC) is now lobbying in the Florida legislature to get bills allowing more rights to YPTs through the House, through the Senate and onto the desk of the Governor. We need volunteers, both YPTs and non-YPTs, to assist us in our efforts to obtain freedom for thousands of YPTs not only in Florida but throughout the United States.

Won't you help us hurt?

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Typesetters

Editor:

I would like to take the opportunity to congratulate the Flambeau on the fine job it does on type-setting.

Type-setting, for those of you unfamiliar with the Flambeau's process printing, is the procedure which allows you to read this letter now. Originally, this letter was written on a piece of yellow paper, in xxxxxxxx pencil. As you see it now, it is in type, perfectly indented in the proper places and with all lines running exactly the same width.

How did it get that way? Thanks to the type-setter. The type-setter types the words of this letter onto a machine which closely resembles a typewriter. Then, threw a process which I still don't understand completely, the machine figures out how many words it can squeeze into a line to make all the lines come out an equal length.

Thanks to the type-setter, (Hi Sue, I Love You — Bob) the Flambeau has very few misspelled words. Thanks to the type-setter, the Flambeau sentences prints the in in order they which intended were printed to be. Thanks to the type-setter, a line of type never comes out too short or too long, but always exactly right.

I don't know how they do it issue after

Pal in the pen

Editor:

I am currently in the process of serving out the remaining two years of a four-year sentence at a state institution.

You probably don't realize what it's like to be imprisoned in a place like this. You can't trust anyone — they're all either rapists or drug users or sexual perverts. You can't make any real friends. The food and the lodging are out of the Middle Ages and the loneliness is unbearable.

Won't you please find it in your hearts to become my pen pal? If I could have someone to communicate with, someone whose letters I could look forward to, maybe it wouldn't be quite as horrible here as it is now.

Please send your letters to Jerry Biddle, Room 725 Kellum Hall, Florida State University. Thank you.

Steve passes course

Reading from a prepared statement, FSU Vice-president Stephen McClellan announced yesterday that he had passed the Famous Writers' Course.

"It's changed my life," said McClellan. "You can imagine what an embarrassment it has been to me and the university to have a vice-president who can't construct a simple English paragraph."

"I just discovered this ad on the cover of a match book," McClellan continued, "and I figured 'what the hell?' but it really worked. Now I can misuse words like 'parameters,' 'input,' 'predictable funding base' and 'faculty involvement.'"

Oak to be removed

Planning Division spokesperson Frunola Pitts has announced that the university plans to level the 500-year-old oak tree bordering the entrance to the Library to expand the Library facilities.

However, Coach Darrell Mudra confirmed rampant rumors that the site of the tree would, in fact, be used for a modular training facility for football players.

Reiterating his concern for the low academic attainments of many of the football "gladiators," Mudra said, "I figure we can kill two birds with one stone: we solve our training space problem and at the same time bring the team close to the library."

Hose quits B&D Club

Elvira Hose announced in a press conference yesterday that she has resigned from the FSU Bondage and Discipline Club charging unconscionable character assassinations and unwarranted abuse on the part of club members.

"I told them time and time again if they continued to say that my conscience spoke to me in a voice like Eric Severaid that they would have to untie me from those damn bedposts," said Hose.

Vice-president for Student Educational Services Stephen "call me Steve" McClellan said that "beneath the lighthearted veneer of bondage and discipline there lurks a more insidious aspect, namely the potential for odious comparisons and verbal abuse behavior."

Hose was quoted as saying that "I got off on the sensory experiences, but the insults were just too much."

Oops! We goofed

The editors of the Flambeau admitted making their 23rd factual error of the quarter today, bringing the yearly total to an unprecedented 217 mistakes or misrepresentations.

"We're only human," said kidnapped editor Davis Whiteman, shortly before his abduction yesterday. "I'm really quite a bit surprised we haven't made a lot more."

The latest error had to do with a story which claimed that President Nixon had resigned five months ago and that Spiro Agnew was actually the current president.

"We got a call from UPI that straightened everything up," Whiteman said. "See, it was Agnew who resigned five months ago, not Nixon."

Profs publish . . .

A Florida State University professor in Psychology has published an article in the "Journal of the American Psychological Association" which has become the center of a recent controversy.

"All I pointed out," said Dr. George Beaver, "was that the American Psychological Association is only that — a psychological association, not an actual one. Which puts their credentials on the line and calls for a stronger tie among psychologists."

Asked what sort of tie would serve in lieu of the weaker one he cited, Dr. Beaver replied, "That's their problem. Personally, I can't stand psychologists. Why do you think I wrote the article?"

In History, Dr. Alex Wexl recently read a paper at the American Historical Society's annual meeting in Hodge, Ark. Dr. Wexl put forth the somewhat revolutionary theory of Instantaneous History.

Instantaneous History, he said, is the realization that historical time actually began in the early Middle Ages, around what we used to call the 7th Century A.D.

"I have complete evidence that every artifact, every manuscript, everything, as far as that goes, was a complete fabrication by the first minds of man in an attempt to provide a history, that is, a cosmology or a mythological basis, for themselves," Dr. Wexl said. "What else could you do when Time suddenly dawns?"

Denying the credibility of the Carbon-14 process, or radioactive dating, Dr. Wexl states, "Bullshit. Carbon-14 does not show that there are prehistoric objects, or that there were cultures previous to the so-called 7th Century. On the contrary, it shows how incredibly thorough medieval atomic scientists were in rigging artifacts to indicate a previous period of time by atomic calculation."

BEFORE: This is Steve McClellan before Dr. Brockington Smith began to help him. Notice, in the inset, that Steve does not know how to grasp his pen. Dr. Smith's work has rectified this, and other problems.

Prof tutors vice-president McClellan

Thanks to the unselfish efforts of a Florida State University psychology professor, imbeciles, morons and degenerates may soon be running our society. Some, in fact, already are.

Dr. Brockington Smith has long been a proponent of education for those with low IQs, poor motivation and slow motor skills. He insists that not only can these unfortunates be made productive members of society, but they can be leaders.

"Any man, woman or child in this great land, no matter how stupid, can become a university president," the doctor is proud of saying.

The list of those helped is impressive; stupendous, some say. The latest is the FSU Vice President for Student Affairs, Steve McClellan. Dr. Smith has worked with the VP for four years and is justifiably proud of his effort.

"I'm extremely proud of the work we've done with Steve," Smith says. "His development is phenomenal. He is actually gaining an understanding of the things going on around him."

"When we started with Steve, he was a mess. He couldn't even hold his pen right. He tried to write with the blunt end (see photo). He would say the most ludicrous, asinine things. People would laugh behind his back. I was really embarrassed by the boy.

"But we've come a hell of a long way. In fact, I think our chances are excellent for placing Steve in the Presidency of another university—perhaps a second rate university, but who's going to quibble over quality. We've got a walking miracle on our hands," Smith concluded.

STUDENT GOVERNMENT

EAG Sets Meet

The FSU Environmental Action Group is meeting at 7:30 Monday night in Deviney Hall lounge. Discussion topics include resource conservation, recycling, bike trails, and plans for Earth Week. They need new members or helpers to aid in these projects and to develop new projects. They will also discuss beach and canoe outings and camping trips for this quarter. All students are invited.

Tutors!

The Tutoring Program is now accepting applications from those students who would like to offer assistance in any subject. Set your own price and specific subject area in which you would like to tutor. We have a list of tutors and subject areas posted outside of 327 Union, and we will add your name to it.

Attention those who already have their names listed as tutors. We need to update the list, so if you've decided not to tutor or to tutor in some other area, please get in touch with Marie in Rm. 327 Union, or call her at 599-2975.

There will soon be a new and updated discount merchants list published in the Flambeau. There are changes and additions, so be sure to get a copy. We have more FREE Consumer Cards for students, so take advantage of the discounts offered. For cards and additional information come see us in Rm. 327 Union.

Become a Successful Student Through HYPNOTISM

Many college students can command better grades through self-hypnosis. A number of colleges and universities, such as St. Nobert and University of North Florida, have such courses to help students work on memory improvement, concentration and test anxieties.

A new hypnotism course sponsored by Student Government will begin this Wednesday, April 3rd, at 7:30 p.m. in 255 Chemistry Lecture Hall. The three-week course will be taught by J.R. Witmer, A.A.E.H., a licensed ethical hypnotist who is in private practice in Tallahassee. Witmer has already taught such classes to over 3,000 FSU students interested in learning about hypnosis and improving their grades.

Witmer says that there are three factors necessary for success in school work. The first is "ability or natural intelligence, second is an interest in school work that usually results from clear understanding of aims and goals; and third are efficient methods of study." The third factor, efficient study habits, is perhaps the most important.

The purpose of this popular course is to teach students all about the art of studying well. It explains how to develop concentration and attitudes and skills that will result in higher levels of learning efficiency.

"Hypnosis," says Witmer, "is a form of high concentration, there is nothing mystical about it. Learning the principles involved and the methods of self-hypnosis is easy for students who are highly motivated and seriously interested in improving themselves."

The first session on Wednesday will be free, and will cover an introduction to hypnosis, followed in the second hour by Witmer leading the entire class into the very enjoyable depths of relaxation and experiencing of the hypnotic-like phenomenon.

Why not attend this remarkable course created to help the highly motivated students become more successful with their studies? The fee for the entire course is $10, but Wednesday night will be free, so check it out. It could help you.

SG Bookstore Overwhelming Success

The student Government Bookstore saved students a lot of money last week and tripled its business over the amount done last quarter. Success can be attributed to the practically super-human efforts of Don Weinstein, Secretary of Special Projects. Don shouldered the responsibility for the Bookstore at the last moment when John Maloney, who was supposed to be doing the managing, suddenly abandoned his duties without warning one day before the Bookstore opened.

Don's important energetic efforts were aided and sustained by several other dedicated members of Student Government, notably our famous leader, Dave Aronofsky, as well as Bob Cutlip and Stephanie Cole, who all put in lots of long hours and hard work. Credit is also heaped upon Gamma Sigma Sigma Service Sorority and Alpha Phi Omega Service Fraternity. Both organizations worked and worked and worked, staying happy the whole time. Ya'll were great!

The S.G. Bookstore is still open this week from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m., and it has moved to room 240 Union. Be sure to stop by if you still need to buy a few books (especially basic studies books), because chances are that you'll be able to get them a lot cheaper here than anywhere else.

Thanks go out to everyone who supported the S.G. Bookstore? continued success engenders more enthusiasm which makes the Bookstore even better and hence more responsive to students' needs every quarter. If we keep getting better at the present rate, we'll have Harper and Row worried within a year!

SG Cabinet Meeting

We want to directly involve students in current campus issues, so Student Government is bringing government out in the open among the students. S.G. will hold its weekly Cabinet meeting in the lobby of Landis Hall this Thursday, April 4, at 5 p.m. Dave and Jan, the Administrative Assistant and all seven Cabinet members will be there to listen to your complaints and suggestions, and to answer your question about any problems you may be having on campus. We would also like direct student input on ideas that we're currently implementing.

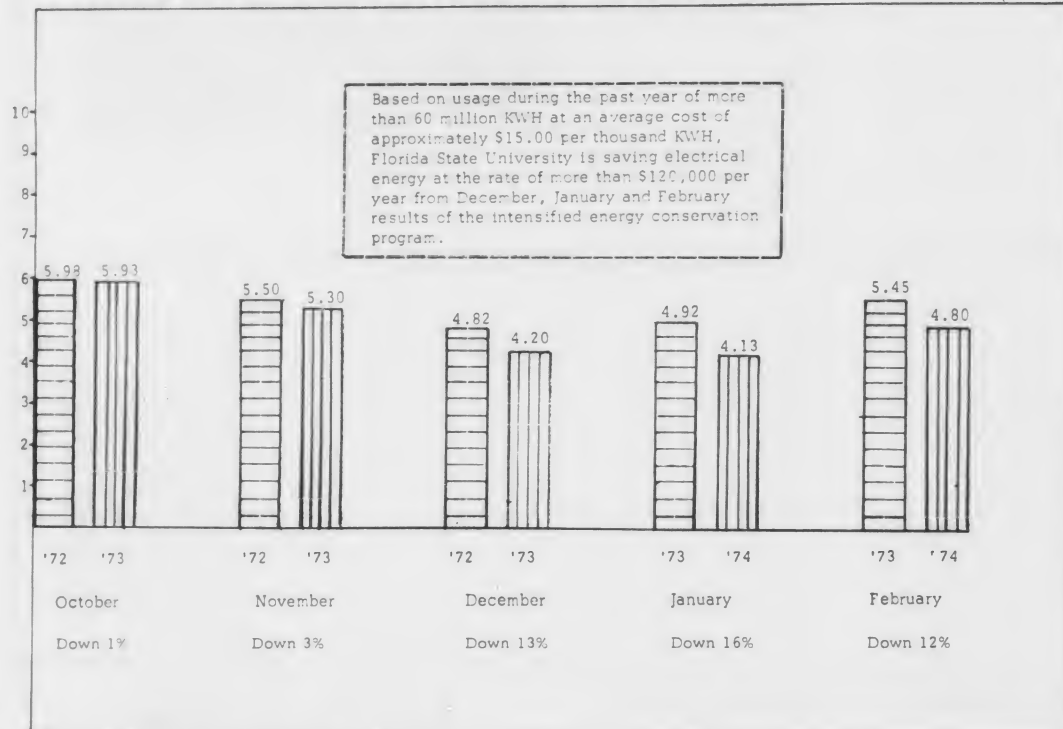

This meeting will be open to all students, so here's your chance to speak with us while we're all together. Come let us know what you want and we'll make every position effort to satisfy you. Deal? See you Thursday.

FLORIDA STATE UNIVERSITY

University Electrical Energy Consumption

Millions of Kilowatt-Hours

Energy Crisis Symposium Set

A major symposium on the current energy crisis, featuring James R. Gill, director of the Program and Allocation Policy Office of the Federal Energy Office in Washington, D.C., will be held at Florida State April 2, 3, and 4.

The symposium is sponsored by the Gold Key Student-Faculty Leadership Honorary in conjunction with the Student Government Association.

With the exception of the April 3 debate by the University's debate team, to be held at noon in Moore Auditorium, all lectures will start at 7:30 p.m. in Room 275 of the Chemistry Lecture Hall. All sessions are free and open to the public.

On Tuesday, April 2, William J. Staten, vice president of administration at Offshore Power Systems, Jacksonville, will speak on the impact American technology (nuclear power sources) will have on the energy availability. Also on the same night's program will be Dr. Philip E. Sorensen, associate professor of economics at Florida State, who will talk on the subject of offshore leasing and the pros and cons of the economic impact on Florida.

Wednesday's program will feature Rep. Kenneth E. "Buddy" MacKay (D-Ocala), head of the House Energy Committee and Ms. Paula Hawkins of the Public Service Commission. Both will speak on the topic, "The Florida Citizen: The Energy Crisis and Future Alternatives."

The afternoon debate will cover the subject "Energy Trash: Critical Energy and Recycling."

Keynote speaker Gill and Dr. Howard T. Odum of the University of Florida will bring the symposium to an end with their lectures scheduled for Thursday, April 4. Odum is a graduate research professor of environmental engineering science at the university.

Gill's subject will be "The Energy Crisis (Real or Contrived) and National Alternatives," while Odum will speak on "Alternative Energy Sources for the Future." Odum has been extensively involved with the solar house experiment at the university and will explain the benefits and possibilities for harnessing solar energy as an economical energy source for the future.

News You Can Use

The President's Annual Easter Egg Hunt will be held at the President's home, 1030 West Tennessee, on Thursday, April 11, from 4 to 5 p.m. If it is raining at 12 noon or later, the hunt will be postponed until Friday, April 12, from 4 to 5 p.m. All 3, 4, and 5-year-old children of faculty, staff, and students are invited. Invitations were to go out by March 29, but it's entirely possible that someone may be missed so we'd like good advance publicity. There will be a pony cart for rides, prize eggs and refreshments and a life-sized Easter Bunny.

The Office of Student Financial Affairs now has Florida Student Assistance Grant applications and Basic Educational Opportunity Grants applications available. All students interested in these two programs should pick up applications immediately in 127 Bryan Hall.

As of March 25, Florida State currently has promotional opportunities in the following career service vacancies:

Lab Mach. Shop Supvr. II, Mang. Systems Anal. Supvr., Computer Systems Anal II, Accountant II, Secretary II and III Clerk Typist II.

If you are interested in any of these positions and meet the requirements of the University's Internal Promotion Program, contact the Employment Section of the Personnel Relations Dept. An Equal Opportunity Employer.

Greek Week, celebrated by Florida State's fraternities and sororities, started Saturday and will continue through April 6.

The climax of the week will be the Greek Olympics, to be held Saturday, April 6, at the band practice field. All 19 fraternities and 20 sororities will compete.

During the week, awards will be given to the fraternity or sorority that has given the most social service to the community. On Saturday, the Greek Man and Woman of the Year will be named.

Registrar's Office Reorganizes

The University has announced the reorganization of the Registrar's Office and the appointment of Steven Mausert as Director of Registration and Acting Registrar.

Dr. Hilda Tinney, who has been Director of Records and Registration, will continue as Director of Records and Bill R. Norwood was designated as Coordinator of Systems.

The changes were announced by Homer Fisher, newly appointed Associate Executive Vice President.

Fisher said the changes "reflect the urgent need to focus increased emphasis on improving the registration process. These moves also recognize the efforts of Mausert to implement and effect improvements in computer assisted registration."

As Associate Executive Vice President, Fisher is now responsible for most of the duties formerly performed by the Administrative Vice President. He also will be in charge of the Registrar's Office. Fisher had previously held the post of Registrar for two years.

Fisher said a search committee is now interviewing applicants for the post of Registrar.

Mausert, a native of Germany and a Florida State graduate with BS and MS degrees, has been an assistant registrar since Aug. 18, 1972. Prior to that he was a research assistant in the Office of Academic Research Planning.

Dr. Tinney has been at Florida State for 27 years and held a variety of supervisory positions, including secretary to the Faculty Senate and editor of the official University catalogue. She received degrees from Bloomsburg State College in Pennsylvania, New York University and Columbia.

Norwood, a native of Tallahassee, has been at Florida State for 14 years, the last three as Systems Coordinator in Administrative Data Processing.

AWARDS COMMITTEEMEN — After completing three years of service on the FSU State Awards Committee, Ira Valentine (left) and Bill Watson appear to have a bright idea dawning between them. Valentine, director of student housing, and Watson, the University's Safety Officer, were honored by their colleagues at a recent meeting of the Committee.

DATeline, an official page of record, is published by The Florida State University to communicate information to students, faculty and staff. The University Calendar is a weekly feature, published each Friday. Events for which a campus space reservation is made by the Tuesday preceding the Friday of publication are automatically included. All other Calendar items should be submitted to the Events Coordinator, 238 Union, or to the Office of Information Services, 324 P.A. Building. Other notices for DATeline should be submitted to the Office of Information Services. All copy must be submitted four days prior to date of publication.

RENE GAULT performs the scene where the possessed child turns her head

Gault to play 'Exorcist' role

Rene Gault, the man who played the role of the possessed child in the film "The Exorcist" by William Friedkin, will play the role of the possessed child in the film "The Exorcist" by William Friedkin.

Gault claims to have seen the movie "The Exorcist" and says, "I suppose the hardest thing about the scene where the little girl turns her head is that it takes quite a bit of stretching of the muscles in your neck. I've pretty much got it perfected."

Also included in Gault's rather unusual scene, the levitation of the bed and the abuse of the cross scene.

Gault usually concludes his act by climbing some stairs. "Of course, even the jump of the cross after I abuse the cross," Gault said.

Real announcement

The History Tutorial program will hold an organizational meeting tonight at 8 in Room 126 Bellamy. Graduate and undergraduate students who would like to earn 2 hours credit for tutoring must attend this meeting in order to be assigned, program organizers said. The program is aimed at Western Civilization students who need tutored assistance.

The Leon County Food Cooperative will be signing up interested students today through Friday, from 10 a.m. until 2 p.m. in the Union Arcade. An initial fee of $5 will be required, co-op organizers said. More information may be acquired by calling Lois Bigger at 376-8583, Joe Christy at 222-5760 or Kim Akin at 375-3998.

Slick, Lennon, Dylan coming

Grace Slick, John Lennon and Bob Dylan have agreed to perform a free concert in back of the University Union, with the date tentatively set for April 15.

The concert will be recorded by Cacophonous Enterprises, with proceeds from the sale of a double-album going to the FSU football team.

Promoter Bill Graham, who estimates a crowd of 400,000, said, "We were going to do it at Woodstock for the Biafran orphans, but we heard the Seminole Booster ad on WTAL and were really touched. Then we knew what our moral duty was."

A spokesman from the Athletic Department said that "We will be glad to accept the money, but I don't approve of Lennon's remark about Jesus. However, that Gracie Slick is sure a sexy broad."

In view of the anticipated 400,000, Campus Security has decided to lift the ban on students parking in reserved spaces.

However, Student Body President Dave Aronofsky said, "I'll be damned if I'm going to give up my reserved space."

"I wasn't allowed any input in deciding who could come anyway, it was the Leisure Program Office."

A Leisure Program Office spokesperson expressed disappointment that Flash Cadillac, the Osmond Brothers and Pat Boone had turned down the initial offers to do the concert.

"So Lennon, Dylan and Slick were the best we could do," the spokesperson said.

RENE GAULT performs the scene from "The Exorcist" where the possessed child turns her head all the way around.

Gault to perform 'Exorcist' at DU

Rene Gault, the man who claims he can act out every scene in the film "The Exorcist" by himself, will be appearing at the Down Under Coffeehouse this coming weekend.

Gault claims to have seen the movie seventeen times.

"I suppose the hardest thing for me to get down was the scene where the little girl turns her head completely around," Gault said. "It takes quite a bit of concentration and some stretching of the muscles in your neck, but with a little practice, I've pretty much got it perfected now."

Also included in Gault's rather unusual act are the vomiting scene, the levitation of the bed scene, the backward speech scene and the abuse of the cross scene.

Gault usually concludes his act by jumping out of a window, but since the Down Under has no windows, Gault will end the show by climbing some stairs.

"Of course, even the jump out the window is anticlimatic after I abuse the cross," Gault said.

READ THIS OR LOSE MONEY

Dear Student Consumers,

The FSU Consumer's Association is dedicated to the idea of providing a means of saving money through local merchants who offer discounts to students who present their Discount Card prior to purchase. This card is FREE to all FSU students and may be picked up in the Student Government Office of the Secretary, Rm. 321 or Office of the Consumer Association, Rm. 327 in the University Union any weekday.

Expires 9/1/74

Tear this page out, keep it, pick up your card and use it. The future growth of the merchant list depends to a large extent on how often the discount cards are used. The more they are used, the more reason other merchants will have to join. If you have any suggestions for merchants or would like to help, please call and leave your name. We will be in touch.

The attached list will be rerun, complete with new merchants, every month in the Flambeau. In the forthcoming pages the consumer protection, education and activism programs of the Consumer's Association will be explained in detail. In the meantime, the following special instructions will facilitate the use of your card.

REMEMBER

Show your membership card before the purchase is made. It is very difficult for merchants to refund money after a sale is made, given modern cash register security systems.

Discounts do not normally apply to Fair Trade Items, sale merchandise, tax or credit purchases.

Please report any problem you encounter to Marie Dyson at 599-2975.

If you follow these guidelines, your card will provide you with considerable savings, as much as $50.00 in some cases, during the coming quarters.

In closing, the growth of our discount program in the last twelve months has been substantial. Hopefully, through the use of the cards by 20,000 students, even greater discounts will be achieved in the coming weeks.

Marie L. Dyson
Sincerely,
President, Consumer's Association

Mudra resigns

Larry Jones figured as next coach

Florida State football coach Darrell Mudra announced his retirement Saturday afternoon immediately following the first day of spring football practice.

Mudra, coming to Florida State from Western Illinois, was seen muttering to himself all day Saturday and was visibly shaken by what he witnessed on the practice field.

University President Stanley Marshall immediately set up a committee headed by Dr. Roy Ingham to go about selecting a new head football coach. Larry Jones, assistant coach at Tennessee, was a name prominently mentioned for the job.

"We hate to lose a man of Dr. Mudra's caliber," Marshall said. "We have done everything possible to keep the Good Doctor at Florida State and that included telling him that Gary Huff had not graduated as yet. (I'm not sure he has anyway.)"

Mudra announced he was leaving for his own sanity. "This team couldn't beat Mississippi State College for Women and I would hate to put my excellent record on the line with this team of have-nots."

"I'm sorry I ever came to this town," Mudra continued.

"I had a nice home, two cars and great Magnolia trees, and all they have here is a dumb cheese-colored stadium. But that wouldn't be bad if somebody would sit there to fill the damn thing."

Marshall also named five other members to the screening committee and announced that he will set up a Biggy-wig committee to assist the screening committee and another Woody Pecker committee to finance the two screening committees.

"The reason we have so many people involved is that the people who selected that schmuck last time were Gator alumni in actuality," Marshall said. "I want to make sure that we have enough of every race, creed, nationality and sex to make this a fine process that all football fans at the University will be proud of."

The five additional members to the original screening committee include Abbie Hoffman, Jack Lieberman, Walter Revell, Mick Jagger and Don Birdseye.

"We think this is one of the finest collections of individuals capable of motivating a University community," Marshall stated. "Every one of these gentlemen is a leader in his field and that is what we hope Florida State will be in the world of intercollegiate athletics."

"Remember, football is big business and we're not ashamed to be a part of it."

FSU trades three players

Florida State All-Southern basketball forward Robert Chassee was traded Sunday along with Dennis Burke and David Brownyard for two Grambling University players and $50,000 cash.

"We needed the money to upgrade our football program," said Athletic Director John Bridgers. "Coach Durham had said he would like a more colorful and homogeneous group of ballplayers."

FSU hires Martin

Former Dean of Arts and Sciences at Florida State University, Rogers Martin, has been asked to be the new ticket manager in charge of attendance for FSU athletics.

"We don't think we could have gotten a man with better qualifications," said an elated Athletic Director John Bridgers. "Rogers has quite a reputation in and around the state and we think he can help our sagging football attendance."

Martin, attired in a gray business suit, promised to increase the season ticket threefold. "We are going to give the ticket buyer the opportunity to sign up now then drop the ticket reservation later in the year he so desires."

Investigation to begin into 'padding' charges

BY RAY REYNOLDS and
HENRI CAWTHON

Several changes have taken place at FSU since the controversy over alleged "padding" of university attendance rolls began.

Among them are the resignation of acting Dean of Arts and Sciences Martin Roeder, the appointment of a new provost for the university's Division I, and the beginning of an investigation into the possible fraud.

Roeder, who had served as acting dean of the College of Arts and Sciences since 1972, resigned Friday "to keep from embarrassing the university," he said. Roeder denied that he had encouraged padding of the rolls, saying "it is not our policy to register graduate students for courses they do not take."

Roeder contended the former chairman of the whole affair was a "misunderstanding," but said he felt it best for all concerned that he step down.

President Stanley Marshall denied that the enrollment records at FSU have been padded, and said the memo that prompted a House panel investigation is probably an "isolated event."

FSU Graduate English director John Andrews urged in a March 22 memorandum that the graduate students sign up for full 18-hour loads to "boost Full-Time Equivalent (FTE) productivity." The usual graduate load is 12-15 hours. Andrews reportedly said he was "sorry he wrote the memo," and that he had hoped to correct it before it was too late. He has been out of town and unavailable for comment since the investigation began.

Dr. Robert A. Spivey, former chairman of the Department of Religion at FSU, was named Friday as Provost of the Division of Arts and Sciences. Dr. Norman A. Heydenburg has been acting provost of Division I since University reorganization.

The Registrar's Office will be closed today and Wednesday to provide information to the Board of Regents concerning actual student enrollment, according to acting registrar Steve Mausert.

Mausert told the Flambeau the information would be presented as evidence to the House panel conducting the investigation.

The House Education Committee became interested in the alleged enrollment padding after the BOR disallowed 1500 hours at the

Panel to release Nixon tax report

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The congressional committee investigating President Nixon's income tax scheduled a news conference for Wednesday afternoon to report its findings. The Los Angeles Times said over the weekend the committee has decided Nixon owes as much as $400,000 in back taxes and that it has found "evidence of civil fraud" in his recent federal returns.

A spokesman for the Joint Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation — which has been looking into Nixon's taxes at his request — said yesterday the panel would meet privately tomorrow morning to hear final staff recommendations.

It was expected the committee would approve the report, which would then be filed with the Senate and House. A news conference was scheduled for 2 p.m. Wednesday afternoon to explain the findings.

The Times, quoting sources close to the committee, said the report is expected to show Nixon owes between $300,000 and $400,000 more in taxes for 1969 through 1972, his first four years in the White House.

During that period, Nixon and his wife paid $78,651 in federal taxes on a total income of $1,122,266. Their returns were prepared by tax attorneys.

The committee's investigation has centered primarily on two areas:

— The possibility the Nixons realized — but did not report — a capital gain on the complex transaction by which they acquired their San Clemente, Calif., estate.

— The possibility deductions for donating his vice presidential papers to the nation were invalid or perhaps fraudulent.

According to the Times, the committee has found evidence of civil fraud in the Nixon returns but will not recommend prosecution because it believes it has no authority.

It has been reported the Internal Revenue Service also has had a criminal fraud investigation of the President underway for several weeks, although this by no means indicates the IRS will recommend prosecution.

Nixon has said publicly he will pay any back taxes the committee concludes that he owes, and the White House has denied recent reports his lawyers are preparing to defend him in federal tax court.

Taxpayers found guilty of civil tax fraud must pay the back taxes plus penalties of up to 50 per cent.

Those found guilty of criminal fraud also are subject to fines and possible imprisonment.

Flambeau drive begins

A meeting to organize the "Support the Flambeau" petition drive will be held in Room 326 Union today at 4:30 p.m.

"The administration has a record for doing the Flambeau dirty during the summer when a depleted enrollment makes dissent to their actions an impossibility," said former Flambeau editor Tom Kirwan.

"It's clear that we need to get a lot of names on this petition so that we can show the administration that the student body is strongly behind us on this issue."

"We sweat out every payroll," Kirwan, now a consulting editor said. "When payday approaches, we have to go out and hound our advertisers to make sure that we have enough money to pay the staff. Under this sort of condition, the administration is implying that we are financially stable enough to make the move off campus."

"Actually, a move off campus is preferable, but I don't think that we'll be able to handle it financially as soon as the university would like," current Flambeau editor Davis Whiteman said. "If we can show the FSU Administration that we have the support of a large number of students, we might be able to get another year in the Union."

Energy crisis began in 50's?

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. — The present energy crisis started in the 1950s and was speeded along by "demagogues in Congress, pied pipers in the Federal Power Commission and pinheads in municipal gas and power utility companies," a Houston geologist said Monday.

Michael T. Halbouty said the crisis started when domestic oil lost 2.77 million barrels daily to unnecessary imports of foreign oil and government-set natural gas prices.

In 1950 he said crude oil production exceeded natural gas in oil equivalent and imports by 1.22 million barrels per day. But by 1960 natural gas and foreign oil imports were 1.5 million barrels a day ahead of domestic oil.

"This unbearable competition to domestic oil was brought on by the importation of foreign oil at $1.50 per barrel below domestic prices and the natural gas prices pegged at 20 per cent below domestic oil prices," said Halbouty, a Houston geologist and petroleum engineer.

Food head bitter after final handout

SAN FRANCISCO — The head of the Hearst food giveaway said Monday the program was conducted in a "world of violence" and the coalition named to oversee it was more interested in power than in the safe return of kidnapped Patricia Hearst.

A. Ludlow Kramer, director of the People In Need food program set up by Randolph Hearst, made the remarks in Olympia, Wash., where he is secretary of state.

Kramer last week conducted the fifth and last distribution of the $2 million worth of food purchased by Hearst in an attempt to comply with demands of the Symbionese Liberation Army which kidnapped his daughter Feb. 4.

Kramer's comments were prompted by criticism of the food program by the coalition, named by the SLA in its initial demands. The coalition said Sunday the food program was uncoordinated and disorganized.

"The coalition said from the beginning that getting Patty back was not their concern," Kramer said. "I think their total interest was that of building whatever areas of power they could from the food program."

Kramer said the giveaway program was the largest private food distribution system ever put together in the United States and that it was done in 35 days for 150,000 persons.

White House 'interfered'

Kent State probe demanded

LORAIN, Ohio (UPI) — The mother of one of the four students shot to death on the Kent State University campus four years ago said Monday the victims' parents will demand a Congressional investigation of "interference from the White House" in the Justice Department's handling of the case.

"We will keep in touch with the proper committee in Congress to see that they fulfill their commitment to include an investigation of the Justice Department's handling of Kent State to the extent there was interference from the White House," said Mrs. Louis Schroeder.

Parents of three of the slain students issued a statement Sunday night which charged "an inappropriate intrusion by the White House" had delayed a federal investigation of the killings.

University of Florida last summer.

"We became alarmed at the excess hours students were signing up for," said Jim Elens, assistant staff director of the House Education Committee.

The joint legislative auditing committee will determine this week the extent of the investigation, and under which agency it will be conducted.

"It may be a question of merely going through the books," Elens said. In addition, the Education Subcommittee of the House Appropriations Committee last week ordered Auditor General Ernest Ellison to investigate and report back in two weeks.

State University System Chancellor Robert Mautz and Marshall have assured the Education Sub-committee that disciplinary action will take place.

The sub-committee is concerned about the efficiency of the FTE system for appropriations and is currently considering alternatives.

In the legislature, many predict that state university budgets are going to get a rougher-than-usual going over from the Appropriations Committee in the coming session.

April 6 kicks off 'week of young child' to promote welfare of children

The North Florida Association for the Education of Young Children and various local child care organizations, in conjunction with offices of the governor and mayor, have proclaimed March 31 through April 6 the "Week of the Young Child."

The purpose of the "Week of the Young Child" is to promote improvements in the services and welfare of young children.

Local child care centers will be participating in the events by offering open houses for the general public during the commemoration.

Included in the week's activities will be an WFSU "Prime Time" television appearance Thursday, 7 p.m. featuring Representative Elaine Gordon and Sheila Merlau, Director of the Educational Child Care Center, who will discuss child care in Leon County and Florida.

Dr. Milton Akers, of the Governor's Office on Early Childhood Development, will conduct a panel discussion on the various aspects of child care, child abuse and related topics on the local, state and national levels. The panel will be held in FSU's University School Auditorium, Saturday, April 6 at 10 a.m.

Martin Luther King memorial held

A Dr. Martin Luther King memorial concert will be held Thursday night at 8 at Bethel A.M.E. Church, 206 West Virginia Street, according to the Tallahassee Inter-Civic Council of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference (SCLC).

One of the activities on a four-day observance of the life and work of Dr. King, the concert will feature songs and hymns associated with the freedom movement, sung by a community choir under the direction of Betty Sanders.

The SCLC has asked that the community observe moments of silence and prayers on Thursday, between 6:01 p.m. and 7:05 p.m. King was shot at 6:01 p.m. and died at 7:05 p.m. in Memphis six years ago.

Deceitful ploy

Legislators are incensed, tax payers will be furious, and in the end students will be hurt.

Last week, House Appropriations Chairperson Marshall Harris accused FSU of using phony enrollment procedures in the Division of Arts and Sciences in order to secure extra funding.

The accusation grew out of a memo sent by Director of Graduate Studies Dr. John Andrews to graduate advisors and graduate students. The memo said that the Dean of Arts and Sciences Martin Roeder, was asking each department "to sign up as many graduate students as possible for 18 hours."

"He (Roeder) assures us that even though this represents an overload, it is a course of action that we should follow in order to boost our FTE productivity. Some inconvenience will be involved for the student, but not much," Andrews stated in his memo.

FTE stands for full-time equivalency and represents $10,000 from the legislature for every student who is registered for 18 hours of classes.

Yet FSU was not the only school cited for having too many fingers in the cookie jar. Figures indicate that the University of Florida may have out-pointed the Seminoles in the sport of enrollment inflating.

Chancellor Robert Mautz said 151 students, worth about $1 million overall, were arbitrarily dropped off last fall's U of F enrollment figures on the grounds that the students were not actually enrolled.

State officials are now conducting a full-scale investigation of all state universities to determine whether this type of illegal practice is a disease which has afflicted administrators in other institutes of higher learning.

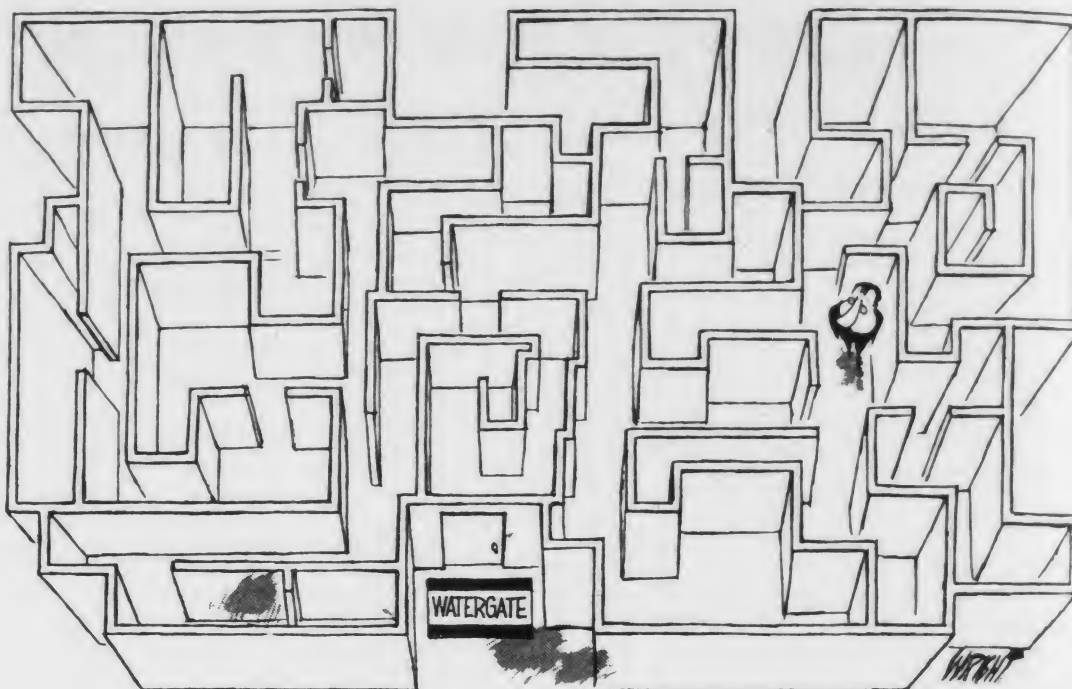

Both FSU President Stanley Marshall and Roeder deny that FSU has been involved in any type of wrong-doing. Nevertheless, Roeder announced his resignation as Dean of Arts and Sciences Friday, saying he did not want to further embarrass the university.

State legislators, still mindful of the radical activism which rocked the state campuses during the late 60s and early 70s, are not hesitant to dole out very much in the way of cash to the universities. The current enrollment scandal will undoubtedly prompt them to tighten their already choking grip on university allocations.

Students, as always, will suffer most from the deceitful antics of thoughtless administrators through overcrowded classrooms and inadequate facilities.

These hypocritical attempts to gain more money do nothing except to further blacken the image of universities throughout the state. The Flambeau hopes that in the future, administrators will be more honest in their efforts to obtain funds and not resort to the sophomoric methods we have recently been forced to witness.

Attend a rally — sign your name

An interesting story on Wednesday's SG page in the Flambeau once again revived my faltering faith in the ability of my collegiate government to take effective action against tyranny.

Headlined "Petition! Save the Flambeau," the article helped to explain this newspaper's troubles as well as how you, the students, can unite with the Flambeau staffers and SG representative to salvage the only free speech forum on this campus.

Petitions calling for individual support of the Flambeau rather than the denunciation of the Administration will be circulated throughout FSU this week. It is imperative that at least 10,000 signatures be collected in order to provide Marshall & Co. with a viable representation of student opinion on this campus.

I've often wondered how many of the Flambeau's readers actually peruse an entire issue, rather than glancing at the front page, personal ads and sports. Dateline (the Administration's chance to be heard) and SG page can be rather tedious at times. Thus, I can understand why many potential petition signees may be unaware of this newspaper's problems.

This is a sticky issue for both the Flambeau (and its supporters) and administration personnel. There has been an ongoing feud between the two that has evolved and crescendoed through the years. Although there can never be a buddy-buddy relationship again, at least the differences and animosity that already exist should be stowed until a reasonable settlement is found.

The circumstances involved in the relocation of this paper could or could not put an end to its publication. Yet, when I see every student in my morning classes reading (if not at least looking at the pictures in) the Flambeau, I realize that a terrible injustice may happen to you.

Granted, all one needs to publish a newspaper (of sorts) is a typewriter and mimeograph machine. The question here is would YOU, the students who make this paper what it is, and are the reason for its existence, allow this to happen?

What more effective demonstration of support (or anger) is there than presenting Drs. Marshall and McClellan with the names of one-half the student population of FSU? Those 10,000 signatures are actually 10,000 voices at a rally. Can you imagine getting 10,000 outraged students together outside the PS/A building? It would be nice, though...

OUT ON A LIMB

by Eric Moss

(and then buys a Domino's pizza) the Flambeau has done its job. Even our streakers would have no way to know what could be in store for them.

Let's assume that the Flambeau survives its move and is able to publish on some basis. No doubt that the overall quality of the paper's production would suffer (Believe it or not, the Flambeau is a well-produced paper). Quality photographic reproduction, composition, and various other details that make a paper enjoyable to read could be severely cut and lesson the number of readers. Hand in hand with readership is advertising revenue. With that gone, there can be no paper.

The things I've explained may seem a trifle dismal, yet are real possibilities. Some collegiate dailies have been able to survive independence and off-campus relocation. Unfortunately, most of these have found themselves in deep financial trouble as a result. (The Independent Florida Alligator is an example, yet their situation allows them to operate more successfully than the Flambeau would.)

The administration has made their willingness to have the Flambeau moved off campus known. During the next few days, make the administration aware that you, the student body of FSU, will not stand idly and watch your newspaper risk ruination.

Sign the petition. (But only once.)

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Editor:

The dawn of 1984 is here, it appears. Mother used to smoke cigarettes, occasionally the exhaled smoke entered my nostrils, it stank. So did Father stink me up. I began to smoke at 12 and then they quit, and I caught hell about it when Mother smelled my breath.

But anyway, the blame is not on them, or me, but us. I'm now 29, and have finally stopped smoking. 17 years, good years, thank you R.J. Reynolds.

So getting it there, my demand: fellow students, please quit. It ain't easy, but it sure isn't hard. But if you are so weak-willed and powerless and can't do that, then stop doing it around me in class where I can't get away from you. You are stinking up my body, your body, other bodies; filthying up the floor and the air in all the buildings.

It's 1974, ten years before, and the dawn? Well, professor, you don't want to be a czar, and enforce the University rules which are NO SMOKING PLEASE in the classrooms. The students have you in their grasp, and you have them in yours....

I call on you, Fearless Leader President Marshall, repost the signs in Bellamy and elsewhere....

Anti anti-gun

Editor:

Tom Kirwan's "Gangbusters" was a biased anti-gun column. It is not clear whether this is a hastily concocted article without any in-depth research or whether Kirwan is suppressing the facts in order to prove his argument. I am inclined to believe the former because of a blatant error in the article. The National Rifle Association (NRA) publishes a magazine called "The American Rifleman," not "National Rifleman," as Mr. Kirwan believes.

Although I am not a member of the NRA, I am very indignant because Mr. Kirwan's attack on the NRA is unjust and unfounded. His article is very misleading. I am writing to elucidate several points which he has muddled.

Mr. Kirwan mentioned "high caliber rifles." What is a "high caliber rifle?" Caliber is defined as the internal diameter of a hollow cylinder. There are small caliber rifle big caliber rifles, but I have never heard of a "high caliber rifle." Is this my ignorance? Mr. Kirwan's?

He denounced the NRA for using the name of the Constitution to "crush efforts in Congress to give this country a sound and rational gun control bill." Even though I am a foreigner, I am well aware of the Second Amendment which guarantees to the private citizen the right to keep and bear arms. Also, this country has a sound and rational gun control bill. Congress passed the Gun Control Act in 1968. The NRA supported this legislation. Mr. Kirwan, in haste, must have overlooked these facts.

It is not true that "the U.S. has refused to put even the barest of restrictions on the sale of small firearms." The Gun Control Act of 1968 clearly outlines who may not purchase or own a firearm. It also legislates the nature, sale, transfer or transport of firearms. Anyone who has attempted to buy a firearm has bought any firearm is well aware of the federal and local legislation forms that must be filled out along with identification.

As for "assassination of leaders," I wish to point out that neither President Kennedy nor Martin Luther King were shot with a handgun. Besides even confiscation of firearms will not stop assassinations. Assassinations are carefully planned operations. Their success does not depend on the comm availability of firearms. One good example is the recent attack on Princess Anne and her husband. England has very stringent gun laws. There

He denounced the NRA for using the name of the Constitution to "crush efforts in Congress to give this country a sound and rational gun control bill." Even though I am a foreigner, I am well aware of the Second Amendment which guarantees to the private citizen the right to keep and bear arms. Also, this country has a sound and rational gun control bill. Congress passed the Gun Control Act in 1968. The NRA supported this legislation. Mr. Kirwan, in his haste, must have overlooked these facts.

It is not true that "the U.S. has refused to put even the barest of restrictions on the sale of small firearms." The Gun Control Act of 1968 clearly outlines who may or may not purchase or own a firearm. It also legislates the nature, sale, transfer and transport of firearms. Anyone who has attempted to buy or has bought any firearm is well aware of the federal and local legislation forms that must be filled out along with identification.

As for "assassination of our leaders," I wish to point out that neither President Kennedy nor Martin Luther King were shot with a handgun. Besides, even confiscation of all firearms will not stop assassinations. Assassinations are carefully planned operations. Their success does not depend on the common availability of firearms. Once good example is the recent attack on Princess Anne and her husband. England has very stringent gun laws. There are no private handguns. However, the assassin was carrying not one, but two handguns.

In using the words "to blast the brains out of squirrels," Mr. Kirwan is attempting to distort the image of hunters. Squirrels are shot for food. Most cattle are shot in the head in slaughter houses. Hunting license fees and federal excise tax on firearms and ammunition support this country's game and forest management programs, without which many of our animals would be extinct today.

Mr. Kirwan described the NRA as "anti-reform." He portrayed them as being opposed to all gun control legislation. This cannot be further from the truth. The NRA has supported many sensible gun laws. I have sent them a copy of Mr. Kirwan's column and I will let them clarify their positions.

He also portrayed their magazine to be filled with "scary" propaganda. "The American Rifleman" covers shooting matches all over the world (shooting is an international as well as Olympic sport, lest Mr. Kirwan forget), new products and very often carries scholarly articles on modern firearm engineering and ballistics. The FSU library carries this magazine. I urge all Flambeau readers to read this magazine and judge for themselves.

Finally, the gun manufacturers do not control the NRA. Contrary to Mr. Kirwan's belief, some gun manufacturers support certain gun bills. This country's largest handgun manufacturer, Smith and Wesson, supports the Bayh Bill, ridiculous as the bill sounds.

Impulses

Editor:

For the benefit of those students on campus who may have missed reading the latest "Florida State Reports" (a publication for alumni and parents), I would like to share a comment made by our esteemed president Stanley Marshall, concerning the ghastly act of streaking. In answering a question as to why he allowed that "terrible and immoral" fad called streaking on campus, Marshall replied by saying that he hoped "our students will find more conventional ways to express their creative impulses."

As a student in education, I find it hard to believe that an educator with the credentials Marshall possesses would hold the view that creative impulses should find conventional ways of manifesting themselves. Since when does creative potential in thinking court with convention? Taking into consideration the audience to whom the publication was directed, the comment smacks of ass-licking! Viewing the comment as a future educator, and knowing that a present educator in Dr. Marshall's position made such a comment, frightens me as a shocking portent of what we must still contend with in the educational system today.

Big issues

Editor:

I heard on the news a while ago that the 1974 Legislative Session will convene uptown at the Capitol Building, and I felt that perhaps this was the time to open up and write a letter to all Florida legislators and to the student body as well.

I am concerned that, this being an election year, potential candidates and their backers will be more apt to stick to the same old over-worked, flashy issues (Watergate, off-shore oil drilling, Watergate, over-population, Watergate...) and fail to see the real problems that confront certain segments of the population today. The purpose of this letter is to bring these issues out into the open so that no one may say "I didn't know anyone cared about that."

For instance, one of the most urgent needs of the campus community is a more practical type of bicycle rack. Since many bikes have no kickstand, they are unable to stand by themselves, and putting an alloy rim into one of those cement slots will result in a bent rim. Keeping the focus here on campus, why don't they serve pitchers of beer at the Outpost instead of those limp, tacky cups? Why hasn't the film committee brought "Steelyard Blues" to campus? Whatever happened to braless girls? Why aren't there campus rest rooms for seeing eye dogs?

There are many relevant issues which concern the community at large as well as the campus, such as why is it that all the "head shops" in town look alike? Why doesn't Publix carry Green Stamps? Why isn't "MASH" 60 or 90 minutes instead of a puny half hour? When will marijuana be decriminalized? Where do you go to buy a dune buggy in this town? Why don't Cities Transit buses have cots? Why does every half-wit "ad man" in town now force the word "streaker" into ads for everything from Chinese food to mobile home sales to an auto body shop?

Well, there's more, but I've only got one piece of paper. Demand action, work within the system, and see what you get. Write your legislators.

Spring poetry readings slated

BY RICHARD LEE

The FSU Poetry Arts Cooperative (PAC) has completed its Spring Quarter Schedule of poetry readings to be held in the Open Door Coffee House, United Ministries Center.

Poet William Slaughter

began this quarter's readings with a presentation of his "Chagall Poems" last Friday. A reading featuring FSU students is scheduled for this Friday at 3:30 p.m. in the Down Under Coffeehouse.

Van K. Brock, Director of the Apalachee Poetry Center and member of the FSU

English Faculty, will read selections of his poetry on April 12. Brock received his Ph.D. degree from the University of Iowa's Writer's Workshop and has published widely in periodicals such as "New Yorker," "Southern Review," and "Yale Review." His poems have also appeared in over ten anthologies.

Rosemary Daniell, who studied with Brock and James Dickey, author of "Deliverance," will read the following week on April 15.

Daniell, Coordinator of the Poetry in the Schools Program in Georgia, has had her poems included in "Atlantic Monthly," "Virginia Quarterly," and numerous other magazines and quarterlies.

The PAC will conduct an "open workshop" on April 19, in which local poets are invited to read and discuss their own poetry. Information on the workshop can be obtained through the PAC offices in the Williams Building.

The Open Door Coffeehouse will feature two poets, David K. Kirby and Douglas Fowler, on April 26. Kirby, Director of the FSU Writing Program, has published his poetry in "South Carolina Review," "Back Door," and "Arkansas River Review." Fowler, also a member of the FSU English faculty, has published a book of criticism on poet-novelist Vladimir Nabokov and has recently completed his first novel.

Janet Burroway, graduate of Cambridge University and presently on the FSU English faculty, will read on May 10. Burroway taught at the University of Sussex in England for several years, and has published four novels and a book of poems entitled "The Buzzards," which was nominated for the Pulitzer Prize in 1970.

Franklin B. Ashley, poet, playwright, musician, and professor of English at USCA, will present selections of his poetry on May 17. Franklin, a prolific writer, has published widely in various periodicals and has received numerous awards for his poetry.

Audrey Randolph, Director of the Black Cultural Center at FSU, will appear at the Open Door on May 24. Randolph received her M.A. degree from FSU and, until recently, conducted a writing workshop at the Black Cultural Center.

A final student reading on May 31 will complete this quarter's PAC sponsored literary events.

Tips set for streakers

The National Safety Council (NSC) has issued a set of safety rules it suggests streakers follow in the course of their nude frolics across American college campuses.

"If you must streak," the NSC said, "wear sneakers. They give better traction for that all important speed and protect your tootsies from harm. A cut foot may put an end to your streaking career."

The NSC also urged streakers to wear reflectorized tape and to keep a sharp eye out for an obstacles that may appear in their path.

"Reflectorized tape is especially important for night streaking," the NSC said. "Fashion 'bumper numbers' or 'tail lights' from tape. Imaginatively adorn your anatomy with tape on back, sides and front so that you don't end up among the streaking wounded."

The NSC said streakers should be especially wary of cars, excavation holes, chains and fences during their romps.

"You may miss more than your classes if you don't wear glasses," the NSC warned.

The Council said that it doesn't condone streaking, but "the naked truth is that many college campuses will be buffer zoned by streakers."

Bluegrass comes again

A Bluegrass Festival and Arts and Crafts Show will be held at Miller's Landing May 3 through 5, following the successful Miller's Landing Bluegrass Festival of last November.

The three-day concert will begin Friday night at 6 and continue throughout the weekend.

Bluegrass groups performing at the festival include many local favorites: the Big Bend Ramblers, the Fabulous Nighthawks, the Bluegrass Revival, Spare Change, the Quine Brothers, Rainbow Band and the Country Grunts.

The Arts and Crafts Fair will feature silver jewelry, weaving, baking, quilts, glasswares, leather goods and other items.

Admission for Friday and Saturday will be $3 and $2 for Sunday. Cost for the full weekend of entertainment, arts, crafts and eats will be $6.

Camping on the Miller's Landing location will be free and concessions will include Brunswick stew, black bean soup, open pit bar-b-q and egg rolls for the vegetarians in the crowd.

Police uncover stolen bikes

Anthony James Stewart was charged Friday by the University police with conspiracy to commit a felony and with aiding in the concealment of stolen property.

On March 29, University police served a warrant on Stewart for the conspiracy charge. After he was in custody, police noticed two bicycles at his residence. A check of the engraved social security numbers revealed the bikes were stolen property and Stewart was charged with an additional crime.

Stewart is presently in jail and the FSU police department said they expect further arrests.

Meeting informs vets of legislative measures

BY JOHN STEVENS

A conference on Florida veteran's affairs was held last weekend to inform veterans about what measures are being taken by the Florida legislature to supplement their benefits.

According to a spokesperson for the Federal Veterans Administration, who asked to remain unidentified, 120 state representatives were invited to Saturday's conference in Moore Auditorium, 29 deigned to respond, ten promised to attend, and two showed up.

Instead, assistants to the five state legislative representatives arrived to answer the questions of veterans from all over the state, while a campus security plainclothes policeman who had photographed streakers on Landis Green, observed the proceedings.

Michael Harrison, a legislative aide to representative Ray Maddox from the state Select Committee of Veterans' and Military affairs said that the panel had only appeared to inform the audience of bills that were being studied by a committee and that might or might not be forwarded to the House for a final vote.

The three bills in question, House Bills 2233, 2234 and 2235, provide waivers of educational fees for Florida veterans who are full time undergraduate students; provide grants for those veterans attending private colleges; and would increase funds for the payment of fees for children of certain veterans attending certain state schools.

Harrison admitted that Florida had the eighth largest number of veterans in the United States and that Florida ranked 34th in the nation for granting funds to its veterans.

Harrison told the audience that Florida "only spends 41 cents per veteran a year."

The meeting on Saturday was co-chaired by vice-president of Student Government Jan Pietrzyk who said that the FSU Veteran's Center "related how it lobbied last year, covered past successes and mistakes, and discussed what it could do this year as far as lobbying."

Pietrzyk said that FSU will be the center for all future efforts by veterans' organizations throughout the state.

"We've got to pull veterans out of the woodwork here and get them concerned with what's going on at the capitol," Pietrzyk said in an interview.

He also said that the biggest stumbling block to measures to aid veterans was coming from Marshall Harris, Democrat from Miami, who is Chairman of the Florida House Appropriation Committee.

Pietrzyk said that Harris had refused to agenda the fee waiver bill last year and that "if he chooses to fight again, there could be a backlash at the polls."

In an interview yesterday, Bob Cutlip, Administrative Assistant in Student Government, said that plans were being laid to get all the veterans at FSU, FAMU and TCC to come together in a march on the state capitol to make the legislature aware of the veterans' presence and power.

"I'd like to see a battalion sized effort with demonstrators by contacting him at the Student Government offices in the Union.

Energy talks begin

William J. Staten, vice-president of administration at the Offshore Power Systems in Jacksonville, will speak tonight on the impact that American technology, such as nuclear power sources, will have on energy availability, at 7:30 in Room 275 of the Chemistry Lecture Hall.

Staten heads a list of speakers and discussions for the three-day energy symposium at FSU, beginning today and continuing Wednesday and Thursday.

Staten has worked as a special agent for the Federal Bureau of Investigation, a tax attorney for the Internal Revenue Service and has held numerous administrative positions with the Westinghouse Corporation. He joined the Offshore Power Systems in 1972.

The Energy Symposium is sponsored by the Gold Key Student-Faculty Honorary in conjunction with the Student Government Association.

The symposium will also include such speakers as Dr. Phillip Sorensen, associate professor of economics at FSU; State Representative Kenneth MacKay, head of the Florida House Energy Committee; Public Service Commissioner Paula Hawkins; and Dr. Howard Odum of the University of Florida, a graduate research professor of environmental engineering science.

WILLIAM J. STATEN, vice president of administration at the Offshore Power Systems in Jacksonville, will speak tonight on the effects of nuclear power on energy availability.

Chase results in arrest

Michael Wallace, a twenty-two year old Tallahassee, has been charged with several traffic violations and a felony after engaging police officers in a motorcycle chase west of campus Sunday.

According to campus police, Wallace was speeding on Call Street and then tried to elude several police cars. Wallace was apprehended after he and a police officer were thrown from their cycles due to Wallace's "tricky driving."

Wallace was booked in Leon County Jail and charged with speeding, attempting to elude a police officer, resisting arrest with violence, reckless driving and leaving the scene of an accident.

What a way to go!!

(ZNS) An employee of the Pepperidge Farm Plant in Downingtown, Pennsylvania, was killed recently when he fell into a vat of chocolate.

The victim apparently removed the cover of an automatic chocolate mixing tub and then accidentally fell in. A local rescue squad had to cut through the machine's steel housing to retrieve his body.

The name of the man who drowned in the chocolate? Robert Hershey.

CITIES SERVICE GRANT — Clifton D. Price, second from right, a graduate employment representative with Cities Service Company, Tulsa, Okla., presents a $2,000 check from the company's Foundation Grant to Homer Fisher, associate executive vice president. The grant, an annual, unrestricted award, is for the 1973-74 academic year. Also accepting on behalf of President Stanley Marshall, are Hal Wilkins, director of development, left, and Col. Robert Shoemaker, director of Career Planning and Placement.

Roeder Resigns As Acting Dean

President Stanley Marshall has accepted the resignation of Martin Roeder as acting dean of the College of Arts and Sciences.

Marshall, saying he respected Dean Roeder's decision, accepted the resignation after it was received about noon Friday, March 29.

Roeder, a biologist, has been at Florida State since 1964 and became acting dean in December of 1972. Prior to that he was associate dean for four years and assistant dean for two years. He will return to the classroom.

News You Can Use

The Office of Student Financial Affairs now has Florida Student Assistance Grant applications and Basic Educational Opportunity Grants applications available. All students interested in these two programs should pick up applications immediately in 127 Bryan Hall.

Eric Hyrst, well-known Canadian choreographer and dance teacher, is on campus this week as a guest instructor in the Department of Dance.

The energy crisis symposium will begin tonight at 7:30 in Room 275 of the Chemistry Lecture Hall with William J. Staten, vice president of administration at Offshore Power Systems, Jacksonville, speaking on the impact American technology (nuclear power sources) will have on the energy availability. Also on the program will be Dr. Philip E. Sorensen, associate professor of economics at Florida State, who will talk on the subject of offshore leasing and the pros and cons of the economic impact on Florida.

The President's Annual Easter Egg Hunt will be held at the President's home, 1030 West Tennessee, on Thursday, April 11, from 4 to 5 p.m. If it is raining at 12 noon or later, the hunt will be postponed until Friday, April 12, from 4 to 5 p.m.

Food Prices Rise

Food prices on many items sold in the cafeterias, snack bars, and other dining facilities on campus were increased at the beginning of the Spring Quarter. The price increases were necessary to offset the rising food costs, according to Jack Bassett, Concessions Administrator.

Prices were increased on only those items for which significant cost increases have been experienced. Hot dogs, cold drinks, milk, juice, rolls, most desserts, and most entrees in the cafeterias are still priced the same as last quarter, according to Bassett.

Examples of wholesale food cost increases over a recent five-month period include American cheese — 49%, french fries — 35%, catsup — 23%, applesauce — 95%, napkins — 14% and plastic spoons — 113%.

Dr. Spivey Is New Division One Provost

Dr. Robert A. Spivey, a national leader in the study of religion in public education and former chairman of the Department of Religion at Florida State, has been named Provost of the Division for Arts and Sciences.

The appointment is subject to confirmation by the Board of Regents.

"Dr. Spivey's administrative ability, academic credentials and knowledge of our campus equip him well for this important post," said President Stanley Marshall in announcing the appointment.

Heydenburg Retires

Dr. Norman A. Heydenburg has been Acting Provost of the Division since the reorganization of the University structure. He delayed his plans to retire pending the appointment of a provost and his retirement is effective immediately.

The Division for Arts and Sciences includes 10 departments in the sciences, five in the humanities, the Institute of Molecular Biophysics and Geophysical Fluid Dynamics, Aerospace Studies and Military Science, and five programs including Medical Sciences (PIMS) and American and Asian Studies.

Dr. Spivey, who is professor of religion, joined the faculty of Florida State in July, 1964, in order to initiate the new Department of Religion which began in 1965. He served as chairman of the department until 1972.

Book Author

A New Testament scholar, he is the author of a number of articles and two books, including "Anatomy of the New Testament," published by Macmillan, which is just appearing in a second edition.

Dr. Spivey chaired the State of Florida Education Department's committee on the study of religion in the public schools. He has received several grants for curriculum development and teacher education in religion-study for public schools from the Danforth Foundation, the Stone Foundation, Arthur Vining Davis Foundations and the National Endowment for the Humanities and has authored or edited numerous publications in this field.

He is a member of the board of directors of the National Council on Religion in Public Education in New York City and of the Professional Advisory Committee of the Public Education Religion Studies Center in Dayton, Ohio.

Executive Director

In 1972, Dr. Spivey became executive director of the American Academy of Religion, the largest national professional organization in the field of the academic study of religion.

He also is vice president of the board of directors of the Society for Religion in Higher Education and is a member of the commission on religion in higher education of the American Association of Colleges.

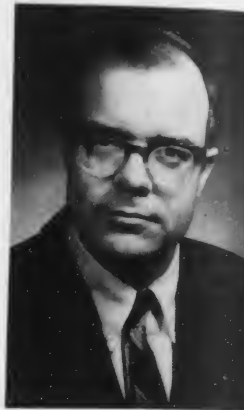

At Florida State he has served in numerous capacities, including chairman of the Faculty Senate Steering Committee, of the Humanities Administrative Committee and of the Faculty Fund for Student Scholars and as president of Phi Beta Kappa.

Yale Background

Previous to coming to Florida State, he served as assistant in instruction at Yale University Divinity School and on the faculty of Williams College. He received the B.A. degree (Summa Cum Laude) from Duke University in 1953, the B.D. degree (Magna Cum Laude) from Union Theological Seminary in 1956 and the Ph.D. degree in New Testament from Yale in 1962.

He has been the recipient of a national scholarship from Omicron Delta Kappa, a Fulbright Scholarship and has been a Woodrow Wilson Fellow and a Danforth Graduate Fellow. In 1971-72, he was a visiting scholar at St. John's College at Cambridge University in England.

Dr. Spivey holds memberships in the American Association of University Professors, the Society of Biblical Literature, the American Academy of Religion and Omicron Delta Kappa.

King

(Editor's Note: Special showings of "King Kong" will be held in the Down Under tonight at 7 and 10 p.m. $1)

BY BRAD LINAWEAVER

Cinema legend has it upon her acceptance for role of heroine in King Kong Fay Wray was told she would play against the tallest, darkest leading man in Hollywood.

Whether or not the 50 foot gorilla star of Kong lived up to her expectations is academic now—more important is that Kong managed to hold up Fay Wray for most of the film.

Legislature

"Today in the Legislature" a daily report on legislative activity, returns to Channel 10 today with live coverage of the Opening Session of the Legislature at 10:30 a.m. Nightly summaries of each day's activities begin tonight at 10 p.m.

Last year, Florida citizens were given their first view of legislative session in action through statewide public television.

A typical "Today in the Legislature" program will consist of videotaped coverage of the major debates of each day.

"Musketeers"

(Editor's Note: "The Three Musketeers" is playing at the Florida Theater with showings at 7:40 and 9:40.)

BY LOUIS DE PRIEST

Richard Lester ("Hard Day's Night" and "Petulia") and George MacDonald Fraser ("Flashman at the Charge") combine talents to write the funniest screenplay to come out of Hollywood in a while.

The two-part film series begins with "The Three Musketeers," sub-titled "The Queens Diamond." The second part is called "The Four Musketeers or Milady's Vengeance," which has not been released yet.

While Fraser extracted the funniest parts of Alexandre Dumas' novel to use as scene in the movie, Lester captured that devil-may-care attitude and the campaigns of the Mindless Aristocracy that made "The Three Musketeers" so well read and loved as a book.

One scene in the movie shows our Musketeers entering an inn, hungry and penniless. Two Musketeers set up a fight to attract the attention of everyone in the inn so that the other two can go around the room collecting their dinner. After the fight they thank the innkeeper for his hospitality and the film cuts to the four on a bed eating their dinner.

The whole plot of the movie centers around D'Artagnon's

King Kong and Fay Wray Reign Supreme on Screen

Cinema legend has it that upon her acceptance for the role of heroine in King Kong, Fay Wray was told she would play against the tallest, darkest leading man in Hollywood.

Whether or not the 50 foot gorilla star of Kong lived up to her expectations is academic, now—more important is that Kong managed to hold up Miss Wray for most of the film's running time, defended her against various dinosaur transgressions, mashed Fay's other suitors (of the human variety) into paste when he wasn't dumping them into a chasm, and finally took a dive off the Empire State Building to prove Carl Denham's point: It was beauty killed the beast.

Ever since its initial release in 1933, King Kong has continued to thrill audiences with its sheer magnitude—the intricate special effects, using stop-motion animation models; the bravado of the actors, even if their performances are somewhat wooden; the Max

KING KONG and the struggles in the Big City provide much of the plot for the movie which will be shown in the Down Under Coffeehouse tonight at 7:00 and 10:00 p.m.

Steiner music score that carnage with loving care—and underlines each scene of with its basic honesty.

As every school child knows, Kong is a king and a god who makes the move—albeit unwillingly—to the Big City. Depression New York provides almost as surreal a backdrop as does Skull Island.

When Kong turns his captor's opening night into a closing night, by escaping, the giant ape knows what he's doing. He tries to make the best of his new environment.

The Big City may lack its mountains, but it provides skyscrapers to climb; it may not have any dinosaurs to battle but there's always the El train to be derailed; it makes up for and absence of pterodactyls with a swarm of airplanes...and of course, there's the most important parallel between New York and Skull Island: the presence of Fay Wray. Home is where the woman is.

When the movie really moves, and reminds the film viewer that a sense of wonder is what life is all about, it does its job admirably. Because Kong works so well, it has become durable American folklore.

Last year, Florida citizens were given their first view of a legislative session in action through statewide public television.

A typical "Today in the Legislature" program will consist of videotaped coverage of the major debates of each house, important committee action and daily up-dates of bill passages. From time to time there will be interviews with legislators or possibly the governor.

Jim Lewis, project director and host for the series, calls the program an important step forward in opening up the political process. "But," he says, "we don't expect to interpret and analyze the issues. We have confidence that our viewers can make their own decisions if we supply the facts."

"Musketeers" Entertains

quest to become a Musketeer. The film ends with D'artagon's initiation ceremony into the Musketeers and Milady's look of "we will meet again."

The film's star-studded cast makes the movie even more interesting. Such familiar names as Michael York, Oliver Reed, and Faye Dunaway head the last list, with performances by Christopher Lee, Richard Chamberlain, Raquel Welch, Geraldine Chaplin and Charlton Heston also featured in the movie.

"Florida's Madding Crowd" Presents Plays, population

Population in Florida? Tallahassee? What's it really like? Is growth strangling our communities? "Florida's Madding Crowd," a theatrical presentation will show you all sides, answer your questions, and let you form your own opinions.

"Florida's Madding Crowd" will be presented tonight at 8:00 at the Woman's Club in Los Robles.

The program consists of scenes from seven modern plays with comments by a humanist and an urbanologist.

Dr. Gary Shannon, urbanologist and Professor of Geography at the University of Florida will describe various facts of today's population in Florida. Four actors will then perform scenes from plays, such as Albee's Zoo Story, Ionesco's Rhinoceros, and O'Neill's Desire Under the Elms.

Dr. Sidney Homan, humanist and professor of English, will then relate the scenes to the facts previously presented about urban pressures, suburban facades, tenement crime, country solace.

Coffee and doughnuts will be served after the performance in order for the audience to discuss the program with the group.

Smith launches Tribe to three relay triumphs

It is tough enough to get to the top of the athletic mountain. It is even tougher to stay there. Ask Bob Hayes or Jimmy Hines or Valery Borzov or even Florida State's Danny Smith.

Smith, the FSU senior speedster, was voted the outstanding performer at the Florida Relays this past weekend by winning the 120-yard high hurdles and launching two of the Seminoles' three relay teams.

The commencing of the outdoor season for many schools saw Smith keep up his carry-over pace from the indoor season where he was the NCAA champion for the hurdles. The Bahamian flashed the event in a 13.8 clocking, ran the open leg of the 440-yard FSU relay and started the Seminoles to a victory in the sprint medley.

FSU was the only school to capture three relays and the 40.5 clocking in the 440 earned a spot in the NCAA outdoor championships in June.

Along with Smith, Joel Garren, Vesco Bradley and Jesse Forbes comprised the 440 team. Tyrone Frederick, a fourth place finisher at the NAAs, replaced Forbes for the sprint medley, and Bobby Brooks, Bobby Burr, Wes Koenig and Frederick ran the winning two-mile relay for the Tribe.

Netters win two

Capturing every singles match but one, the Florida State tennis team came back from an upset loss to Southern Illinois last week to defeat Kalamazoo College and Samford University by identical 7-2 scores.

Ricardo Bernd, playing out of the number one seed he occupied as a sophomore, was the lone loser in singles play. Bernd was defeated by Samford's Grey King 6-0, 6-1.

Otherwise it was all triumphs for the Tribe netters as number two seed Reggie Genois led a parade of three set victories.

Head coach Randy Jobson was pleased with the Seminole turnaround. "We played some tough competition and came back from opening losses. The guys played with a lot of hustle and heart this weekend."

SINGLES: Grey King (Sam) def. Ricardo Bernd (FSU) 6-0, 6-1; Reggie Genois (FSU) def. Bob Oransky (Sam) 6-7, 6-2, 6-4; Charles Diggins (FSU) def. Willie Davies (Sam) 5-7, 6-4, 7-6; Enrique Andrade (FSU) def. Billy Herron (Sam) 6-7, 6-2, 6-2; Juan Ortiz (FSU) def. Don Fukarte (Sam) 6-1, 6-3; Gordon Jones (FSU) def. Bob Stewart (Sam) 4-6, 7-5, 6-4.

DOUBLES: King-Davies (Sam) def. Genois-Ortiz (FSU) 6-4, 2-6, 6-4; Diggins-Bernd (FSU) def. Oransky-Byrd (Sam) 4-6, 6-2, 7-5; Jones-Andrade (FSU) def. Herron-Fukartes (Sam) 6-0, 5-7, 6-4.

FLORIDA STATE'S DANNY SMITH chugs to MVP at Florida Relays in Gainesville this past weekend.

Golf ranking

This week's college golf rankings voted by a board of coaches and compiled by Golf World Magazine:

McMillan wins Superstar title

Allen McMillan, former Florida State track star, has proven his overall versatility by capturing the intramural department's First Annual Superstars Competition.

McMillan took top honors in the rope climbing and the 100-yard dash and captured second in another event and placed in all seven categories.

Second place went to Merritt Cornwell who won the biking event. Don Birdseye finished third by winning the 880-yard run and tying for the golf lead.

The thirty competitors were given a choice of competing in seven events of the nine-event field. Versatility was a major factor as events ranged from bowling to biking, swimming to running, baseball hitting to golf, and tennis to rope-climbing.

U.S. MARINE CORPS OFFICER
SELECTION TEAM ON CAMPUS
1-3 Apr., & AT LAW SCHOOL
3-4 Apr.

We're looking for a few good men.

If everybody could be a Marine, we wouldn't be the Marines.
For almost two hundred years, we've kept our standards high and our ranks small.
Today it is harder than ever to be a Marine. We're a tough club to join, a tough team to make. And that's exactly the way we're going to keep it.
We want quality, not quantity.
We want men who are proud of their Country and want to serve it proudly.
We want men who seek a challenge and aren't afraid of tough physical training.
We want men who believe that while nobody likes to fight, somebody has to know how.
We want men who want to become part of an elite force of extraordinary men.
We want good men - and then we make them better.
If you are a college man who is ready for leadership and responsibility...
If you've got it and you want to stand with the Marines, you'll be welcome.
We train our men the way we've always trained them. No compromises. No shortcuts. No promises except one: You'll be a Marine.

Seminoles try to put 'dumbness' behind tonight

Florida State's baseball team, mired in "dumbness and uncertainty," squares off against Columbus College tonight at 7:30 p.m. on the Seminole diamond.

The Seminoles, 14-12 on the season, are coming off a doubleheader loss to Western Michigan Friday night and a single game win over Valdosta State on the road Saturday.

The swatters will play host to Sorority night as the sorority with the most fans in attendance will be awarded a prize by the team.

The Seminoles got off to an early lead Saturday against Valdosta when Steve Tebbets opened the game with a walk, advanced to second on Randy Davidson's infield grounder and scored on a single by centerfielder Jim Busby.

FSU made it 3-0 in the second when Jeff Tandlich hit a 350 foot home run with Windle Higginbotham on base.

Valdosta State scored its first run in the bottom of the second when Seminole starter Terry Farmer yielded a bases loaded walk. The Blazers left the bases loaded in the inning, just as they did in the sixth, seventh and eighth. They finished the contest with 16 runners stranded on the basepaths.

Farmer got the win for Florida State making his record 1-3 on the season. He was aided by fine relief performances from Larry Rothschild and Mike Kelley. They were able to extinguish the Blazers' numerous flare-ups.

The Seminoles' hitting attack was led by Carlos Lezcano and Jim Foxwell with three hits apiece. Busby and Tebbets added two each.

Friday afternoon the Seminoles dropped a doubleheader to Western Michigan, 7-3 and 4-2, by making "enough dumb mistakes to fill a textbook," said coach Jack Stallings.

A perfect example of what Stallings meant occurred in the fifth inning with FSU trailing by a score of 3-2 and Tebbets at second base with the tying run. Tebbets was caught sleeping and picked off. The next batter, Mike Eissey, stroked a single to right that would have scored Tebbets. Much to the crowd's dismay, Eissey was also picked off, killing the FSU rally.

ALL FOR NAUGHT as rightfielder Carlos Lezcano can't reach home run ball.

Rugby wins

Florida State's powerful rugby club captured the Florida Rugby Invitational Tournament in Gainesville this weekend, winning three games by a combined score of 101-0.

The ruggers defeated the University of Miami Trident rugby team for the title 28-0. The big victory will give the Seminoles a favorite role in future eastern tournaments.

Earlier, the Seminoles knocked off the Dolphins of Jacksonville University and the University of South Carolina by scores of 32-0 and 41-0.

Thirteen teams participated and early favorites Pensacola Naval and Brown University were defeated early in the competition.

I-M news

The intramural softball season for women is right around the corner and an organizational meeting will be held for group representatives today at 4:30 in Room 214 Tully Gym.

The meeting will include dormitory, sorority and independent teams and any squad with a conflict of playing times should definitely be in attendance at this meeting.

Women who wish to enter an intramural tennis tournament should drop by Room 117 Tully Gym and sign up. Competition will be based on three classifications: beginners (no experience), intermediates (some experience) and advanced players (high school or club experience).

Play will begin on Thursday, April 11 and entries will have 48 hours in which to complete each round.

*****

Independents begin intramural volleyball competition Wednesday night at 5:15 in Tully. Fraternity volleyball playoffs begin tonight.

Freestyle relay 10th in NCAA

Florida State's 800-yard freestyle relay team swam to a tenth place finish at the NCAA swimming championships in Long Beach, California Friday night.

The finish provided the Seminoles with six points and enabled them to stand in a tie for 19th with Alabama.

Senior captain John Hegert's first-leg time of 1:42.6 established a Seminole record for the 200-yard freestyle event. Steve Meisel, Bob Horne and Cliff Schlak comprised the remainder of the relay foursome.

By placing tenth, the members of the relay are automatically named All-Americans.

The Florida Legislature is proposing a bill to grant the Florida Department of Transportation a minimum of $5 million to launch a program for the state of Florida.

An estimated 1,000 signatures have thus far been collected on petitions supporting the Florida Flambeau's efforts to remain on campus.

Although the newspaper and administration are still negotiating, the paper has been told by Vice President Stephen McClellan to "plan on being out of its Union offices by Sept. 1."

A Student Government spokesperson coordinating the petition drive said that "between 30 and 40 students have begun to collect signatures in hopes of convincing the administration that the Flambeau belongs right where it is—in the Union."

Bill would provide energy research funding

BY CRESTON NELSON

The Florida Legislature is presently considering action on a proposed bill to grant the Florida State University System a minimum of $5 million to launch a major energy research program for the state of Florida.

The bill, recommended by Chancellor Robert B. Mautz and supported by the Board of Regents, should bring funds to FSU if approved by the legislature.

"Florida State is one of the leading research institutions in Florida and thus should get a share of the funds," a spokesperson for FSU said.

According to representatives of the Florida Inter-Institutional Energy Committee (FIEC), Florida is "energy-poor" in terms of conventional fuel supplies and, by nature of its economy, has been affected more than other areas of the nation by the current energy crisis.

The FIEC said in a recent statement that "oil and gas are in short supply nationwide, and the use of other conventional fuels, such as coal, present economic and ecological problems to this state."

The FIEC believes that Florida has "a rich reservoir of talent" in its universities, both public and private, and that this talent could be used in conducting significant energy research.

The energy research efforts will be two-fold: a short-term project dealing with research and development and producing with relative speed, while the long-term research will approach the problem in a more fundamental way and aim for a permanent solution.

The widespread use of solar energy is one possible short-term solution to the energy crisis, and according to Dr. R. H. Davis, professor of physics at FSU, solar energy is the research plan most likely to be accepted by the members of the legislature.

"People and their representatives are concerned with immediate energy problems and have not accommodated themselves to the future problems we must face," Davis said.

Of the possible long-term energy solutions, the FIEC finds thermonuclear fusion as the most attractive alternative.

"It uses a virtually inexhaustible and inexpensive fuel supply and presents no serious radioactive waste disposal problem; is environmentally and ecologically acceptable, and poses absolutely no danger of nuclear catastrophe," according to an FIEC pamphlet.

The FIEC proposes that the energy research funds be allocated as a lump sum to the Board of Regents. Seventy-five percent of the funds will provide a cost-sharing basis for proposals to non-state funding agencies. The remaining 25 percent of the funds will be used as discretionary "seed" money.

Askew opens Florida Legislature

BY HENRI CAWTHON

Stressing "honesty in government," Governor Reubin Askew urged the passage of a strong public disclosure bill before yesterday's opening session of the Florida Legislature.

Askew also endorsed the Equal Rights Amendment (ERA), surprising many legislative observers with his vehemence.

When the Governor stated his support for the ERA, two gallery rows of women turned their thumbs down in unison. During recesses they handed out loaves of bread bearing the caption, "I enjoy being a girl."

Askew then formally announced plans to provide $143 million in tax relief for homeowners and small investors.

In addition to financial disclosure, the Governor asked for stronger laws on the taking of gifts, conflicts of interest and authority to investigate judicial misconduct.

No bills were passed after Askew's 25-minute speech, but the House will consider 119 major bills unresolved from last year and the Senate will break into committees during today's session.

Meanwhile, the FSU Legislative Lobbying Committee is closely following eight pre-filed bills, including Senator Jack Gordon's (D-Miami) proposal to place three student members on the Board of Regents (BOR).

The Gordon bill would place three governor-appointed university students in the BOR for one-year terms. It has been referred to the Senate Education Committee.

Representative Kenneth MacKay (D-Ocala) is co-sponsoring the bill in the House and has also filed a proposal to give community college students a seat on each board of trustees.

A bill that would repeal the last year's anti-hitchhiking law has been filed by Representative Poole (R-Ft. Lauderdale) and Crenshaw (R-Jacksonville) in the House but has not been introduced in the Senate. The bill passed the House Criminal Justice Committee and is on the agenda for floor consideration.

The amendment to the Education Omnibus Act, which would enable students to evaluate SIRS results, has been placed on the House floor calendar after leaving the Education Committee.

Askew also appealed to the legislature to fund the new Office of Energy Allocation, and to consider the granting of emergency powers for future energy crises.

The student lobby is also concerned with Alan Becker's (D-Miami) proposal to strengthen the Landlord-Tenant Act and the veterans tuition waiver bill.

The tenant bill, which has been filed in both the House and Senate, would prevent retaliation on the part of the landlord because of formal tenant complaints.

The lobbyists will meet with the House Education Committee tomorrow.

The lobbyists will be present today when the House

Education Committee begins drafting the faculty evaluations bill, a repeal of the activity fee standard for student teachers, and a proposal to set a minimum on students government funding.

Flambeau drive underway

An estimated 1,000 signatures have thus far been collected on petitions supporting the Florida Flambeau's efforts to remain on campus.

Although the newspaper and administration are still negotiating, the paper has been told by Vice President Stephen McClellan to "plan on being out of its Union offices by Sept. 1."

A Student Government spokesperson coordinating the petition drive said that "between 30 and 40 students have begun to collect signatures in hopes of convincing the administration that the Flambeau belongs right where it is—in the Union."

Tables at the Union, Bellamy and Williams buildings are scheduled to begin collecting signatures this morning. Persons interested in helping with the effort can sign up at the tables or in the SG offices in the Union.

"We can't impress enough upon the student body how important this drive is," said Davis Whiteman, Flambeau editor. "If we are pushed off campus, the Flambeau, will have to begin paying outrageous commercial rents, electric bills, and will have to buy office equipment and some 20 typewriters. We worry about making our payroll every two weeks—this is something we just can't afford."

According to News Editor Clare Raulerson, the Flambeau and its readers would suffer tremendously if the paper were to move off campus.

"Only a few of our reporters have cars," Raulerson said. "Our central location on campus is vital to our newsgathering."

If the off-campus move came about, she said, "our readers would probably have a very difficult time just placing a classified advertisement."

SG said that "students who wish to collect names can pick up their petitions in Room 321 Union, at any of the three petition tables or at the switchboards in every dorm. Completed petitions should be returned either to the tables or to the SG offices, not left at the switchboards where they'll get lost."

The petition drive will continue for at least two weeks, organizers said.

"I really don't foresee any real problems in getting the proper number of students to sign," Whiteman said. "A lot of people are quick to criticize the Flambeau, but I don't think any of those critics would like to see us cease operation."

White House requests cuts in pollution control

(ZNS) A secret White House memo sent to the Environmental Protection Agency Administrator Russell Train indicates that the Nixon Administration plans to make severe budget cuts in pollution control programs.

The memorandum in question was written to Train by Fred Malek of the White House Office of Management and Budget. A copy of it was obtained by the Pittsburgh Press.

The memo states that $91 million slated by the Environmental Agency for "program grants" will slow to a trickle, and then stop. These "program grants" were the funds budgeted by the EPA to set standards, enforce and monitor air pollution.

Malek's memo also advises Train that $105 million, which is earmarked for the control of emissions from power plants and other energy sources, will be cut from the EPA budget. Instead, Malek states, this money will be transferred to a new agency directly under White House control — an agency which does not yet exist.

The memo further warns that any objections by the EPA to the President's proposal will not be tolerated.

The memo was sent to the EPA at a time when the agency is battling with the administration over the impoundment of other pollution funds. Nixon has impounded $9 billion of the $18 billion appropriated by Congress for sewage treatment plants around the U.S.

SAN FRANCISCO — The kidnapers of Patricia Hearst Tuesday were given 30 days to release her if they wish to collect an additional $4 million food ransom money.

In New York, the Hearst Corp. announced that $4 million had been placed in escrow in San Francisco's Wells Fargo Bank for continuation of the food giveaway demanded by the Symbionese Liberation Army which kidnapped the girl Feb. 4.

The announcement also said, "If Patricia Hearst has not been released and returned unharmed by the Symbionese Liberation Army on or before May 3, 1974, the offer made by the Hearst Corporation will be withdrawn and the escrow will terminate."

At his home in suburban Hillsborough, Randolph A. Hearst, chairman of the Hearst Corp. and father of the kidnapped girl, issued a brief statement which added, "Every escrow has a time limit. This is not a threat, simply a term of the escrow. We could have

Jaworski gets 'relevant' material

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon has turned over "all relevant material" requested by special Watergate prosecutor Leon Jaworski, a White House spokesman said Tuesday.

"My understanding is that all relevant material requested by Mr. Jaworski's office has been transmitted to it," Deputy White House Press Secretary Gerald Warren told reporters. But he ignored a question as to who decides which material is relevant.

Warren said, "There have been confidential conversations between Presidential lawyer James D. St. Clair and the staff of the House Judiciary Committee" on its investigations but he declined to say how many conversations or when they took place.

Warren said he participated in the entire two-hour meeting between the President and Republican congressional leaders Tuesday morning, and that the question of Nixon's impeachment was not raised.

"The leadership did not discuss impeachment," Warren said.

Asked to comment on a statement by Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., that a majority of the House probably is ready to vote in favor of impeachment, Warren said, "It seems unusual that some members of the Congress are counting votes before the material from the Judiciary Committee has been assessed."

To questions regarding a forthcoming congressional report on Nixon's taxes, Warren said the material "should not be addressed piecemeal. . . We will address these all at one time and this is not the time."

He said the President's new tax lawyers, Kenneth W. Genmill and H. Chapman Ross, are "working with the Joint Internal Revenue Committee."

Record snail eater hangs up

HOUSTON (UPI) — Rex Miller, who ate 112 Moroccan snails in 15 minutes, retired from formal competition Tuesday and hung up his tongs and two-pronged fork forever.

"As far as escargot contests go, last night was my final performance," he said. "I am retiring. Next year I will be a judge."

But while he was active, Miller raced through the ranks of snail eating from glutton to champion.

He won a case of Chateau-Lafitte Rothchild 1968 valued at $350 for winning the 6th annual Great Escargot Eating Contest Monday night. He was outdone in quantity only by Niky Bove who ate 124 for the "Gluttony Award."

"You are tops in style," said chief judge Erick Worscheh of the Petroleum Club. A panel representing the top names in Houston's finest restaurants concurred.

Miller is the president of a Houston sprinkler contracting firm.

If everybody could be a Marine, we wouldn't be the Marines.

For almost two hundred years, we've kept our standards high and our ranks small.

Today it is harder than ever to be a Marine. We're a tough club to join, a tough team to make. And that's exactly the way we're going to keep it.

We want quality, not quantity.

We want men who are proud of their Country and want to serve it proudly.

We want men who seek a challenge and aren't afraid of tough physical training.

We want men who believe that while nobody likes to fight, somebody has to know how.

We want men who want to become part of an elite force of extraordinary men.

We want good men — and then we make them better.

If you are a college man who is ready for leadership and responsibility...

If you've got it and you want to stand with the Marines, you'll be welcome.

We train our men the way we've always trained them. No compromises. No shortcuts. No promises except one:

You'll be a Marine.

Bill pushes self-service stations

BY EDDIE BELL

Companion bills are currently pending in the Florida Senate and House of Representatives to allow self-service gasoline stations in Florida.

If the bills, sponsored by Senator Kenneth Plante of Orange County and Representative Roger Wilson of Pinellas county, pass into law, Florida drivers could begin to experience some relief in the rising cost of living, according to self-service gasoline sale spokesman Duane Franceschi. In states where self-service gasoline dispensing operations are permitted, motorists are experiencing a saving of two to five cents per gallon on the gasoline purchases. The savings result from a decrease in labor costs for the gas station operator. If the labor expenses are reduced, the saving can then be passed along to the consumer, Franceschi said.

At present, forty states allow self-service gasoline operations. The remaining ten states have studies underway which may allow them in the future.

The passage of the bills would allow Florida consumers to benefit from one of three types of self-service operations. The first type is a total self-service installation with an attendant nearby to observe and collect payments. The second type is the "split island," where the customer has the choice of pumping his own gasoline or having an attendant do it. The third type is a combination of the self-service principle and a convenience grocery store operation where the attendant operates the gas pumps from a remote position inside the convenience store.

Both the National Fire Protection Association and the Florida State Fire Marshall's Office maintain that the self-service sale of gasoline does not bring about any fire hazards. Automatic shutoffs and remote switchings make the operation as safe as conventional methods of gasoline dispensing, Franceschi said.

(ZNS) An Irish judge has ruled that discotheques are dance parlors under the control of Satan.

Judge Carr added that psychedelic lights rotated at high speeds could drive people out of their minds.

HYPNOSIS

Hypnosis has come a long way since the days of Count Dracula. And so has Witmer's Self-Hypnosis classes, started three years ago, which have been taken by over 3,000 students on the FSU campus alone.

In Room 255 Chemistry Lecture Hall tonight at 7:30 p.m. Witmer begins a new three week course on self-hypnosis instructions for improving concentration and study habits.

The new course covers techniques to help students become more successful as students through the building of proper attitudes and habits necessary for efficient studying. And teaches special methods for developing concentration through self-hypnosis exercises.

"Hypnosis like other forms of meditation, is a form of deep concentration," Witmer says. "In the state of hypnosis all the senses are more acute and there is a greater awareness, the individual is always conscious."

"The general picture of a hypnotized person is one with his eyes closed, his respiration slow, his limbs heavy and his movements lethargic. He may appear asleep, but an EEG reading would show he is not."

"But another state of hypnosis is where the individual has his eyes open, his respiration normal, his movements rapid and accurate, his mind sharp, clear and alert. This state is called 'waking hypnosis.' In this state the mind and body function at their best."

Poor concentration, lack of attention and other undesirable study habits can often be corrected through the latter form of waking self-hypnosis.

Since motivation plays an important part in the intensity of studying, post hypnotic suggestions will be used in the class to help increase motivation and mediate the amount of fatigue or discomfort from studying.

Another use of self-hypnosis, Witmer says, "is for the correction of test anxiety which is a common and serious phenomenon affecting approximately 25% or more college students who experience regularly emotional disturbance at exam time."

Witmer, who says, "It's sometime easier to hypnotize the audience en masse than it is an individual," will explain and discuss the misconceptions about hypnosis and then hypnotize the whole class. Students have described that they felt wonderfully relaxed and good as they listen to Witmer softly guide them through their own mind's inner self.

The first session is free, the overall cost of the course is a nominal $10.00 fee complete. Students can sign up after the second hour of tonight's class. Witmer's classes promise to be mind-exploding and worthwhile and are supported by Student Government.

Do you still exist Dr. McClellan?

It is a rare occurrence when one is able to witness a speech given by some major member of the FSU administration that does not include some reference to the alleged importance of constant communication with students.

But while these presidents and vice presidents have been known to talk for hours on the subject, they are frequently remiss in seeing that such communication does exist.

On March 24, the Flambeau was notified by the Student Government Supreme Court that the visitation case of Gary Goldacker had been concluded and that Goldacker had been found not guilty of the charges lodged against him. However, the Flambeau was told, the verdict may be meaningless unless it is officially recognized by the university administration, specifically by Dr. Steven McClellan, Vice President For Student Educational Services.

Since the Student Government court released the verdict a week ago last Sunday, the Flambeau has called Dr. McClellan's office four times in an attempt to find out what action, if any, will be taken by the University.

On Monday, March 25, Flambeau Editorial Page Editor Mike Brennan called McClellan's office in search of an administrative reaction. Brennan was informed by McClellan's secretary that the vice president was not available at the moment, but a message would be left informing McClellan of the inquiry.

When no return call was received by Wednesday, March 27, Brennan again tried to get in touch with McClellan. This time, the secretary told Brennan that McClellan had the flu and "would be gone all day."

A third attempt to reach the vice president was made by Flambeau reporter Richard Lee on Monday, April 1. Lee was told by a secretary that McClellan was unable to talk at that particular time. Yesterday, April 2, a fourth call was made—this time by Brennan—and the Flambeau was told McClellan would be "in conference" for the remainder of the afternoon, and then was "going home."

Four attempts to gain information on a matter of importance to thousands of students and not even an acknowledgement in return that the calls were received.

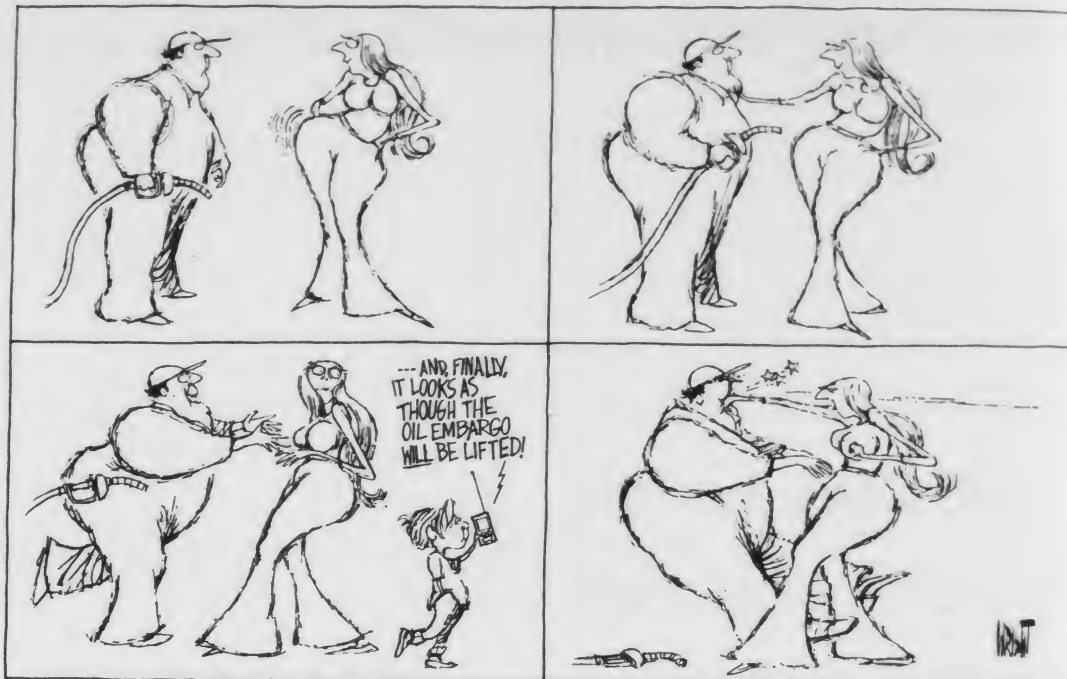

Not a very impressive record for an office which supposedly prides itself on its recognition of the need for communication with students.

A foreign students' problem

A Nigerian student at Montana State University, Abubakar S. Ibrahim, wrote a letter to his father in early December in which he expressed disenchantment with certain U.S. policies and discussed South African politics.

The letter reached the University's foreign student advisor, Helen Simpson, who said the letter had already been opened by the post office. She telephoned the Agency for International Development (AID) which sponsored Ibrahim's scholarship. She discussed the letter with Robert Doan, Program Specialist for International Training because she felt AID should be informed of Ibrahim's attitudes because the U.S. government was paying for his education.

Ibrahim received a call from Doan who told him, "If I hear any more about you I'm going to create enough problems for you in Nigeria so that even your country won't accept you."

AID terminated Ibrahim's funding in late December, thus preventing him from registering for the Winter term at MSU.

University authorities were investigating to determine who opened the letter.

An official of the Nigerian embassy in Washington, D.C. stated that the university claims that Ibrahim's letter was opened because Ibrahim had not properly addressed his letter. The letter was opened in an attempt to get the sender's address. It is also claimed that Ibrahim's scholarship was terminated for scholastic reasons and not because of his views as outlined in his letter to his father. The official also stated that Ibrahim is still studying at Montana State University with the aid of a scholarship from his state government, the Northeastern State of Nigeria.

In a letter to his fellow students at MSU, Ibrahim wrote "It is better for foreign students to realize that they don't have the right to their own views in the land of the free."

I would hope that this is not a pattern but an isolated unfortunate incident.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Shit policy

Editor:

It finally happened! The staff at DeGraff Hall has gotten me so pissed off that I felt compelled to write this letter.

Coming back from class I had to use the restroom facilities here at DeGraff and I found no toilet paper. Trivial, yes? But the plot thickens. I went out on a frantic search to locate a roll or two and found that the supply in our dorm was confiscated. Why, I asked myself, would anyone do such an insane thing as lift all the toilet paper from our restrooms? The answer is what this letter is about.

Early this morning, (one or two a.m.), some of the more juvenile members of this dorm went on a "papering spree" and used up a fair amount of what limited supply our dorm has. Fine, I said, this form of asininity is rather common and those involved will probably be given work hours or some other appropriate punishment. However, I find that the remainder of what was left in our restrooms was confiscated by the staff here in order that the rest of the dorm, all those that were not involved, must put pressure on the fools so that we can receive an allotment of toilet paper.

Whereas I see a need to punish those who would waste, I resent thoroughly having to go first to the staff, then to the idiots who caused this whole mess, and then back to the staff to check out a roll with an I.D. card just so I can take a shit. I feel that being blackmailed into doing this is as juvenile as was the act that was first committed. The people who should be punished directly are the people who went on the papering spree and wasted the paper, NOT the rest of the dorm who must go through the embarrassment and red tape involved just to go to the bathroom. I sincerely hope that this sort of administrative juvenility doesn't recur.

Nudist club

Editor:

This is an open letter to all those who have streaked and to those who wished they had. Why not try a nudist camp where you don't have to worry about having your picture taken by a police official and identified and suspended from school, about involuntary admission to the county jail and/or loss of personal funds, and about other miscellaneous forms of harassment imposed upon those who get "caught with their pants down?"

There are quite a few nudist clubs in the state and their addresses can probably be obtained through the American Sunbathing Association in Orlando, Florida.

My family has been member of one of these clubs in South Florida for many years and the relaxing state of mind of being naked is a great thing.

It may be for some of you and it may not be for any of you, but how about trying it?

Fair comes down on high fees

BY RICHARD LEE

Jim Fair, consumer advocate lobbyist extraordinaire, and, according to his detractors, "Florida's number 1 nut," has found another cause: "exorbitant veterinary fees."

Fair's unusual career of political involvement has gained him the respect of many Floridians and the disfavor of many state officials.

After attempting to sue a county judge, Fair was ruled incompetent by a psychiatrist appointed by the same judge. He was then hustled off to the Florida State Mental Hospital where the Chattahoochee doctors ruled him perfectly sane.

Fair's new gripe is the "extravagant veterinary fees which vets are charging for the treatment of house pets, especially dogs." He says that the high charges are a reflection of the extensive education a vet must undergo in order to practice, and that the fees would decrease if the training was more specialized, and less time consuming.

"Why should a vet have to be competent to treat anything from a hippopotamus to a canary when he's generally only required to treat dogs and cats," Fair asked. "After spending seven years being educated vets feel compelled to charge $35 for the spaying of a house pet, or $20 to have your dog or cat put to sleep," he added.

Fair is trying to organize a non-profit club called 'Man's Best Friend' which will lobby the legislature in an effort to modify the degree program for veterinarians. Information on the club can be obtained from Fair at 224-4883.

The Leon County Food Co-op will hold a general meeting tonight at 7:30 in 120 Carraway.

The main difference between this venture and the other existing co-ops is that the Leon County Co-op will sell out of a storefront at 702 South Macomb Street. Joe Christy, a spokesperson for the group, says the markup over wholesale prices will be 15%, which will be used for the store overhead and for co-op development. This is considerably less than the 27-50% hike by the supermarkets, according to Christy. Dairy products and dry goods will be purchasable from the co-op.

The group will have a booth in the Union Courtyard from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. on April 3-5. Anyone wishing further information can contact Joe Christy at 222-5760 or Lois Bigger at 576-8583.

Controversial rabbi speaks on women's lib

"Psychoanalysis and Women's Liberation" will be the topic of Dr. Richard L. Rubenstein's lecture to the American Studies Spring Lecture Series tonight at 7 in Room 126 Bellamy.

Rubenstein is a reknowned and controversial rabbi and theologian whose lectures and writings have been widely reviewed. His works include "After Auschwitz," "Radical Theology and Contemporary Judaism," "The Religious Imagination," "Morality and Eros" and "My Brother Paul."

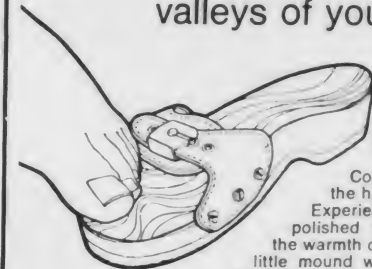

Tonight's lecture will continue the theme of "Sex and Sex Roles in American Society" selected by the American Studies Department for this spring's series. Like other lectures in the series, Rubenstein's discussion will be open to the public.

Doobie

BY ERIC MANN

FSU students will have an opportunity to "Doobie" on the "Music" at the Doobie Brothers' April 10 at 8 p.m. in Christian Stadium.

The concert, a byproduct of the Lousiana Program (LPU), was in the program stages for weeks and has been booked since last fall. The Doobie Brothers, a four-piece band from San Francisco, are currently on tour.

Auditions

Auditions for the new musical "The Sound of Music" will be held at the FSU from 4 to 5:30 p.m. in the Rooming House on the main campus.

The new musical, "The Sound of Music," is a production of the FSU Music Department. It is a musical about the life of Maria von Trapp, who was a governess for a family in Austria.

"The Sound of Music" will be directed by John G. Gentry. The play is about the life of a family in Austria and the end of the world. It is a musical about the life of a family in Austria.

Musician wins

Scotty Williamson, a sophomore at the FSU, won the 1974 National Music Competition. He is a member of the FSU Music Department.

The current, sponsored by the Music Teachers' Association, was held at the FSU. The winner of the competition is Scotty Williamson, a sophomore at the FSU.

Doobie Bros. tickets on sale

BY ERIC MOSS

FSU students will have an opportunity to "Listen to the Music" of the Doobie Brothers April 10 at 8 p.m. in Campbell Stadium.

The concert, a presentation of the Leisure Program Office (LPO), was in the planning stages for weeks, and has been booked since late Fall Quarter. Realizing the risks of staging an outdoor concert during the usually wet Spring season, LPO has made provisions for Tully Gym as an alternate site for the show.

According to an LPO memo, there will be two shows in the gym in case of inclement weather. Admitted to the 8 p.m. show will be those holding yellow tickets numbered 00001-03900. Tickets numbered 03901-07800 (blue) will be admitted to the 10:30 show. White tickets numbered 07801 and above will be eligible for a refund April 16 between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m. at the Union Ticket Office, located on the Union's second floor.

Tickets are $4.00 in advance, $5.00 at the door, and are available at both Yankee Peddlers, Phoenix Holding Company and the Union Ticket Office.

The Doobies, like most bands in the rock world, have undergone some personnel changes since the days of "Jesus Is Just All Right." Recent additions are Tiran Porter on bass and Keith Knudsen, who teams with "Little" John Hartman to form an Allman Brothers style double drummer setup.

An original Doobie, Hartman has become proficient on congas and other percussion instruments in addition to his conventional drum set.

Auditions scheduled

Auditions for three one act plays will be held from 4 to 5:30 p.m. in Room 205 in the Fine Arts Building.

The three plays, "The Divine Misunderstanding," "Possessions," and "Afterglow," were written by Carol Banks, a graduate student of the School of Theatre.

"The Divine Misunderstanding" will be directed by Louis Entolo. The play is about a madam of a brothel in the north end of London, and a man who comes to call on her.

Musician wins

Scott Holshouser, a sophomore at the FSU School of Music, was second place winner at the National Finals of the Collegiate Artist Piano Competition held in Los Angeles March 18.

The contest, sponsored by the Music Teachers' National Association, was open to all college pianists in the country between the ages of 18 and 27. Holshouser is a student of Leonard Mastrogiamomo and previously studied in Athens, Georgia, with Ira Gerchevski for eleven years.

Ma, the Madam, thinks he has come because he has his eye on one of her girls, but he has a more divine purpose in mind. This play requires dancers to play hookers.

Valerie Naiman will direct "Possessions," the story of a couple whose marriage is dead. They experience a rebirth only to find possessiveness again corrupts them.

"Afterglow," to be directed by John Urquhart, is a poetic drama of a couple's journey after death. They relive the memories of their son's death, a suicide.

These plays are being sponsored by the Student Government and the Down Under. They will be presented May 10 and 11 at the Down Under.

Everyone is welcome to try out.

Training Set For Nurse Practitioners

A 19-week training course for Nurse Practitioners I will begin Monday, April 15, at Florida State.

Intra-Extra Mural Plans

The Department of Intramural and Extramural Activities has been charged with the responsibility of scheduling the recreational facilities on-campus to include Montgomery Gym, Rooms 208 and 213; Tully Gym Room 139; and the wrestling room, 17 Tully as well as any on-campus courts.

Academic areas who will be utilizing Tully or Montgomery Gymnasiums are asked to submit a list of classes. Intercollegiate Athletics should submit a list of any activities requiring the use of either gym, including a tentative schedule of practice sessions.

Sports clubs should submit a list of meets that require the scheduling of any University recreational facility. Leisure Time and CPE classes should submit a class schedule and the facilities that are required.

The FSU Program Committee should notify this office approximately three weeks prior to any upcoming event. This office should be notified of any special events requiring the use of an on-campus recreation facility, at least one month prior to the date requested.

Any group interested in organized free play and sports clubs who wish to schedule a facility for practice sessions should contact this office for special consideration. This will be allowed on a space available basis, first come, first served.

All requests, other than those regarding classes, should be submitted in person to Room 117 Tully Gym. Telephone requests will not be accepted.

Any off-campus organizations unrecognized by the University should contact Continuing Education, Dr. Charles Jones, at 599-4660, in order to receive permission to be scheduled.

Dr. Robert C. Hunter, director of the University Health Service, said the course is part of an effort to increase the availability of primary medical care in the Big Bend area by expanding the role of the registered nurse.

The course, involving seven weeks of classroom work and a 12-week internship, will provide training in physical diagnosis, physical examinations, differentiation between normal and abnormal findings and the ordering of basic laboratory and X-ray studies, all under the direct supervision of a physician.

The program is supported by a $30,000 grant from the Florida Regional Medical Program, Dr. Hunter said, and there will be no tuition charge for those accepted.

Dr. Hunter said applicants should be registered nurses with three or more years of clinical experience and demonstrate willingness and aptitude.

He said the acceptance of applicants will also depend on the availability of a physician to supervise the internship.

Classes will be held in the University Health Center, with the internship to be arranged with the supervising physician.

The program is managed by the University Health Service with the assistance of Florida State's School of Nursing and Program in Medical Sciences, and the Family Practice Program of Tallahassee Memorial Hospital.

Those wishing further information should write Robert C. Hunter, M.D., Director, Health Services, Florida State University, Tallahassee, Fla., 32306.

Georgia Southern, Miami race to District lead

Georgia Southern (21-1), Miami (28-3) and South Carolina (22-3) continue to be the pacesetters among the District III major independents this week, but individual efforts by Stetson's Rick Rhoden and Miami's Orlando Gonzalez were the big news.

Rhoden, a senior right-hander from Boynton Beach, chalked up his sixth straight win for the Hatters and has still not been touched for an earned run. In fact, he has given up only two unearned runs in the 54 innings he has worked, while leading the Hatters to a 16-5 record.

Gonzalez, Miami's leading pitcher all season, went on a tear during the second Twin Tournament last week collecting 12 hits in 20 at-bats for a nifty .600 mark that raised his season average to .434.

In addition to hitting the ball well, he continues to plague enemy batteries once on base, lifting his season stolen base mark to a school record 39.

South Florida's Rick Steinhilf had the highest average reported through games of Mar. 31 with a .438 mark to his credit. He is one of two Brahms at the .400 level as teammate Weldon Wright is hitting an even .400. Other .400 hitters include South Carolina's John Gambrell at .417 and Georgia Southern's Carl Person at .407.

If South Carolina and Stetson players appear to be always looking over their shoulders, it may not be to see who is behind them in the standings, but to make sure they are getting away with their thefts. The Hatters have stolen 74 bases in 90 attempts in 21 games. And with a .230 average, that means they must be going just about every time they get on.

The Gamecocks on the other hand have swiped 69 bases and have allowed only nine by the opponents.

Bicyclists race through Tally

Tallahassee Velo Sport and the city of Tallahassee are happy to announce that they will be sponsoring an Olympic Development bicycle race April 19-21.

This, race, like others around the country, are used to select competitors for the U.S. Olympic team, Pan American Games and other international competition events.

Tallahassee's race is called a stage race and will be broken down into five individual events which will be run over the three days and will total nearly 240 miles. The rider who completes all five events in the least amount of time will be declared the winner.

The Tour of the Appalachicola National Forest race is attracting competitors from all over the United States including veterans from past Olympics and U.S. national champions.

The race is scheduled to reach speeds of 45 miles per hour on the Capital City Country Club course. For the estimated 150 competitors, $1,650 in cash prizes is up for grabs.

There will also be two races of one or two miles in length to provide fans a better opportunity to view Tallahassee and nationally known bikers. Further details will be forthcoming as time approaches.

Nixon back taxes near $1½ million

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon and his wife Pat owe at least $476,431 in back federal taxes and interest for 1969 through 1972 — the period of Nixon's first term in the White House — the staff of the Joint Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation concluded Wednesday.

Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., vice chairman of the group, emphasized that the report did not necessarily reflect the views of the committee itself. But he expressed hopes that if the committee does take a position, the President will abide by it.

The 784-page report, approved 9 to 1, stressed that the committee drew no conclusions as to "whether there was or whether there was not fraud or negligence involved in any aspect" of the returns, either on the part of the President or his personal representatives.

"The staff believes that it would be inappropriate to consider such matters in view of the fact that the House Judiciary Committee presently has before it an impeachment investigation relating to the President..." the report said.

It also said members of the committee, which undertook the tax study at Nixon's request in December, may have to pass judgment on impeachment and so "would not want to have prejudged an issue which might be brought before any such proceedings."

The lone dissenter to making the report public was said to have been Sen. Charles T. Curtis, R-Mo.

Commenting on the findings, Mills said, "I would hope he (Nixon) would abide by whatever the committee decides. We have no way of forcing him to pay anything. We can only say what we think he owes."

As for Nixon, the congressman said, "The President said in December that he would abide by the judgment of the committee. Whatever the judgment of the committee is has yet to be determined. This is not to be taken to mean anybody from the committee endorses the report at this time."

The staff report recommended that the Nixons be assessed $444,022 in back taxes for 1969 through 1972, plus interest of $32,409 for 1970 through 1972.

It recommended no interest for 1969 since the statute of limitations has expired on that year. The report added, however, that the interest for that year would be $40,732 if Nixon chose to pay voluntarily.

Thus, if Nixon agreed to pay the recommended assessment — which the Internal Revenue Service would have collected — he and his wife would owe the government $517,203 in back taxes and interest.

"The staff, in any case, believes it should be emphasized that this is a report only. It is not a demand for payment of taxes. Any tax payment is a matter for consideration by the taxpayer and the Internal Revenue Service," the report said.

Despite Nixon's December pledge to abide by any committee decision, presidential spokesman Tuesday declined to repeat the pledge, indicating the President and his tax lawyers may fight the case in court.

The staff concluded that Nixon's deduction of $482,018 for his gift to the National Archives of his vice presidential papers "should not... be allowed" because it was made after the July 25, 1969, deadline set by Congress for which claiming such deductions.

The report concluded that the Nixons also should have reported a $117,836 profit on the 1970 sale of part of their San Clemente, Calif., estate, as well as a $151,848 capital gain in 1969 on the sale of their New York City apartment.

The committee staff further concluded that:

— Nixon's deduction of $91,452 for depreciation of the Western White House and certain furniture purchased for it were "not proper business expenses" and should not be allowed.

— He should pay taxes on $11,617 in capital gains on the sale of Cape Florida Development lots in 1972 — a gain that had been reported by his daughter Tricia who claimed 40 percent of the transaction. The report recommended that Tricia, now Mrs. Edward Cox, should file amended returns to correct her own obligations and should report interest her father paid her on a loan to buy the property.

THE "SUPPORT THE FLAMBEAU" petition drive picked up the approval of an estimated 4500 students, faculty and staff members yesterday. Organizers of the effort said the signature collecting will expand today.

Flambeau nets 4500 names

An estimated 4500 signatures were collected during the first day of the "Save the Flambeau" petition drive, as the push for a 10,000 signature goal continues.

Organizers believe that the biggest problem will be collecting signatures from students who live off-campus, and have begun measures to remedy this situation.

"Petitions will be available at tonight's meeting of the Alumni Village Vegetable Co-op at 6 at the Village Nursery," one organizer said.

Shevin asks that faculty records be made public

By United Press International

Attorney General Robert L. Shevin Tuesday asked the Senate Education Committee to repeal all laws that now let school officials keep personnel records secret and make all faculty evaluations public records at all levels of public education.

Shevin said that the confidentiality of faculty evaluations violates the spirit of the state's "government in the sunshine" and public-records statutes. The Sunshine Law forbids public bodies to meet in secret, and the public records law requires all public documents — except for some personnel records in the school system — to be open to the public.

Education Committee Chairman D. Robert Graham, D-Miami Lakes, asked his committee to think over Shevin's recommendations. He postponed action on the records-disclosure bill filed by Sen. Richard J. Deeb, R-St. Petersburg.

Officials from several junior colleges objected to the Deeb bill saying that disclosures might hurt morale among instructors and administrators.

"There are some sensitive things in teacher evaluations," said Will Holladay, the Personnel Director at Miami-Dade Community College.

"Some files say teachers have drinking problems, or they can't handle students," he said. "If these records are made public, it might create an irreparable stigma."

Shevin said that public teachers should no longer be excluded from the open-records law.

"Other professions, like firemen and policemen, go through the same evaluations and there haven't been many problems," he said. "This policy relates to accountability of public employees."

He noted that student records do not fall under the coverage of the "government in the sunshine" or public documents statutes. He said only public employees are covered by the law.

Shevin also said the law protects school administrators from libel suits in newspapers print previously confidential information culled from faculty evaluation reports.

Gov. Reubin Askew and the Cabinet, sitting as State Board of Education, approved a change in policy Tuesday lifting the secrecy of personnel records in the university system and the junior colleges.

The public elementary and high schools are specifically exempt by law and Shevin proposed that the Legislature repeal that exemption.

The Cabinet action affecting universities and junior colleges is not effective for 45 days, giving the legislature time to repeal the permissive statute under which the Cabinet action was taken or to contradict the Cabinet decision and restore the confidentiality of faculty records.

The Board of Regents has opposed lifting of the secrecy saying that it would be difficult for the state to attract educators from institutions in other states, if they know that their personnel records will be open to the public.

FEO official to speak

James R. Gill, director of the Program and Allocation Policy Office of the Federal

James Gill

Energy Office, will speak in the final session of a major symposium on the energy crisis tonight. The program begins at 7:30 in 275 Chemistry Lecture Hall.

Gill's subject will be "The Energy Crisis (Real or Contrived) and National Alternatives." He served as president of an oil exploration and production company for the past 15 years, and has a degree in petroleum and geological engineering from the University of Oklahoma.

Also speaking at the symposium tonight will be Dr. Howard T. Odum of the University of Florida, a graduate professor of environmental engineering science.

Odum will speak on "Alternative Energy Sources for the Future." He has been extensively involved with the solar house experiment and will explain the benefits and possibilities for harnessing solar energy as an economical energy source for the future.

Tonight is the last in a series of three symposium sessions which were sponsored by the Gold Key Student-Faculty Leadership Honorary in conjunction with the Student Government.

Hearst daughter to stay with SLA

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A voice purporting to be that of Patricia Hearst said on a tape recording yesterday that she had chosen to stay with the Symbionese Liberation Army (SLA) which kidnapped her Feb. 4.

The tape recording of the voice identified as that of the missing girl said she had chosen "to remain with the SLA and continue to fight."

The recording broadcast over radio station KPFA in Berkeley said Patricia had taken the name of Tanya and had become a member of the SLA.

At the Hearst home in Hillsborough, Cal., Mrs. Hearst confirmed the tape was of her daughter's voice.

The recording said she was free to leave her captors whenever she chose.

The recording was broadcast less than 24 hours after a communique from the SLA had said the kidnappers would disclose the time and place of her release within 72 hours.

Charles Bates, agent in charge of the FBI, said the broadcast did not change the FBI's position on the investigation of the kidnapping which would continue.

Pot puffin' solon wants grass legal

LANSING, Mich. (UPI) — A Democratic state representative, who smokes marijuana in public, announced a petition drive Tuesday to make the narcotic legal for Michigan adults.

Under a proposal advanced by Rep. Perry Bullard of Ann Arbor, anyone over 18 years old could grow, possess and use marijuana but not sell or distribute it.

Bullard's action came one day after voters in the college communities of Ann Arbor and Ypsilanti approved measures that would make public smoking of marijuana punishable by only a maximum $5 fine.

In Ann Arbor, home of the University of Michigan, the vote was 15,613 to 13,642, with a few absentee ballots still to count. In Ypsilanti, home of Eastern Michigan University, the vote was 1,355 to 1,257.

The new ordinances there forbid policemen from enforcing the more stringent state marijuana laws but allow other law enforcement agencies to apply existing laws.

Linda, streaker highlight Awards

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — The box office race was still in doubt Wednesday between "The Sting," winner of the 1974 Oscar for best picture, and "The Exorcist," which had been favored to win the coveted Academy Award.

Both movies have earned about $30 million each at ticket booths since their release in December, but "The Exorcist" has only been shown in half the number of theatres.

Other winners in the madcap 46th annual Academy Awards ceremonies were Jack Lemmon for best actor in "Save the Tiger," and England's Glenda Jackson for best actress in "A Touch of Class."

Best supporting player roles went to 10-year-old Tatum

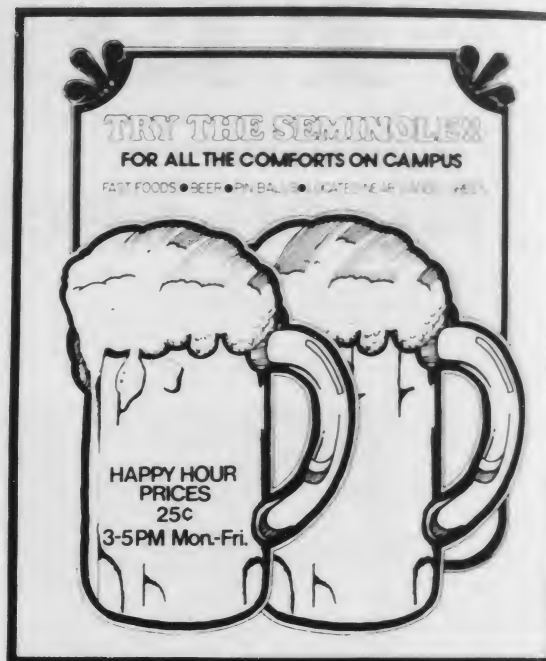

O'Neal in "Paper Moon," and producer-turned-actor John Houseman for "The Paper Chase."

The awards show, often stuffy and formal, returned to more light-hearted days when starlets Linda Lovelace and Edy Williams, both queens of X-rated films, made bizarre entrances and a streaker enlivened the most dramatic moment of the presentations.

Miss Lovelace, star of the porno film "Deep Throat," arrived in a horse-drawn carriage wearing a modest, white lace gown. Miss Williams made her appearance in a leopard skin bikini and leading a great dane dog.

The renovation of the FSL Track, involving the resurfacing of the track itself and the field events areas, may be complete in time for this quarter's first track meet, according to a spokesperson for the Physical Planning Division (PPD) and the Athletic Department.

The track, which previously a "natural track" composed of a clay and cinder mixture, is being replaced by synthetic surface. The complicated transformation process involves the layering of five different materials.

The project began in January as the old track was cleared away and a layer of earth spread over the area. Next gravel was loaded into the circuit of the track, smoothed and sealed with successive layers of asphalt. A sealant compound was then applied to the asphalt in preparation for the final synthetic surface.

Program held on King tonight

A program commemorating the assassination of Martin Luther King will be held tonight at 7:30 p.m. in the State Room, University Union.

The main speaker for the evening will be Joe Walcott, Chairman of the Alton People's Socialist Party, who, lecturing on the contribution of King to the civil rights movement, will touch on the plight of Pitts and Leno, blacks convicted of murder, a white service employee.

Included in the evening schedule are poetry readings, solo singers and a presentation of black dancing. Highlight of the program will be the performance of the FSL Gospel Choir.

Elevators now reject smoke

The House, getting the session off and running on the second day, passed Wednesday a bill banning smoking in public elevators.

The smoking ban, which goes into effect May 1, 1975, applies to all tobacco products and makes violation punishable by a $500 fine and 60 days in jail.

Completion date in sight for track work

The renovation of the FSU Track, involving the resurfacing of the track itself and the field events areas, may be completed in time for this quarter's first track meet, according to a spokesperson for the Physical Planning Division (PPD) and the Athletic Department.

The track, which was previously a "natural track," composed of a clay and cinder mixture, is being replaced by a synthetic surface. The complicated transformation process involves the layering of five different materials.

The project began last January as the old track was cleared away and a layer of earth spread over the area. called Chevron 440. The beige colored material is composed of fibrous rubber which yields pliantly to the weight of the runner, increasing traction. Thusfar, only 40 yards of the track have been covered with the synthetic.

In the process of "Many people use the track besides the team, especially the ever-increasing population of joggers on this campus," Long said. "One of the reasons we widened the track was so that these people will have two lanes reserved for their use during the afternoon hours when the varsity team practices."

Hank Shomber, Information Assistant for the Athletic Department, said that a water jump is also being added to the field which will be used as part of a steeple chase course.

New sidewalks have already been completed as well as the replacement of the old wooden seats with aluminum bleachers, Shomber said.

Ronald Braswell, Director of PPD, estimates that work will be completed on the track by April 10, three days before FSU will host Mississippi State in track competition.

"Few schools have tracks which are located in surroundings which are as beautiful as ours," Coach Long said. "We want to create a super complex which is as beautiful as the location."

The fulfillment of this expectation seems far removed while surveying the field littered with barrels and machinery, strips of tar and graced with an enormous crater which workmen identify as the future high jump area.

Countryside Village forms co-op

A new produce co-op has been formed at the Countryside Village Mobile Home Park on Mission Road, coordinated by Marlin Freer, a former member of the Alumni Village Vegetable Co-op.

The Countryside Village Co-op's first meeting was last month and termed "an enthusiastic success," by Freer. The new co-op operates on basically the same principle as the Alumni Village Co-op, with each member contributing $3, according to Freer.

The food is then purchased wholesale, depending on what produce is in season and how much the local supermarkets are charging for the same items.

The food is evenly distributed among co-op members, and Freer estimates that "at times a person can purchase twice as much produce through the co-op for his or her $3, as they could purchase at a local grocery store."

However, Freer also said that at other times the "savings will be nil."

The co-op produce is distributed every other Wednesday at the Club House at 2636 Mission Road. The next meeting will be on April 17.

Any persons interested in joining the Countryside Co-op or in forming a co-op in their own neighborhood can contact Freer after 6 p.m. at 576-8434.

Program held on King tonight

A program commemorating the assassination of Martin Luther King will be held tonight at 7:30 p.m. in the State Room, University Union.

The main speaker is the evening will be Joe Waller, Chairman of the African People's Socialist Party. Waller, lecturing on the contributions of King to the black movement, will touch on the plight of Pitts and Lee, two blacks convicted of murdering a white service station employee.

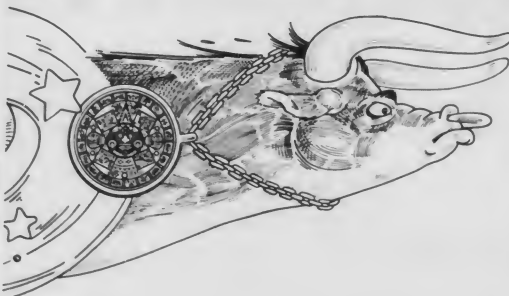

Included in the evening's schedule are poetry readings, solo singers and a presentation of black dancing. Highlighting the program will be a performance of the FSU Black Gospel Choir.

Elevators now reject smokers

The House, getting the 1974 session off and running on its second day, passed Wednesday a bill banning smoking in public elevators.

The smoking ban, passed 80-31 on the plea of Rep. George Williamson, R-Fort Lauderdale, that "we owe it as a matter of courtesy." It applies to all tobacco products and makes violation punishable by a $500 fine and 60 days in jail.

Minimum absurdity

Last week, the federal government finally decided that seven years of inflation was a bit too much for a man earning $1.60 an hour, so it came up with a figure of $2.30 as the new wage that is deemed the minimum a man must earn to live his daily life.

The bill also extended the number of workers covered by the minimum wage law.

Unfortunately, it didn't extend benefits far enough.

Students, though they must live and eat just like any other human beings on Earth, will be exempted from coverage. It will still be possible for Greasy Hamburgers and Awful Restaurant to start some bill-ridden student with a wage of $1.60 (or even less).

The reasons that students have been deemed exempt are many, the main one being that the money needed to pay them an extra 70 cents an hour would be "unnecessarily inflationary."

It seems that the most important issue, however, is that students, despite their adult status, are still nothing but the most lowly of second-class citizens in the eyes of their uppers.

The asinine thing about this situation is that the poor, hungry college student will probably have to wait another seven years before this salary situation will be reconsidered. Imagine what it's going to be like trying to live off a 20-hour a week, $1.30 per hour restaurant job in 1980?

Starvation, surely.

Bon voyage, George

The passing of French President Georges Pompidou leaves a gaping hole in international relations, and throws his country's politics into a welter.

The son of schoolteacher, Pompidou was seldom a man to command headlines or garner plaudits from his countrymen. He was, lamentably, overshadowed by his predecessor, the late Charles de Gaulle, for whom he served as pre meir for six years. His shrewd and cagey behind-the-scenes machinations were overlooked.

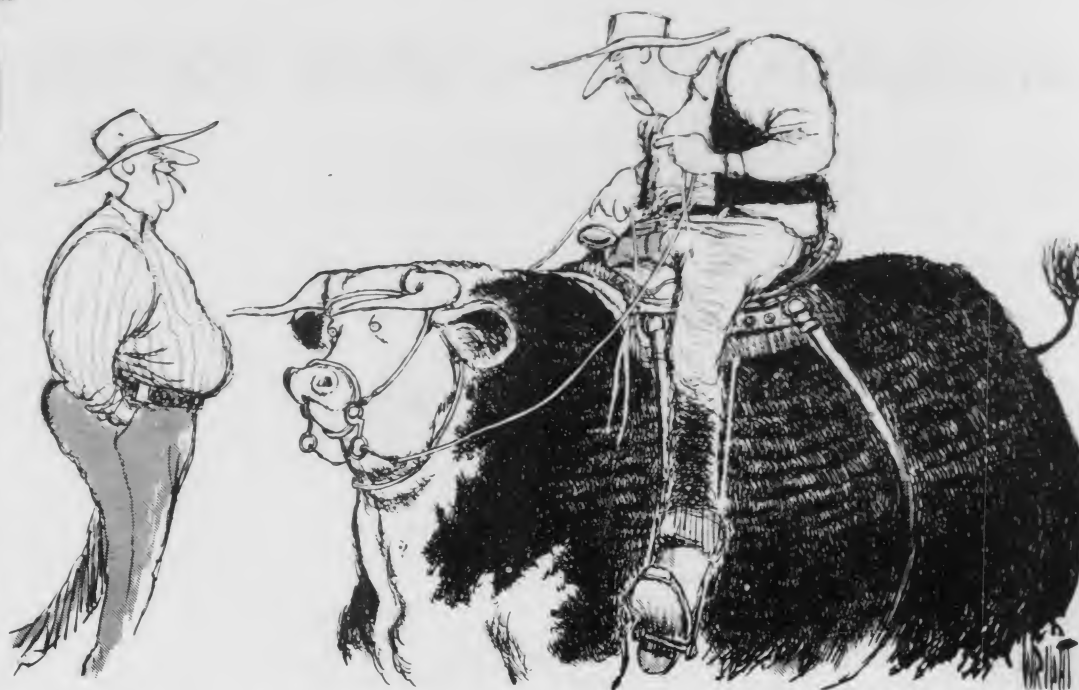

It was Pompidou who was instrumental in keeping the Vietnam peace talks alive when it appeared they might break off irreparably. And it was Pompidou who so cleverly worked to ease icy relations between communist Eastern European countries and Western Europe. Such towering accomplishments should not go unnoted.

Perhaps it was Pompidou himself who best characterized his plight: "I feel, at times, like the anteater rooting through the jungle thickets. My sustenance is in the thickets and the shadows, and though I envy the monkeys that chatter in the sunshine overhead, I am keenly aware that my milieu is below."

"YEAH, WELL WE CAN'T SELL 'EM AND WE ATE ALL THE HORSES LAST YEAR!"

King was the end of a dream

The death of Martin Luther King six years ago ended one of the most beautiful dreams the world has known. The bullet that shattered his life-forces very well may have shattered America's opportunity to transcend her racial holocaust and become a nation in which men are judged by the "content of their characters rather than the color of their skins."

In the years between 1957 and 1968, King metamorphosed from an obscure Atlanta minister to the charismatic leader of the black civil rights movement. These eventful years witnessed the harmonious strivings of blacks and whites toward common goals. In the racially-troubled cities of the South, blacks and whites marched, ate, slept, lived and even died together in genuine fellowship.

This fellowship was doomed from the start by 400 years of racial conditioning. As old prejudices and hatreds began to reassert themselves, blacks and whites began to go separate ways. Following the banner of Black Power, blacks began to object to the presence of whites in their civil rights movement. In addition, many whites could not stomach the potentialities of Black Power and left the movement voluntarily.

King appealed to the conscience of America to correct the wrongs inflicted upon blacks. For a brief period, his appeal was fruitful. His actions were directly responsible for the death of legal segregation in the South. The numerous demonstrations which he engineered led to the passage of the watershed 1964 Civil Rights Act.

After 1964, King was criticized by Stokely Carmichael and other militant blacks. Nonviolent protest lost its influence among these veterans of the jails of Mississippi and Alabama. Beginning in Watts in 1965, violent riots became a summer trait.

A new generation of blacks replaced King's philosophy of love with an ideology of blackness. The slogan "Burn, Baby, Burn" supplanted his "Love Thy Enemies." King's untimely death prevented him from reconciling himself with these younger blacks.

THE ALTERNATIVE

By Eddie Bell

How will history remember King? In all justice, his philosophy of non-violence and love was suicidal against an enemy who fought with violence and hate. In addition, his dream of racial harmony was miles away from the racial reality of America.

But can one criticize a dreamer whose dream transcends a reality that needs to be transcended? King's dream was noble and sane, it was America's reality that was ignoble and insane. Unfortunately, the reality killed the dream. In all probability, history will canonize King as one of the few earthly saints whose deeds and words transcended the baseness of human nature.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Not funny

Editor:

This letter is in response to the April 2 edition of the Flambeau concerning Robert Hershey. I suppose you thought the suffocation of a man named Hershey in a vat of chocolate to be humorous or of "human interest" to the readers of your newspaper.

I find the article insensitive and totally lacking ethical responsibility in the manner of reporting by a newspaper which should at least try to uphold a pretense of professionalism. I would hope that the Flambeau respects the intelligence and feelings of its readers enough so as not to feel impelled to insert articles connoting such 1984-like values in the near future.

Anti-anti-anti

Editor:

After reading the anti-anti-gun letter in the Flambeau the other day we couldn't help but feel a wee bit nauseated at the elementary insight used in attacking Tom Kirwan's "Gangbusters" column. Let us hope that not too many of us out there have this same pro-firearm attitude.

The gun problem in the United States must be of a more far-reaching dilemma than stated, to have created so much controversy in the last decade. It seemed a bit strange, to say the least, that (and correct us if we are wrong law students) someone with few actual ties to this country who can't legally even possess firearms while in the U.S. would have the nerve to even insinuate his or her support of gun usage here.

Maybe happiness is a warm gun to you, Mr. Letter Writer, but we feel we have a big enough problem in the United States with gun-related deaths without throwing any more misleading information on the fire. And we would rather feed the squirrels than shoot them if you don't mind.

Psychiatrists push for label of homosexual

(ZNS) The American Psychiatric Association voted to remove the label of "mental illness" from homosexuality.

However, a small rebellion within the association's membership ranks is threatening to overturn the historical decision.

More than 250 psychiatrists led by Dr. Charles Socarides of the Albert Einstein College of Medicine in New York, petitioned the APA to again classify homosexuality a mental abnormality.

The petition effort compelled the APA board to take a vote among its 200 psychiatrist-members to determine the APA's position on the homosexual question.

Dr. Socarides, the author of a book entitled "The Overt Homosexual," contends that homosexuality is a result of disordered sexual development and is, therefore, a psychiatric condition.

The board of the APA ruled that mental illness is a condition causing an individual personal distress or interference with his or her functioning. The board found that millions of homosexuals function without any apparent impairment at homosexuality cannot be regarded as a mental illness.

CPE offers array of delectables

The Center for Participant Education provides students and Tallahassee community members with the opportunity to initiate and participate in non-credit educational edu-groups.

"This allows members of the community who have either completed their 'formal' education, or are involved daily in jobs, to continue educating themselves in fields of interest to them," one CPE spokesperson said.

"Also, university students can gather and exchange information in fields that are not covered in the university curriculum."

CPE edu-groups meeting today include Problem Pregnancy Counseling at 4:30 p.m. at the Women's Center in Mabry Heights; Aikido at 6:30 p.m. in Tully Gym Wrestling Room; Gen-wa Kai Karate continues its daily meetings in 116 Montgomery Gym at 7 p.m.; and Biospheres at 5:30 p.m. at the FSU Dairy Farm, Building 56.

The United Farm Workers Struggle Discussion Group will meet at 7 tonight in the United Ministries Center; Prison: Theory and Problems meets at 8 p.m. in 69 Bellamy; American Indian Religion and Philosophy will meet at 8 p.m. in 118 Bellamy; and Ecography meets at 8 p.m. in the Alumni Village Recreation Center.

The Community Pottery Class will meet tonight at 7 at the FSU Dairy Farm Building

The Feminist-Socialist Discussion Group will meet at the Women's Center tonight at 7:30 and the Women's and Men's Rap Group will also meet at the Center at 8 p.m.

Self-Defense for Women and Body Awareness have not yet been assigned space large enough to accommodate the classes, but interested people should meet in the hall outside the Union Ballrooms for information.

Blood bank on campus

The Leon County Mobile Blood Bank Unit will be on the FSU campus every Thursday from noon until 4 p.m., located on the concrete slab between the Bellamy building and the Health Center.

FSU students gave 500 pints of blood during 1973, for which the Blood Bank and recipient have expressed "lasting appreciation."

"The donor's benefit for giving blood is in the help it provides the recipients," a Blood Bank spokesperson said, encouraging university groups and organizations to participate in the drive.

General requirements for blood donors are: 18 years of age, at least 110 pounds in weight and in general good health. An interview and medical check-up are included in the 40 minute blood-donating procedure.

The donor may stipulate that the blood they donate be reserved for his or her own use, or designate any individual, group or organization anywhere in the United States as a recipient.

Donations may also be given at the Leon County Blood Bank, 1240 Hodges Drive, behind Tallahassee Memorial Hospital.

Kent State program studies UN in action

BY LAURIN MARCH

Kent State University is offering a unique overseas study program in conjunction with the United Nations activities in Geneva, The Hague, Brussels, Strasbourg, Paris and Vienna.

The program is the Geneva Semester on the United Nations System, sponsored by the Quest for Peace Association of World Colleges and Universities, and the Consortium on Peace Research, Education and Development.

Designed to provide the student with an in-depth knowledge of the national and transitional cross-cultural aspects of the U.N., Geneva Semester intends to link the classroom with actual practices through location study. Opportunities for interaction are planned with the world at large on a broad, yet personal level, according to Geneva Semester sponsors.

The curriculum revolves around the functions of the UN, its problems and structure. An introduction to Switzerland, the French language, and independent study are also components of the program.

A total of 32 credits may be earned and awarded through Kent State University, transferable to other institutions in the United States.

The Geneva Semester is open to sophomore, junior and senior students of any academic major or specialization. Letters of recommendation and personal interviews, when possible, are required as part of the admission process.

The cost of the program, which includes tuition, transportation, room and board, is $2500. Applications and information about Geneva Semester may be obtained from the Center for International and Comparative Programs, Kent State University, Kent, Ohio, 44242. The deadline for application is Apr. 30.

South Africa's future probed

The African Students Club is sponsoring a question and answer session tonight dealing with "Prospects for South Africa" at 7:30 in the Library Lecture Hall located in the basement of Strozier Library.

The guest speaker, Mandela, is a native of South Africa.

"For some, the white minority, South Africa, with its rich natural resources and amiable climate, is a dream come true," one spokesperson for the program said.

"Unfortunately for many,

the black majority, South Africa is a nightmare."

Playwright Edwin Gordon of Los Angeles has been named winner of the Florida State University School of Theatre's second annual Charles MacArthur Playwriting Award for his play "Yorick."

Richard G. Fallon, acting dean of the theatre school, and playwright-in-residence Mark Berman made the announcement.

"Yorick," already optioned for a Broadway opening next season, will premiere on the Fine Arts Building mainstage Monday, May 29. Both Gordon and co-producers Matt Robinson and Willard Goodman will be on campus during rehearsals and performances.

Fallon said the leading role of Yorick will be played by a professional actor yet to be chosen, while other roles will be filled through open auditions.

As the winner of the MacArthur Award, Gordon will receive a prize of $1500 and $1500 toward production of the play. This year's runner-up was Ludmilla Bollow, Milwaukee, Wisconsin, for her script entitled "In the Rest Room at Rosenblooms."

Fallon said that entries already are being accepted for the 1975 MacArthur Award Competition. Entries may not be musicals or adaptations, must be full-length and previously unproduced in any way.

Only one script may be submitted by each playwright.

USF blows it in battle of biggest breaths

FSU defeated the University of South Florida (USF) during the first intercollegiate blowgun tournament in Tampa last Friday.

Fielding teams of four "highly experienced gunners," FSU huffed and puffed its way into a 12-9 victory over USF, despite the tornado warnings posted at the time.

The USF Anthropology Department issued the challenge to FSU, as part of the "Rites of Spring" festival; an annual celebration held to commemorate different lifestyles.

FSU Blowgun Team Captain Chip Huston would like to "open the team to all interested parties on campus."

"Within the month of April we hope to challenge, and defeat the University of Florida," Huston said. "We are now the official champs of the state of Florida."

The blowguns consist of a length of aluminum pipe, and a sharpened clotheshanger, one end of which is wrapped in cotton and taped to form a conical-shaped end.

"They're deadly accurate," Huston said.

Targets are placed the regulation NAA distance of 12 paces. Three points are awarded for near the center and one point for hitting the target at all.

The game carries an 11 point maximum, but must be won with a two-point edge.

For information about participating in the FSU Blowgun Team, contact Chip Huston through the FSU Anthropology Department.

CET Helps Upgrade Military

The largest educational system in the United States — military training — is getting help in upgrading its training systems from Florida State's Center for Educational Technology (CET).

"Since June, 1973, CET has been engaged in a project with the U.S. Army Training and Doctrine Command (TRADOC)," said Dr. Robert K. Branson, "which will put into effect the best features of instructional technology in the Army training system."

"The project," said the director of research and instructional design at the CET, "at first was concerned only with the Army system. However, the work soon attracted the attention of the Joint Services Committee on Instructional Systems Development, which fosters cooperative approaches to training problems common to all four military services."

As a result, the outcome of the project will serve the needs of the training systems of the Navy, Air Force and Marines, as well as the Army.

The total contract of $342,948 is made up of six tasks, according to Branson.

Two tasks completed last summer involved the production of instructional materials incorporating the best design and development. Another task now in progress is the development of procedures for diagnostic test construction.

"Yet another task completed last summer," Branson said, "was a survey of the status of military training in the light of current instructional technology." The most important problem identified was the difficulty which the armed services are having in establishing scattered successes on a system-wide basis. "CET/TRADOC attempts to deal with this problem by designing a manageable model for military training," Branson said.

A program for training Army personnel in the use of this model is now being formulated. "Actually training about training," Branson said.

A recent addition to the contract calls for an analysis and assessment of alternative forms of non-resident instruction, including correspondence courses and on-the-job training.

Brahms Tickets Now on Sale

Tickets are now on sale for the Tuesday, April 9, "Evening of Brahms" benefit concert staged by the Florida State University chapter of Phi Mu Alpha Sinfonia for the Richard Burgin Scholarship Fund.

Those wishing to make ticket reservations may call the School of Music at 599-3346. Tickets are $3 for adults and $1 for students.

A number of Florida State music faculty members and guest artists will perform in the concert, which begins at 8:15 p.m. in Opperman Music Hall.

Burgin, who retired in 1972, will appear as violinist in one of the concert selections.

Phi Mu Alpha uses the fund to provide a scholarship for a Florida State music student each year.

DATELINE, an official page of record, is published by The Florida State University to communicate information to students, faculty and staff. The University Calendar is a weekly feature, published each Friday. Events for which a campus space reservation is made by the Tuesday preceding the Friday of publication are automatically included. All other Calendar items should be submitted to the Events Coordinator, 238 Union, or to the Office of Information Services, 324 Ps/A Building. Other notices for DATELINE should be submitted to the Office of Information Services. All copy must be submitted four days prior to date of publication.

News You Can Use

Janice LaCapra, an FSU alumna, has joined the University's Personnel Relations Department as manager of Insurance and Benefits. Mrs. LaCapra will be responsible for administering the State and University Health Insurance Programs as well as property insurance, retirement, and other employee benefit programs.

A Passover Seder will be held Saturday at 6 p.m. at the Faculty Club.

The Physics Department is sponsoring a colloquium today at 4:30 p.m. in 275 Chemistry Lecture Hall on "Nuclear Quantum Crystals." Speaker will be Dr. L. Nosanow, University of Florida Department of Physics. Refreshments will be served preceding the colloquium at 4 p.m.

James Gill and Dr. Howard T. Odum, University of Florida, will bring the energy crisis symposium to an end with their lectures scheduled for tonight at 7:30. Odum is a graduate research professor of environmental engineering science at the university.

Gill, who is from the Federal Energy Office, will speak on "The Energy Crisis (Real or Contrived) and National Alternatives," while Odum will speak on "Alternative Energy Sources for the Future."

The Office of Student Financial Affairs now has Florida Student Assistance Grant applications and Basic Educational Opportunity Grants applications available. All students interested in these two programs should pick up applications immediately in 127 Bryan Hall.

ODK Meets Applicants

Omicron Delta Kappa, national college leadership honorary, is now accepting applications for membership. Application forms, together with further information on the Society and its tapping processes, are available in 116 Dodd Hall or 351 Union. In addition, the first regular meeting of this quarter, to be held today at 12 noon in the University Club, will be open to all applicants and interested persons.

The agenda for the meeting includes a report on the National Biennial ODK Convention held last month in New Orleans, a proposal for aiding a fledgling university library in Zaire, and plans for the upcoming Student of the Quarter Award and May Day Banquet.

As an honorary society, ODK recognizes achievement in all phases of campus life, especially scholarship, athletics, publications, social and religious affairs, student government and administration, and music and the fine arts. Membership is awarded by election through a local chapter (or "circle") of the national organization. At Florida State, candidates for election may assure themselves of thorough and impartial consideration by filing a formal application for membership with the faculty secretary of the local circle.

Founded at Washington and Lee University in 1914, ODK has grown to include more than 130 chapters nationwide. Its Florida State chapter was installed on May 13, 1950, and lists among its alumni Gov. Reubin Askew, Chancellor Robert Mautz and the late Doak S. Campbell. Wayne Rubinas, a 1972 graduate of the FSU Law School, is the honorary's immediate past national president — the first student to hold such a high office in the national ODK society.

Besides turning out leaders, ODK at Florida State has been active in recognizing outstanding scholarship through its annual awards to the holders of the highest grade point averages in the sophomore, junior, and senior classes; in encouraging service to the University through its Man of the Quarter awards; and in fostering increased faculty-student fellowship through its Little Lecture series and regular intra-organizational social and business functions.

Sienari said that this is only the first part of what should be a two-part history on films of science fiction, fantasy and horror.

With expectations for extraordinarily long lines of people waiting to see "The Godfather" this weekend, the film committee announced that advance tickets will be on sale today and Friday for $1 from 11:2:30 in Moore Auditorium.

"The Godfather" will be shown April 5 and 6 in Ruby Diamond Auditorium at 7:30 and 10:30 p.m.

Cinema of the Fantastic premieres

The Cinema of the Fantastic, a CPE course co-sponsored with the Underground Film Series, is a history of science fiction films up to 1936.

"The breakoff date was picked because it is the generally accepted year for the end of the first great period of sound horror films and the beginning of the first major period of light Hollywood fantasy films," Joe Siclari, group leader of the course, said.

Siclari said that this is only the first part of what should be a two-part history on films of science fiction, fantasy and horror.

Although the course has already shown eight of the films, over twenty more films are scheduled throughout the quarter.

Included with these films are such classics as "Nosferatu," the first cinematic adaptation of the vampire myth; "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," the first feature length version starring John Barrymore; Boris Karloff's portrayal of "The Mummy"; and Lon Chaney starring in "The Hunchback of Notre Dame" and "The Phantom of the Opera."

"We are negotiating to bring in 'Freaks,' which has shown to sell-out crowds on campus in the past," Siclari said, "But it is currently tied up in court litigations."

The Cinema of the Fantastic films run on Sunday and Thursday nights at 8 in Moore Auditorium or the Downunder Coffeehouse. Admission is 75 cents, and there is a complete schedule in the Program Office Film Brochure.

"WITCHCRAFT THROUGH THE AGES," a Gothic horror film dealing with the wildest excesses of Satanic obsession in the Middle Ages, is playing at the Down Under Thursday at 8 p.m. for 75 cents as part of the Fantastic Cinema series.

WFSU-TV airs Chinatown special

"Bad Times on Gold Mountain," the next program in the new INTERFACE series, will be broadcast Friday, April 5 at 8:30 on Channel 11.

The program is a documentary film report on some of the troubling elements of life in San Francisco's Chinatown, one of the largest communities of Chinese outside of Asia.

During the past four years, in San Francisco's Chinatown, 19 Chinese young people have been killed in what police have called "gang related incidents." These events shocked Americans who have been led to believe that Chinese communities are not troubled by the social ills common to Americans living in urban slums.

Host — Producer of INTERFACE, Tony Batten, himself a resident of San Francisco for several years, has done an investigative film report of today's San Francisco, a closed society.

"Bad Times on Gold Mountain" sheds some light on the possible breakdown in traditional Chinese respect patterns that was thought to accompany the process of Americanization.

Batten interviews various members of the San Francisco Chinatown community as a part of his report. In this way he gains firsthand information about the actual conditions in Chinatown from the people who live there.

Concert set

BY CRESTON NELSON

Tallahassee's celebration of its Sesquicentennial will come to FSU tomorrow evening with the performance of a Sesquicentennial concert in Ruby Diamond Auditorium.

Selections to be performed include the Tallahassee Suite by Cyril Scott and the Florida Suite by Frederick Delius. Neither of the works has been performed in the Capital City before.

Additional works will include Songs by Ralph Stang and Poems by Gloria Jahoda.

The concert will conclude with a tribute to Stephen Foster composed by Percy Grainger and performed jointly by the FSU Symphony Orchestra, FSU Singers and selected high school choresters.

Ruth Posselt, violinist and John Boda, pianist will be featured performers in the concert. The FSU Orchestra, under the direction of Phillip Sturgeon, will also appear.

Tickets are $4 each and may be purchased in Room 204 of the Music Building and at Springtime Tallahassee Headquarters in the Tallahassee Mall.

Baseball, track & swimming look to leaders

Ron Herring has turned in another sparkling performance for the Florida State baseball team and is emerging as a catalyst for improving pitching for the entire mound staff and team hopes for regrouping from a 5-10 late March showing.

Herring, the senior transfer from Chipola JC, pitched a two-hit shutout against Columbus College Tuesday night and has allowed only seven hits in his last 27 innings. His earned run average for that time is .67 and he is averaging nearly eleven strikeouts per nine innings pitched for the season.

Although pitching performances have been in vain for the most part because of shaky defensive play and a lack of offensive support, the Seminole performers have been

Net team takes break

Florida State's tennis team takes a rest this week as their mid-season record stands at 6-4.

The week off follows an exciting 7-2 victory over Samford here last Saturday. Monday (Apr. 8) the Tribe netters take to the road for a three-match tour.

In retrospect, Coach Randy Jobson feels that "most of the players have played up to their potential" so far this season.

Canadian Davis Cup player Reggie Genois seems to be the one exception as his game has slumped forcing Ricardo Bernd to man the number one singles spot.

"Reggie will be playing in the World Tennis Championship qualifying tournament in Orlando this week in hopes of picking up his game," said Coach Jobson. "We need Reggie to come back and play up to his capabilities. I think he should beat any number one in the nation."

This week will be used for a rest which Jobson feels is timely. He hopes to have his netters in shape for the tough three-match road tour including Georgia Southern, South Carolina and Clemson.

Looking to the rest of the season, Coach Jobson thinks the Tribe should perform as well and maybe better. "If everyone will hold on to his present game, I think we can be considered among the better teams in the country."

pitching well.

"If we continue to get good pitching, we will begin to pick up momentum with just the slightest turnaround in offensive production," head coach Jack Stallings said. Five of the Seminoles' losses during the recent slide were by one or two runs and three others were by just three runs.

*****

There is one Seminole track runner who finds himself in the inevitable position of losing out on all the press generated by track to super collegiate runner Danny Smith.

Tyrone Frederick, one of the most versatile track distance runners on the Seminole squad, is a two-year man who has taken a back seat to Smith's accomplishments.

Frederick has been the top 880-yard run performer for the Tribe for the past two years and won his first competitive mile run in a meet two weeks ago with a time of 4:13.0.

The West Hollywood native captured a fourth place finish in the NCAA 880-yard run and missed All-American honors by a photo finish, tenth of a second.

Frederick teamed with Bobby Brooks, Wes Koenig and Bob Burr to successfully defend Florida State's two-mile relay title at the Florida Relays last weekend.

Smith, Vesco Bradley, Joel Garren and Frederick also teamed to win the sprint medley to give the versatile Frederick three winners on the

Congratulations, Tyrone.

*****

Florida State's swimming team has closed the books on the 1974 swimming season and eagerly awaits the 1975 campaign. The Tribe finished this year with only a 4-5 dual meet record, but three of those losses were not decided until the final relay.

"If we had had just a little more experience, we could have been 7-2 this season," said head coach Terry Carlisle. "This was a green team at the start, but we kept getting better and we can expect even more improvement next year."

"I am really pleased with this year's effort and I think we have a solid base to build on for the future."

Named to All-America status were senior John Hegert, sophomore Cliff Schlak, along with freshmen Bob Horne and Steve Meisel. They combined for a 6:53.7 showing in the 800-relay preliminaries for a new school record, then came back in the finals with a 6:53.79 for their 10th place finish.

In the finals, Hegert, a four-year letterman from Orlando, swam a 1:42.60 leadoff leg which also set a new varsity record. According to NCAA regulations the leadoff leg in any relay can be counted as records, while the "flying start" legs which follow cannot.

Meisel, from Winter Park followed Hegert with a time of 1:42.2, with Horne, a Coral Gables native, next in 1:44.9, while Schlak, from Des Plaines, Ill., anchored with a time of 1:41.9.

It is the first time the Seminoles have ever placed in a relay at the NCAA meet.

Aaron chasing the immortal Babe

Cincinnati, Atlanta open 1974 baseball season today

BY BRUCE RABEN

While most early season attention will focus on the home run exploits of Atlanta's Hammerin' Hank Aaron, twenty-four major league teams will resume their annual quests for the ultimate goal of an October World Series victory this weekend.

Cincinnati and Atlanta open the 162 game schedule today in Riverfront Stadium, Ohio. Vice-President Gerald Ford will throw out the first ball in relief of President Richard Nixon.

Many trades of big-name ballplayers gives the major leagues a new outlook for the 1974 season and new hopes for many of the October doormats.

Each club is vying for the four divisional championships, won last year by Baltimore and Oakland in the American League and Cincinnati and New York in the National League.

Gone for this season at least, are two of the bigger names in major league baseball. For the first time in 21 years there will be no Willie Mays as the great No. 24 has retired.

Ex-Oakland manager Dick Williams will also sit this season out after resigning from the World Champions after a number of feuds with owner Charlie Finley.

Finley has once again done his bit to add color to the game of baseball. The man with the mule has hired Herb Washington, the world's fastest sprinter at 60 yards to be a pinch runner—that right, just a pinch runner.

Still, the most excitement will be generated in Atlanta's 46,000 seat stadium where Aaron needs but two home runs to become baseball's all-time leading home run hitter. Aaron now stands at 713 and the immortal image of Babe Ruth protrudes his path into the record books.

Aaron is expected to do his thing quite early in April and the rest of the summer and early fall will find the teams trying to live up to the glory days of years past. Baseball has made its biggest jump popularity wise and trails football by its smallest margin in three years—only two percentage points.

And yes, baseball fans, this could finally be the year that those cellar dwelling expansion teams of the recent past make their move into baseball annals.

Montreal, Milwaukee, San Diego and Kansas City all seem ready to make their run for the top prize. Kansas City, Montreal, and Milwaukee were involved in their respective races for a good bit of last year and San Diego has made many improvements over the winter (such as the acquisition of Matty Alou, Willie McCovey and Glenn Beckert).

I don't know if I'm going to go as far as to select any of these teams to win it all, but you never know. Anyway, give me a week or two, and we'll pick 'em from this corner.

Scuba diving course offers two sessions

A YMCA-approved scuba diving course will have registration for students, faculty and staff tonight at 7 in Room 66 Bellamy Building. Anyone over 15 years of age is eligible to participate.

There will be a morning and evening section of the class. The evening section will meet Thursdays and Fridays 7-10 and the morning section meets Tuesdays and Thursdays 9-12.

Applicants will be responsible for supplying their own equipment and the cost for the course is $40. Course instructors will be John Crotty and Terry Zimmerman.

Saturdays will be set aside for open water sessions for both sections.

I-M needs officials

Anyone interested in officiating Intramural Softball this spring should contact the IM Office for further information. A fantastic salary of $2 per game will be paid to the lucky individuals.

Nixon receives ultimatum on tapes

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Vowing that it will not be "thwarted by inappropriate legalisms or by narrow obstacles," the House Judiciary Committee Thursday gave the White House an ultimatum on supplying the presidential tapes it claims it needs in its impeachment inquiry. Chief Committee Counsel John Doar, on instructions from the committee, wrote the White House a letter asking that it answer "no later than April 9" whether it would provide the 41 tapes the committee requested Feb. 25. Chairman Peter W. Rodino, D-N.J., said the committee, which is investigating possible grounds for impeachment, will subpoena the tapes if it has to in order to make a "fair and thorough inquiry."

"We shall not be thwarted by inappropriate legalisms or by narrow obstacles to our inquiry," he said "We have waited patiently to get the recorded conversations; we will subpoena them if we must."

Doar said the tapes cover conversations President Nixon had in February-April, 1973, with several aides, including John Dean, H.R. Haldeman, John Ehrlichman and former Attorney General Richard Kleindienst.

The conversations, Doar said, go to the heart of whether Nixon participated in or knew of the cover-up of the Watergate break-in and related matters.

Doar said the written request specified six broad conversations Nixon had with various aides the committee wished to consider in its inquiry. He listed them:

— "On or about" Feb. 20,

1973 with Jeb Stuart Magruder, a former reelection campaign official, who has pleaded guilty in the cover-up, regarding a government job for Magruder.

— Feb. 27, with Haldeman and Ehrlichman in which Dean was assigned the job of investigating the Watergate cover-up.

— March 17 and 20 with Dean. Doar didn't say what the nature of the conversation was, but it was about this time that Dean said he believed Nixon was aware of the cover-up.

— March 27 and 30 with Ehrlichman, the subject which was not specified.

Doar told the committee that Nixon has the initial right to "excise" from the tapes any extraneous or irrelevant material.

Asked by Rep. Charles B. Rangel, D-N.Y., if that meant Nixon would pass final judgement on which tapes would be available, Doar said the committee would have to decide later if the President was being truthful and reasonable, and it could subpoena the tapes if it thought he was not.

The committee wrangled again over whether to allow James St. Clair, Nixon's defense attorney, to sit in during the deliberations and cross-examine witnesses or present evidence.

The Republican members issued a 24-page report in which they argued St. Clair should be allowed to participate. They said the trend at similar hearings in the 20th Century was to allow it.

Indochina still affected by war

BY CLARE RAULERSON

The Indochina Mobile Education Project (IMEP) has been presenting pictorial exhibitions, conducting classes and lectures to "convey the human qualities of the Indochinese peoples and showing the effects that recent events have had on their way of life," in Tallahassee this week.

Jacqui Chagnon, an IMEP representative, spent from Nov. of 1968 through Nov. 1970 working in South Vietnam, first as an administrative officer with the Catholic Relief Services and later with the International Voluntary Service.

Chagnon returned to Vietnam in 1974 to tour the Democratic Republic of Vietnam (North Vietnam), speaking with the people there about the effects of the war on their lives and culture.

"In the southern zone of Vietnam, the people were pushed into the cities at the start of the war, since the countryside was declared a 'free-fire' zone," Chagnon said. "Approximately 90 percent of the south Vietnamese were farmers, and since the countryside took the brunt of the war, the farmers and their families were pushed into forced urbanization and into cities that were not industrialized."

"As long as the American GIs were there, the south Vietnamese existed parasitically on the premise of a foreign army," Chagnon said.

"Now that the soldiers are gone, there is drastic unemployment and severe inflation. Few of the farmers are farming because since the cease-fire agreement the refugees have not been allowed to go back to the country," Chagnon said.

Even if the farmers could return to their land, the hazards of land mines and unexploded shells exist within the plots of land, according to Chagnon.

Consequently there is little food coming into the cities from farmlands, said Chagnon, and most of the food comes from foreign sources, primarily the U.S.

"In the 'Food for Peace Program,' which I consider a misnomer, surplus U.S. food is shipped over to south Vietnam free of charge, which the Saigon government then sells to the refugees," Chagnon said.

"However, the government then puts the money they receive for the food back into the military," she said. "The U.S. Senate Subcommittee on Refugees and Relief estimates that 80 percent of the food money ends up going for military supplies for the Saigon government."

"People in the major cities of north Vietnam were evacuated to the country when the major U.S. bombing began," Chagnon said. "Many were assigned to a particular rural village or returned to the homes of their 'country cousins.'"

"Socially, I think the situation was much better for the people of the north because they renewed many of their cultural bonds," Chagnon said, whereas in the southern sector the cultural roots have been "uprooted" and the people have been "heavily influenced by the presence of foreigners for the last two decades."

Chagnon said that when the IMEP first began touring the U.S., people were curious "but very confused about the U.S. policies in Indochina and were reluctant to accept what we were saying."

"That attitude has changed since Watergate and people are much more open and receptive to what we have to say," Chagnon said.

The IMEP will be conducting classes at FSU and TCC today along with an exhibition in the Leon-Lafayette Room all day. Tonight the IMEP will show the film "The Question of Torture" along with a lecture on "Women in Indochina" at the United Ministries Center (UMC) at 7:30.

Saturday they will have an exhibit at the Tallahassee Mall, and lectures Sunday night on "The Past, Present and Future of Vietnamese Life" and "The Morality of Dissent" at the UMC at 7:30.

Petition signatures total over 6200

The campus-wide petition drive to "support the Flambeau" collected another 1700 names yesterday bringing the total number of signatures to over 6200.

"I don't see how we'll come up short of 10,000 now," said Steve Pisacanno, one of the organizers of the campaign. "It's going to get harder and slower over the next couple of days, but I think we'll make it."

Pisacanno said that a majority of signatures are usually collected over the first several days of a petition drive, with the daily increase in totals getting lower each day.

"I don't think the administration is going to be able to deny us now," said Flambeau Editor Davis Whiteman. "They can't ignore this many students."

The petition drive will continue today and into "at least the early part of next week," according to organizers.

Aaron slaps 714th

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Hank Aaron equalled Babe Ruth's all-time home run record Thursday when he hit the 714th home run of his career in the first inning of the National League opener between the Atlanta Braves and Cincinnati Reds at capacity-packed Riverfront Stadium.

Aaron's record-tying blow came on a 3 and 1 pitch off Reds' right-hander Jack Billingham and jack-rabbitied the Braves into a 3-0 lead.

The home run, which cleared the inner fence of the ballpark slightly to the left of the 375-foot marker, came with such startling suddenness that it caught the crowd of more than 51,000, including Vice President Gerald Ford, by surprise.

When the impact of what had happened hit them, the crowd stood up and gave the Braves' 40-year-old superstar a rousing ovation. All the Braves' players came running from the dugout to greet and congratulate Aaron as he crossed home plate.

First acid OD cited

(ZNS) The Western Journal of Medicine reports of what is alleged to be the first documented case of an overdose of LSD.

According to the Journal, four men and four women were admitted to a San Francisco hospital 20 months ago after they had snorted a white powder which doctors identified as LSD.

All eight have since fully recovered from the effects of the drug.

The symptoms — to say the least — were a little bizarre: most suffered from comas or near comas, psychosis, severe hallucinations and vomiting. Strangest of all was the fact that four of the victims were bleeding from every orifice in the body, doctors say; and if they were touched anywhere, they would bleed immediately.

Nixon's finances 'almost wiped out'

WASHINGTON — The White House said Thursday President Nixon will be "almost totally wiped out" financially when he pays $467,000 in back taxes and interest, and probably must float a loan to settle his Internal Revenue Service debt.

The news of the financial pinch suffered by Nixon, who is a millionaire in terms of cash and real estate, came as the House Judiciary Committee got a massive congressional report on the President's taxes for its impeachment inquiry.

A presidential spokesman also hinted that Nixon may have to consider selling one of his villas to foot the bill.

Meeting with reporters for the first time since it was announced late Wednesday Nixon would pay an IRS assessment of extra taxes for his first term in office, Deputy White House Press Secretary Gerald Warren gave a bleak report of the President's financial health.

"He has to completely reassess his financial position, which has been almost totally wiped out by this," Warren said.

He said Nixon will meet the obligation with "certain cash and probably borrow some money to pay the remainder."

He gave no indication from whom Nixon might seek a loan.

Twisters hit 11 states

The worst cyclonic onslaught in nearly half a century sent the death toll surging past 300 Thursday and left thousands injured and billions of dollars in property damage across 11 states and a Canadian border city. President Nixon declared five states disaster areas.

By midday the toll stood at 338.

A tornado at dawn Thursday flattened much of the town of Meadow Bridge, W. Va. and killed a 3-year-old girl.

Nearly 100 separate twisters, the most savage tornado disaster since 689 died in 1925 in Missouri, Indiana and Illinois, struck wide areas of the midwest and southeast and crossed into Windsor, Ont., just across the border from Detroit.

Kentucky reported 89 dead in what Gov. Wendell Ford called the worst day in the state's history.

Alabama counted 68 dead, Tennessee 58, Indiana 43, Ohio 40, Georgia 15, North Carolina 5, Michigan 3, Illinois 2, West Virginia 1 and Oklahoma 1.

House OKs bargaining

A bill implementing collective bargaining for public employees passed the House by a surprising 111-7 vote Thursday after it was amended to specifically guarantee a worker's right to refuse to join a union.

The bill also contains strict penalties for violations of no-strike provisions of state law.

The bill, rejected in every session since 1968, was fueled by the threat of the State Supreme Court to set bargaining guidelines which legislators said would be a "disaster."

Hawkins, MacKay speak at symposium

BY EDDIE BELL

Cooperative mismanagement and growth and energy maladjustments were the dominant themes of Public Service Commissioner Paula Hawkins and Rep. Kenneth MacKay as they spoke in the energy symposium Wednesday night.

Hawkins, both the first woman and the first Republican on the Commission since 1887, spoke about mismanagement in public service corporations and the difficulty the Public Service Commission has in regulating these corporations.

Blaming the inequity in electrical rates on mismanagement, Hawkins said that governmental agencies should safeguard the rights of consumers by requiring private corporations to abide by a high standard of management.

In addition Hawkins said a concerned press and public could also help increase the incentive for good management.

A recent Supreme Court decision allowing monopolistic corporations to receive a rate of return as if they were not monopolies was cited by Hawkins as a direct challenge to the Commission regulatory authority. She said this decision would allow the corporations to pass public relations and other sale-inducement costs on to the consumer.

Hawkins announced that an investigation of electrical rates will be conducted this summer by the Commission. Shelo said that it is imperative that rates be redesigned for individual households to avoid financial sufferings.

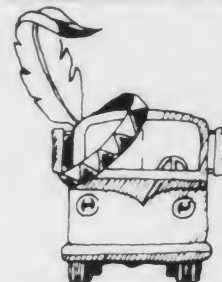

Hawkins predicted that nuclear energy will provide about 50 percent of our energy by 1980. Fuel would be used only for transportation, she said. Hawkins said that the "years ahead will be hard for those that have become accustomed to luxurious living and cannot readjust to lower life styles."

Rep. Kenneth MacKay of Ocala, the second speaker of the evening, cited growth and energy as the most salient problems facing Floridians.

MacKay, voted the most outstanding member of the Florida legislature in the past three years, said that growth could determine what the future of state Florida would be in the future. He said Florida's 11 percent annual rate of growth will cause the population to double in seven years, a phenomenon which will further tax the already-dwindling water and energy supplies.

MacKay recommended limiting immigration into the state and said that Floridians could insure their existing standards of living only by eliminating the inducements which attract newcomers.

Student scrooges make radio marathon a flop

This past weekend, Tallahassee's only public radio station, WFSU-FM, held a fund-raising marathon in order to raise much-needed monies for its operations. The goal of the marathon was to raise the very modest sum of $5000, which would be used to perpetuate the station's high quality programming, as well as to help pay the station's grossly overworked and underpaid staff. The marathon was well publicized, with ads placed in the Democrat and the Flambeau, on-the-air promos and billboard messages scattered throughout the city. Everyone at the station threw themselves into the marathon with high hopes and bubbling vitality.

It's all over now, and it disgusts me to say that the people of Tallahassee responded to WFSU-FM's urgent plea for help with an apathy that would be laughable if it wasn't so sickening: instead of the $5000 so desperately needed, WFSU-FM received a total pledge sum of somewhere around $950.

Isn't that funny, everyone? The station probably didn't even break $1000! It fell $4000 short of its goal! Isn't that hilarious!! I'm not laughing. Are you?

I'm not laughing because the fact of the matter is that Tallahassee doesn't deserve WFSU-FM. Public radio isn't a right — it's a privilege. As a viable alternative to commercial radio, WFSU-FM strives to provide Tallahassee with news and public affairs programming that is both informing and thought-provoking, as well as the very best in classical, jazz, rock, soul and blue-grass music. It is the only radio station in Tallahassee which gears all of its programming to the specific needs and desires of the different segments of Tallahassee's population. And what do the citizens of our fair city do when beseeched by WFSU-FM (for the first time in the 20 years that the station has been in operation) to help the radio station serve the community in the best tradition of public radio? They turn away and let the station die a slow death.

Graduate students face dull courses

Editor:

After experiencing the last two weeks of winter quarter at FSU in psychological hell, I decided to write this article on behalf of the many graduate students who have shared my position or perhaps even suffered from more tension. Throughout four years of undergraduate state education, I was almost always required to regurgitate other people's facts and ideas on tests and papers. Upon entering grad school, I had hoped that I would be able to discuss ideas and opinions in seminars with other students and professors. In almost all classroom cases, I had expected too much from FSU.

The fact is that an in-state graduate student pays $240 tuition ($590 out-of-state) a quarter to listen to some professors rave about their book collections, plug their newest journal articles or dictate their personal prejudices.

Many of these professors from the well-fed, complacent middle class establishment care more about publishing articles upon narrow, scholarly topics (so that they won't academically perish) than they do about generating the fresh, spontaneous ideas of their students.

It is horrible enough to enforce the archaic academic system upon professors, but it is a deadly crime to propitiate it by shoving it into the healthy cerebrums of graduate students. The last couple of weeks of the quarter were a mental house of horrors for me and every other graduate student with whom I was fleetingly able to communicate.

Our final weeks were highlighted by three or four rather worthless finals which had to be prepared for by memorizing data and several long, paraphrased scholarly papers that had to be personally copied, typed and submitted. Facing classes and work, after staying up studying until 5 or 6 o'clock in the morning several nights during the last weeks of the quarter, was just a part of the villainous game played by human beings desiring to earn a bloodthirsty graduate diploma at FSU.

Name Withheld

As a concerned graduate student at Florida State, and former staff member of WFSU-FM, I still have a fierce pride in the goals and accomplishments of our public radio station. The people working there have a dedication and drive that is seldom seen in any of the mass media. They put in long hours for lousy pay, and ask very little in return. And now, when they do ask for some money to help them do the very best job they can, they are slapped in the face and soundly rebuked.

To those of you who cared enough about the future of public radio in Tallahassee to contribute a few dollars to WFSU-FM's fund-raising marathon, I know I speak for the station when I say that your support is appreciated far more than words can express. And to those of you who sat on your collective asses while WFSU-FM was literally begging for you help, I can only say that WFSU-FM is too good a radio station for you.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Resignation

Editor:

This letter is for the benefit of someone I consider a friend, namely John Maloney. John was formerly my Secretary for Student Services, a Cabinet post he also held under Charles Thompson. He did a very competent job for Charles and for me. He personally handled virtually all the complaints about the student health insurance policy, and laid some terrific groundwork for improving the quality of food services. We have our philosophical differences, which accounts for his unsolicited resignation, but he also resigned for financial reasons; namely he found a job that pays him nearly five times as much as he made in Student Government working fewer hours.

Yes, he resigned at an inopportune time, insofar as the Book Shop is concerned, and in so doing he did antagonize some of the other Cabinet officers, but let's face it, the Book Shop was an overwhelming success.

I have had a policy of not censoring my Cabinet officials; they may say what they like, publicly and privately. I exercise the same right, and in so doing I wish John the best of luck in whatever he gets into.

Sidewalks

Editor:

This might sound awfully funny, but it's gotten to be a serious situation on FSU's campus. The problem seems to be that some motorists have taken over some of the sidewalks around campus; this is especially true of the sidewalk (or should I say "sidedrive"?) between Rogers Hall and Salley Hall. Just the other day, I had to jump into the street to avoid being hit by an automobile. While watching from my window at Rogers, the same situation occurred to another "footman" tonight.

Now, really. It's gotten to be a regular habit for motorists to use the sidewalk when driving to a parking spot on the grass in front of the Mabry Heights buildings. Shouldn't those of us who must walk or choose to do so be allowed that privilege without competition from those dangerous machines and their drivers? Did someone say there is an energy crisis? Presently, there seems to be a "sidewalk crisis" for those of us who amble along to and fro by foot. There are some of us who care about our safety (and the ultimate condition of the sidewalks).

H. Lee Simmons

Bad credit

Editor:

The outrageous conduct of this university's financial administration must be publicized. Over one hundred student enrolled last quarter are the recipients of the State of Florida General Scholarship Loan for the Preparation of Teachers, myself included. Every quarter I have dutifully submitted my note for the amount of two hundred dollars to the bursar to pay for registration.

'Godfather' excels as film

BY ERIC MOSS

Although "The Exorcist" is rapidly closing in on "The Godfather's" claim to the top all-time money-making film, few critics can admit "The Exorcist" is a better movie.

Adapted from Mario Puzo's best-selling novel about the Mafia in America, the plot is a marvelously brutal interweaving of power plays laced with romance and spiced with Italian fervor and machismo.

Marlon Brando, as Don Vito Corleone, is superb as the reserved and "reasonable" head one of the most powerful Mafia families in the country. Although he wasn't on screen as much as I would have liked, everything about the film radiated from him.

James Caan, who before "The Godfather" was best known for his portrayal of Brian Piccolo in "Brian's Song," was quite good as Don Corleone's oldest son. His part called for a measure of irrationality, and in this respect Caan may have tried too hard to be Italian. Nevertheless, his performance was much more than adequate.

Al Pacino, one of my favorite actors (see "Serpico" to find out why), was excellent as the youngest, and perhaps most ruthless Corleone son. His performance of Michael was most believable in a long list of human oddities.

Francis Ford Coppola did his most outstanding directing job in this movie. He skillfully molded the personalities on the set into a cohesive unit and was able to make the most out of each element he had to work with. Care was taken to re-create the feel of the 'forties as well as the detailed accompanying bloodshed.

Photography Director Gordon Willis A.C.E. also deserves mention. His remarkable camera work effectively captured on film the beauty of the Sicilian countryside and the bleak despair of New York streets.

Tribe plays four; Tebbetts injured

Florida State's baseball team tries to keep its two game winning streak alive this weekend hosting Niagara University tonight at 7:30 and Lewis University for three games starting Saturday.

The Seminoles, 15-12 on the year, received word yesterday that leftfielder Steve Tebbetts will be lost to the club for at least three weeks as a result of an injury received sliding into second base in Tuesday night's win against Columbus College.

Tebbetts was leading the team in walks and stolen bases with 20 and 14 respectively before the bone chip and torn ligament injury to his index finger was discovered.

Head coach Jack Stallings will select from the trio of Jose Lugo, Mike Givens and Bill Daniel for a replacement.

The Seminoles will play Lewis at 1:30 Saturday and a doubleheader Sunday beginning at 1:30.

May affect campus organizations

BOR proposes anti-discriminatory policy

BY LAURIN MARCH

The Board of Regents (BOR), in accordance with the office of the State Attorney General, will propose a policy today denying campus "facilities, support and services" to organizations which discriminate on the basis of "race, color, creed, sex, or national origin."

According to University Attorney Robert Bickel, each school will decide how the policy is to affect them and to what extent.

"All I can say," said Bickel, "is that the policy will be proposed. I don't know how this will affect FSU because it hasn't come before the Board yet."

Mel Penrose, associate editor of the BOR publication "Memo", told the Flambeau that "there has been no proposed set of guidelines."

The ramifications of this policy, depending on the stand the BOR decides to take, could affect such organizations as the Glee Club, the Collegians and the Mortar Board, which discriminate in their membership on the basis of sex.

Steve Elliot, of the Interfraternity Council, said that "Fraternalities (and sororities) are independent and have no direct ties with the university as student organizations."

Since Greek organizations are privately financed, the policy that the BOR adopts will not affect them.

Attorney General Robert Shevin's informal view is that "private organizations can discriminate only if they are not using university facilities or obtaining university support while they are doing so."

Although the Equal Rights Amendment has not yet been ratified, Shevin believes that sex discrimination is not legal.

The BOR will also consider changing and eliminating several degree programs at FSU.

They will view consolidation of the Masters and Doctorate degree programs in music and home economics. The possible termination of B.S. degrees in statistics, chemical science and radiation physics will be discussed, as well as eliminating master's and bachelor programs in the classics.

A change in policy for the advanced placement program (CLEP) with regard to recording practices, will also be acted on by the Board.

Flambeau win attributed to 'rigorous' pre-spring training

BY THE FLAMBEAU STAFF

The long and rigorous — some have even called it brutal and animalistic — pre-season training program for the Flambeau softball team finally paid its first dividends yesterday as Tallahassee's largest collegiate daily trounced the Furry Beavers in an exhibition contest 14-5.

Following the team's first victory ever, Flambeau Editor Davis Whiteman still denied he was a miracle-worker, but that claim drew the opposition of many on hand at the Intramurals Field who filled the air with words like "incredible" and "dynasty."

Whiteman took over the reins of the much-suffering team when former editor Tom Kirwan was ousted following an 0-3 season last year. Whiteman had drawn considerable criticism for his stern handling of the team during the pre-season training. The controversy boiled to a fever pitch when 28 Flambeau staffers quit the paper earlier this year.

But it looks now as though the criticism was unjustified.

"Coach has done just a great job," said center fielder Mike Brennan. "Some have said putting razor blades on our pencils to make us write faster, making us run up and down the stairs of the Union three times a week, and the chicken wire cage that kept us in the basic typing position were too much. I say winning is the only thing and win was what we did today."

The gruesome onslaught perpetrated by the Flambeau was led by the pitching and hitting of Dale "The Bear" Friedley. Friedley held the Beavers to just five hits over nine innings while contributing a four-for-five effort at the other end of the pitches. Brennan provided most of the offensive fireworks with an eighth inning grand slam home run that salted the game away for the Flambeau.

"We'll still be able to make the run on the Seminole football record for most consecutive defeats," Whiteman said following the match. "This was only an exhibition game and, besides, only five of the ten guys playing on our team actually work for the paper."

Walk-ons face many trials and tribulations

Multi-colored cards mark depth charts on bulletin boards detailing the progress of every athlete's dream of competing. That board is as big a foe as those battled upon athletic fields. But, to a walk-on, the board is a relatively minor obstacle. More important, he must learn to fight his inner fears curtailing his drive for a place on the squad.

The walk-on is a special breed of athlete. Whatever the sport, being a walk-on takes a certain kind of desire that few athletes possess. A desire even fewer walk-ons possess.

FSU's head baseball coach Jack Stallings tells the story of a midwestern high school baseball player who called and asked for a tryout. The youngster flew to Tallahassee and, with his two large suitcases in hand, took a cab to the University. Finding his way to the coach's office he introduced himself and sat down.

"Coach Stallings, how did your team do last year?"

"Oh, well," Stallings stammered. "We went to the finals at Omaha and lost 2-1 in 15 innings."

"You must have a good group of ballplayers," the boy concluded.

Stallings studied the boy closely and answered, "We sure do. That's what we want at this school."

The ballplayer hesitated about thirty seconds, raised himself from the chair and was out the door, suitcases once again in hand, and on the next flight back home.

The youngster is not alone, as few walk-ons stick. Most leave withdrawn and defeated. Others leave depleted of motivation. But, for the little guy who has fought his way up to a place in athletics few fans ever reach, there belongs a special place in the hearts of all sports fans. The uniqueness of Dr. Delano Merriweather's capturing the fancy of track fans across the globe is a case in point. Merriweather, watching a track meet on television at home, suddenly jumped up and exclaimed, "Hey, I can beat those guys!" He did, running his name right into the record books and winning the admiration of many along the way.

Modesty and humiliation are seldom the attributes of a walk-on. An aura of confidence must fill the mind of the prospect as there can be little or no time for him to be doubting

Dayan suggests resignation of Meir, cabinet

TEL AVIV — Defense Minister Moshe Dayan has suggested that Prime Minister Golda Meir and her entire cabinet accept collective responsibility for Israel's unpreparedness for last October's war and resign, Israel national television and radio said yesterday.

The object would be to accept the blame and then form a new government headed by Mrs. Meir with a reshuffled cabinet, the radio and television said. Dayan would be out as defense minister but would be included in the new government in another post.

The radio said the proposal had been discussed by Justice Minister Haim Zadok, Finance Minister Pinhas Sapir and Haifa

Mayor Yosef Almogi, the labor minister in the previous government who mediated negotiations in setting up the new one.

Mrs. Meir formed her new government in early March.

"Dayan suggested that the entire government resign and that he would participate in a different post in the new government," the television said.

Information Minister Shimon Peres said in a telephone interview that the Rafi faction of Mrs. Meir's Labor alignment, of which he and Dayan are members, would not be opposed to such a move if Dayan will hold a cabinet post in the next government.

He and Dayan's spokesman said, however, that the defense minister did not make any such suggestion.

The reported suggestion followed release Tuesday of a report by a special government committee blaming top ranking army officers, including Maj.

Gen. David Elazar who resigned as chief of staff, for Israel's failure to be ready for the Arab surprise attacks Oct. 6. The report virtually cleared Mrs. Meir and Dayan from responsibility.

But half a dozen cabinet ministers have called for Dayan's resignation, saying as defense minister he is ultimately responsible for Israel's military mistakes.

Mrs. Meir has said any responsibility falling on a cabinet minister should be taken collectively by all the ministers.

Peres said if the cabinet resigned it would not mean calling new elections. He and the Knesset parliament would hopefully reaffirm its support for Mrs. Meir and she could then set up a new government.

Watergate to last 2 or 3 more years

WASHINGTON — Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski said Sunday it may be two or three years "before we've heard the last of Watergate."

The public may be anxious for Watergate to be cleared up quickly, Jaworski said in an interview in the current U.S. News & World Report, "but there is no way of doing it easily."

Early disposition of all the Watergate cases yet to reach the indictment stage, he said, "would come about only if all potential defendants were to negotiate and enter pleas of guilty. And that is not to be expected."

"With a number of trials — and making allowances for appeals — it could be a matter of two, perhaps three years, before we've heard the last of Watergate."

'Enough votes to impeach'

WASHINGTON — Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., said yesterday he believes there are enough votes in the House to impeach President Nixon but suggested that Nixon might want to resign even if the vote fell short of the required two-thirds majority.

But Rep. John J. Rhodes, the House Republican, said he had a gut feeling that there were not enough votes to impeach the President, although he had not made a count.

Mills, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, said that should the House fall short of the two-thirds majority vote necessary for impeachment — but with more than half the House voting for impeachment — Nixon should resign "in the country's best interest."

Mills, interviewed on ABC's Issues and Answers, said if this happened, "There you have Congress itself speaking against him, but not by a sufficient vote to impeach him."

"At that point I think consideration must be given by him to the country's interest as to whether or not it's best from the country's point of view that he resign or not."

Also, Mills said, Nixon might want to resign if impeached by the House, but before he is tried in the Senate.

"I would think if he can reach a conclusion that it is in the country's best interest to prevent this traumatic experience of going through a trial of impeachment in the Senate, he could, I think, resign and leave with fewer scars and leave less of a schism in the American public..."

Rhodes also said he did not think the ruling that the President owed $467,000 in back taxes and interest would hurt the chief executive's standing with Congress and the people.

For South Vietnamese

Nixon seeks increase in aid

SAIGON — The Nixon administration is seeking increases in military and economic aid for South Vietnam from Congress which would raise their total to about $2 billion in the fiscal year starting July 1, informed U.S. sources said Sunday.

In military developments, Saigon command spokesmen reported that Communist troops attacked a government position Saturday in Phuoc Tuy province about 40 miles east of Saigon. Forty Communists were reported killed while government losses were one killed and 20 wounded, the spokesmen said.

Communist gunners shelled the embattled Tong Le Chan ranger camp in Binh Long province 55 miles north of Saigon with 169 mortar rounds during a four-hour period Saturday, spokesmen said. They reported casualties as "light" with no fatalities.

The sources here said the administration has already asked for $1.6 billion in military equipment and supplies despite the refusal of Congress to provide that much in the current fiscal year.

Requests for economic aid for Indochina countries are expected to go to Congress in the near future. American sources here said that the total request in the neighborhood of $650 million for South Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia is currently programmed.

Although a complete breakdown of the request was not available, economic assistance in Laos and Cambodia has been running under the $100 million-a-year mark in each country. This year, South Vietnam has received about $300 million in economic aid so far with an additional $5 million still under consideration.

BOR urged to adopt new quarter hour fee system

ORLANDO, Fla. — To rid the state's colleges and universities of "phantom enrollments," the Finance Committee of the Board of Regents recommended yesterday that students be charged according to how many credit hours they are actually taking instead of a flat fee for tuition.

University Chancellor Robert Mautz said, "To my astonishment and to my horror, evidence was presented to a legislative subcommittee last week that some institutions had been padding enrollments to get bigger appropriations.

The Chancellor said that one way this is done is by faculty advisors encouraging students to sign up for classes they don't intend to take and then give them credit.

He urged the Regents to adopt the new fee system immediately because "if we don't do it, the Legislature is going to do it for us."

The committee, including Regents J.J. Daniel, Chester Ferguson and Mrs. Carolyn Pierce, approved Mautz' proposed fee schedule which would be based on a straight charge of $13 per credit hour for undergraduates and $16.50 for graduate students. Presently there is a flat fee of $190 for undergraduates and $240 for graduate students per quarter.

For the undergraduate taking a normal load of 15 hours, this would figure out to $195 or $5 more than the present tuition while graduate students who take about 12 hours normally would pay $198, or $42 less than they pay now.

Six former employees of Western Sizzlin' Steak House picketed the restaurant last week, protesting what they called the "unsanitary conditions, racism, and intimidation" of the establishment.

Joe Hannah, the new manager at Western Sizzlin', said that the complaints of the protesters are "malicious and completely untrue."

According to Diane Anthony, an employee of the restaurant for over two years, and one of those who walked out, only six of the original 30 workers on the staff still remain on their jobs.

Anthony, along with Tobbie Johnson and Mary Hamilton, both long-term employees, left their jobs Wednesday because

Capitol to

BY JOHN STEVENS

A march on the Capitol, consisting of veterans from FSU, FAMU and TCC, to lobby for increased benefits from the state, is planned for Thursday.

In a meeting last Friday, members of the Veteran's Club and of Student Government drew up the plans for the march, which is intended to muster support for Representative Mattox's proposed legislative bills which would increase educational benefits for veterans of the Vietnam era.

The march will take place Thursday morning, April 11, with a planned assembly of FSU and TCC veterans in front of the Westcott Building at 11:30 to give last minute instructions followed by the start of the march at noon.

According to Gene Genetini, President of the Veterans Club, efforts are being made now to obtain a police permit and to work with the police in

Steak house workers protest conditions

Six former employees of Western Sizzlin' Steak House picketed the restaurant last week, protesting what they called the "unsanitary conditions, racism, and intimidation" of the establishment.

Joe Hannah, the new manager at Western Sizzlin', said that the complaints of the protesters are "malicious and completely untrue."

According to Diane Anthony, an employee of the restaurant for over two years and one of those who walked out, only six of the original 30 workers on the staff still remain on their jobs.

Anthony, along with Tobbie Johnson and Mary Hamilton, both long-term employees, left their jobs Wednesday because

"the conditions in the restaurant have become unbearable."

"Two years is a phenomenally long time to work in a place like this with such a high turnover, so it's not that we haven't thought this through," Anthony said. "We feel that we have legitimate grievances and we're picketing to warn people not to eat in a place where we can't work with a clear conscience."

The most damaging allegation being made by the former employees is the charge of unsanitary food preparation.

Anthony claimed that on several occasions she was ordered to serve food which had fallen on the floor. Johnson said that she had to return dinners when customers found roaches in their steaks and salads.

"The kitchen was full of flies when we were there, but when I requested a fly swatter they wouldn't give me one," Hamilton said.

Some of the picketers had drawn horses on their signs, with the words underneath reading "Western Sizzlin' serves horse meat."

Anthony and another former employee identified only as Judy, said that they saw cartons of horse meat in the restaurant which they claim was being used for item no. 17 on the menu, filet of steak.

"We asked the former manager, Harry Garvue, what kind of meat it was and he told us it was horse meat," Anthony said.

Hannah denied the charges of unsanitary food preparation.

"We have one of the cleanest operating kitchens in the city," Hannah said. "We have been inspected by the county recently and by the State Health Department only two weeks ago."

The State Health Inspector rated the restaurant's sanitary conditions as 'excellent' at that time, according to Hannah.

"The horse meat charge is just incredible," Hannah said. "It would be impossible for us to pass this type of meat off as beef, as if we would even want to do such a thing."

Besides the charge of unsanitary conditions, the protesters said that before the restaurant changed management it was racist in its policies.

"The former manager had a habit of calling the blacks 'niggers' to their faces," Johnson said. "There would never be more than one token black up front."

Hannah said the allegation that the restaurant is racist or has been racist is also false.

"The ratio up front where we serve the customer is half and half, and we also have black supervisors," Hannah said.

The pickets also claim that they were intimidated and threatened with firing daily.

According to Hannah, the workers that walked out didn't measure up to the new standards which the restaurant was adopting under his management.

"We have been trying to create the proper attitude among our employees in order to better serve our customers, and these people couldn't take the discipline," Hannah said. "This crew has gotten its way for a long time, but now we're trying to get them to work as a team."

Hannah said that this type of conflict is inevitable whenever management changes.

BY JOHN STEVENS

A march on the Capitol, consisting of veterans from FSU, FAMU and TCC, to lobby for increased benefits from the state, is planned for Thursday.

In a meeting last Friday, members of the Veteran's Club and of Student Government drew up the plans for the march, which is intended to muster support for Representative Mattox's proposed legislative bills which would increase educational benefits for veterans of the Vietnam era.

The march will take place Thursday morning, April 11, with a planned assembly of FSU and TCC veterans in front of the Westcott Building at 11:30 to give last minute instructions followed by the start of the march at noon.

According to Gene Genetin, President of the Veterans Club, efforts are being made now to obtain a police permit and to work with the police in deciding the best route.

On the way to the Capitol, the marchers will join with FAMU veterans at an as yet undetermined point, and then proceed on to their destination, where they will be addressed by representatives from the state government.

After receiving booklets explaining who and where their legislators will be, the veterans will enter the Capitol and explain to the legislators the need for additional educational benefits.

The march organizers emphasize that they want this to be a peaceful demonstration and that the word "walk" is more applicable to this event than the word "march."

Genetin said that wearing a sport shirt or shirt and tie would be preferred over the wearing of fatigues or cammies, in order for the endeavor to be taken seriously.

Organizers expressed the opinion that the wearing of conventional clothing would not antagonize the older legislators, thus making them more agreeable to the lobbyists' efforts, and added that they didn't want to get into a "Fuck you!" session.

Genetin said that Bob Cutlip, Ray Harris and Ron Tennant would be spokespersons for the FSU veterans, while FAMU and TCC would have their own speakers.

"All the news services in Tallahassee have been notified, plus UPI and AP," said Genetin, adding that many of the major newspapers around the state were also aware of the upcoming march.

Out of touch BOR in need of students

The state legislature is now considering many bills which will have a direct impact on the students within the State University System. However, the bill filed by Senator Jack Gordon (D-Miami Beach), Vice-Chairperson of the Education Committee, which would allow three students to become voting members of the Board of Regents (BOR), is by far the most important.

The bill would increase the current BOR membership from nine to twelve, with the new members being full-time students appointed by the governor. The students would be selected from three different schools on a rotating basis and would serve one-year terms.

Student Government President David Aronofsky said the bill was coming at an opportune time "because the entire legislature is coming up for re-election in November and those representatives and senators who are thinking of voting against it may be threatened by a student backlash in the polls." According to one of Gordon's staff members, the bill will pass through the Senate Education Committee by a unanimous vote.

In the House, Kenneth MacKay (D-Ocala) has filed a bill similar in nature to Gordon's in the hope that the Senate will recognize that there is favorable sentiment toward the bill in the House.

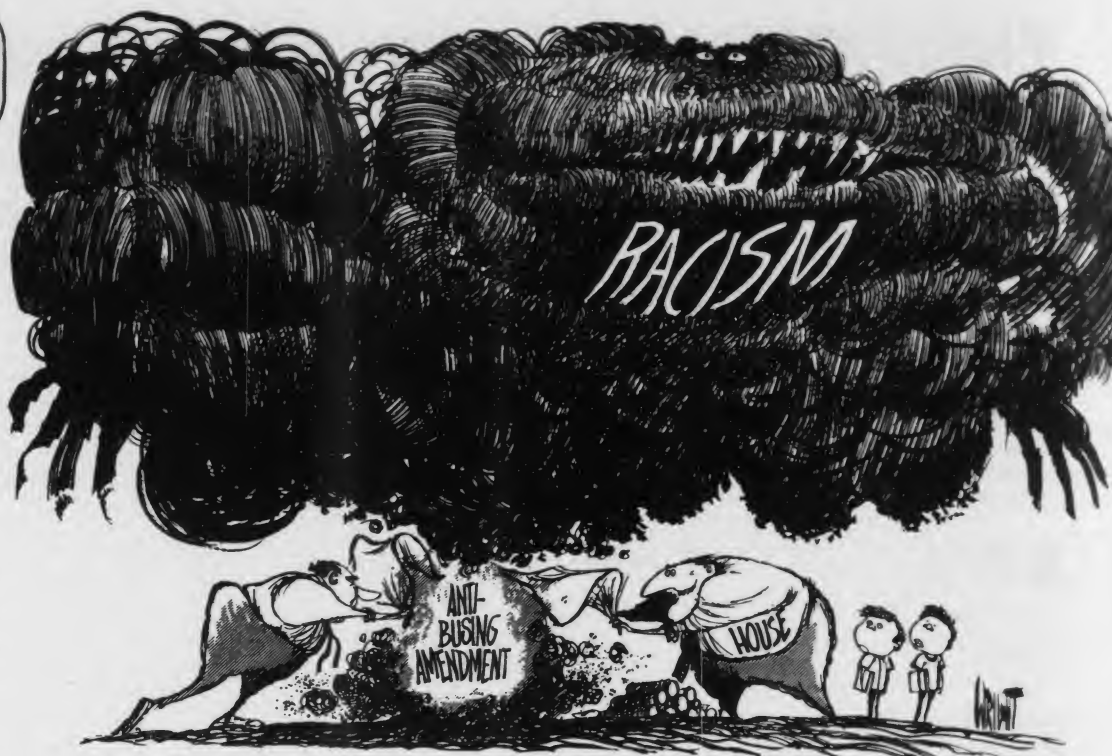

The sentiment, however, is not overwhelming, according to a member of the House Education Committee who contends that the student vote does not pose a threat to state politicians. And he, along with some House members, expect Gordon's bill to be amended in the House so that one student, acting in an advisory capacity only, will be added to the BOR.

For years the BOR has been a collection of old fuddy-duddies who have no understanding of educational concepts or student life. More than once, the BOR has passed policies which have been totally insensitive and lacking in perspective toward students.

The addition of three students as voting members to the BOR is a long-awaited and necessary change.

The Flambeau sees no reason why the House should amend Gordon's bill and hopes that Tallahassee's representative, Carroll Webb, will do everything in his power to insure the bill's safe passage. For this issue may be just enough to get students out to vote against legislators who are intent on further denying students access to state level decision-making.

Aristocracy: the grand delusion

Although the aristocracy in this country has long been dead and interred, the pretense, as George Santayana noted 50 years ago, is still kept up and flaunted. It is the pretense, to a large degree, that is the keystone of the American Dream.

By aristocracy, I mean a class of people, always more of an ideal than a reality, which possesses not only money and power, but a modicum of dignity, culture and intelligence.

Those with the cash these days, in the main, are as devoid of an aristocratic sense as buzzards and college deans. They pretend of course, carry on an obscene charade, and incite a lot of slandering and fawning from their less-well healed brethren, but they are essentially hollow.

Most, in fact, are more than simply hollow. They are intellectual paupers, raving, steaming montebanks and bounders who have little real concern for anything except their bank accounts and their personal images.

The aristocratic pretense is maintained, however, by the wealthy and those who envy the wealthy, as a cover for the crassness and venality of moneymaking—to make the possession of money appear well-deserved, even noble. But the pretense is kept up in pretty much the same way that a pickled Lenin represents the lost values of Russian communism.

The purveyor of the pretense, naturally, is the media, where the image is kept glamorous and racy.

It is rare for local media to attack one of its rich citizens, no matter how much of a skunk he might be, and it is not uncommon for it to pump up his good qualities, no matter how trivial and overshadowed by greed and nastiness. As with all sacred institutions, the emphasis is on the positive.

Hence, a rapacious, senile construction mogul can be a philanthropist by joining the art foundation; a strip miner can be a conservationist by leaving a small clump of trees to the Audubon Society; a car manufacturer who makes $2 million annually can send $2,000 to starving children in Asia and be a friend of the poor.

It is probably not, in most cases, a conscious distortion of the facts by the media. The media is simply giving the public what it wants, just as movie magazines are inclined to give their client what it wants, keeping the stars sexy, clean and unencumbered with the mundane problems the rest of us must face.

And for the most part, the lower and middle classes swallow the pap and demand more. The illusion must be kept up—it is, after all, all they've got. Instead of being outraged at the wealthy for ripping them off, they cherish and defend that practice, in the hope that they too may ascend to that class and do the same. They wish to keep every avenue, no matter how tawdry, open to the possible ascent.

Such a mentality has long been a conundrum for the socialist movement in this country. Such too, will probably keep the rich on top for some time to come.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Perverts

Editor:

A couple of months ago when the fad of streaking began here on campus, almost everyone, myself included, thought it was really great. The whole idea of streaking was super, and you just have to admit that at one time or another, almost everybody has had the urge to rip off their clothes and join in themselves. As the fad wore on however, that notion proved illogical by the way the crowd, for the most part, acted during the festivities. A couple of weeks ago, a French friend of mine wrote me allettersaying that the first thing he wants to do when he gets to America, is to come here to Tallahassee and Florida State to "faire le Streaking." All of this is really cool, and streaking, up until the final days of FSU streaking, has been enjoyed by many.

I was thoroughly disgusted by the way the perverts and morons ran around the crowd, drooling after the few bold and hardy coeds who tried to get in on the fun. As much as I hate to admit it, it was an all-male group of sexists and weirdos trying to get a peek, cop a feel, and ruin it for everybody. And, to the wonderful and beautiful people of the female sex, on behalf of my own, I wish to offer an apology. We males are not all like that, so please don't lose faith. And just maybe Sheriff what's-his-name and his troopers have been arresting the wrong people.

Off-campus?

Editor:

Notwithstanding pressure emanating from anarchist and subversive elements, the Flambeau must be removed from the FSU campus. Under the benign veneer of freedom of the press lurks the insidious specter of freedom of thought and freedom of speech, both of which undermine the administration's efforts to impose its absolute domination over each and every student.

Flambeau petition needs supporters

Editor's note: Debbie Alley is the Secretary for Communication in Student Government.

It's time to show your support for the Flambeau. In less than a week, the Administration will make its decision on whether or not to force the paper off campus, so decisive action is vitally important to the Flambeau's survival. To this end, Student Government, in conjunction with the Flambeau, has been conducting a massive petition campaign to collect a needed 10,000 signatures in support of the Flambeau by the end of this week.

Student Government strongly supports the position of the Flambeau for several reasons. First, if the Administration is successful in its endeavor to move the paper off campus, the Flambeau would again be plunged into crippling financial difficulties. The Flambeau has been enmeshed in financial problems ever since the Administration made it independent a year ago, but through effective management of its only resources (people and advertising), it was beginning to happily foresee the attainment of a state of financial equilibrium by the end of this year. That possibility now seems dim and the crushing expenses which would be incurred in setting up operations off campus could bring the Flambeau to a premature end.

GUEST COLUMN

By Debbie Alley

Second, with the impending demise of the Flambeau, we in Student Government question whether we would have an alternative method of absolutely necessary intra-university correspondence. If some method was devised, the question remains as to what type of information it would disseminate. In all probability, it would be some sort of daily newsletter published by the Administration. And the disadvantages of that form of communication are dismayingly clear the the imagination.

Third, if it should happen that the Flambeau is, after all, able to claw out an existence off campus in spite of its financial albatross, we believe that the quality of the Flambeau itself would still suffer. Information input and access problems would be a certain consequence and the convenience to the whole university community would no longer be a reality. The Flambeau would be an isolated entity away from the news instead of in the middle of what's happening as it now is in its present location.

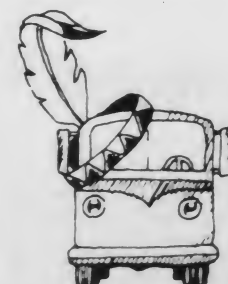

Also, we kinda like the Flambeau. It's creative, it's funny, plus it's free. It's an important source of information exchange about university affairs as well as serving as the only source of daily information input on state and national matters for many students. Additionally, in spite of the fact that it must rely on the fickle advertising support of the more conservative community at large for its survival, the Flambeau still manages to do an excellent job of expressing the more liberal student point of view.

It is for these moments and these reasons that we support the Flambeau, and we will attempt all within our power to strengthen the Flambeau's bargaining position with the Administration. We implore every student and faculty member to do the same, and together we can assuredly collect the necessary signatures to show our support of our newspaper.

Petitions are available in the Student Government Offices, at tables in the Bellamy Building and the Union, and from a number of individual students collecting signatures around campus. You can help by signing a petition, or we'll be happy to give you a petition of your own if you would like to help us collect signatures. Petitions will also be available at the switchboards of the dormitories, so pick one up and distribute it among your friends and in your classes. Every little bit of effort will help, even three signatures will bring us much closer to our goal. When you've finished with your petition, you can drop it off at any of the tables or at the Student Government Offices.

The need is urgent and this week is vital in adding our collective strength to the bargaining position of the Flambeau. Help Student Government in its organized drive to demonstrate to the Administration that the Flambeau has unified support throughout the university community. Success is inevitable if we all work together, so sign a petition now and let your support of the Flambeau be known!

Wake up

Editor:

Many of us have read about enough of these hippity-dippity-do type reasons why the U.S. citizen should not be allowed to own and maintain any type of firearm, be it a rifle or a .38 handgun.

I believe that there are an enormous number of misguided "Woodstock children" spouting eternal peace, claiming that everyone is their brother. Their feeling that guns will be used only for evil purposes, as an evil outgrowth of society, is as flipped out as their attitude towards other people.

Alas, what will they do if some psycho-criminal bursts into their home with the intent of robbing and harming them and their family? Will they strike him with a tarot card or will they ask him to reconsider over tea with their guru? Wake up, will you? Be always prepared to defend your life and the lives of those you love.

Greek week

Editor:

If the purpose of Greek Week is to promote a favorable image of fraternity and sorority life, the Greeks have failed miserably.

I have been a member of a Greek organization for almost four years, but after Wednesday night's display at the Ravenstreet "Greek Week Talent Show," I am embarrassed to sign this letter. Unfortunately, I was asked to participate in the show. By the time I made it to the stage, I was asking myself, "What the hell am I doing here?" Never in my life have I faced a more inconsiderate group of people. Apparently, the "talent show" was merely an excuse for an oversized beer bust.

If a display of Greek "spirit" includes the obnoxious behavior of overgrown pre-schoolers, I'm handing in my jersey.

Possessed streaker portrayed in gospel

A streaker and an exorcist in the same story? Bible buffs will be happy to learn that St. Luke was 2000 years ahead of his time.

In Chapter 8 of his gospel, St. Luke tells of a man who was possessed by several devils and ran around naked every day. No sooner would the man be bound with "chains and fetters," than he'd break loose and streak out to the desert.

According to St. Luke, Jesus showed up and ended the poor man's possession. Jesus is said to have transferred the devils from the man to nearby sheep, who promptly "rushed headlong over a cliff into a lake and were drowned."

St. Luke's story has a happy ending: the formerly possessed streakers was later found "clothed and in his right mind."

Black lights may be 'hazardous to health'

Black light posters, the trademark of psychedelic head shops, just might be hazardous to your health.

A team of researchers from the University of Missouri in Columbia has found that black lights — those ultra-violet ray tubes that cause posters to glow — are deadly to human tissue. Biologist Richard Wang said that when human tissue in a culture dish was exposed to black light for only 90 minutes, 99 percent of the cells were killed.

Wang says that there is no evidence yet that the light is harmful to healthy humans, but he warns, "If my kids were (staring at black light posters), I'd discourage it."

Delectable dog biscuits win over cornflakes

Dog biscuits taste better than corn flakes, a class at the University of Rhode Island discovered during an experiment.

Students in a university sensory evaluation course were presented with three kinds of dog food and corn flakes, all of them ground up into powder so fine it was virtually impossible to tell the substances apart.

After being told that three of the substances were dog food and one was human food, the students were asked to select which tasted the best. A common brand of dog biscuit was chosen most often as the best tasting food.

Food makes the man — you are what you eat

President Nixon and Vice President Ford have something very much in common: both of them state that one of their favorite lunches consists of cottage cheese smothered with ketchup.

It has been widely reported that for years Nixon has lunched on cottage cheese and ketchup, a recipe Nixon says he learned from his grandmother.

Now, Gerald Ford's press secretary Paul Miltich says that the vice president often dines on the same dish. Ford is said to particularly enjoy his cottage cheese and ketchup mix with a cold root beer on the side.

Loser of the Month

The loser of the month has to be Robert Edward Spears.

Spears, a resident of Huntington, West Virginia, was acquitted recently of murder in the death of a man whose body was tossed into the Ohio River. Spears convinced the jury that he had shot Rocco Thompson in self defense and then pushed Thompson's body into the river.

After Spears was cleared of murder by the jury, prosecutor L.D. Egnor filed new criminal charges against Spears: he formally charged Robert Edward Spears with littering the river.

Parade of Governors highlights sesquicentennial celebration

BY CRESTON NELSON

"Art in the Park," the Parade of Governors and a Springtime Picnic highlighted this weekend's Sesquicentennial celebration of "Spring Saturday."

Saturday's main event was the Parade of Governors. Some nineteen bands, including the FSU Marching Chiefs and the FAMU Marching One Hundred, took part in the festivities. Ten thousand spectators turned out to watch what has been described as the "biggest and best" parade in Tallahassee history.

Thirty-nine colorful floats were presented, bringing the total number of entries to 136. Each of Florida's governors was represented in the historical aspect of the parade.

"Art in the Park" was the theme of the Arts and Crafts Show and Sale. Sponsored by the Society of Arts and Crafts, the show included all types of artwork including paintings on canvas and velvet, ceramics, leather work, macrame, candles, glass blowing and jewelry.

Several students at FSU presented their works, however, most of the 98 entrants were local artists. Painter Frances Hancock journeyed all the way from Brooksville for the show. Hancock attends every Tallahassee show because "Paintings sell well and the people are interested in art, and are extremely friendly."

Other out-of-town artists and crafts people represented Tampa, Lake Worth, Pensacola and Crawfordville.

Several thousand people attended the Arts and Crafts exhibit, located in the two blocks of parks on downtown Park Street.

According to Art Show chairperson Harry Frisbee, this year's show drew the largest number of exhibitors in the nine year history of the event. Describing the show as "always worthwhile," Frisbee said, "Our main objective has always been to create an interest in art in both the young and old. We accomplished that and more this year."

Continuous entertainment was provided at the North Florida Fairgrounds Saturday afternoon. Events included a Springtime Picnic, a flea market, food booths, a Hunter and Jumpers Horse Show and a National Antique Auto Show.

Everyone seems in agreement that this year's Springtime celebration has been the "best ever." As one observer put it, "the weather was great, the entertainment was good, and the people interesting. What more could you ask for?"

Today's shorties

PETITIONERS helping to "Save the Flambeau" should attend a short meeting today at 4:30 p.m. Final plans for this week will be outlined and discussed in Room 326 Union. In addition, all persons who have any signed petitions should turn them in at the tables or at the SG offices today or tomorrow.

LIGHTING for the tennis courts near Tully Gym should be restored soon, according to maintenance department officials. Power was lost March 23 when an electrical cable went out of order and repair has been hampered by poor weather conditions.

In addition, four more lighted courts will become available soon behind Florida High, and officials are checking timers on the courts near Salley Hall to assure lighting until 10:30 each night.

GRANT APPLICATIONS for the Basic Educational Opportunity Grant (BEOG) and Florida Student Assistance Grant programs are now available at Student Financial Affairs in Bryan Hall. Application should be made as soon as possible, according to James Carr, Director of Financial Affairs.

FRIDAY, April 12 is the last day to apply for a degree to be conferred June 8, 1974.

"CURRENT TOPICS in Psychobiology" will be the topic of a speech by Dr. Bernice Wenzel from the Department of Psychology, School of Medicine at UCLA to be given in 105 PYR today, Wednesday and Thursday from 9:05-9:55 a.m.

THE SECOND of a series of seminars with FSU's writer-in-residence, Ambassador Edward R. Braithwaite, will be held today from 2-4 p.m. in Room 216 Education. Braithwaite will discuss his book "Reluctant Neighbors."

A SELF-HYPNOSIS class for improving study habits will meet at 7:30 p.m. in Room 120 Caraway tonight. Leader Bob Witmer says anyone interested in the course who did not attend the initial meeting last week may still attend.

THE CPE FAIR is scheduled for Saturday, April 13, from 11 a.m. until sundown. Fair activities will include an Easter egg hunt, live music, eats and other frivolities.

Persons interested in having a table or booth at the Fair to sell crafts or food, demonstrate crafts or disperse information, should contact the CPE office by Thursday, at 599-2219 or Room 251 Union.

Speakers contrast on energy crisis views

'Contrast' was the key word in the final session of FSU's Energy Symposium, for the two speakers, James Gill of the Federal Energy Office (FEO) and Dr. Howard Odum of the University of Florida's Environmental Engineering Department, contrasted personality, background and opinion.

Gill, who has had an extensive working background in the oil business, defended the position of his past oil company employers during the energy crisis, and proceeded to defend his current boss, "Bill" Simon.

Gill insisted that the energy crisis is "not a contrivance of the oil companies," and defended what he termed the "equitable programs" devised by the FEO.

Odum, however, referred to the "basic fallacies" in many of FEO's programs during his delivery, charging that FEO's Project Independence "will make us self-sufficient now and absolutely destitute later."

Odum foresees a gradual lowering of Americans' standard of living, a mandatory migration "back to the land," and a major realignment of the "international power structure."

Art Supply Co-op solicits volunteers

The People's Art Supply Co-op is soliciting volunteers to assist in preparing facilities, ordering supplies and selling memberships.

The Co-op, scheduled to open May 1, will be temporarily housed in the Co-op Record store on West Tennessee.

According to spokespersons for the Co-op, the store will be organized as a non-profit corporation and controlled by its members. Memberships are presently being sold for $5 annually, or $35 lifetime. Membership cards entitle customers to 10% discounts on all purchases.

"This 10% discount will represent a tremendous savings, since our regular prices will already be substantially lower than other places, and the quality of our merchandise will be generally as good, usually better," Linda Bassett, a Co-op representative, said.

The goals of the Co-op, according to Bassett, are to involve a broader range of people in creative endeavors, to provide quality materials at "rock bottom" prices, to allow student and community artists to control the source of their supplies and to facilitate knowledge and skill exchange.

"Our prospects are really exciting," Bassett said. "Right now our main efforts are directed toward recruiting volunteers to help prepare our facilities, staff the store and sell memberships."

A table will be set up in the lobby of the Fine Arts Building for those interested in membership or doing volunteer work, Bassett said.

Memberships are also on sale at The Artful Dodger on Adams Street, Co-op Books and Records on West Tennessee Street and Phoenix Holding Company on West College Street.

Persons interested in the Co-op should contact Debbie Gaventa (224-8023), Linda Bassett (576-7287), or Rick Johnson (224-1949).

Security measures taken to reduce thefts in dorms

Due to a large number of thefts and armed robberies during the past two quarters, the Housing Department is taking special security precautions for dormitories throughout.

Side entrances to Smith Hall, for example, are now kept locked and residents and guests must enter through the main lobby and show identification before going into rooms. Similar procedures will start soon in Kellum Hall.

Salley Hall doors leading to the elevators have been re-keyed to allow residents to enter with their keys. No other doors will be open for entrance, and all guests must go through the main lobby.

The laughing was so hard that when Green quizzically asked what was wrong, he got no answer. His face as red as a beet, Green stormed off the field only to have one of the trainers tell him he had his hip pads on backwards.

A Southern boy went to a nearby college his freshman year and went out to the fall baseball practice as a walk-on. He was sitting on the bench when a cry for a third baseman came from the manager. He dashed out there and took his place in the starting field. A smashing grounder came his way shortly and the boy scooped it up charging and firing it over to first base, only to have it land in the fourth row of the rightfield bleachers. # Lewis takes doubleheader win and three straight

Lewis University erupted for four runs in the seventh inning to hand Florida State a 7-5 defeat Sunday after taking the opener of the doubleheader 4-0 on a one-hitter by Tom Brennan.

Steve Verbin's single drove in the first two runs and a sacrifice fly and an error produced two other runs to give the Flyers their sixth victory without a defeat. The Seminoles dropped to 16-15 on the season.

These same two teams will square off in the fourth and final game of the series tonight at 7:30 on the Seminole diamond. Tuesday and Wednesday nights the University of Tampa will come in for two games with the Seminoles.

The Seminoles nearly made a comeback in their half of the seventh inning when Jim Busby followed Randy Davidson's single with a single of his own. Mike Ersey drove home both with another hit, but Windle Higginbotham flew out to end the threat.

The Seminoles dropped the first game of Sunday's doubleheader to Lewis 4-0 on a one-hit shutout by All-NAIA pitcher Brennan. FSU head coach Jack Stallings called Brennan "probably the very best pitcher in collegiate baseball."

The only Tribe hit was by freshman Busby in the first inning that scooted Davidson to third. The right-handed Brennan put out the fire by fanning Jim Foxwell and Carlos Lezcano.

Flyer leftfielder Verbin was responsible for three runs batted in as he connected for a double over the head of Seminole outfielder Mike Givens with the bases loaded. Seminole starter Larry Jones was stuck with the loss and saw his record drop to 2-2 on the season.

The Tribe fell three feet short of victory Saturday against Lewis University when the Flyers' rightfielder speared a Busby blast at the outfield fence with two men on base.

The Seminoles — and Guillermo Bonilla especially — fell apart defensively committing six errors, four by Bonilla. Lewis was credited with only eight earned runs as it battled with the Seminoles time and again, with the lead changing seven times.

Busby and Bonilla had three hits apiece and Jim Foxwell smacked his first home run of the year, a two-run first inning blast.

Reliever Mike Kelly was saddled with his first defeat of the year allowing four runs in that disastrous ninth inning. The two teams had entered the final frame tied at eight. The Seminoles were unable to match Lewis' four runs, coming up one short.

The loss Saturday snapped a three game Seminole winning streak. Danny O'Brien's three hit relief job enabled FSU to hold onto the 4-2 victory. O'Brien, the Tribe's top reliever last year and a starter this year, evened his record at 4-4.

Busby, Foxwell, Bonilla and Higginbotham drove in the Seminole's runs and starter Larry Rothschild and O'Brien held Niagara at bay.

Men win, Ms. lose

Florida State's men's tennis team defeated Flagler College 9-0 Friday in a non-recorded match at the Tully Gym courts.

Charles Diggins topped Doug Potkay in the top singles match 6-4, 6-4. Diggins later teamed with Mike O'Neil to defeat Potkay and Ted Perry in doubles play 6-3, 6-4.

Florida State's women's tennis team was eliminated Friday as the four singles participants and two doubles teams were knocked off by top seeded teams in the Florida State Collegiate Tennis Tournament in Winter Park, Florida.

Mudra studies QB prospects

Florida State University's football squad held its first spring scrimmage Saturday and head coach Darrell Mudra busied himself with trying to find one man out of eight who will grab the Seminole quarterback reins for 1974.

Mudra was pleased with the performances of all eight quarterbacks — most of whom saw limitless playing time — but said that Ron Coppess and Mark Orlando were most impressive.

Coppess, the junior college transfer, hit five of six passes for 62 yards, while Orlando, a starter for several games last year, hit on eight of ten for 135 yards.

The eight quarterbacks completed 23 of 38 passes for 320 yards while most of the action was against the second team defense.

Rudy Thomas, Fred Miller and transfer Steve Hecht led the running backs. Thomas was a seldom used speedster from last year's team, Miller a redshirt who had a solid freshman season for the Tribe, and Hecht is a newcomer Mudra won't say much about except that he is a transfer from somewhere in Alabama.

Laughter, anger motivates Humes

himself mentally or physically. Rarely does the walk-on doubt his own abilities. His greatest fear is that of not being accepted. Being accepted can have its embarrassing moments along the way. Cornell Green of the Dallas Cowboys was a college basketball star. His account of his first day in the Cowboy's camp is a classic. Green came running from the training room onto the practice field. A few of the wily veterans began snickering in Green's way. Within moments, the whole team was on the ground laughing hysterically. The laughing was so hard that when Green quizzically asked what was wrong, he got no answer. His face as red as a beet, Green stormed off the field only to have one of the trainers tell him he had his hip pads on backwards.

But probably the most important to the walk-on is gaining the attention of the coaches. A walk-on needs to be aggressive. He needs to lead cheers and exercises. He needs to hustle. A few prospects happen to catch the eye of the coach by way of unusual circumstances.

A Southern boy went to a nearby college his freshman year and went out to the fall baseball practice as a walk-on. He was sitting on the bench when a cry for a third baseman came from the manager. He dashed out there and took his place in the starting field. A smashing grounder came his way shortly and the boy scooped it up charging and firing it over to first base, only to have it land in the fourth row of the rightfield bleachers. Undaunted, he readied for another opportunity and sure enough, he quickly got his chance. Once again, he charged the ball, scooped it cleanly and fired to first. It never reached to bag as the ball caroomed off the pitcher's head and rolled passively toward the plate. He threw his glove and hurried off the field as quickly as he had trotted on. The coach later called him back and the kid earned a starting berth.

Earl Humes is a special kind of walk-on. After a better than average high school career in Miami, Humes had offers to play football and attend college at Duke, Columbia and Wake Forest. Unsure of the academic grind at any major university, he decided to forego football and enroll at Florida State University.

As a freshman on the Tallahassee campus, he felt the football-playing urge stir up inside him as Gary Huff passed footballs through the fall breeze and took the Seminoles to a Fiesta Bowl berth. That winter (1972), Earl went to the coaches and asked to try out. After receiving the confirmation, Humes happened through the weight room on his way back to campus and there he received the motivation that would fuel his drives to winning a spot on the squad.

Humes tells the story like this: "I walked into the weight room with my street clothes on — loafers, a baggy pair of street pants and all 155 pounds of bones. Three guys were in the room when I walked in, they glanced over at me. After staring across at each other for a while, the three of them broke into spontaneous laughter. I was so mad right then that I vowed there would be no way I would not make this team."

It takes more than some aggravating incident to drive a player beyond that point at which he normally performs. Then again, Humes was no ordinary athlete. "Humes is fast," remarked a fellow player at the time he walked on. "His quickness distinguished him from the fifteen other guys who tried out."

Something else must have distinguished Earl from the rest of the walk-ons. The green card signifying third team defense and carrying Humes' name was changed to a red card the second day of practice. The second team position is where Earl would eventually wind up — second string behind Eddie McMillan, who became an outstanding rookie cornerback for the Los Angeles Rams. "I know you won't believe this," Humes says. "But things were not as easy as they sound. There were many times when I wanted to quit. The pressures I put upon myself were starting to drag me down. I knew that if I didn't smile some times when I didn't want to, I would

Energy Crisis? Use More Coal...

There is no way the oil supply is going to stay up with the demands was the flat prediction of one of the top officials of the Federal Energy Office speaking at Florida State. He said the immediate solution is coal.

"We're just going to have to push for proper usage of fuels," said James Gill, director of the FEO Program and Allocation Policy Office in Washington, D.C., as he brought to a conclusion a three-day symposium on energy problems and prospects.

"There is an energy shortage," said Gill, "there's no doubt about it. The short-term answer is more use of coal while in the future we'll have to look to more exotic fuels."

Calling the American public "resilient," Gill, who has been in Washington only nine months, stressed conservation of energy and added that the results so far have been encouraging.

Gill stated that the United States presently gets about one-third of its oil supply from overseas. "And at this point," he said, "we simply can't meet the demand. Thus, the reason for the allocation policy."

Of primary concern to the government when the shortage came about, Gill said, was that industry keep moving. The problem posed to his office was to implement a program of allocation that would be fair and equitable to everyone. And implementation has been a big problem mainly because there was a re-education problem as far as the public was concerned. Another problem was to give everyone his fair share.

Granted, Gill said, everyone hasn't received his fair share. However, the program that is in effect presently is being revised constantly.

In referring to the gasoline situation, Gill said that the country isn't in bad shape although he doesn't expect the price to get much lower. "This is because the Arab nations are setting the world price on crude oil," he said. "And, because their prices are higher, ours will be too."

Wednesday's speakers, Paula Hawkins of the Florida Public Service Commission and Rep. Kenneth "Buddy" MacKay (D-Ocala), agreed there's only one solution to the energy crisis: conservation.

Both Florida politicians stated that in the past, Americans have been wasteful with energy. Commissioner Hawkins stated that we've been "spoiled and don't want to give anything up . . . and that's great because it will put pressure on American technology to develop new energy techniques. In the meantime, though, we'll just have to sacrifice."

MacKay, co-chairman of the Florida Energy Committee, said there are two variables to energy — supply and demand. "While the federal government believes that the only answer to the problem is to increase the supply by drilling more and just opening the values," he said, "the immediate solution is to adjust the demand."

Both speakers addressed themselves to the rate structure of electric bills as a means of conserving energy. Under the current structure which, they admitted, is geared to the past, the more one uses, the less one pays.

MacKay suggested three alternatives: an inverted rate structure system, which charges more for greater use, a flat rate which doesn't change, or a peak load system, which charges more for electric use during peak hours.

His favorite, though, would allocate increased cost in electricity to those who are causing it (companies and individuals moving to Florida).

Mrs. Hawkins, who feels that the crisis will be over by the 1980s or 90s, thinks that it's the Legislature's responsibility to repeal unnecessary taxes on electric bills. "The one the Legislature put on is the one they can take off the fastest," she said, "and that's the corporate profits tax."

The commissioner also suggested that the Legislature needs good insulation standards passed. "Utility companies should get into the insulation business," she said. "They could insulate older homes and simply put the cost for it on the consumers' bills. This could save 20 percent on fuel bills."

MacKay stated that people's priorities in Florida are changing. "People," he said, "are ahead of politicians in their desire to come to grips with the problems of energy and growth facing Florida today."

On Tuesday, the opening night of the symposium, William J. Staten, vice president of administration for Offshore Power Company in Jacksonville, said that nuclear power plants are the answer for the future, but that the time frame between using up our present supplies and finding new ones for the future is growing shorter all the time.

Staten cited several statistics in making his point. "If the United States continues to use its power sources at the rate it is today," he said, "it will run out of oil in 31 years, natural gas in 24 and coal in 2,700."

He explained that the floating offshore plants seem to be the feasible answer. However, he continued, his company will not be able to produce the number of plants required to meet the demands of the country in the next ten years. He did point out, however, in showing the capabilities of nuclear plants that only two offshore plants could do the job that it now takes the entire system in Jacksonville to do.

Staten also pointed out that the plants will not affect ocean life, that there will be no harmful effects from radioactive materials escaping and that the maximum security measures will be taken.

Following Staten to the podium was Dr. Philip E. Sorensen, associate professor of economics at Florida State.

News You Can Use

The second in a series of seminars with FSU's Writer-in-Residence Ambassador Edward R. Braithwaite will be held today, Monday, April 8, from 2-4 p.m. in Room 216 of the FSU Education Building. He will discuss his book "Reluctant Neighbors."

All FSU and FAMU faculty and students are invited. Refreshments will be served.

The FSU Chapter of the American Home Economics Association will present Dr. M.B. Greenfield, FAMU professor of chemistry and physics who specializes in energy problems speaking on "Energy Shortages and the Future." The meeting, which is open to the public, will be at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, April 9, in the Sandels Building Lounge.

Comedian and political activist Dick Gregory will speak at Florida State Thursday, April 11, as a guest of the University Lecture Series.

Gregory will speak at 8:30 p.m. in Ruby Diamond Auditorium. His lecture is free and open to the public. Gregory is an entertainer, recording artist and a prolific writer in the field of politics and civil rights.

ave to quit." Humes suggests that it may not have been his athletic ability that kept him going, but his determination and enthusiasm for the game. "If you think all walk-ons get a fair chance, you're wrong. It all depends on your attitude. I was lucky, but I was the only one who made it through."

"The off-season program my first year was the hardest thing in my life. When it was over and the coaches wanted to talk to me, I knew exactly what they wanted. They don't call you in to tell you that they are going to drop you. They find other ways of getting rid of you."

The coaches told Humes that he was going to be invited back for spring practice. His reaction was one that surprised the coaches.

"I guess I didn't look as excited as I should have. But, I asked them about a scholarship and they kept putting me off. I was beginning to get wary of the whole thing. Don't get me wrong though, I was still on cloud nine about the possibility of playing, and playing college football was still a motivating factor."

The motivating factor for each walk-on varies. For many, it is challenging — the recurrent dreams that reach a point of haunting and daring a person beyond his realistic capabilities. For others, it is much more subtle such as coming from an unknown school, being an unknown yourself, being blacklisted or coming back from an injury.

For Earl Humes, it was different. "I put enormous pressures on myself that year — pressures that almost forced me to quit. I saw a golden opportunity for me to relieve the financial burden of a college education my parents were encountering. Also there is the glamour and recognition of college football. It is logical to feel the standards attached to college football when compared to high school football just as one feels the pride of playing pro football as compared to college football. There are few people who do play and it is a challenge to compete. There is also the challenge of trying and another success story to relate to your kids. These are the beautiful ones. But, most of all, I don't think I was ready mentally to give up playing football."

But, most of all, I don't think I was ready mentally to give up playing football."

The mental agonies encountered by a walk-on are not nearly commensurate to those of a scholarship player. There is little constant worry of being run off, of not getting as good a look as scholarship players, and the superior attitude taken by most scholarship players. Humes feels there is even more to it than that.

"I used to hate going out to practice and working my tail off just as the other guys did and then having them go home to the players' dormitory while I had to go to the one I lived in. It was a very frustrating adjustment."

In the movies as in the books, there is always a place where the "stars" hang out. The players' dormitory is all of that and more. You don't just hang out there, you live there. If not in physical beauty or not in stature, to the walk-on the players' dorm is a most beautiful edifice for what it stands for and for whom it houses. It is the home of what he strives to be a part of. "The day I moved into Cash Hall," Humes said, "was the day I knew I was a Florida State University football player."

From there, the stories are remarkably similar. The walk-on becomes another bench sitter or specialty-team man. To the few who are truly sleepers, there is attention.

Earl Humes will never fit either of these categories. He is too determined not to play regularly and there is something more important in his life than attention. Something that is more important than football. "I credit everything that I have and that has happened to me to my Christian environment. Christianity dominates my life. It keeps me doing the things I want to do, the things that are good for me."

Earl Humes is more than a walk-on. Earl Humes is a special kind of man.

Osceola wins basketball All-campus

Joe Mitock and Alex 'Bluebird' Holcomb combined for 31 points to pace Osceola Hall to a protested All-Campus basketball championship over Phi Delta Theta, 39-37 in overtime.

Mitock threaded the nets for 16 and Holcomb, a former Seminole freshman player, added 15. Seminole grizzer Mike Allen led the Phi Dels with 12 points.

The game was protested by the Phi Dels when the overtime period was called after only three minutes of play. Intramural rules state that a championship overtime shall go five minutes.

Intramural officials were expressed the opinion that replaying the entire game, nor would it be fair to drag all the guys over the Tully to finish two minutes of a game.

Osceola had reached the final round by defeating BSU 5 rather handily. Mitock and Holcomb led the 48-16 romp with 14 points apiece. Paul Wiley added nine.

The Phi Dels had somewhat of a tougher time against dorm champion Landis 4th West. Led by Brad Fitzgerald, the dorm dwellers came from 11 points down in the first half to close the margin to four points at halftime.

Some of the best college Students are veterans.

If you are working toward a baccalaureate or an advanced degree, you can get financial help while in the Army. Or after. Today's Army pays 75% of your tuition while in the service. And when you successfully complete your enlistment, you'll get 36 months of financial assistance at the college of your choice.

You can enlist for as little as two years with your choice of travel to Europe or job training. Your starting pay is $326 a month. A salary that goes a long way when you consider meals, housing, clothing, medical and dental care are all free.

If you're serious about continuing your education, today's Army is behind you. See your local Army representative or call toll-free 1-800-523-4800.

The World's Greatest Summer School

Appalachian State University has the WORLD'S GREATEST summer school. That's quite a claim to make, but it's true. Appalachian thinks that summer school is just as important as any other quarter of the year, and they back it up with a special curriculum. There are courses, workshops, seminars and other short courses to fit your schedule. An excellent faculty makes the courses worth taking. There are one-week, two-week, four-week and six-week courses. The courses include some 66 special workshops dealing with what's happening in the world, specifically designed to deal with trends and new technology, including courses not offered during the rest of the academic year. If you're saying, "Sure, every university has summer courses, that's true, but no other university can offer the bonus of Daniel Boone Country, the most popular recreation area in the East. ASU is located in the heart of this beautiful, unspoiled area. Then you find the Appalachian Trail, the Blue Ridge Parkway, golf courses, majestic mountains, quiet streams, family tourist attractions, the leading craftsmen and artists in the country and an average summertime temperature of 65 degrees. There's even a day camp for children. Let us tell you more. Just fill out, cut out and send in the request form below. We'll rush back information on the summer school at Appalachian State University, the Cool School.

In its traditional role of trying to protect the integrity of the Bill of Rights, the American Civil Liberties Union is currently formulating plans to affect over 100 bills this year's legislative session.

Heading the list of bills the ACLU opposes is the anti-hitchhiking bill currently in the House Rules Committee.

"We feel this would violate a person's freedom of choice and right to travel," Tommy Warren, ACLU lobbyist, said.

ORLANDO (UPI)

Despite warnings from University Presidents it could be "courting chaos," the Florida Board of Regents voted yesterday to overhaul student registration fees at state-operated colleges and universities.

Reacting to charges of "phantom credit hours" and enrollment padding, the Board recommended that students be charged fees according to the number of credit hours they take instead of paying a flat rate per quarter to attend Florida schools.

In unrelated matters, the Regents also took the first step toward abolishing 13 degree programs because of lack of student interest, denied use of campus facilities to student organizations which illegally discriminate on the basis of race, religion or sex, and agreed to grant a leave of absence to a Florida A & M University professor told earlier he would have to resign to run for the legislature.

University Chancellor Robert Mautz said the new fee schedule was one of a number of steps taken to "insure the integrity" of the University System budgeting process since a Legislative Committee brought to light incidents of professors encouraging students to sign up for more courses than they actually were taking in order to boost course enrollment.

Mautz said he had found evidence of "such phantom credit hours" at Florida State, where the original incident was discovered, as well as at other institutions. State-operated schools are given state money

ACLU works to influence legislation outcome

BY HENRI CAWTHON

In its traditional role of trying to "maintain the integrity of the Bill of Rights," the American Civil Liberties Union (ACLU) is formulating plans to affect over 100 bills during this year's legislative session.

Heading the list of bills the ACLU will oppose is the anti-hitchhiking proposal, currently in the House Rules Committee.

"We feel this would violate a person's basic freedom of choice and right to travel," said Tommy Warren, ACLU lobbyist.

"We're confident the bill doesn't have enough support in either the House or the Senate," Warren said.

The ACLU has already experienced success in its support of a bill that would ban pay toilets. "This bill would also give the less fortunate a basic constitutional right," Warren said. The bill passed the Senate last week and is scheduled for consideration by the House Judiciary Committee.

A private organization with chapters in each state, the ACLU was founded some 50 years ago by such notables as Supreme Court Justice Felix Frankfurter and author Helen Keller.

The following bills have also gained the full attention of ACLU lobbyists: a proposal to allow police officers to call in for oral search warrants; the legal prevention of sodomy between consenting adults; an authorization for the possible segregation of prisoners; a proposal which would make profanity illegal; and a bill to allow open prayer in schools.

Monday, a House Education subcommittee passed a bill giving schools the option of having one-minute daily prayers. Warren had testified before the subcommittee, reminding them that the U.S. Supreme Court has ruled against mandatory prayer in schools.

The ACLU is strongly in favor of these civil rights bills: the removal of restrictions on the political activities of government employees; a proposal that would prohibit employers from asking for arrest records; the restoration of basic civil rights to ex-convicts; a bill to allow married women to change their names; and a requirement for broader dissemination of birth control information.

Senator Kenneth Myers of Miami filed a bill which would give released convicts voting and other rights. The bill is scheduled for a vote in the Criminal Justice Committee, of which Myers is a member.

A bill sponsored by Miami Representative Elaine Gordon would prohibit employers not associated with law enforcement from asking for an applicant's arrest record. This bill is currently in the Health and Rehabilitative Services (HRS) Committee of the House.

The proposal requiring more birth control information to be distributed to potential mothers is Senator Jack Gordon's bill and it is waiting for consideration by the Senate HRS Committee.

BOR adopts overhaul of student registration fees

ORLANDO (UPI) — Despite warnings from University Presidents it could be "courting chaos," the Florida Board of Regents voted yesterday to overhaul student registration fees at state-operated colleges and universities.

Reacting to charges of "phantom credit hours" and enrollment padding, the Board recommended that students be charged fees according to the number of credit hours they take instead of paying a flat rate per quarter to attend Florida schools.

In unrelated matters, the Regents also took the first step toward abolishing 13 degree programs because of lack of student interest, denied use of campus facilities to student organizations which illegally discriminate on the basis of race, religion or sex, and agreed to grant a leave of absence to a Florida A & M University professor told earlier he would have to resign to run for the legislature.

University Chancellor Robert Mautz said the new fee schedule was one of a number of steps taken to "insure the integrity" of the University System budgeting process since a Legislative Committee brought to light incidents of professors encouraging students to sign up for more courses than they actually were taking in order to boost course enrollment.

Mautz said he had found evidence of "such phantom credit hours" at Florida State, where the original incident was discovered, as well as at other institutions. State-operated schools are given state money

The recommended new fee system may cost students even more for the same services they receive under the old plan. Some officials say students will now be required to pay $20 per quarter for the use of the University Health Center. In addition, the Activities & Service Fee of $34.50 per student will not be re-computed to account for differences in student registration fees.

on the basis of enrollment.

"I was appalled by this apparent effort to subvert the fundamental philosophy which is the basis of legislative appropriations to the State University System," Mautz said.

J.J. Daniel, Chairman of the Board's Finance Committee, added that "I view with great shock and alarm the attack on the integrity of the budgeting system."

Despite opposition from the State Council of Student Body Presidents as well as several University Presidents, the Board recommended that undergraduate students be charged $13 per credit hour and graduate students $16.50 an hour. At present, undergraduates pay a flat rate of $190 per quarter while graduate students pay $240.

An undergrad taking a normal course load of 15 hours would pay $5 more per quarter under the new schedule while graduates, who normally carry about 12 hours, would be charged less than at present.

Dr. E.T. York, Interim President of the University of Florida, sounded the warning that under the new fee system students may be discouraged from taking more courses — and there would be a corresponding drop in revenue.

"The threat of a net reduction in income could be extremely serious," he said.

"I think we are courting chaos on a very large scale," said Dr. Stanley Marshall, President of FSU.

Marshall earlier denied before the board there had been any enrollment padding at his school but said he had launched an investigation of the reports which came before the Legislative Committee.

The Regents granted a leave of absence to Dr. Charles U. Smith of Florida A & M, who wants to run for a seat in the state legislature. This modifies a ruling earlier by Mautz that he would have to resign to run. The Regents said, however, this should not be considered precedent-setting and that other state university faculty members seeking political posts would have to go before the board.

On the inside looking out . . .

. . . is the best way to watch an early example of what Tallahassee summers have to offer in the way of thunderstorms. Lightning, thunder and heavy rain put a definitive end to the balmy weather of the weekend yesterday.

Special task force formed

Visitation case still unresolved

BY MIKE BRENNAN

The controversial court case of student Gary Goldacker will not be resolved until a recommendation is issued by a special task force which has been created to study the situation, according to Vice President for Student Educational Services Stephen McClellan.

McClellan said that he would not make a ruling on the case until the task force made a complete study of all the factors involved in the case.

Goldacker, who was charged with a visitation violation resulting from the Deviney Hall sit-in last February, started a chain of judicial actions when he requested a hearing before the Student Supreme Court. Goldacker maintained that the Student Government Constitution guaranteed a hearing before the Student Supreme Court if such a hearing was desired by a student.

The Student Court, however, ruled that Goldacker would have to exhaust all administrative channels open to him before he would be granted a trial before the Court. Goldacker then submitted to an administrative hearing before the area coordinator in the Office of Resident Student Development Chat Sue. Sue found Goldacker guilty of the violation and sentenced him to a one-week suspension of visitation privileges in Deviney Hall.

Goldacker's legal counsel Roger Coe then petitioned the Student Court for a hearing and was granted a trial de novo, or from the beginning, by the Court.

Meanwhile Vice President Stephen McClellan issued a memorandum to Supreme Court Chief Justice John Fleming saying that the Student Courts had no jurisdiction in the case and that the Student Government Constitution was in error. Fleming and the Court disregarded the memorandum, because it was not an official document, and proceeded to try Goldacker.

The Student Supreme Court found Goldacker innocent of the charge, making it necessary for the special task force to be created in order to resolve the conflict between the university verdict and the Student Court verdict.

Coe said he had no knowledge of the task force and could not see how its recommendation would be relevant to Goldacker's case.

Adams a possibility to run against Askew

A source close to Lt. Gov. Tom Adams said Monday he looks for Adams to announce shortly that he will run for governor against Gov. Reubin Askew.

A possible announcement date is April 15, although that has not been finally set, another source said.

"If he expects to have a political future, that is the only thing he can do," said the source, who asked not to be quoted.

It made sense for Adams to run for Secretary of State a month ago — before personable, young and unscarred Sen. Bruce Smathers, D-Jacksonville, plunged into that campaign.

And that was what Adams, who served as Secretary of State for 10 years before Askew tapped him as his 1970 running mate, had intended to do.

After Smathers — son of former U.S. Sen. George Smathers — took the plunge, friends say it would be difficult for Adams, who was censured by the House and dropped from the Askew ticket for 1974 after being charged with using state employees for his personal benefit, to wage a campaign.

There are deeper issues which Adams can bring up in opposing Governor Askew, friends say.

Impartialism promised if Senate tries Nixon

WASHINGTON — Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield promised Monday there would be "nothing in the way of hanky panky" if the Senate tries President Nixon on impeachment charges.

Mansfield took the floor to express concern over recent polls and reports speculating about whether the House will vote to impeach Nixon and whether the Senate will vote to convict and remove him from office.

"If and when the issue comes to the Senate, there will be as little partisanship as possible — as far as I am concerned, there will be none," he said. "The Senate itself will be on trial."

"All this is being bruited about before the issue is directly presented, either to the House or to the Senate in any constitutional form. . . ." He said.

"In my opinion, no one really knows if the votes are there. Certainly I do not and no one will know until and unless a vote is taken on the issue involved."

Mansfield told reporters last week he had been informed by members of the House — whom he would not mention — that "the votes are there" to impeach Nixon. But Monday Mansfield said "if and when" the House votes to impeach, the Senate would conduct a trial on the charges in a manner "as impartial and nonpartisan as possible."

Nixon signs wage bill

WASHINGTON — President Nixon signed legislation Monday raising the minimum wage in three steps from the current $1.60 to $2.30 an hour and extending its coverage to domestic servants and governmental employees.

It will be raised to $2 an hour May 1, to $2.10 an hour Jan. 1, 1975, and to $2.30 an hour Jan. 1, 1976.

Approving a bill almost identical to one he vetoed only seven months ago, Nixon included in minimum wage coverage for the first time domestic service employees, with the exception of baby sitters and paid companions, all state and local government workers and to retail service workers employed by chain stores.

Environment concerns Floridians

(UPI) — Florida voters are more concerned about the environment and over-population than they are about the rising price of food, corruption or jobs, a new survey by a National Research Firm disclosed Monday.

Tourism has dramatically declined as a high priority among Floridians, according to the survey.

The survey, which environmentalists said they hope legislators and others running in this year's elections will heed — showed that a surprising number of the 600 voters interviewed favor such drastic measures as a state take-over of environmentally-endangered lands, making new residents pay for the added expenses they cause, special tax breaks to encourage farmers to keep their land out of urban and commercial development and limiting growth of an area to the number of people its natural resources can handle and mandatory comprehensive planning in each county.

A majority of those interviewed by the highly-respected Cambridge Survey Research Firm of Cambridge, Mass., said they were willing to go along with oil drilling off Florida's shores, as long as steps were taken to protect the beaches against damage. Patrick Caddell, the firm's president, said the cross-section of voters were questioned solely as to statewide and not national concerns. He said he was surprised by the low percentage of voters concerned about corruption, indicating only a slight spillover from the Watergate scandals.

Caddell, whose firm has made similar studies for 46 states, said he was "startled" that the concern for the environment in Florida far outstrips that of other states, including Oregon, Colorado and California.

And, he said, it has developed just over the past 1972, he said, the top few years. Back in 1970 and were schools and taxes

British Airways invites you to camp out. Far out.

All over Europe, in fact. Because it's the nicest, cheapest way there is to see it.

Imagine, for instance, seeing Britain, Holland, France, Italy, Spain, Germany, Switzerland, Austria, Norway, Sweden, Denmark, Russia, etc. At camping trip prices.

We have 8 combinations of countries to choose from. But before we tell you the where, read about the how. And the whom with.

You go in a bus. A tough little bus that, with equal ease, can barrel down the highways or snake its way through the fascinating back streets you'd never see otherwise. It comes with complete camping gear (except sleeping bags) and it's wired for sound. The better to hear the rock tapes with.

It also comes with a driver who really knows his way around. Knows where the sights are. And where the campsites are. Though you live in a tent, they're really little villages in themselves with hot and cold running everything—shops, restaurants, and discos. They're as likely to be on the grounds of a chateau as on a seashore among the olive trees.

As for the who, it'll be a bunch (somewhere between 18 to 35 people) of 18 to 30-year-olds as wide open to adventure as you. Varied, flexible, fun-loving types from all over.

Our trips can run as long as 9 weeks, as short as 3. Here are two of our most popular:

Europa, 6 weeks, $366 plus airfare

Belgium, Holland, Germany, Switzerland, Austria, Italy, Spain, Andorra, France. 1974 departures: April 1, 24, May 17; June 9, 25; July 2, 26, Aug. 17, Sept. 9.

Cossack, 5 weeks, $332 plus airfare

Russia, Poland, East and West Germany, Finland, Sweden, Norway, Denmark, Holland, Belgium. 1974 departures: May 20, June 27, August 5.

Levine had mailed advertisements which promised that swallowing 18 drops daily of the potion would be "the magic key to unlock the treasure chest of legendary aphrodisiacs. . . a sexual fountain of youth."

According to federal prosecutors, Levine was part of a nationwide ring said to have grossed more than $13 million a year selling phony sex potions.

Ranked in top 5% of college papers

ACP judges award Flambeau highest rating

Florida State University had received yesterday from the Associated Collegiate Press (ACP), an organization comprised of hundreds of college newspapers.

ACP's judges awarded The Flambeau 3660 out of a possible 4000 points, thus placing the independent FSU daily in the top five percent of college papers. The ranking was based on The Flambeau's fall 1973 issues.

This is the first time that The Flambeau has achieved the ACP's highest rating since going daily in 1962.

"Being ranked in the top five percent of the collegiate newspapers in the country is no small accomplishment," said Tom Kirwan, who served as Flambeau editor during the fall quarter.

"The staff worked hard and I think the honor is well-deserved. This only solidifies our contention that The Flambeau deserves to stay another year on campus," Kirwan said.

"The FSU administration has repeatedly criticized The Flambeau for 'shoddy journalism.' I believe they have confused constructive criticism of their own actions with yellow journalism," Kirwan added.

"In my mind, this award is sound, objective proof that the Flambeau is a high quality and responsible newspaper," Kirwan said.

Davis Whiteman, current Flambeau editor, agreed.

"The All-American rating shows The Flambeau is not a bad newspaper, as some people have charged," Whiteman said.

"Tom Kirwan and the staff deserve a great deal of the credit," Whiteman said. "We hope to be able to continue The Flambeau on the same high level of journalism."

In rating The Flambeau "All-American," the ACP judges singled out the newspaper's content and coverage, writing and editing, physical appearance and photography as "marks of distinction."

"Your staff 'digs' and comes up with paydirt," an ACP judge said. "I like the alertness for what I call the 'ombudsman-type' story."

Commenting on the writing and editing, another judge noted that "your leads are easy to read and tell the story in summary with use of interest words. 'Bravo' for clean, crisp writing and organization. I like those short sentences that snap."

Flambeau editorials were also singled out for praise.

"Your choice of words and phrasing are effective. Simple, good English, not pedantic, nor over-burdened with 'editorial-ese,'" the judges said.

ACP was also pleased with the physical appearance of The Flambeau.

"Your front page has a distinctive personality, yet maintains variety. Good layout work below the fold," judges said. "Good use of head type faces. You are creating a nice variety of heads, especially those feature heads."

In summary, Judge G.D. Hiebert wrote, "I like your aggressive, probing coverage. Your writers seem to reflect good mastery of news-feature writing. Your physical appearance is not 'way out,' but is eye-appealing just the same. It still looks like a newspaper. The photography displays good techniques."

"Total score 3660. Honor Rating: All-American."

A RAPE CRISIS Service Retreat will be held this weekend at the Seminole Reservation. All interested persons should contact the Telephone Counseling Service at 599-2202.

FSU'S COLLEGE REPUBLICAN Club will meet at 8 p.m. in Room 246 Union. New members are welcome, according to club spokesmen.

CPE BEGINNING PHOTOGRAPHY class will meet tonight at 7 in the Women's Center (Bldg. 216 Mabry Heights). This is the first meeting of the quarter.

THE CPE COMMUNITY POTTERY Edu-group will meet tonight at 7 p.m. at the FSU Dairy Farm, Bldg. 56. Cost for the class is a $5-10 fee, plus ten cents per pound charge for clay. Clay is available at the class.

FORMER YUGOSLAVIAN Olympic coach Gojko Arneri will give a water polo clinic today at the Union Pool at 3 p.m. Swimming coach Terry Carlisle urges all interested students to attend.

Legislature to set time for ERA on calendar

The Equal Rights Amendment (ERA) is scheduled to go before the Senate Rules Committee this morning. The Rules Committee will determine what slot the ERA will occupy on the legislative agenda of bills to be considered during this session.

According to a spokesperson for Miami Representative Elaine Gordon, introducer of the ERA in the Florida Legislature, the ERA could reach the Senate floor today, and if not today, then should definitely be under Senate consideration by the week's end.

The ERA, if passed, will affect a number of state laws including: social security benefits, homestead exemptions and divorce and alimony laws.

Passion potion poops out

(ZNS) A Brooklyn businessman, who made thousands of dollars by selling a love potion that promised men "bridegroom strength" in the bedroom, has pleaded guilty to fraud charges.

Stanley Levine admitted to selling a harmless chemical which he had billed as "European Love Drops 5." Levine had mailed advertisements which promised that swallowing 18 drops daily of the potion would be "the magic key to unlock the treasure chest of legendary aphrodisiacs... a sexual fountain of youth."

According to federal prosecutors, Levine was part of a nationwide ring said to have grossed more than $13 million a year selling phony sex potions.

Levine's ad had claimed that European men taking daily doses of the drops "reported miracle rejuvenation... bridegroom strength... and word reached American shores."

Unfortunately for Levine, word also reached federal prosecutors.

Students show support

Thus far an estimated 8,000 students, faculty and staff have signed petitions indicating their support for the Flambeau in its struggle to remain on campus.

Debby Alley, member of Student Government and coordinator of the petition drive, said that "the drive will probably be wrapped up by Wednesday if we reach the 10,000 signature goal we're aiming for."

At a meeting in the Union yesterday petition workers decided to carry the plea for support to the Doobie Brothers concert and the FSU baseball game Wednesday night.

"It's getting increasingly difficult to gather signatures on campus because at least 90 percent of the people going by our tables have already signed," Alley said. "That is why we've decided to take the drive off-campus."

Any petition workers possessing completed petitions are requested to turn them in before Wednesday to either the Flambeau offices of the Student Government offices in the Union.

As if VD isn't bad enough, ...

(ZNS) If you ever come down with a venereal disease in the Soviet Union, just keep it to yourself.

Believe it or not, it's a crime in Russia to catch VD and it's even more serious to spread it around.

In the Soviet region of Georgia, for instance, any person diagnosed with VD there can get two years in prison. And anyone convicted of spreading it to a minor or to more than two other people can end up in the slammer for five years.

Keep on signing

For the past week, both Student Government officials and Flambeau staffers have canvassed the university community seeking signatures for a petition which hopefully will aid the Flambeau in its attempts to stay on campus.

Since the Flambeau was abruptly made independent over a year and a half ago, its status on campus has been tenuous to say the least.

Even though the administration has not made any recent overt efforts to eradicate the Flambeau outright, they have made it quite clear that they do not appreciate the paper's current position in the Union. It was learned to no one's surprise yesterday that both Athletic Director John Bridgers and Vice President for Student Educational Services Steven McClellan refused to sign the petition.

However, the Flambeau General Manager Charles Tunncliff, who has been negotiating with the administration, is confident that the Flambeau will remain on campus for at least another year.

Where on campus has not yet been decided. As Tunncliff pointed out, even the FSU Dairy Farm is considered to be part of campus.

Presently, there are two plans before the administration concerning space for the Flambeau. One plan would see the production unit, which is now located behind Suwanee Arcade, and the staff situated on the third floor of the Union. The implementation of this plan would cut the Flambeau's floor space from 2252 square feet to 1700 square feet and would require the paper to pay rent of between $5,100 and $6,800 a year.

While this plan has not yet been definitely rejected, Tunncliff says he does not think the administration will accept it.

The second plan would allow the Flambeau to keep four rooms in the Union for production and advertising but would move the news staff to either the recently vacated credit union building or to one of the old houses which surround the campus. Tunncliff says this plan has a greater chance of being approved by the administration but that different variations of the two proposals are still being explored.

Despite this somewhat encouraging news, it is still of utmost importance that students and faculty members show their support of the Flambeau by signing the petitions. Over 8,000 signatures have already been secured and each additional name should make the administration more hesitant to give the Flambeau inadequate space and facilities.

We would like to thank those of you who have signed the petitions and encourage those of you who have not and wish to see the Flambeau keep functioning at full capacity to do so.

ERA benefits men and women

"Equality of rights under the law shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or any states on account of sex."

The Equal Rights Amendment is nothing new. It was first introduced into Congress in 1923, by Suffragist Alice Paul, on the 75th anniversary of the first Women's Rights Convention in Seneca Falls.

Over half a century later, the ERA has still not been made part of the Constitution, and women who worked in the early women's suffrage movement are still working for equal rights in 1974, like Burnita Shelton Matthews, who drafted the initial Equal Rights Amendment with Alice Paul.

"I think it is preposterous to have any delay on ERA," Matthews said in a recent interview. "When you read some of the things people are saying — they're so afraid of conscription — you feel as if women haven't come as far as they should have. Imagine any group of people refusing equality!"

But 'refusing equality' is exactly what some women are doing, lead by the 'chairman' (yes, you read it right — chairman) of Stop ERA Phyllis Schlafly.

Schlafly has travelled cross-country in her efforts to prevent the ratification of the ERA, leaving behind her thousands of women who are convinced that the ERA will usurp their choice to be housewives, create unisex bathrooms and prisons, send the mothers of two-month old babies to the front lines of some war and legalize rape.

None of this is true. What the ERA will do is remove sex as a determining factor in the legal rights of both men and women. Note that there is no specific reference to 'women' in the amendment. The ERA will provide equal rights for all people.

Once the ERA is passed, a law restricting the rights of any person, male or female, will no longer be valid; and if a law specifically protects the rights of women, that protection will probably be extended to the rights of men as well.

Opponents of the ERA have been aiming a disproportionate amount of venom at the 'draft' argument, creating a lurid mental image of young mothers floundering in the rice paddy under the weight of an M-1 rifle.

Congress has always had the right to draft women. If there is another draft, both men and women would register, but all women would not be required to serve, just as all men are not required to serve. Women would be subject to the same draft deferments as men, and receive the same federal benefits if they serve in the armed forces.

In any event, this scare tactic employed by the anti-ERA forces is irrelevant. There is no draft now, yet ERA opponents

GUEST COLUMN

By Clare Raulerson

seem so accustomed to a perpetual state of U.S. involvement in some war that they are predicting a return to a "national emergency" at any moment.

What the ERA will do is grant a $500 Homestead Exemption to widowers as well as widows; change the criminal statutes that prohibit the rape of a woman but not a man; change three labor statutes that require a woman to be older than a man to hold a certain job; void the law that makes it a felony for a man to desert his wife, but has no sanction against a woman deserting her husband; and change the provision allowing the woman to sue for support in a divorce case but does not allow a man to do so.

The passage of the ERA will not result in the dissolution of the family or the de-feminization of women; it will sanction the equal treatment of men and women by law.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Hypocrites

Editor:

Do you remember before you grew up how secure you felt because your parents looked after you and made all of your decisions for your own good?

But, if you told them they were wrong about something or refused to obey their wishes, they would reprimand you, sometimes to the extent of spanking. However they must have had the foresight to encourage you to go to college so you might act in a responsible and well meaning manner as they did.

It seems to me that now, equipped with mental muscle absorbed through a university environment, we ought to give them a return on their investment — by pointing out and rectifying some of the shortcomings conceived by their generation, many times due to misconceptions and false information. I think we ought to confront them and discuss intelligently some, in my opinion, inconsistencies with a genuine interest in a truly better society.

They could do only one of two things. Respect you as the rational, responsible offspring they have nurtured, which is a tribute to any respectable, patriotic citizen. Or they could spank you.

Hypocrites — back in your hole.

Phi Mu

Plays Brahms

The Florida State University chapter of Phi Mu Alpha Sinfonia professional music fraternity will present "An Evening of Brahms," tonight at 8:15 in Opperman Music Hall.

The concert, featuring Florida State music faculty members and guest artists, will benefit the Richard Burgin Scholarship fund. Admission will be $1 for students and $3 for non-students.

Phi Mu Alpha uses the fund to provide a scholarship each year for a Florida State music student. The current recipient of the Burgin Scholarship Award is Scott Holshouser, Athens, Ga.

Burgin, a violinist and longtime concertmaster and associate conductor of the Boston Symphony, served as a professor of music at Florida State from 1963 until his retirement in 1972. His wife, violinist Ruth Posselt, is still a member of the Florida State music faculty.

The program will include Brahms' Sonata for Cello and Piano in F major, Opus 99, Liebeslieder Walzer, Opus 52, and Trio for Piano, Violin and Horn, Opus 40.

Among the performers will be faculty members Bruno DeCecco, cello; Phillip Spurgeon, piano; Betty Jane Grimm, contralto; Walter James, tenor; David Wingate, baritone; Edward Kilenyi and James Stroom, piano; John Boda, piano, and students Sarah Rideout, soprano, and Marvin Goldstein, horn.

Burgin will play the violin in the Trio for Piano, Violin and Horn.

There's no easy way for Charlie Nelson to become Dr. Nelson.

But there is a way to make it somewhat easier. Our way. The Armed Forces Health Professions Scholarship Program. It won't soften the demands of your professors, or those you make upon yourself—but it may free you from those financial problems which, understandably, can put a crimp in your concentration.

If you qualify, our scholarship program will cover the costs of your medical education. More, you'll receive a good monthly allowance all through your schooling.

But what happens after you graduate? Then, as a health care officer in the military branch of your choice you enter a professional environment that is challenging, stimulating and satisfying.

An environment which keeps you in contact with practically all medical specialties. Which gives you the time to observe and learn before you decide on your specialty. Which may present the opportunity to train in that specialty. And to practice it.

You may also find some of the most advanced medical achievements happening right where you work. Like at the Brooke Army Medical Center in San Antonio, Texas, long noted for its Burn Treatment Center. Or the home of Flight Medicine, the famed Aerospace Medical Division, also in San Antonio. Or the National Naval Medical Center in Bethesda, Maryland, recognized worldwide for its work in Medical Research.

And if you've read this far, you may be interested in the details. Just send in the coupon and we'll supply them.

Aaron parks 715th

ATLANTA—Hank Aaron became the all-time home run king last night as he hit a 400-foot home run in the fourth inning of the Atlanta Braves, Los Angeles Dodger baseball game.

It was his 715th career blast and came before a screaming crowd of 55,000 and a national television audience.

Aaron broke Babe Ruth's reputedly insurmountable homer record on a high fast ball thrown by Dodger southpaw Al Downing. The count was 1-0 and the time was 9:04 p.m. Eastern Daylight Savings Time.

Wallace charges

(ZNS) Governor George Wallace, in an interview with the Los Angeles Times, says he believes that Arthur Bremer's attempt to assassinate him was part of a conspiracy.

Wallace said that Bremer is described as a loner who rarely made as much as $30 a week. Yet, said the Alabama governor, Bremer somehow obtained enough money to follow him and other candidates around the country, to buy an automobile and to purchase a couple of guns.

When we hired these researchers, we invited them to raise more questions than they answered.

Making your mark in business used to mean carving a comfortable niche for yourself and staying there. Promotion was simply a matter of time, provided you could spend 20 years in the process. But, today, business depends on technology. Technology that can't wait a moment if it's going to keep pace with what's happening.

That's why, at Kodak, our basic reliance on scientific research makes the need for creative young minds more demanding than ever. We must have people with drive and ambition, impatient to put what they've learned into practice. People who get all the freedom and responsibility they can handle, and tackle our problems with their ideas.

Which, we're happy to say, has helped many of our scientists yield important discoveries. For example:

The woman on the left has devised new and improved photographic materials for specialized scientific applications in fields such as astronomy and holography. The young man is an expert on surface analysis. His work in photoelectron spectroscopy helps to identify unknown substances. The woman on the right has a dual background in gas chromatography and trace metal analysis, which she's applied to analyzing pollution in rivers and streams.

They came up with new problems while solving some of our old ones. But they've uncovered some promising answers, too. As they continue their research, you may read about them again. The oldest is just over 30.

Why do we give young men and women so much room to test their ideas? Because good ideas often lead to better products. Which are good for business. And we're in business to make a profit. But in furthering our own business interests, we also further society's interests. Which makes good sense.

After all, our business depends on society. So we care what happens to it.

Kodak.
More than a business.

Aaron controversy blackens baseball power structure

BY BRUCE RABEN

Here we have baseball 1974 and a man chasing the most honored record owned by the most flamboyant swatter ever to play the game, and the owners that rule the game have made it out to be the asinine chase and best example of baseball's archaic thought.

Henry Aaron finished the 1973 baseball season with 713 home runs, leaving the Atlanta slugger one belt away from tying and two from breaking the 714 standard set by Mr. Baseball, Babe Ruth.

And so what happens? The idiots who make up the schedule have the Braves play their first three games on the road and then open at home for an 11-game stand. It would have been too easy for them to have had the Braves open first for the 11 games and then go on the road.

The schedule was not arrived at until after the 1973 season, so there goes one excuse. The schedule was also modified after its original completion when Associated Press cut off its running sheet with an explanation for sports editors to hold, due to league modifications. So, there goes excuse number two.

When you get down to it, there is absolutely no excuse. From the Braves original declaration to Bowie Kuhn's ORDERING of Aaron to play Sunday's game in Cincinnati, this has become the blackest issue to hit baseball in many years.

And why?

Probably because baseball is the most confused game at this juncture in time and is groping for strength in its attempts to appease the sentiments of its public.

Unfortunately, its judgement on issues of the past two years has been blinded by a pompous and weak commissioner trying to regain the power that is inherently his.

and Fritz Peterson wasn't needed nor was it appropriate action for the game to take in an effort to protect the morals of today's youth. And if you need proof, today's sporting heroes are Joe Namath, O.J. Simpson, Henry Aaron and a host of Miami Dolphins—all outspoken in fighting for liberties in their respective games.

Item No. 2 - The Commissioner's ordering of Aaron to play Sunday is in my mind one of the ugliest things to ever originate from sports. He has taken away all the power of the manager, owner and player to decide what is best for the team and in effect, has said "I am the all-fearing god and you will play Henry Aaron so it will look as if the Braves are trying to win." The Braves are going to lose whether Aaron plays or not, and for 20 years, the Braves have lost 18 pennants with Aaron playing, so what difference is the one game going to make?

Besides, the worst thing, Mr. Commissioner, is that Aaron has publicly stated that he wants to hit No. 715 in Atlanta, so who's to say he put out "that full effort" Sunday in Cincinnati.

Joe Camps named Player of Week

Joe Camps has earned defensive player of the week honors after Florida State's initial spring football films were viewed by coaches over the weekend.

The defensive back from Gainesville had five tackles, six assists and picked off one errant pass. Camps nosed out junior college transfer Tony Falvo, senior end Bert Cooper and junior linebacker Greg Pounds.

Falvo, the Seminoles' nose guard, had six tackles and five assists, while Cooper, who who sat out last season after disciplinary action was taken by coaches, accounted for five of each and was the team leader in coming up with the "big play."

Cooper tipped two passes and dropped runners twice for three-yard losses.

Pounds was also signaled out by the coaching staff for his involvement on 14 tackles.

Ed Beckman, sophomore to be, led the offensive honors charge. Beckman was cited for his excellent blocking from the tight end position.

Running back Fred Miller, back from an inactive season due to arm injury, was named the top back of the week edging out Rudy Thomas and Steve Hecht for the award.

Senior Mike Allen was the top receiver.

A bill filed by Senator Jack Gordon would place three university students (BOR) will come before the Senate Friday.

The bill will be third on the agenda of the committee which begins its hearings at the Senate Office building.

"The largest group of unrepresented students," said Gordon, whose bill gives members full voting rights and one-year terms.

A companion bill in the House was introduced by Representative Kenneth Mack.

"There is a need today to increase the responsiveness of the BOR," said Mack. The Education Committee where the bill is being studied has been recommending educational commentators and one woman, MacKay.

The Orlando Sentinel editorially criticized the House Education Committee sources for submitting that would cut the number of students.

At a meeting in Orlando last week, Student Body Presidents (SCSBP) called for high priority for a state-wide lobby. Government President David Aronoff and Pietrzyk are coordinating the efforts.

Senate vote may come today

ERA passes committee

BY LAURIN MARCH

The Equal Rights Amendment (ERA) to the Federal Constitution came before the Florida Senate Rules Committee and was approved in a 10-8 vote yesterday.

The ERA may be presented to the Senate for consideration this morning.

If the ERA failed to pass the Rules Committee, it would have died until the next legislative session.

Sponsor of the amendment, Senator Lori Wilson, reminded the members of the Rules Committee that this "is not a Florida issue, but a U.S. constitutional amendment."

"We are a great progressive state," Wilson said. "Fear of opinion and dread of change will hold us back. We live in an era of change, and it will change regardless."

Robert Shevin, Florida Attorney General, told the committee that "it's hard to believe that the state of Florida never ratified the 19th amendment, giving women the right to vote."

"If we didn't ratify the 19th amendment, let us ratify the ERA, making all persons equal," Shevin said.

Proponent Anna Forbes Lydell, professor emeritus from FSU, who spoke before the Rules Committee, received a standing ovation when she said "one thing all factions fail to realize is that we are all daughters. I have never seen a father who didn't think his girl was superior to the other fellow's boy."

She said that the opponents assume all women have husbands or want to be protected by a man.

"This is the same attitude we found when we were fighting for suffrage," she said. "I'm an old maid. I never had a husband — not mine or anybody else's — and I've had to do the best I could for myself."

Tampa attorney Doris Dudley told the committee that "in the light of existing laws, this proposed amendment is a guarantee that the federal laws will be adhered to. The 14th amendment (to the Federal Constitution) does not seem to apply to women."

"Distinctions are not necessarily discriminations," she added.

Lavern Smith, opponent of the ERA, said that she "wants to protect her son's future role in the family unit."

Another anti-ERA speaker, Harry Melbrook, said that the ERA would be grounds for "a grab of substantial power by the federal government from the state."

"The federal government will not recognize the distinctions between the sexes."

Upon conclusion of the arguments surrounding the ERA, Senator Richard Pettigrew told the Committee that "the past five presidents have endorsed the ERA, as have the majority of the Florida delegation."

The vote ensued, with Senator Bob Saunders casting the key committee vote.

Senator Dempsey Barron, Rules Committee Chairperson, said that he "hopes we'll get to this measure this week, tomorrow or Thursday."

The Senate will convene at 9 a.m. today.

Students-on-BOR bill to meet key vote Friday

BY HENRI CAWTHON

A bill filed by Senator Jack Gordon (D-Miami Beach) which would place three university students on the Board of Regents (BOR) will come before the Senate Education Committee this Friday.

The bill will be third on the agenda for consideration by the committee which begins its hearings at 8:30 a.m. in Room B of the Senate Office building.

"The largest group of unrepresented consumers is the students," said Gordon, whose bill would give student board members full voting rights and one-year terms.

A companion bill in the House will probably be filed this week by Representative Kenneth MacKay (D-Ocala).

"There is a need today to increase the efficiency and responsiveness of the BOR," said MacKay, vice-chairman of the Education Committee where the bill will be referred. "It's a measure that has been recommended by many qualified educational commentators and one with which I agree," added MacKay.

The Orlando Sentinel editorially denounced the bill and House Education Committee sources feel that amendments will be submitted that would cut the number of students to two or one.

At a meeting in Orlando last weekend, the State Council of Student Body Presidents (SCSBP) considered the bill to be of high priority for a state-wide lobbying system. FSU Student Government President David Aronofsky and Vice-President Jan Pietrzyk are coordinating the efforts of FSU student lobbyists.

Elsewhere in the legislature, a bill allowing pharmacists to substitute less expensive drugs for brand name prescriptions passed the House Business Regulation Committee Tuesday.

Introduced by Representative John Forbes (D-Jacksonville), the proposal says that prescription labels shall state the availability of cheaper drugs. A doctor must consent to prescribing substitutes.

A bill banning "Saturday Night Special" hand guns has been rejected by the House Criminal Justice Committee because of "bad wording."

Jurisdiction task force comes under fire from SG representative

BY MIKE BRENNAN

Student Government Attorney General Bill Kuypers charged Vice President for Student Educational Services Stephen McClellan yesterday with "passing the buck" in regard to the Gary Goldacker visitation case.

"I think it is the duty of his office to hand down appellate decisions within a reasonable time after the Student Supreme Court has reached a verdict," said Kuypers.

Kuypers was referring to the task force which has recently been created by McClellan to study the conflicting verdicts in the Goldacker case.

"I don't think the task force has the duty to decide the issues in the Goldacker case for McClellan," Kuypers said.

Roger Coe, who has acted as Goldacker's legal counsel throughout the two month affair, said he knew nothing of the task force and could not see how its recommendation would affect the Goldacker case.

"I don't see what the facts before the task force have to do with Gary's case. The task force recommendation is for something in the future," Coe said.

The committee asked for clarification of the proposed point system which defines the "Saturday Night Special" category. The bill, filed by William Lockward (D-Hialeah), was rejected last week because lawmakers and lobbyists said it was vague.

Richard Earle, chairman of the Judicial Qualifications Commission, argued yesterday for the creation of an independent investigating commission to better research judges' backgrounds. The House Judiciary Committee postponed action on a ruling.

The task force which consists of Kuypers, Student Supreme Court Chief Justice John Fleming, Senate President Apollo Visko, Dr. Jarrett Oeltjen and University Judicial officer John Bonanno, was set up by McClellan after the Student Supreme Court reached a "not guilty" verdict on Goldacker's visitation violation case.

An administrative hearing conducted earlier by the area coordinator in the Office of Resident Student Development, Chat Sue, had found Goldacker guilty of being present in a restricted area after visitation hours were over.

"The task force is supposed to delineate the boundaries of the Student Supreme Court's jurisdiction because there is no agreement between the Student Supreme Court and the administration as to what those boundaries are," Kuypers said.

Senate President Apollo Visko said he was "surprised at the number of students on the committee. 'Yet I am confident the administration will concur with the task force recommendation,'" Visko said.

The task force, which will meet for the first time today, is expected to have a recommendation ready in about a month. However, the findings will be used only to assist McClellan in deciding which of the verdicts will be upheld. Furthermore, it would take a Student Senate amendment to change the current dispute in the Student Government constitution concerning jurisdiction.

Streakers to get 'amnesty'?

FSU President Stanley Marshall is prepared to grant "amnesty" to students who participated in the streaking activities of March 7, 8 and 11, according to an unconfirmed report received by the Flambeau yesterday.

According to the account given by an unidentified student government official, Vice President for Student Educational Services Steve McClellan said at a Lambda Chi Alpha dance Saturday that Marshall was prepared to "give amnesty to the streakers."

McClellan's secretary reported that the vice president was out of town and unavailable for comment. President Marshall's office was unable to confirm or deny the report.

Committee sets May 7 as date*House demos to hear impeachment evidence

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Judiciary Committee's Democratic majority decided Tuesday to begin a hearing on impeachment evidence against President Nixon on May 7, and to invite the President's lawyer to attend the first closed session.

The Democrats caucused on the day the committee, looking into possible grounds for impeachment, had set the deadline for the White House to reply to its demand for 41 more presidential tapes.

At the late morning caucus, the 21 Democrats set the date for hearing evidence and elected to invite James D. St. Clair, Nixon's chief Watergate lawyer, into closed session.

"The general feeling is that we will make a presentation of summary in closed session and we expect Mr. St. Clair will be there," said Rep. John F. Seiberling, D-Ohio. "I don't see any necessity for Mr. St. Clair to be involved before May 7."

UPI
World/Nation/State

The White House and the 17 Republicans on the committee have insisted that St. Clair should be a participant in the committee's proceeding — with the right to cross-examine witnesses — to ensure Nixon of impartial treatment, but the Democratic leadership has opposed the presence of the White House lawyer.

Many Democrats, on the other hand, believe there is no need or legal precedent to afford St. Clair that privilege unless and until formal charges are brought against the President.

During the closed session May 7, Seiberling said, the committee will review the impeachment charges against Nixon and decide what — if any — allegations against the President should be dropped. After that, he said, the committee will conduct a "detailed presentation, calling witnesses."

Seiberling said there was no discussion during the caucus of whether the committee should subpoena the 41 tapes if the White House, in its reply Tuesday, refused to surrender some of them. Democrats on the committee have expressed determination to take Nixon to court if all of the material is not handed over.

John Doar, chief counsel to the committee, said Monday he had received assurances from St. Clair that the White House would indeed reply by Tuesday's deadline.

St. Clair's letter to Doar, while saying "progress has been made" in the tapes negotiations, gave no indication of whether the tapes would be delivered or whether there would be a reply to the demands.

A similar situation occurred two weeks ago when Watergate Prosecutor Leon Jaworski demanded that the House comply with a subpoena for additional evidence. President's lawyers promised "a reply" by Jaworski's May deadline, but that the last moment surrendered the subpoena material.

'Oil embargo came at the right time'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Federal energy chief William E. Simon said Tuesday the Arab oil embargo may have been a blessing in disguise.

In testimony before the House Legal and Monetary Affairs subcommittee, Simon said the effect of the embargo was to crystallize concern for energy problems that had been neglected for years.

"The embargo came at precisely the right time... at a time when the seriousness of the energy problem was a matter of debate — and it made all of us realize that it's a fact not a question," Simon said.

"A few years earlier and we would have dismissed it as an unimportant inconvenience. A few years later and its impact would have been too large for any federal program to avoid or alleviate."

Simon defended the administration's handling of the crisis, saying its actions were "the right ones — and they resulted in the least total impact on the American public."

Unmapped towns ready for visit from Nixon

BAD AXE, Mich. (UPI) — President Nixon may put two Michigan towns on the map Wednesday when he visits this generally overlooked region.

On his motorcade itinerary are Ivanhoe and Popple, two villages not even included on official state maps.

Also along the 50-mile motorcade route are six other villages so small they do not even bother electing local governments. Most of them consist of a single gas station or general store.

But in the three towns Nixon will visit during his first people-to-people foray since Watergate broke, citizens are excitedly preparing for one of the biggest events of their lifetimes.

"It's going to be the greatest holiday we'll ever see," said farmer Al Hordos in Bad Axe. "She's going to be a real goer."

Saxbe expects Hearst results in near future

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Attorney General William B. Saxbe said Tuesday that he expects the FBI investigation of the Patricia Hearst kidnapping to produce results in the near future, the Washington Star News reported.

"Now that the lid is off, I think we're going to see some results," the newspaper said Saxbe told a group of reporters Tuesday.

Vets hope walk on Capitol will boost benefits

Representatives of the FSU Capitol, which will include Vets Club met Monday to discuss final plans for Thursday's 'walk' on the College.

The purpose of the walk, according to veteran coordinators, is to show support for veterans' legislation, especially House Bills 2233-2238 and Senate Bill 478.

The veterans are asking for benefits comparable to those received by veterans from World War II and the Korean War. The vets contend that the $220 monthly educational allotment does not cover the rising cost of college.

Greg Harris, a twice wounded Viet Nam veteran, pointed out that the "army took two or three of the best years of the lives of most vets."

Harris said that "many experienced considerable hardships in the service of their country."

"The Viet Nam vets don't want the fanfare accorded other returning veterans, but they do want the same opportunity for a college education," Harris said.

Gary Snell, a spokesperson for the vets, stressed that "we have to have a follow-up after the walk."

Snell said that telephoning individual legislators could be just as influential as the walk, and that a fact sheet pertaining to the specific proposals of the bills will be circulated on campus.

The FSU vets plan to amass in the circle in front of the Westcott fountain at 11:30 Thursday morning, and then proceed down College avenue at noon.

The vets will walk to Monroe Street, turn right and continue to the front steps of the Capitol, where they will meet with FAMU veterans.

Representatives from the University of Florida, Bethune Cookman College, Jacksonville University and Florida Memorial are also expected to attend the 'walk.' FSU coordinators of the march recommend that participants wear a shirt and tie.

Pot all but legalized

(ZNS) The residents of Ann Arbor, Michigan, have voted to restore what is considered the most lenient marijuana law in the nation.

By a 2000-vote margin this week, Ann Arbor voters reenacted a city statute that limits marijuana penalties to a mere $5 fine. An identical law had been adopted three years ago, but it was rejected last year by a newly-elected conservative city council.

Ann Arbor's new mayor, James Stephenson, explained at the time that he opposed a liberal pot law because he feared that Ann Arbor "would become another Berkeley."

Ex-Seminole loses life

Gary Wayne Louks, former punter for the Seminoles, was killed Sunday after his car ran off the road five miles west of Greensboro.

According to a Highway Patrol spokesperson, Louks' 1966 Buick Special was rounding a curve on State Road 270, when the car left the road, struck a driveway culvert, causing it to fly 32 feet through the air, where it hit a pine tree, overturned and burned.

Louks was the only occupant of the car.

"The computerized system is running much better," Mausert said. "The debate is

ERA is plagued by scare tactics

The Equal Rights Amendment was passed by the Senate Rules Committee on to the Senate floor for consideration yesterday; ample cause for rejoicing in the pro-ERA ranks — right?

Wrong.

The ERA barely made it out of the Senate Committee by a narrow margin of two votes in the 10-8 decision.

This is not unusual in a state still filled with the spurious anti-ERA arguments of "women will be forced out of their homes and into careers" and "the ERA will destroy the American family unit" and "I enjoy being a girl."

The ERA will not require a woman to seek employment outside of her home.

Rather, the ERA will help to finally realize the job of 'housewife' as a true profession by acknowledging the hard work and effort that is entailed in running a household.

Hopefully, the ERA will destroy the 'substandard occupation' aura that surrounds a woman who says "Oh, I'm just a housewife."

With both the husband and wife equally responsible for the welfare of their home and family, the choice of who is the "breadwinner" and who is the "breadmaker" is their own personal decision.

The ERA will apply only to governmental action. It will have no sanction over the private or purely social relationships of men and women.

All the fears spread by anti-ERAs of "destroying the family" and "forcing women out of their homes" are groundless. Apparently, purely emotion, 'scare tactic' rhetoric is the best arguments that anti-ERA spokespersons can muster.

The ERA will legally ensure that men and women have the right to choose whatever career, role or course they desire in life.

Why is that so threatening?

Vets to walk

Veterans from FSU, FAMU, and TCC will stage a walk on the Capitol Thursday in hopes of persuading legislators to consider a number of bills which would be of benefit to state veterans.

The walk, which will start at 11:30 in front of the Westcott Building, is being billed as a "shirt and tie affair." The walk organizers are emphasizing that they want a peaceful demonstration and the wearing of conventional clothes will, hopefully, make legislators more agreeable to their position.

The Flambeau encourages veterans who are interested in the passage of bills which would give them more educational and nursing benefits to participate in the walk.

'Student Anonymous' needed?

It came to me late one night around 11 o'clock — during my regular debate over whether to stay up and study or to say to hell with it and go to bed — that what I and other suffering souls need is a "Students Anonymous."

We all know the function — and reported success — of Alcoholics Anonymous. Weight Watchers, an organization I highly recommend, uses similar methods for a different problem.

But nobody to my knowledge has devised a method for dealing with chronic, habitual, confirmed and addicted homework procrastination.

This isn't as funny as it may seem. For all that drugs, alienation and sex are touted as university student problems, what often sends a student to a counselor is problems with classwork. Frustrated students take academia too seriously, get behind, panic, can't understand what is expected of them or just plain can't figure out what's going on.

Anyone who has ever faced the existential horror of that final two-week cram at the end of the quarter — when three-day special term papers are manufactured and a quarter's worth of studying is shoehorned into a single night of dyspeptic agony — knows what I mean.

Who ever believed that a student could read 150 pages in a night anyway? A hundred and fifty pages of Mickey Spillane, maybe. Certainly not 150 pages of marine biology, or medieval history, or law. You're behind before you begin, so often you simply don't begin at all. If you're lucky, you're GOOD at two-week quarter-enders, and therefore struggle through to your degree without ever facing the fact that what the university wants you to do can't be done in the first place.

Somewhere out there, on this very campus, there must be at least one person who has actually read every chapter assigned, worked every problem required, and spent every expected hour on term papers. Somewhere such a being exists, but damned if I have ever met one.

For most of us, the ideal is there, but accomplishment is out of the question. If you have a part-time job, if you have any extracurricular activities, if you don't have a live-in maid-cook-laundress, you simply never have the time to get it all done. And you feel guilty about it. No matter how irrational the idea, you are convinced that "everybody else" is doing every assignment and only you and a couple of other "cheaters" are behind.

It used to be an axiom in high school that every teacher thought s(he) was the only one you had and so gave you enough homework to keep you busy all evening. Unfortunately, you had five or six teachers and only one evening. The disparity was never resolved.

Nor has the disparity been resolved in colleges and universities. Everyone goes on glibly pretending that what is assigned is not only possible of accomplishment, but can be polished off in time to spend a couple of hours watching TV.

Why aren't we all more honest with each other? Why don't we admit that it is absurd to expect students to do what they can't and won't do?

I guess that would be too easy. In the meantime, at least, we should have a Students Anonymous. There's no way such an organization could actually help us complete all our homework, but it could provide a sympathetic therapy group and a place to tell the truth about our procrastinating without fear of loss of grade point average or self-esteem. And, besides, attending the meetings would give us another excuse to put off doing tomorrow's assignments.

'F' club will be open to all

The newly-organized FSU "F" Club will hold its first meeting of the new quarter Sunday night at 8 in Room 417 Union.

The prime purpose of the organization, according to meeting sponsors, is to promote low academic standards within the University.

"We want to show that stupid, lazy people still have an important place in the university community," said spokesperson Andy Wright. "We want people to remember that, without us out there getting the 'Ds' and the 'Fs', there wouldn't be anyone picking up the 'As' and the 'Bs'."

Wright explained that students and persons who have been non-students for less than one quarter are eligible to join the new organization, providing they measure up to the following standards:

—ten hours of "F" in any university level course (or equivalent) in any individual department. "We will accept CLEP scores of failing or below as well as 'Fs'," Wright said. "Unfortunately marks received on the junior college level are transferrable to FSU."

—an "F" of three hours or more received on a course which the student was taking in order to erase an earlier "F." "We realize that this is something of a compromise on the part of those who get four or five 'Fs' every quarter," consistently racks up the 'Fs' has a way of wandering off," Wright said. "The one who gets Wright said that the "F" Club will sponsor car washes "and other fund-raising activities where the emphasis is on manual labor" in order to collect money for the club's annual scholarship award.

"Each year we hope to be able to offer some undeserving high school senior the opportunity to fart around on the university level," Wright said. "The scholarship will pay for tuition, room, board, alcohol, drugs and tickets to all of Jacksonville's rock concerts."

Wright said that any additional cash collected will go toward the club's annual "Week at the Beach," which is tentatively set for some time during spring quarter finals.

Veterans to Walk on Capitol

There will be a Veterans Walk to the Capitol this Thursday made up of veterans from FSU, FAMU, and TCC. They will assemble to lobby for increased benefits from the state, and will show their support for Representative Mattox's proposed legislation to increase educational benefits for Vietnam era veterans.

FSU and TCC veterans will assemble at Westcott Building at 11:30 a.m. Thursday to receive last minute instructions and booklets explaining who and where their legislators will be.

The walk will begin at 12:00, and will meet with the group from FAMU on the way. Spokespersons for the FSU veterans will be Bob Cutlip, Greg Harris and Ron Tennant, who will meet legislators on the Capitol steps when the group arrives there. The whole group will then be addressed by the representatives of the state government, and then veterans will enter the Capitol and explain to their individual legislators the need for additional educational benefits.

If you are a veteran, a veteran's dependent, or the friend of a veteran, please join us in this walk to the Capitol. We need everyone's support in our struggle to obtain a decent education. Be there Thursday morning at 11:30!

Sunland Needs Volunteers

Would you be interested in helping a retarded person reach his fullest potential in life? Then why not volunteer for the Sunland Program coordinated by Student Community Interaction?

Those who volunteer for the program will be able, after a tour of the hospital, to choose in which area of the hospital they would like to work. These areas include music therapy, recreation therapy, physical therapy, or ward programs.

Volunteers are actively involved at Sunland, a state hospital for the non-ambulatory mentally retarded. The hospital serves all ages and levels of mental retardation. The program operates on Tuesday and Thursday, 2:15-4:30, and Saturday 10-12:30. Transportation is provided from campus.

Volunteers may also participate in special activities such as Special Olympics, ice cream socials, and trips to various areas in the community.

All interested volunteers are asked to come by the SCI office, Room 338 Union or phone 599-4725. Show someone you care!

Doobi

BY ERIC MOSS

The Doobie Brothers, one of the country's most popular rock bands, are appearing tonight at 8 in Campbell Stadium.

This concert tour coincides with the release of their new album, "What Were Once Vices Are Now Habits," currently the nineteenth top-selling album on Billboard magazine's charts.

The Doobies have undergone the same kinds of developmental stages that nearly all big-name groups have. Originally formed as a hard rock band in San Jose, California, through evolution and the addition of a horn

THE DOOBIE BROTHERS bring Campbell Stadium tonight at 8. A related.

'Plaza Suite' premieres

Florida State University's Studio Theatre will open the spring theatre season with Neil Simon's hit Broadway comedy "Plaza Suite" tonight through Saturday, April 10-13, at 8:15 p.m. in Conradi Theatre, Williams Building.

There is no admission charge for Florida State students. Tickets are $1 for non-students and will be available at the door.

The setting for the play is Room 719 in New York City's Plaza Hotel. Each of the three acts is an individual story, with its own director and cast.

Act I, directed by Steve Crosby, is the bittersweet story of a marriage on the skids. Karen Nash (played by Tina Moore) reserves the room for a second honeymoon with her husband, Sam (Danny Westbrook), in the hope that they can revive their marriage. Complications arise, however, when Sam's secretary (Ann Ring) "needs him at the office."

Act II, directed by Kathy Talbert, opens with Jesse (Louis Cutolo) visiting New York to sign a director for his next movie. While there, he is visited by a high school girlfriend (Sandy Smith), and they take it from there.

Doobie Brothers concert happening tonight

BY ERIC MOSS

The Doobie Brothers, one of the country's most popular rock bands, are appearing tonight at 8 in Campbell Stadium.

This concert tour coincides with the release of their new album, "What Were Once Vices Are Now Habits," currently the nineteenth top-selling album on Billboard magazine's charts.

The Doobies have undergone the same kinds of developmental stages that nearly all big-name groups have. Originally formed as a hard rock band in San Jose, California, through evolution and the addition of a horn section, they somehow became a gospel group. Finally, after a couple of personnel changes and some experimentation, they became the Doobie Brothers that released "The Captain and Me" and "Toulouse Street."

Founding fathers Tom Johnston (guitar, vocals) and Little John Hartman (drums, congas) are the only remaining members of the San Jose band. Dave Shogren (who joined and split after the first album), Skip Spence (formerly of Moby Grape), and drummer Michael Hossack have all seen action with the band at one time or another.

Recently added are bassist

Tiran Porter and drummer Keith Knudsen. Rounding out the band's sound is guitarist-vocalist Pat Simmons, who joined before the first album was cut.

All three of the Doobies' albums have sold successfully.

"The Captain and Me" and "Toulouse Street" are both certified million-sellers, and

"What Were Once Vices Are Now Habits" is a star performer, meaning it has shown outstanding proportional sales in one week according to Billboard's rating system.

The weather prediction looks good, so bring a sweater and a cushion for an evening of high-energy rock. Tickets are on sale until 4 at the Union Ticket Office, both Yankee Peddlers and Phoenix Holding Company.

THE DOOBIE BROTHERS bring their brand of boogie to Campbell Stadium tonight at 8. Actually none of them are related.

News You Can Use

The Studio Theatre will open the spring theatre season tonight with Neil Simon's hit Broadway comedy "Plaza Suite." It will run through Saturday at 8:15 p.m. in Conradi Theatre, Williams Building.

There will be no admission charge for Florida State students. Tickets are $1 for non-students and will be available at the door.

Fashion Incorporated will present "Spring Things to Sew" in its Butterick Patterns/Cohama Fabrics Fashion Show today in Moore Auditorium. The show, scheduled from 12:30 to 1 p.m., is free and open to the public.

The April dates are filled for the Defensive Driving Course but the dates of May 21, 22, 23, and 24 from 8:30-10:30 a.m. still have some openings.

Contact Beth Patrick, ext. 4343 for reservations. If you have taken this course with another employer or citizen's group, please send a copy of your wallet-sized ID card issued upon completion for inclusion in your personnel file.

The Easter Seal drive ends this week. Florida State is falling far below its quota in this important fund raiser, according to Grace Douglas, campus chairman. She pointed out that more than 97 percent of the money collected here is used at the local Easter Seal Rehabilitation Center. All departments are urged to make a last effort to collect for Easter Seals and report to Mrs. Douglas, 209 PS/A Building.

Career Service Job Openings

As of April 8, 1974, Florida State currently has promotional opportunities in the following career service vacancies:

Accountant I and II, Mang. Syst. Analyst II, TV Production Manager, Asst. Publ. Productions Coord., Computer Systems Analyst II, Computer Programmer II, Storekeeper I, Maintenance Repairman, Assistant Postmaster, Secretary III and Clerk IV.

A & P Positions: Executive Assistant to President, Director of University Relations, Director of Administrative Services, and Coordinator of Special Projects.

If you are interested in any of these positions and meet the requirements of the University's Internal Promotion Program, contact the Employment Section of the Personnel Relations Dept. An Equal Opportunity Employer.

Property Sale Is Tomorrow

The Property Records Office will hold a verbal auction tomorrow (Thursday, April 11) at 12 noon to sell items which have been abandoned on campus. These include 25 bicycles, two window air conditioners, suitcases, a rug, alarm clocks, fishing rod and reel, clothing and others.

Everything will be on display from 9 a.m. to noon at the Property Records Office off Woodward Avenue, across from the swimming pool.

All items must be paid for by cash or check and removed the day of the auction, according to Len Bowyer, director of property records.

Lima Gets Help

Florida State has extended its educational arm to Lima, Peru, where it is assisting in the overall reform of Peruvian education.

Six faculty members are conducting an educational training program sponsored by Peru's In-Service Education Institute. Developed between the University's College of Education and the Peruvian Ministry of Education, the project is aimed at providing 35 selected Peruvian in-service educators with skills in developing instructional materials and training programs. The program is associated with the education reform begun three years ago.

The project is coordinated by Dr. Sydney R. Grant, director of Florida State's Division of Instructional Design and Personnel Development, and member of the College's Center for Educational Technology (CET).

Other participating faculty members are Drs. Robert Branson, Walter Dick, Robert M. Gagne, Wally Hannum, Robert Morgan, and Ms. Susan Taylor.

The program is organized into a sequence that involves one or two-week training periods in such areas as "An Introduction to Educational Technology," "New Developments in Learning Psychology," "Models and Techniques of Educational Materials Development," and "Program Management and Evaluation."

As part of their course, the participants also are working on curriculum and training projects to be implemented with Peru's teaching force nationwide.

The project will run through May 17. The Peruvian counterparts are Drs. Mauricio San Martin, Wilfredo Huertas, Elba Cases and Luis Palomino who came to Florida State as special students a year ago for a training program in instructional design developed at the CET.

Ecology Lectures Starts Tomorrow

The social and legal aspects of environmentalism will be the theme of an ecology lecture series, starting tomorrow. It is sponsored by Florida State and the Citizen's Committee for the Humanities.

Titled "The Ecology and Human Values: A Humanistic Approach," the five weekly lectures — April 11 through May 9 — will look at ecological preservation and environmentalism in relation to the individual, business and government. Emphasizing the public aspects of the issue, all lectures are free and open to the public. The lectures will be held at 7:30 p.m. at the Tallahassee Federal Auditorium on North Monroe Street, with the exception of the April 25 lecture, which will be held at the Tallahassee North Branch Auditorium on Thomasville Road.

Tomorrow Gilbert Finnell, Florida State law professor and member of the Environmental Land Management Study Committee, will speak on the potential conflict between environmental protection and other human needs. Ellen Winchester, former president of the Florida Sierra Club, will then speak on environmental destruction as a crucial issue in America, followed by Joel Kuperberg, executive director of the Trustees of the Internal Improvement Trust Fund, speaking on ecology as a long-term American interest.

The second lecture, April 18, will center around ecology as a political philosophy, with Ken Megill, author of "The New Democratic Theory," Dr. Thomas R. Dye, Florida State professor of government, and Arthur Canaday, general counsel to Gov. Reubin Askew, as the featured speakers.

April 25 is the date for the third lecture, with Howell Ferguson, governmental assistant on energy matters, office of the Governor, and Dr. Philip Sorensen, associate professor of economics at Florida State, speaking on the energy crisis.

A comparative perspective of Florida's ecology problems is the topic for the fourth lecture, scheduled for May 2. Florida Sen. Robert Graham, William Adams of the Florida State Division of Continuing Education and Dr. Michael Launer, assistant professor of history, will speak.

The final lecture will be held May 9, on the theme of "Ecology: An Overview And Issues." Dr. Richard Bartlett, Florida State history professor, and Dan O'Connell, executive director of the Environmental Land Management Study Commission, will conclude the lecture series.

COFRS Announces Summer Awards

Dr. Marie Withers Osmond (Sociology) "Correlates of Fertility in Welfare Families: Economic, Interpersonal, and Attitudinal," Dr. Marilyn Gombosi (Music) "The Completion of Historical Research Relating to Musical Events that Took Place During the Earliest Formal Observance of Independence Day, Held on July 4, 1783, in Salem, North Carolina," Dr. James Stroom (Music) "The History of Pianism Thru Performance Practices and Traditions via Recordings, Focusing Upon the Stylistic Change from Generation to Generation."

Dr. Walter R. Tschinkel (Biological Science) "Food Traffic in the Red Imported Fire Ant," Dr. Richard A. Smith (Urban and Regional Planning) "The Effects of Community Power Distribution on the Adoption and Implementation of Social and Economic Development Programs," Dr. Paul J. Brantingham (Criminology) "Urban Re-Development and Crime in England."

Dr. Bruce T. Grindal (Anthropology) "Religious Life in Southern Black Community," Dr. John D. Simons (Modern Languages) "Comparative Literature Theory and Practice," Dr. James Gwartney and Dr. Ephraim Asher (Economics) "An International Comparison on the Economic Status of Women."

DATELINE, an official page of record, is published by The Florida State University to communicate information to students, faculty and staff. The University Calendar is a weekly feature, published each Monday. Events for which a campus space reservation is made by the Tuesday preceding the Monday of publication are automatically included. All other Calendar items should be submitted to the Events Coordinator, 238 Union, or to the Office of Information Services, 324 PS/A Building. Other notices for DATELINE should be submitted to the Office of Information Services. All news must be submitted four days prior to date of publication.

Teams vie

Georgia Southern and Miami continue to run a strong pack in the latest release of record standings of the District III Southern Independents this week, but the race for the third spot is beginning to tighten up with a half dozen teams still in the thick of the running.

Through games of April 7, Georgia Southern had posted a 36-1 (.963) record, while Miami had run its winning streak to 23 games and its record to 30-3 (.909).

Arizona is ranked first

(UPI) — Arizona held on to its No. 1 rating this week in the rankings issued by the newspaper "Collegiate Baseball."

The Wildcats, with a 43-2 record, were challenged by Miami of Florida, winners of 23 straight and holder of a 30-8 overall mark.

Defending National Champion Southern California, 22-5, was third with Georgia Southern, 22-1, fourth, and Arizona State 27-16, fifth.

Rounding out the top 10 were Oklahoma, Pan American, Santa Clara, Texas A&M and Texas.

Bicycle race needs officials

Tallahassee Velo Sport and the Florida State cycling club will be hosting an Olympic Development bicycle race April 19-21 and 50 officials will be needed for the race.

Club president Tom Wallace asks that any person interested in officiating should attend a meeting tonight on the second floor of the Bellamy Building at 7:30.

Sig Eps take volleyball first

Sigma Phi Epsilon has captured first place in the 1974 Intramural Volleyball Championships for fraternities by defeating Pi Kappa Alpha 13-15, 15-9, and 15-7.

Teams vie for district leadership

Georgia Southern and Miami continue to run a strong race in the latest release of district standings of the District III Southern Independents this week, but the race for the third spot is beginning to tighten up with a half dozen teams still in the thick of the running.

Through games of April 7, Georgia Southern had posted a 26-1 (.963) record, while Miami had run its winning streak to 23 games and its record to 30-3 (.909).

Following the top duo is a pack of clubs any one of which could emerge as the number three team in the race for the at-large berths at the District III Tournament. Included in this group are South Carolina (23-5), Stetson (18-5), South Alabama (18-6), Georgia Tech (13-5), Southern Mississippi (11-5) and South Florida (15-7).

Southern Eagles have nine regulars hitting over .300 led by Carl Person's .374. The Eagles won three games over rival independents during the last week, sweeping a pair from South Carolina and taking a single contest from Georgia Tech.

The victory over Tech was the 100th win for Polk since taking over the Eagles two years ago.

South Carolina's two losses at Southern helped create the logjam behind the two front runners. The Gamecocks had been moving along well until they ran into the GSC buzzsaw.

South Alabama is beginning to make a move after a sluggish start, but the Jaguars have a tough schedule with seven road games and just three home contests in the next two weeks. Designated hitter Jerry Stamps is supplying the Jags' offensive punch with a .391 average and 11 home runs.

Southern Mississippi's Wilson Plunkett continues to pace the District's Independent team hitters, compiling a .490 average. He has nine homers and a big 1.143 slugging average.

The records of District independent teams through April 7:

Team	Won	Loss	Avg.
Georgia So.	26	1	.963
Miami	30	3	.909
So. Carolina	23	5	.821
Stetson	18	5	.783

One-hitter paces Seminoles 3-1

BY BRUCE RABEN

Senior Bill Horne and sophomore Danny O'Brien combined to pitch a one-hitter Tuesday afternoon in leading Florida State to a 3-1 baseball victory over Mercer University of Atlanta.

The results of the second game of the doubleheader were not available at story deadline. The Seminoles will play a single game tonight at 7:30 against the University of Tampa.

FSU, unable to get anything going with its hitting as of late, turned to the pitching staff and Horne and O'Brien came through in fine fashion.

Horne, coming off an elbow operation from last year, went the first four innings and was touched for only an unearned run in the first inning while allowing no base hits.

O'Brien came on in the fifth and pitched to only 16 batters over the final five frames and it took the Hawks 8-1/3 innings to break up the tandem's no-hitter with a running single through the middle by third baseman Brian Hutcheson.

"We had scheduled O'Brien to pitch Monday night and when it was rained out we decided to go with Horne for only four innings and to relieve him with Danny," head coach Jack Stallings said.

It looked as if Mercer's unearned run in the first would hold up as Hawk's pitcher Bruce Caldwell also no-hit the Tribe for the first five innings. But, three walks, two passed balls and a wild pitch tied the game for FSU in the fifth and the Seminoles added two more in the sixth.

Randy Davidson led off the sixth with a walk and after Jim Busby advanced him to second, Jim Foxwell stroked a double to right for FSU's first hit, with Davidson holding at third.

SENIOR BILL HORNE

Guillermo Bonilla followed Foxwell with a single scoring two runs and O'Brien held the Hawks from there on in.

O'Brien finished the game and earned his fifth victory of the season against four defeats. He had seven strikeouts and did not walk a man.

For Horne, it was an impressive performance.

"The doctor said that Bill would have to learn to throw with pain in the arm," Stallings said. "About the second inning he was hurting and threw a lot of off-speed pitches."

Horne struck out five and walked three in his four innings of labor.

F ERA

By UPI

The Florida Senate rejected ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment (ERA) in a 21-19 vote Wednesday and ERA supporters say they will not try to revive the amendment this year.

Instead of going for a rematch in the House, which turned down the ERA by a 10-vote margin last year, feminist legislators and pro-ERA lobbyists said they would work to overwhelm public approval of the amendment in a statewide "straw ballot." Some ERA opponents, hoping to stifle the ratification resolution permanently, plan to introduce legislation for a public referendum on the subject later this week, so that a vote can be taken in the September primary election.

Sen. W. D. Childers, D-Pensacola, summed up the opposition arguments with an emotional warning that the ERA would validate homosexual marriages and put women on the front lines of future wars.

Veteran at Florida

BY JOHN STEVENS

Today's march on the Capitol by veterans is a highly organized event.

At the initial assemblage of the marchers, beginning at 11:30 a.m. in front of the Westcott Building, organizers will distribute a fact sheet to all participants and supporters explaining the aims of the "walk."

A list of members of the Veterans Ways and Means Committee and the House Appropriations Committee will also be handed out.

This list of legislators will give their office location, party affiliation and their home district.

The march will commence at 12 noon.

FSU and TCC veterans and their supporters will proceed east on College Avenue to Monroe Street, and then right (south) on Monroe to the front steps of the Capitol Building.

Veterans from FAMU will assemble in the courtyard area of the Carnegie Center at FAMU at 11:30 a.m. and begin walking at 12:05 p.m.

The FAMU group will proceed east on Palmer Street to Adams, north on Adams to Gaines, east on Gaines to Monroe, and then north on Monroe to the front steps of the capitol.

ERA is rejected by Senate

By UPI

The Florida Senate rejected ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment (ERA) in a 21-19 vote Wednesday and ERA supporters said they will not try to revive the amendment this year.

Instead of going for a rematch in the House, which turned down the ERA by a 10-vote margin last year, feminist legislators and pro-ERA lobbyists said they would work for overwhelming public approval of the amendment in a statewide "straw ballot." Some ERA opponents, hoping to stifle the ratifying resolution permanently, plan to introduce legislation for a public referendum on the subject later this week, so that a vote can be taken in the September primary election.

Sen. W. D. Childers, D-Pensacola, summed up the opposition argument with an emotional warning that the ERA would validate homosexual marriages and put women on the front lines of future wars.

"Can you imagine an 18-year-old girl, raised in the church, being drafted into a barracks full of hardened military men and issued a GI issue of boots and uniforms?" he asked the Senate. "When this happens, the hearts of Americans will bleed. They will break."

Childers said that women already have equality, and that "women control 90 per cent of the wealth in this country and they control 100 per cent of the warmth and beauty in America."

Sen. George Firestone, D-Miami, likened Childers' argument to the ancient Chinese custom of binding the feet of little girls.

"We don't need to cripple our women to protect them," he said. "If we unbind them, they will not run away from us — they'll remain at our sides as equals."

The sponsor of the resolution ratifying the amendment, independent Sen. Lori Wilson of Merritt Island, quoted the Declaration of Independence.

"On July 4, 1776, we said that we hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal," she told the Senate. "On April 10, 1974, I hold these truths to be self-evident: that all persons are created equal."

After the three-hour Senate session, Sen. Wilson said she would rather see the referendum held in the November general election than in the primary or special election, "because people go to special elections to vote negatively."

Edna Tait, the Tallahassee grandmother who heads the Governor's Commission on the Status of Women, said that if there is a straw ballot, the ERA might be widely endorsed by Florida voters.

"I don't know — it depends on whether we could get the truth out," she said sadly. "Some of the things said on the Senate floor today were just flat-out misrepresentations."

Former State Rep. David H. Smith of Fort Lauderdale, head of the Anti-ERA Florida Conservative Union, said Florida's rejection this year is an indication that the ERA is doomed nationwide.

Thirty-three states have ratified the amendment, and it takes 38 to put the amendment into the Constitution. Smith said other states will vote against the amendment during the five years remaining for its ratification.

"Florida is the more liberal of the states that have rejected it," he said. "I don't see how it stands a chance in some of the more conservative states."

Technically, ratifying resolutions by Reps. Elaine Gordon and Gwen Cherry, both Miami Democrats, are still pending in the House Rules Committee. But Gordon said she will not push the issue in the House, because even the slim Senate majority is sufficient cause for the House to steer clear of the volatile subject.

"Why, politically, should people who don't have to, make a decision in an election year, when they're all up for election?" she said. "This is a perfect opportunity for them to cop out."

A list of members of the Senate Ways and Means Committee and the House Appropriations Committee will also be handed out.

This list of legislators will give their office location, party affiliation and their home district.

The march will commence at 12 noon.

FSU and TCC veterans and their supporters will proceed east on College Avenue to Monroe Street, and then right (south) on Monroe to the front steps of the Capitol Building.

Veterans from FAMU will assemble in the courtyard area of the Carnegie Center at FAMU at 11:30 a.m. and begin walking at 12:05 p.m.

The FAMU group will proceed east on Palmer Street to Adams, north on Adams to Gaines, east on Gaines to Monroe, and then north on Monroe to the front steps of the Capitol.

The meeting of the FSU and TCC veterans and the FAMU veterans should take place around 12:40 p.m., with radio contact having been maintained between the two groups to insure proper coordination.

The organizers hope to have some state legislators address the marchers.

Referring to the forum on veterans' affairs, for which only two of 120 invited legislators showed up, Greg Harris, a coordinator for the Veteran's Club, said, "It's going to look bad if they only send out aides like they did last time. If we can walk a mile, they can walk a few steps outside of the Capitol."

The walk is intended to muster support for the Mattox Legislation, consisting of House Bills 2233 through 2238 inclusive.

The bills would affect all veterans, and not just those of the Vietnam Era.

House Bill (HB) 2233 would waive the payment of fees by Florida veterans who are attending state educational facilities.

HB 2234 through HB 2238 would provide for such things as funds from the state for veterans' nursing homes to match federal funds.

Presently, Florida ranks eighth in the nation in total veteran population, but is only thirty-fourth in the nation in the number of state dollars spent per veteran per year.

Florida spends about forty-two cents per year on individual veterans.

Organizers for the march believe that state assistance of veterans is an investment in Florida's future as it can only lead to more productive citizens.

SG judge may quit task force

By MIKE BRENNAN

A university task force which has recently been created to study the question of student courts jurisdiction in visitation cases seems to be plagued by conflict even before a formal meeting has been held.

In a prepared statement released yesterday, Student Supreme Court Justice John Fleming said he thought a wrong tone had been set "for beginning the difficult considerations the Task Force was about to undertake."

"There apparently has been a misunderstanding as to what Vice President (Steve) McClellan wishes that the task force might serve," said Fleming. Fleming further suggested that it might be beneficial for McClellan to appear before the task force at its initial meeting and explain what his views are concerning the relevance of the task force to the question of jurisdiction.

Student Government Attorney General Bill Kuypers accused McClellan Tuesday of "passing the buck" by setting up a task force to resolve the visitation case of Gary Goldacker.

Kuypers said that he did not think it was the duty of the task force to decide the issues in the Goldacker case, but rather it was the duty of McClellan and his office to "hand down appellate decisions within a reasonable time after the Student Supreme Court had reached a verdict."

"My personal understanding of Dr. McClellan's intentions is that he seeks the recommendation of the task force as to possible proposals for the modification or clarification of the Student Supreme Court jurisdiction," Fleming said.

However, Fleming also said that if McClellan was "seeking to interject the task force into the present judicial process (the Goldacker case) then I would have to respectfully step down from my position on the task force."

The task force, which consists of Dr. Jarrett Oeltjen, Student Senate President Apollo Visko and University Judicial officer John Bonanno, was established after Goldacker was found "guilty" of a visitation violation before an administrative hearing and then found "not guilty" in a later Student Supreme Court decision.

House to decide on subpoena issue

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Unsatisfied by the response by President Nixon's lawyer to a 43-day old request for 41 tape recordings, the House Judiciary Committee Wednesday called a meeting for today to decide whether to issue a subpoena to Nixon for the materials.

Even Republicans objected to a letter by James D. St. Clair, the President's lawyer, seeking a further delay.

"I think it was offensive to the House, I'm sorry to say," Rep. Edward Hutchinson of Michigan, the committee's senior Republican, told reporters after a three-hour caucus yesterday with fellow Republican members of the committee.

Chairman Peter W. Rodino Jr., D-N.J., called the meeting for this morning. Other members said "the sole item on the agenda" would be the question of issuing a subpoena.

Rodino declined to say whether he would ask the committee to issue a subpoena, but last week he said the committee's patience was wearing thin.

Some Republicans said it would take a conciliatory move by the White House to prevent the committee from issuing a subpoena.

Senate endorses campaign reform

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate yesterday strongly endorsed federal financing of presidential and congressional political campaigns and moved toward final passage of the landmark reform bill.

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield said the bill would be approved shortly — definitely before Congress begins its Easter recess Friday.

On a 55-31 vote, the Senate defeated a substitute offered by Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., former GOP national chairman, which would have stricken all provisions dealing with election financing.

One of the major controversies still to be settled is the amount that candidates for the presidency or for Congress would be allowed to spend.

The original bill provided 15 cents per voter, $21 million for a presidential candidate in the general election and 10 cents per voter in the primaries. That was cut Tuesday to 12 cents, $17 million for a presidential candidate in the general election and 8 cents in the primaries.

Under the bill, major party candidates for the White House and for Congress in the general election could get a federal subsidy equal to the amount the legislation allowed them to spend. They could choose to use federal funds exclusively, rely solely on private contributions, or accept a mix of the two.

Simon reports supply of oil is 'near normal'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Energy chief William E. Simon said yesterday the nation's gasoline supply is near normal and predicted that Americans would be able to take their usual summer vacation trips.

The head of the Federal Energy Office said that with the end of the Arab oil embargo and the resumption of Middle East oil imports, the situation has returned to "near normal," except for higher prices.

"As the supplies again begin to land on this shore, we'll have a sufficiency of gasoline with the production levels that have been established, certainly by the end of May," Simon said in an interview on NBC-TV's Today program.

"If the American people continue to abide by normal conservation practices, we'll be able to live in a normal fashion."

Simon said he was "encouraging the American people to take a normal summer vacation, not to postpone going to New England or down to Florida if that has been their traditional practice. There is going to be gasoline out there."

But he said vacation trips will cost more because "prices are going to be higher, especially among gasoline stations that rely on foreign imports."

Golda Meir resigns from office

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Prime Minister Golda Meir resigned Wednesday, saying she has "reached the end of the road."

Her resignation climaxed a raging controversy over who should take the blame for Israel's lack of preparedness for last October's war with the Arabs which threatened to dismember the ruling Labor alignment and topple her coalition government.

The 75-year-old Mrs. Meir, Israel's fourth prime minister, has held the post since 1969.

Mrs. Meir made her announcement before Labor party leaders at a meeting called in attempts to resolve a government crisis centered on demands for Defense Minister Moshe Dayan's resignation because of Israel's failure to be prepared when Egypt and Syria attacked Oct. 6, Yom Kippur.

"I have reached the end of the road," Mrs. Meir told the party members meeting in the Knesset parliament building. "I can go on no longer. This has nothing to do with Moshe Dayan but only with myself."

"She was very quiet and very decided," Police Minister Shlomo Hillel said. "She said, don't try to persuade me because this time it's absolutely out of the question."

Mrs. Meir's resignation came in the midst of a war of attrition with Syrian forces on the Golan Heights front and attempts by U.S. Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger to get troop disengagement talks started between Israel and Syria. A Syrian delegation arrived in Washington during the day to meet with Kissinger, acting as go-between in the indirect talks.

The resignation of the Meir government and the possibility of a new government with a different makeup and a possible harder line threw the future of the negotiations into doubt. Menahem Begin, leader of the hawkish opposition

Likud, said he would immediately begin to rally as many factions as possible to form "a transitional government with a different makeup from that of the present one."

Labor party leader Yitzhak Ben-Aharon said Mrs. Meir will tender her government's resignation in writing, as required by law, to President Ephraim Katzir following a cabinet session Thursday morning.

Cabinet members, including Foreign Minister Abba Eban and Finance Minister Pinhas Sapir, expressed surprise and regret at Mrs. Meir's decision.

Sapir said he did not think a new government could be formed without first holding new elections. "I don't believe so," he said.

"She felt she didn't enjoy the support of the party to a sufficient degree," Information Minister Shimon Peres said. "In the face of the necessary decisions in the coming week, she didn't discover enough support and unity."

Mrs. Meir threatened to resign in February when she had difficulty forming a new government but then decided to set up a minority government. Dayan and Peres said they would not join such a coalition.

But a buildup of Syrian forces opposite Israeli lines set off an Israeli alert that immediately put an end to the intr-party wrangling March 4 and brought the factions of her old coalition together, and she set up a government.

A party source said Mrs. Meir indirectly attacked three members of her cabinet for causing disunity among the three factions that made up the Labor alignment. He identified them as Labor Minister Yitzhak Rabin, Communications Minister Haim Bar-Lev and Transport Minister Abba Yarov. Rabin and Bar-Lev were former chiefs of staff.

The crisis was sparked by a special government commission's report blaming top Army commanders for Israel's unpreparedness in October while exonerating Dayan and Mrs. Meir. Lt. Gen. David Elazar resigned as chief of staff but with a blast against the commission's findings.

Wilderness endangered by development plans

By RICHARD LEE

Thousands of acres of Tallahassee's most beautiful lakes and waterways may be spoiled by industrial development if efforts to preserve a tract of land linking the waterway prove unsuccessful.

Just six miles east of Tallahassee lies an extensive wilderness bordered on the east by Lake Bradford and on the west by the Apalachicola National Forest.

A series of interlocking lakes, connected by Bradford Brook, stretch through this scenic area from Lake Bradford deep into the national forest.

Even though Lake Bradford and the surrounding waterways are used by hundreds of people for recreation weekly, the area has remained unpolluted.

The lakes and streams, bordered by large stands of cypress and maple trees, are clear and clean and support a population of fish, deer, wild turkeys, raccoons, and many other birds and animals in the surrounding woodlands.

Few areas in the state match this wilderness of undeveloped waterway and forests which lie even closer to Tallahassee than the municipal airport.

And yet, the entire area is being threatened with the prospect of pollution by a proposed industrial rezoning of some 80 acres of privately owned land which border on Lake Cascades, a link in the waterway.

Robert Withers, owner of the tract of land, applied to the Planning Commission for the rezoning of his property and has indicated his intention to sell it to an industrialist who is interested in developing laundry facilities on the land.

This decision by Withers has sparked an outcry from many conservation groups and residents of the area who fear the facilities may contaminate the entire system of waterways with phosphates.

Phosphates stimulate algal growth and those protesting the development of the land are afraid that if the laundry begins operation there will soon be a layer of scum on the lakes and waterways.

A major portion of the FSU Seminole Reservation is located within this network and would be affected by such contamination.

FSU President Stanley Marshall kindled hope in the opponents of the rezoning plan last month by offering to swap a small section of the Seminole Reservation located near the municipal airport for the tract owned by Withers.

This portion of the Reservation is removed from the wilderness area and is used very infrequently.

Withers expressed willingness to negotiate with the university

INTERLOCKING WATERWAYS, including portions of Lake Jackson, may become the victims of pollutants if a pending re-zoning bid is passed.

on the swap, which would place his laundry facilities in an area with much more potential for population growth and business opportunities.

Withers, and his attorney Carl Pennington, have, in fact, attempted to swap with the city of Tallahassee prior to their negotiations with FSU, but without success.

Pennington told The Tallahassee Democrat last month that "we have always recognized the best use of this land, but you just can't afford to give it away, and no one's been willing to seriously negotiate for it."

Since then FSU and Withers have been bargaining on the transaction without further developments.

According to Withers the negotiations have been held up by conflicting appraisals of the two areas and disagreement as to the financial terms of the swap.

"The university feels their land is more valuable because of its location which places it near the airport where future expansion is inevitable," Withers said. "However, my tract on Lake Cascades should increase in value as residential and recreational development continues in the area."

All other avenues for public acquisition of the Withers tract have been exhausted and, according to Jack Buford, Planning Commission chairman, "if FSU's bid for the land fails, Withers' application for rezoning will be considered."

Health cost increased under new fee system

The University Health Center will be able to charge up to $10 per quarter for services if the new student fee system proposed by the Board of Regents (BOR) is approved.

State universities will be allowed to charge "not more than $10 per student, per quarter" to cover health service costs, according to BOR Corporate Secretary Hendrix Chandler.

Under the present system the Health Center is funded by the Activities & Services (A&S) fee taken from student tuition. The Center receives $15.50 of the $34.50 A&S fee undergraduates pay in their $190 tuition.

If the new plan is approved, undergrads will be charged $13 per quarter hour, of which $2.27 will go to the Activities & Services fund. The Health Center will still receive a portion of the A&S money.

Universities with large health centers, such as FSU and the University of Florida, will probably be the first to utilize the option of collecting additional money.

According to William Wallace, Administrator of Health Services at FSU, this additional money is long overdue. He cited rising medical costs and inflation as the major reasons for the fee increase.

Wallace said the center at FSU employs 95 people, and has been low on funds for the last two years.

Lobbying is participatory democracy in action

The term "lobbyist" has long had a pejorative ring in the ears of most people, ranking somewhere between politician and dope peddler. This reputation may help to explain why the average citizen has been so slow to enter the legislative arena, and why special interests have had the field to themselves until recently.

Fortunately, the picture is beginning to change. This spring, some 1,800 persons and organizations will join actively in the legislative process as lobbyists. Each will work to block or expedite the passage of certain bills and they will, as a group, exercise substantial influence in deciding which will become law in the State of Florida.

The successful lobbyist will find a surprising portion of his time is spent in simply trying to stay abreast of the several bills with which he is concerned. The American Civil Liberties Union, for example, is already tracking 100 proposed pieces of legislation. Of these 100 bills, about 25% of them are supported by the ACLU; the others have been seen as violations of civil liberties and will be pushed toward an early death.

Killing a bill is considerably easier than pushing it through. There are any number of places a bill can be stopped. Before it becomes law each bill must pass through the committee process in each house of the legislature — sometimes being considered by 2 or 3 committees in both bodies. Even after a bill has been approved by committee, it will never get to the floor of either house unless placed on the Special Order Calendar by their respective Rules Committees. Then, of course, the bill must be debated and passed by both houses of the legislature and then signed by the Governor. Since over 3,000 bills are introduced into a legislative session lasting approximately 60 days, it is not hard to see that a few get lost in the shuffle. If a bill fails to survive any one of the crucial votes mentioned above, it is not likely to surface again during the session.

The ACLU's efforts have been directed primarily at stopping bills the organization believes will infringe on freedoms guaranteed by the Bill of Rights. Included in this category are the proposed ban on hitchhiking, a proposed bill to make it a crime for consenting unmarried adults to commit sodomy, an outlawing of profane language, and a bill requiring the fingerprinting of all prospective employees of school districts.

GUEST COLUMN

By Tommy Warren

Lobbying against these types of issues can sometimes be discouraging. Public sentiment, of course, affects legislators' thinking, and, at times, emotional arguments take the day. However, it is probably fair to say that legislators are becoming more sophisticated each year and, therefore, more amenable to rational persuasion.

In theory, most people who believe in the U.S. Constitution would argue in behalf of protecting basic civil liberties. The difficulty then comes in defining such. The success of a lobbyist depends on his/her ability to persuade legislators of the merits or demerits of a particular bill. Legislators are generally willing to hear both sides of any issue and are appreciative if a lobbyist can provide them with information they have not previously received. Given the multitude of bills floating around each session, the individual legislator is unable to understand the ramifications, pro and con, of each bill. Lobbyists must perform that function. Compiling research data, projecting costs of the bill, pointing out the present state of law, and need or lack of need for another law are items legislators are interested in. From an ACLU standpoint, these arguments, as well as Constitutional implications, are drawn out. Federal law, from the U.S.

Supreme Court down, as well as State Court decisions are used to illustrate deficiencies or merit in a given bill.

Watergate has likely helped organizations lobbying for other than economic reasons. A different perspective has been placed on the democratic process for many and now legislators may tend to respond more to areas that in the past were ignored. What is the role of government in the daily lives of our people? Doesn't the addition of even one small law abridging basic rights adversely affect the more difficult task of protecting Constitutional integrity? These are questions that may now hopefully enjoy more attention. In attempting to prohibit hitchhiking, legislators must answer those questions and others. Does the electorate really want "Big Brother" constantly looking over its shoulders? What does freedom of choice really mean?

Other areas of public interest, before somewhat ignored, are now being represented by organized lobby efforts. Common Cause, the National Association of Social Workers, the League of Women Voters and others are filling the void that has existed for so long. Many citizens who have previously felt that they were unrepresented in the legislative process are discovering that lobbying need not be the private domain of special interests. Participatory democracy, as this country knows it, may achieve its greatest victories in the halls of state and national legislatures. Some legislators may be annoyed by the watchful eye of citizen groups, but responsible representatives will welcome each new addition.

(Editor's Note: Tommy Warren is a lobbyist in the Florida Legislature for the American Civil Liberties Union and a former FSU student and football player.)

'Veterans, why do we permit them to force us back?'

Editor:

Vietnam meant many things to many people. Those of us who were involved in the fields experienced a common emotional force which transcended race, creed, and all other superficial barriers. This lesson is called brotherhood. Infantrymen cared for each other's welfare because they needed each other then. This lesson spread from the field to all areas of that war.

Vietnam era veterans were not professional soldiers, though they were considered and even labeled so. They were young, naive, forced into a situation that neither the government nor its people agreed upon. The classroom and the teacher were Vietnam. This place, this concept, caused many changes in their behavior. They saw, felt, and experienced that which they did not care to. They sacrificed a big chunk from their young and happy lives. They did not know, then, that Vietnam would never let them sleep again. No one knew then that their country, beloved and respected at an early age, would never be proud of them.

Veterans, how many of our brothers walk or roll around the campuses of this country on artificial appendages? How many do you know that have never really recovered from this insidious strangeness within themselves?

Veterans, why do we permit them to force us back into this world that seems so inconsistent and insensitive now? We know our lessons learned were important ones. These values have beauty; they must be cultivated, nurtured and certainly, never forgotten. It's time we made our feelings known. We constantly hear how apathetic veterans are. They cannot know how we feel; we must tell them.

We must tell them how we feel about the values we place on our education and the right to that education. Obviously, we have the right to pursue our goals through educational attainment or we would not be here. Yet how many of us cannot do this because we cannot afford it? How many of us face the frustration of rising inflation and the ever-shrinking value of our education allowance? Are we satisfied with this? I think not.

A Florida legislator remarked recently that veteran benefits are not a priority issue in Florida. How can he be so audacious and so contemptuous in talking about priorities, when at the time we wore our uniform, we were denied the opportunity to determine our priorities. We heard nothing about priorities then. We cannot accept them now.

The time has come to show our legislators and ourselves that veterans do value their education. The time has come to take our lives and our career opportunities from the hand of politics and put them back into our own.

Recently, notices were sent to all Florida legislators concerning a state-wide meeting of campus veterans organizations, sponsored and organized by the Veterans Information Center and the FSU Veterans Office. Of the 180 invited, 29 responded, 10 promised to attend, only 2 actually showed up.

This indicates quite clearly a legislative apathy towards veterans. If we are not a priority issue at this time, I propose we make ourselves a priority issue. We do not have to be ashamed to request fair educational compensation; we deserve it. Our human endurance and sacrifices will never receive the credit due. They are committed to our memories. But we can, at least, stop stifling our feelings and protests and demand that our legislators make some sacrifices, anti-climatic as they are.

We ask for no redress of grievances, for nothing can change the past. We ask only for a chance to improve ourselves. We contributed to this country, and will not "cop out" on this responsibility. We ask for no free lunches but only that our legislature lead the way in showing the rest of the nation that Florida is not ashamed, but proud of her veterans.

Veterans, I implore you to participate in the peaceful walk on the Capitol with your brothers at FAMU, TCC, and all others who sympathize with our endeavors. Skip your classes and your jobs for this one afternoon.

Campuses throughout Florida are looking to us for leadership. Let's show them and ourselves that we are concerned.

Art auction features Masters, beginners

The People's Art Supply Co-op will continue its fund raising drive by sponsoring an art show and auction. The show will run from Apr. 27 to May 2 in the gallery of the Fine Arts Building at FSU. The auction will take place on May 3.

Art Supply Co-op representative Debbie Gaventa said, "We thought an art auction would be the most appropriate way to raise funds for the co-op. Apart from helping us get established financially, it will provide an opportunity for local artists to interact with each other, display their work, and possibly sell it."

Gaventa said the show will also include works by great European masters such as Rembrandt, Picasso, Degas, Dali, Miro, and others, as well as popular local artists such as Zerbe and Traywick.

"We hope nobody will be intimidated from displaying their work in a show with these great artists," Gaventa continued. One of the co-op's goals is to democratize art, she said.

The show will not be limited to paintings and sculptures. Pottery, leather, silver, photography, and other media are encouraged.

Persons interested in entering work in the show should go to the table in the lobby of the FAB and submit the title, medium, and base price of their work, and the artist's name, address, and telephone number. Those unable to do so may contact Debbie Gaventa at 224-8023.

Information about the artist and the pieces to be entered must be submitted no later than Apr. 15.

Gaventa said that, after being registered, art works can be received in the Fine Arts Building Gallery anytime before Apr. 27. She emphasized that although works may be delivered to the FAB gallery up to Apr. 27, works can not be accepted which are not registered by Apr. 15. "We need the information long enough ahead of time to be able to get a catalogue printed," she said.

Interested persons may have their works photographed for the catalogue if they are submitted to Bruce Dempsey at the lower gallery in the FAB.

Artists entering works in the show will have their choice of two financial arrangements for the auction. One arrangement will allow the artist to set a base price beneath which a work may not be auctioned. According to this plan, the artist will receive fifty percent of the base price, with the remainder going to the co-op.

Under the second plan, no base price will be set. The work will be sold to the highest bidder with half of the proceeds going to the artist and half to the co-op.

"The first plan provides some financial security to the artists, while the second increases the amount of money that can be made," Gaventa said.

The art supply co-op is a non-profit association controlled by its members, and devoted to providing art supplies at low prices. Members receive an additional ten percent discount. Memberships cost $5 annually and $35 lifetime, and may be purchased in the FAB lobby, The Artful Dodger, Co-op Books and Records, and Phoenix Holding Company.

Nursing building OK'd

An order halting construction on a Nursing School building at FSU was rescinded yesterday by the U.S. Health, Education and Welfare Department.

HEW ruled earlier that no new buildings should be constructed at FSU unless similar ones were provided at Florida A & M University, since FAMU is predominantly black.

Officials protested the action saying it was going to force the merger of FSU and FAMU.

The order was rescinded on the condition that the FSU Nursing Department and the FAMU Nursing School jointly work to meet nursing education needs of the Pensacola and Jacksonville areas.

Veterans

Furthermore, most veterans are two or more years behind their peer groups as far as their education or career, and need educational benefits to make up for this lag.

Finally, the passing of this legislation can be Florida's way of saying thank you to its veterans, march organizers said.

"This walk will focus attention on the proposed bills which are currently under the review of a committee," said Gary Snell, the information coordinator for the Veteran's Club, adding that now some action would have to be taken on those bills since they were in the public eye.

"The legislators know that they will have to be responsive," said Snell.

The march organizers strongly urge all veterans to participate in the noon march and the subsequent lobbying effort, adding that the wearing of a tie or at least a sport shirt in lieu of fatigues will have an added positive effect on the march results.

FLORIDA STATE UNIVERSITY

AWARD FOR DEAN FALLON — Gov. Reubin Askew, left, presents the 1974 Governor's Award for the Arts to Richard G. Fallon, acting dean of the School of Theatre at Florida State University. Fallon, one of 22 individuals, businesses and cities receiving the award, was cited for his efforts in developing both the Florida State Theatre program and the Asolo State Theatre. Fallon joined the Florida State faculty in 1957 when the theatre program was a part of the speech department, was named chairman when a separate theatre department was established in 1969, and was appointed acting Dean with the July, 1973, creation of the School of Theatre.

Surveys Show Few Changes in Faculty Attitudes and Activities

It's reasonable to assume that the recent rapid changes in American higher education also have brought about marked changes in the composition, activities and attitudes of faculty.

Not so, says Dr. Alan Bayer, sociology professor at Florida State University, who bases his statement on the comparison of two surveys. "Few observers of higher education," Bayer said, "are unaware of such new forces as a tightening job market, growth in collective bargaining, decline of federal support for research and affirmative action programs, to mention only a few."

When many of these changes became apparent, he said, the Carnegie Commission on Higher Education initiated a collaborative study with the American Council on Education. College and university faculty at a representative national sample of more than 300 two- and four-year institutions were surveyed in the 1968 academic year, with 60,000 responding. The 1972-73 survey, conducted by the same institutions, was similar enough to provide a profile of current faculty and also indicate some changes that have taken place.

Highly significant, Bayer

said, is the rapid aging of American faculty. In 1968-69 the median faculty age was 40; in 1972-73 it was over 43. "Aging faculty," he said, "are less likely to move, which means that there are fewer openings for new faculty members. The latter survey indicates that current faculty members feel the need for institutions to do more for continuing education of older faculties, due to the rapid expansion of knowledge in their fields."

According to Bayer, aging faculty also are more likely to dominate the senior academic ranks. In 1972-73, fully half of all faculty held the rank of either associate or full professor, compared with 42 percent in 1968-69. Also, in the first survey, fewer than half were tenured, whereas almost 65 percent were in the 1972-73 survey. "The proportion of tenured men and women rose in all institutions over the four-year period," he said.

Despite the low turnover in faculties, Bayer continued, another item of importance is that in 1968-69, 2.2 percent of all college and university faculty were blacks and 19.1 were women. In 1972-73, there were 2.9 percent blacks and 20 percent women.

The data also suggests that there appears to be more redistribution of women teachers than recruitment of women formerly outside of higher education. "Only in universities has the proportion of faculty women increased," Bayer said.

There also is no evidence from the results of both surveys, Bayer pointed out, that senior college faculties have been upgraded to include more doctorate holders, or that the junior and community colleges have absorbed many new doctorates.

There are some suggestive changes over the four-year period in work loads, he noted. "The average number of classroom teaching hours rose during this time at all institutions," Bayer said. "Both surveys showed that women faculty spent more time in the classroom than did men. Women also carried substantially more of the undergraduate instruction."

The comparison of the results from these surveys indicates more consistency than change over the years. The data also suggest continuation of differences among faculties at different types of institutions and between the sexes.

Bill Long Named Alumni As'st. Provost Make Plans

Dr. William Long, associate chairman of the Department of Meteorology, has been appointed Acting Assistant Provost of Division I for Arts and Sciences.

Long, a faculty member at the University since 1961, will assist newly named Provost Dr. Robert Spivey.

An associate professor whose major field of interest is atmospheric pollution, Long also has been active in campus activities, serving on numerous University committees. In 1969 he received the Standard Oil Foundation Award for excellence in undergraduate teaching. During a two-year leave of absence from the University, he served on the Chancellor's staff of the Board of Regents in the Division of Academic Affairs, where he was coordinator for science and engineering for the University System.

Long received the bachelor's degree in mathematics from the University of North Carolina and the Ph.D. in meteorology from Florida State. He is a member of Phi Beta Kappa, Omicron Delta Kappa, Sigma Xi, and Gold Key.

Entertainment including Flying High Circus, music and dance performances will be part of the Florida State University Alumni Week May 9-11.

On Thursday, May 9, beginning at noon, there will be an Executive Committee luncheon and meeting. At 5 p.m. a social reception will be followed by a dinner at the Killbuck Country Club.

Following registration from 10 to 11:30 a.m. Friday, May 10, there will be a banquet at the Ramada Inn. Class photographs will then be taken from 2:30 to 3:30 p.m., followed by a number of planned alumni activities.

Also on Friday, May 10, from 5:30-7:30 p.m. will be an Honorary Class social reception and dinner at President Stan Marshall's home. At the home there will be an Emeritus social reception and dinner at the Hilton Hotel.

Entertainment for the evening will include the College Women's Glee Club, Collegians and a performance by the dance theatre.

The final day, Saturday, May 11, will begin with a reunion registration from 10-11:15 a.m. in Longmire Lounge. Following will be an alumni banquet at the Holiday Inn downtown from 11:30 a.m.-1:30 p.m. The circus will perform from 2-4 p.m., and there will be guided tours of the campus and Tallahassee from 4-6 p.m. Alumni will then gather at the Hilton for a social reception from 6-7 p.m. followed by individual class reunion dinners from 7-9 p.m. Another campus performance will be held that night at 8 o'clock.

For further information contact the Office of Alumni Affairs, 114 Longmire, Florida State University, Tallahassee, FL 32306, or call 599-3443 or 3444.

Hard Hat Areas Are Off Limits

The Department of Physical Planning wishes to advise members of the University Community that all construction projects are closed to unauthorized persons. Only those persons employed by the architect, the contractor, and certain others whose responsibility it is to represent the Department of General Services and the University are authorized to enter construction sites.

Under the U.S. Occupational Health and Safety Act of 1970, the contractor may receive a sizable fine should unauthorized or improperly attired persons be found on the site. Additionally, construction projects are extremely dangerous to those not thoroughly familiar with construction operations.

Shaw Collection Shows 'Speakers'

Twenty-five "readers and speakers" from Stroz Library's Shaw Collection will be on display until the end of April in the second-floor humanities annex.

Dating from 1805 to the present, the texts display the cultural standards and teaching methods of their times, as well as changes in such aspects of book design as layout, illustration and binding.

The books, including examples from the famous McGuffey series, consist of extracts from the prose and poetry of major English and American writers.

The books called speakers are particularly interesting, fostering the use of rote memorization in a way now seldom used. Many stress dramatic voice control and illustrate the correct use of gesture for effective delivery.

Legislative Information

A legislative information toll-free telephone line is now in operation. Floridians may learn the status of bills in the Legislature by calling 800-342-1827. The local legislative information numbers in Tallahassee are 488-4371 and 488-4372.

DATeline, an official page of record, is published by The Florida State University to communicate information to students, faculty and staff. The University Calendar is a weekly feature, published each Monday. Events for which a campus space reservation is made by the Tuesday preceding the Monday of publication are automatically included. All other Calendar items should be submitted to the Events Coordinator, 238 Union, or to the Office of Information Services, 324 P.A. Building. Other notices for DATeline should be submitted to the Office of Information Services. All news must be submitted four days prior to date of publication.

The two-paragraph letter praised me for my scholarship and urged me to keep up the good work.

GANGBUSTERS

By Tom Kirwan

One can only guess at the motives of these letters: since they are sent to the permanent home address, we might assume that their goal is to excite the scholar's folks to boastful heights.

Certainly their purpose couldn't be to act as an incentive to students. It would be hard to imagine students home on break waiting for their mass-produced letters from the dean. And how many students bother to display their well-earned plaudits on the bathroom mirror?

We have enough junk mail as it is. We don't have enough money to do what this school is allegedly trying to do: educate the masses. With these two situations in mind, it is a logical step for the administration (deans, provosts et al.) to suspend this well-intentioned mish mash and get down to what they are paid to do.

* * *

"Gangbusters" took some flak last week after I mislabeled in print the name of the biggest gun magazine - the American Rifleman - and called it the National Rifleman. I also made the faux pas of calling a high power rifle a "high caliber" rifle." A disgruntled reader trenched on the errors as evidence I don't know what I'm talking about, though he never bothered to attack my thesis - the American people want stricter gun controls but have been stymied by the gun fanatics who have successfully convinced our Congressmen that no further federal laws are needed.

Our own state legislature has been wrestling with the issue lately. A House committee voted down a bill which would have outlawed the so-called "Saturday Night Specials" - small, cheap handguns that law enforcement officers say are used in a high proportion of crimes in Florida.

Attorney General Robert Shevin supported the bill, which also had the blessings of the F.B.I.

The bill is not dead yet, however, and is scheduled to be debated in the Senate. We can only hope that the Senate Committees will show more wisdom than their colleagues in the House.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Graduate Ed

Editor,

This letter is in reference to the April 2 article "Investigation to Begin into 'Padding' Charges." I think many readers will get the wrong idea about the issue involved, due to a lack of understanding of graduate education.

The article leaves one with the impression that FSU is being charged with signing up students for courses they don't take. This comes from thinking that education comes in doses called "courses." Each one can then be assigned a number (of credit hours) which supposedly represents how much the student learned.

Graduate education, at least in the advanced stages, is beyond this. The graduate student is developing an expertise in his subject matter, as judged by his thesis or dissertation and by competency examinations. Once past requirements, he spends his time on whatever is necessary to reach his goals - primarily research, independent study, and interaction with other scholars.

The administration still thinks in terms of quantified doses, however, so these activities must be titled as courses and given some appropriate value. But how many credit hours is research worth? Do we make the graduate student punch a time clock whenever he is thinking about his topic? In many cases the graduate student is doing much more work than an 18 hour load. The largely irrelevant question of credit for research is usually answered by choosing the number which makes the total a full load. It is in such variable credit courses that the possibility arises of maximizing the number of Full Time Equivalents (FTEs).

When the state tells a department that the money and faculty it gets depends upon how many FTEs it has, the state should expect that department to do all it can to increase that number. Besides the harmless number-juggling mentioned above, there are serious educational consequences of using such a criterion. Of course, the department will emphasize large lecture classes, since they generate lots of FTEs but don't require many faculty members. The department can't afford to offer many experimental or special interest courses, since they tend to have small enrollments and thus only generate a few FTEs. And, of course, it doesn't matter (to funding) how well the course is taught, or how much time the teacher spends with students. The loser in this system is the student - especially the undergraduate.

The so-called "padding" (i.e. signing up for as much research credit as allowed) is a rational response to an inappropriate method of assessing productivity.

SG, administration to wrestle in budget battle

By GLENN HODGES

It is budgeting time again, and the smell of the "rip-off" is in the air, as the fight between the FSU Administration and Student Government continues.

Each full-time student pays $34.50 per quarter for the Student Activities Fees, included in the $190 tuition. The Student Activity Fee is divided between six departments: the Health Center, University Union, Intercollegiate Athletics,

ANALYSIS

Student Academic Programs, Recreation and Student Government. Allocations for the year are taken for all the departments out of the $34.50 per student per capita.

The allocations of the $34.50 fee for the 1973-74 fiscal year were broken down like this: Health Center — $15.20 per capita; University Union — $4.55 per capita; Intercollegiate Athletics — $5.90 per capita; Student Academic Programs — $1.20 per capita; Recreation — $3.75 per capita; and Student Government — $3.10 per capita. There is also a reserve fund of eighty cents per capita, under the management of Vice-president for Student Educational Services.

The battle between Student Government and the University Administration began during the fiscal year of 1968-69. The Student Government got something written in the Board of Regents Manual, saying that the Student Senate "may allocate funds from the Activities Fee."

In recent years the funding of student recreational activities (Gymkana, Circus etc.) and Student Academic Programs (Forensics, Music Clubs, Theatre Groups, etc.) have been taken from the Student Government funding jurisdiction, and are now funded under separate administrative funding.

Student Body President David Aronofsky explained the reason this move was made is because the administration claimed that Student Government had shown "fiscal irresponsibility in allocating funds in the past."

Since the takeover by the University Administration of student academics and recreation funding, the funds available for Student Government allocating have been cut by almost fifty percent.

Student Comptroller Dennis Filloon said that the argument of Student Government irresponsibility in allocating funds "is invalid; it's a joke."

Filloon pointed out that "Student Government does not have full-time employees. The Administration does have full-time employees and they still haven't done the job that should be done."

Filloon also believes that there is little doubt that Student Government would "not be able to take care of their priorities with only $3.10 per capita." Filloon said that "some priorities will have to be cut if Student Government does not get their full budget request of $4.10 per capita, starting from the bottom of the priorities list to the top."

These priorities include: funded student organizations; Student Government's own organizations; S.G. reserve; student activities and the entertaining arts.

Many Student Government officials believe that Student Academic Programs and Recreation were taken away from Student Government by the Administration in a steady move to put Student Government on a lower priority level. Charlie Wade, a member of Student Government said, "They (the Administration) are just trying to get rid of us."

"Too many areas want money," Apollo Visko, Student Senate President said. "Somebody has to be cut."

This attitude seems to carry throughout Student Government.

Another reason for the yearly confrontation over allocations is the re-funding of student organizations during the summer when the mass student population is on vacation.

During the summer of the 1968-69 fiscal year, the University Budget Committee raised the $200,000 Student Government allocation to Intercollegiate Athletics to $250,000.

The 1969-70 Student Senate reacted to this by 'zeroing' funds to Intercollegiate Athletics, explaining that Intercollegiate Athletics has "other sources of funding" aside from Activities Fee allocations.

However, the University Budget Committee again raised the funds back to their previous level of $250,000.

This fiscal year it has been reported that Intercollegiate Athletics is asking for $8.90 per capita from the $34.50 Activities Fee, a $3 raise over their last year's allocation.

And so, the battle continues; every department asking for a little bit more money than last year.

"Out of all the departments that are demanding more funds, the Union needs it the most," Visko said. "The Union gets no help from the receipts of the bowling alley or Union Store."

Visko added that the Union is also losing a lot of its staff next year, including Director John McCarthy.

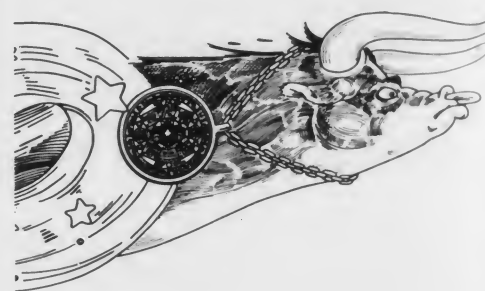

"Everything must be approved by University President Stanley Marshall," Gretchen Hastings, chairperson on the Student Budget Committee, said. "Every organization will have to defend their position."

Filloon said that "they should leave everything the way it is and let everyone sweat it out next year."

For the most part, Student Government says, "The truth will be known by the summer."

Dick Gregory comes to campus

COMEDIAN AND POLITICAL ACTIVIST Dick Gregory will speak tonight at 8:30 in Ruby Diamond Auditorium, as a guest of the University Lecture Series. Gregory is an entertainer, recording artist and a prolific writer in the field of politics and civil rights. His lecture is free and open to the public.

Ecology lecture series focuses on humanism

"The Ecology and Human Values: A Humanistic Approach," a series of five weekly lectures, will premiere tonight at the Tallahassee Federal Auditorium at 7:30.

Gilbert Finnell, professor of Law at FSU, Ellen Winchester, former president of the Florida Sierra Club and Joel Kuperberg, executive director of the Trustees of the Internal Improvement Trust Fund, will be featured speakers.

Topics to be discussed at the first lecture include the potential conflict between environmental protection and other human needs, environmental destruction as a crucial issue in America and ecology as a long-term American interest.

Future lectures will probe ecology as a political philosophy, the energy crisis and a comparative perspective of Florida's ecology problems. The final lecture in the series will be May 9 with the theme "Ecology: An Overview And Issues."

The series, sponsored jointly by Florida State University and the Citizen's Committee for the Humanities, is free and open to the public.

Prof reads own poetry

Poet Van K. Brock of the FSU English faculty will read selections from his work on Friday, April 12 at 3:30 in the Open Door Coffeehouse on the corner of Park Ave. and Chapeland St. The reading is sponsored by the Apalachee Poetry Center and the FSU Poetry Arts Co-op.

Brock's poetry has been widely published in outstanding national magazines and anthologies. Brock has also received a number of prizes, including, most recently, a Borestone Mountain Poetry Awards of 1972, with a special award for his poem, "Peter's Complaint."

Brock, as director of the Apalachee Poetry Center, is responsible for the series of poetry readings which began this winter and are continuing weekly for this spring. He has been an impetus to much activity in poetry throughout Florida through his work at FSU and as coordinator in the Poets-in-the-Schools program for elementary children.

Here come the brides

The seventh annual Bridal Fair will be presented in the Union Ballroom at Florida State University on April 16 from 12 noon until 9:00 p.m.

The fair is being presented in conjunction with the Leisure Program Office at Florida State University and Modern Bride Magazine.

Admission is free and the public as well as students are welcome.

Two fashion shows featuring the latest in wedding and trousseau fashions will be presented by Rheinuers of Tallahassee. Coordinators for the fashion shows are Mrs. Nell Carter, Bridal consultant at Rheinuers, and Carmela Carrabino, a senior at FSU.

The fashion shows will be at 3:30 p.m. and at 7:30 p.m. Doorprizes from local merchants will accompany each show and refreshments will follow each showing.

Sixteen Florida State University female students have been chosen to model in the Bridal Fair this year. They are Linda Lattemore, Kathi Adams, Deborah Alley, Michele Lobach, Claire Colombrito, Rebecca Jones, Linda Watermolen, Susan Esterhay, Dearetha Pittman, Patricia Diaz, Jennie Hogg, Joyce Whitman, Jane Hellier, Diana Meardon, Patricia Cline, and Carmela Carrabino.

Male models include Alec Jones, Steve Everett, Bob Romans, Cliff Davenport, and Darryl Stewart, also FSU students.

Lisa Carrabino will model flower girl fashions. Mothers of the bride will be Geri Flynn and Lee Partin.

To accompany and conclude the list of models is, of course, the father of the bride, Mr. Carl Nasse.

The Bridal Fair deals with every aspect of the Bride's world—from the moment she accepts the diamond ring to the moment she says "I do."

Local and national merchants will display their products. Among them will be crystal, china, silver, cookwear, and home appliances.

Eileen Helland from Modern Bride Magazine will be present along with her assistant Dee Weeks to answer any questions that the girls may have, and to speak to the audience on related subjects.

Each visitor to the fair will receive a Modern Bride shopping bag containing booklets with information on weddings and household planning.

Music will be provided by harpist Mary B. Roman.

Plays and movies highlight the night! Above, Danny Westbrook and Tina Moore portray desperate second honeymooners trying to save their marriage in "Plaza Suite", Act I which runs tonight through Saturday at 8:15 in Conradi Theater, Williams Building. Admission is $1.00 for non-students. Below, a shot from one of the classic fantasy films being presented in the Down Under tonight at 8 for $.75. The features to be shown are "Waxworks" and "The Lost World."

Daniel belts homer to race Tribe past Mercer

Senior Bill Daniel, in his first start ever for Florida State Tuesday night, cracked a three run home run to pace FSU to a 14-2 win over an outmanned Mercer of Atlanta ballclub.

The win, coupled with Bill Horne and Danny O'Brien's one-hit, 3-1 win in the first game of the doubleheader, gave the Seminoles a sweep of the two game series with the Hawks.

The Seminoles were to have played Tampa University Wednesday night and the results were not available at story deadline time. FSU will square off with the Spartans once again tonight at Seminole Field at 7:30.

The two wins came after a weekend of frustration which saw FSU lose three games to Lewis University. The victories raised the Tribe to 18-15 on the season.

FSU ran rampant offensively in the nightcap banging out ten hits including home runs by Daniel and freshman Jim Busby.

Miami wins 25 straight

The Miami Hurricanes ran its winning streak to 25 games Tuesday with a 6-5 win over the Florida Gators in Gainesville.

The Hurricanes are ranked second nationally and are chasing the all time college record of 31 wins in succession. Miami is now 32-3 on the season.

Daniel, starting in place of the injured Steve Tebbets, had three hits for the night. His singles in the sixth and eighth innings were also run producers as the Tribe scored three and two runs respectively in those frames.

Busby's blast was a solo shot in the seventh over the rightfield fence. He previously had poled one foul in the fifth inning. The home runs were the first of the season for both players.

Third baseman Guillermo Bonilla also had three hits for the evening and he along with Windle Higginbotham had two runs batted in apiece. Daniel led the team with five rbis.

"Bill told us all along he could play," said an elated head coach Jack Stallings. "It looks as if he has earned himself a spot for the Sophomore Larry Rothschild picked up the win in going the distance against the Hawks. Rothschild raised his record to 5-2 for the

"We have been getting a lot of pitching of late," Stallings said. "If our hitting comes along like it did tonight we should be able to give it a good run here on in."

Fraternities get off to fast start in Tuesday's intramural softball play

Fraternity action highlighted the commencement of the 1974 intramural softball season Tuesday afternoon.

Alpha Epsilon Pi got off to a rough start as Chi Phi bats exploded for 28 runs. (Bernie forgot to send over how many runs Alpha got, so we'll give you 13 as a nice even number). Keith Kurtz and Bill Straehl led the winners with four hits apiece.

Paul Bigham collected three hits including a 460 foot home run shot to lead SAE to a 15-5 win over the Tekes. The blast was a solo shot and was Bigham's 633 career homer.

Lambda Chi had to go into extra innings to stop the Fijis. The Fijis banged out 20 hits to the Chis 18 (what a pitchers duel), but couldn't punch across that extra run.

KA scored late to take a 12-9 win over the Alpha Phi Alpha Sphinx Club.

Dave Johnson (no relation) slapped three hits to lead Sigma Chi to a 5-4 win over the Pi Kaps.

The Sig Eps carried over their winning ways from the volleyball season by stomping the ATOs 13-3. Jeff Gargiulo had a perfect day at the plate for the winners. Bob Frier and Ken Wendland each had three hits in leading the Pikes to an 11-2 win over the Sigma Nus.

In the afternoon's final contest, the Kappa Sigs lashed out for six runs in the fifth inning to stop the Phi Taus 12-11. The Sigs outhit the Taus 15-13.

FSU golfers face stiff competition

Ranked fifth nationally in the latest college poll, Florida State's golf team gets its stiffest test to date, Apr. 17-20, in the Houston All-American Tournament.

"Most of the country's best college golf teams are entered in this one and we'll see how we stack up," said Seminole head coach Scott Fletcher.

Consistency and depth are the keys which have carried Florida State's University golf team to three straight tournament victories, an unprecedented string for the Seminoles.

"The consistent play of our top four players and the availability of four more fine players have made us a good golf team," said Fletcher.

After somewhat disappointing finishes in their first four tournaments, the Seminoles "jelled" for victories in their own Florida State Invitational, the Crystal River Intercollegiate, hosted by Tennessee, and the recent Southeastern Invitational at Dothan, Ala. The latter was hosted by Alabama and the Field included almost every Southeastern Conference team.

In the Florida State Invitational the Seminoles proved to be a come-from-behind team by rallying on the final day for a four-shot win after trailing by 12 strokes going into the last 18 holes.

Fletcher's top four players have been pretty well established most of the season, although there has been occasional juggling. Currently playing No. 1 is team captain

Todd Crandall, a junior out of Ashtabula, Ohio. The number two player is senior Johnny Godwin, former PGA junior champ out of Columbus, Ga.

Senior Doug Fischesser, Connorsville, Ind., is the No. 3 player while senior Bob Impaglia, Auburn, N.Y., the team's co-captain, is No. 4.

"This is the best golf team we've had at Florida State since 1970," said Fletcher. "The reason is that there isn't that much difference between our first four players and the next four."

The latter four include junior Frank Zayatz, Jacksonville; Kim Heisler, Cleveland, Ohio; Denny Allen, Crystal River; and senior Steve Mullen, Miami.

The two lowest rounds registered so far this season have been fired by Fischesser and Allen. Fischesser shot a 69 on the final day of the Florida State Invitational while Allen, a sophomore playing in his first college tourney, duplicated that score in the Southeastern at Dothan. Another reason Fischesser thinks this year's club winning is its "attitude." "Attitude-wise, this is certainly the finest team I've had," said the veteran Seminole. "Even the other coaches told me this and it is especially pleasing when it comes from those sources."

Lucas places 7th in U.S.

Freshman Steve Lucas of Florida State University has captured a seventh place finish in the finals of the 1974 Association of College Unions-International 16th Annual Bowling Championships last Sunday in Indianapolis, Indiana.

The field of 28 consisted of the best of some 22,000 collegiate bowlers from over 200 colleges participating in the qualifying rounds.

Lucas rolled 546 in the singles and 612 in the doubles competition. A combined events total of 1883 for the 10 games determined his seventh place finish.

Seminole co-host meet

Florida State's sailing club will co-host an intersectional regatta this weekend in conjunction with the St. Petersburg Yacht Club and the University of South Florida.

Many of the nation's top schools will be represented in this competition including Notre Dame, Furman, Iowa State, and State University of New York along with the two host schools.

Representing Florida State will be Mark Powell and Ted Gillette in the 'A' and 'B' divisions respectively. Powell and Gillette outscores nine other Seminoles for the right to compete.

Powell will also be sailing a monotype race in two weeks and also will compete in the Dinghy Championships that same weekend in New Orleans. Victories in either event will enable Powell to qualify for national titles later this year.

The club will be holding a meeting tonight in room 65 Bellamy Building at 7:30.

At the conclusion of the meeting one of the instructors will give a lecture which should enable new sailors to pass the written portion of the sailing test.

'Seymours' distributed

As an infrequent anonymous columnist for the Flambeau (If you wrote like me would you sign your name?), it is once again time for me to present the first annual "Seymour Awards" given in recognition for outstanding performances in the field of athletics.

The first category is the Leo Durocher Humanitarian Award presented to the sportsman who has continually and unselfishly contributed to the advancement of mankind.

The nominees are 1) Fritz Peterson and Mike Kekich, cited for their benevolent actions with regard to their loved ones; 2) Cesar Cedeno, who, risking criminal charges, put his mistress out of her misery, with his wife waiting in the wings; and 3) Lance Rentzel for exposing intellectually curious children to the realities of adulthood.

Our winner is Lance Rentzel who is unable to be here tonight because he is opening up at the Regency in New York.

Our next category is the Pat Boone Good Guy Award presented to the athlete who is a shining example of purity and All-Americanness to the youth of today.

The nominees are 1) Derek Sanderson 2) Duane Thomas 3) Dick Butkus and 4) Joe Namath. The winner is Broadway Joe Namath (now you know that he wears white shoes) for his conservative, unpublicized lifestyle.

The final award is the Hands-Off Award presented to the man who refuses to take action and comment on, or responsibility for, things he knows nothing about.

The three nominees are 1) Howard Cosell for his insistence on making any event more important than it actually is; 2) Bowie Kuhn for his judicious verdict on forcing Henry Aaron to play in Cincinnati and 3) Richard Nixon for his role in the Watergate Bowl.

The envelope please—wow, there is no winner to our amazement. "The Hands-Off Award will not be awarded to a true loser," says the note from our committee.

Abandoning previous plans, the administration has decided to cease attempts to prosecute student streakers. Vice President for Student Affairs Stephen McClellan said yesterday upon receiving the information pertaining to the streakers, "I have concluded that incidents do not warrant further attention at this time." ## Effort to identify streakers dropped

Abandoning previous plans, the FSU administration has decided to cease its attempts to prosecute student streakers.

Vice President for Student Educational Services Stephen McClellan said yesterday that "upon receiving the information pertaining to the streakers, I have concluded that the incidents do not warrant further attention at this time." However, McClellan stated that "this should not be interpreted to mean that similar incidents in the future will not be fully investigated and processed."

McClellan's statement followed previous unconfirmed reports that FSU President Stanley Marshall was prepared to pardon all the streakers. A student government official, who has remained unidentified, said that McClellan told students at a Lambda Chi Alpha dance Saturday night that Marshall was going to "give amnesty to the streakers."

Following the streaking activities which occurred on Mar. 7, 8 and 11, university police officers began tracking down and identifying for prosecution an estimated 500 students who had participated.

Before yesterday's reversal, McClellan had claimed the university was "actively pursuing an identification process which may result in charges and all charges will be forwarded to the state's attorney's office for disposition."

The principle types of evidence that had been collected for use against streakers were comprised of photographs taken by police photographers who had been present on Landis Green during the nights when streaking was the heaviest. But further investigation indicated that a photograph would not be enough to convict a person on indecent exposure charges.

Jack Green of the State Attorney's Office had said that, "photographs alone would not be enough evidence to go to the court with." He maintained that it would be necessary for the university to provide a witness who would give sworn testimony, if there were to be any chance of obtaining a conviction.

McClellan had initially cited reports of "sexual assaults perpetrated on women as a result of streaking behavior," to be the primary reason for attempting to identify and prosecute streakers.

A CROWD OF VETS estimated at 150 persons marched up College Avenue to discuss veterans' concerns with legislators yesterday. Sexton

As a state amendment

ERA is re-introduced

BY LAURIN MARCH

The Equal Rights Amendment (ERA) which suffered a crushing 21-19 defeat on the Senate floor Wednesday, was introduced to the House as a state amendment yesterday.

Representatives Betty Fasley and Mary Grizzle, both Republicans from St. Petersburg, proposed an addition to the "Basic Rights" section of the state constitution, which declares that "Equality of rights under the law shall not be denied or abridged on account of sex."

Sen. Lori Wilson, sponsor of the rejected Federal resolution, said she would file a similar state amendment in the Senate chamber.

Anti-ERA factions in the legislature proposed a "straw ballot" Thursday, which was promptly rejected in the House. The "straw ballot" constituted nothing more than a test of voter sentiment.

According to Rep. Elaine Gordon, who sponsored the Federal ERA in the House, "a straw ballot doesn't make any sense at all."

Rep. Gordon said she will not withdraw her resolution for ratification, but will leave it pending for the next six weeks, with the hope that the two dissenting Senate votes can be switched before the legislature adjourns in early June.

"We feel that if we can get two Senators to change their minds on the issue, that the issue is alive and we can still bring up my House proposal. I'm not going to give up until then," Gordon said.

The proposed state ERA resolution would face a public vote in the November general elections, and if passed, would

Veterans walk to Capitol called 'highly successful'

BY JOHN STEVENS

Yesterday's veterans march on the Florida Capitol turned out to be a "highly successful demonstration," according to march organizers.

Even before the scheduled assembly time of 11:30 a.m., veterans — many in coats and ties — began gathering in front of the Westcott Building. By noon, when the march began, over 150 veterans and a substantial number of supporters had arrived.

While police escorted the marchers and blocked traffic at intersections, people from various residences along College Avenue came outside to observe the procession. Marching six abreast, the veterans linked arms and proceeded up Monroe Street in the direction of the Capitol.

Just as the marchers from FSU reached the front of the Capitol, two columns of black veterans from Florida A & M University came marching up the hill from the opposite direction. As the FAMU contingent approached, the FSU veterans broke into cheers and applause, and then rushed forward to shake hands in a show of solidarity.

The two groups were addressed from the top of the Capitol steps by Rep. Ray Mattox, of Winter Haven, Chairman of the Select Committee on Military and Veterans' Affairs, who greeted them and apologized for the "apparent lack of interest" on the part of legislators who were invited but failed to show at last month's caucus on veterans' benefits, explaining that many of them were "tied up in other activities."

Mattox said that "funds and benefits provided today do not in any way equate with funds provided to vets in other conflicts."

"I and other legislators do not feel that the government is providing adequate funds for you," Mattox said. "Just because the Federal Government is involved doesn't mean the state can't help you."

Rep. Ralph Turlington of Gainesville, who is on the Committee on Taxation, told the crowd "we're a bi-cameral legislature," adding that he hadn't seen any activity in the Senate to help the veterans.

Turlington promised to find a solution to the time lag of federal benefits "so that you're not financially wiped out before your federal check comes in."

Rep. John Miller of Hollywood said that three-fourths of the House and Senate have had some military experience and that "we realize we have obligations."

"I've stood in those lines

Egg hunt to be part of CPE fair

One of the highlights of Easter weekend will be the "First Non-annual CPE Fair," which features an Easter Egg Hunt tomorrow at 11 a.m., along with live music, arts, crafts and information booths and "other assorted regalia and festivities running until sundown at the Seminole Reservation," according to Fair coordinators.

The Easter Egg Hunt will begin with prizes and candy hidden in a special area of the Reservation.

"We've had a really good response from the local businesspeople, as far as donating prizes for the egg hunt," one of the Fair coordinators said.

The Book and Record Co-op, Power, Phoenix Holding, the Deli, Nature's Way, The Nature Factory, Terminus, The Honey Tree, the Union Program Council and the People's Art Supply Co-op are some of the businesses that have donated prizes for the egg hunt, which will end at 12:30 p.m.

The Easter Egg Hunt is certainly not the most important event of the Fair, said coordinators, which will continue until sundown.

There will be live music provided by local groups, including King Kong, and other more "bluegrass oriented" bands are currently being negotiated for the Fair.

Arts, crafts and information booths and tables will dominate the "fair grounds," including a hammock-making exhibit, edible wild plants and wild plant recipes, baked goods, pottery, creative gourds and other artwork exhibits and sales, as well as information tables.

There will also be improvisational dance and theatre throughout the day of the Fair, by individual groups and involving the participation of other people attending the Fair.

Transportation to the CPE Fair is being provided through the donation of the FSU Student Government Bus, which will leave the Union Pool Parking Lot for the "fair grounds" at 11 a.m. and 1, 3 and 5 p.m.

"Come out to the Fair and celebrate Easter weekend and springtime with us," coordinators said, cautioning people not to bring their pets, but to "certainly bring themselves."

Nixon gets subpoena for 41 tapes

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The House Judiciary Committee subpoenaed President Nixon yesterday for 41 tape recordings in its inquiry into whether his role in Watergate warrants impeachment.

Nixon, who has managed since last July through court maneuvers to avoid complying with subpoenas for tapes issued by the Senate Watergate committee, is the only President ever subpoenaed by Congress.

The subpoena was approved on a one-sided and bipartisan vote of 33 to 3, a triumph for committee chairman Peter W. Rodino, Jr., D-N.J., who wanted to avoid a party-line split. He accepted a Republican modification which made the subpoena more specific.

The subpoena orders Nixon to present the requested tapes to the committee by 10 a.m. EDT April 25.

In an effort to avoid a politically damaging subpoena, the White House offered a compromise at the last minute. But it was rejected by Democrats and Republicans alike.

The White House had no immediate comment on the subpoena.

Forty-five minutes before the committee assembled, James D. St. Clair, Nixon's Watergate lawyer, telephoned John M. Doar, chief counsel to the impeachment inquiry.

He offered to provide some—but not all—the tapes the committee sought if no subpoena were issued.

He excluded tapes which record conversations between Nixon and aides H.R. Haldeman and John D. Ehrlichman between April 14 and 17, 1973. During that period, Ehrlichman discussed with Nixon what he had learned in investigating the Watergate cover-up.

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (UPI)—Former Vice President Spiro T. Agnew donated 600 boxes of his official papers, tapes and memorabilia to the University of Maryland on the condition that they will not be made public until January, 1977, the school announced Thursday.

Agnew donates official papers

A spokesperson said the dollar value of the gift apparently had been determined, but school officials were not told what it was. The boxes included papers covering Agnew's nearly five years as vice president, two years as Maryland governor and four years as Baltimore County executive.

The boxes were delivered to the school library Wednesday when Agnew, who resigned last Oct. 10, officially closed his government office one block from the White House. It also coincided with the end of his government franking privileges.

Senate approves reforms, taxpayer-financed campaigns

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate approved Thursday a comprehensive package of political reforms, including the financing of presidential and congressional campaigns with taxpayers' money beginning in 1976.

The measure, partly spurred by the Watergate scandals, would also limit the amount of money candidates could spend and put an end to "fat cat" contributions.

The bill faces an uncertain future in the House, where there is strong opposition to federal financing of congressional races and hostility to a number of other provisions in the legislation.

President Nixon has announced his strong opposition to federal subsidies for political campaigns, indicating that he would veto the bill.

"It is quite obvious there will be no bill at all that will become law," Sen. George D.

Aiken, R-Vt., dean of the Senate, said. "This is worse than no bill at all."

Terrorists shoots 34 Israelites

By United Press International

An Arab guerrilla "suicide squad" stormed a settlement in northern Israel Thursday, methodically shot 34 residents of an apartment building and hurled the victims from the top floor. At least 18 Israelis died.

The three terrorists then blew themselves up with belts of explosives, ending more than four and a half hours of death and destruction.

The bloody raid on Kiryat Shimon, 1½ miles from the Lebanese border, killed at least 18 Israelis and wounded 16 others, Mayor Avraham Aloni said. The dead included woman and at least eight children.

Pestana to speak on 'Law and Order in China'

Internationally renowned criminal lawyer Frank Pestana will speak tonight at 8 in the Law School Auditorium Room 101.

Pestana, who graduated from the University of California at Berkeley in 1937, will discuss the topic of "Law and Order in China." He has made two personal trips to China, once in 1959 at the invitation of Tang Ming Chow, an official in the government of the People's Republic of China, and again in 1972 when he devoted special time to the study of China's legal system.

Along with his China visits, Pestana has also twice visited Cuba, both times at the invitation of the faculty of the University of Havana.

Pestana is also considered to be one of the leading experts in the world in the field of law and land warfare. During the proceedings of the Bertrand Russell War Crimes Tribunal in 1967 Pestana was called on to testify as an expert witness on this subject.

During the active phases of the civil rights movement in the south, Pestana devoted much time and effort to the "One Man, One Vote" struggle in Mississippi. He was also involved in the fight to eliminate the unconstitutional Mississippi practice of electing white representatives to Congress, while effectively depriving black people the right to vote.

Each person will pay $80 a month, regardless of whether they live in the one-bedroom efficiency apartments or in the two-bedroom apartments with three roommates.

"As an afterthought," parking for less than 150 cars will be added to the dorm complex, according to Edward Denham of the Public Safety Department.

Legislators keep neanderthal image

The Florida State Senate rejected the Equal Rights Amendment by a two-vote margin Wednesday, perpetuating their medieval image as one of the states that also refused to ratify the 19th Amendment guaranteeing women the right to vote.

Apparently, the Florida Legislature is determined to keep women in what a majority of senators consider to be their "proper place" — on a pedestal.

The arguments that defeated the ERA employed the same archaic, over-emotionalized and illogical rhetoric that ERA advocates have been repeatedly and rationally refuting since the inception of the ERA struggle in 1923.

Leading Senate opponent of the ERA, Pensacola Senator W.D. Childers, resorted to heart-rending histrionics, with a touch of soothsaying added in his Senate floor debate.

"The hearts of America will bleed . . . they will break," Childers predicted, if "an 18-year-old girl, raised in the church" was drafted. Childers also forebodingly warned the Senate that passage of the ERA would surely "validate homosexual marriages."

Unfortunately, too many senators were swayed by Childers' and other opponents' emotional arguments.

Too many senators did not take into consideration that there is no draft presently, that Congress has always had the power to draft women in times of national emergency, or that the ERA has no sanction over the private and social relationships of men and women.

To let students know how their own representatives voted on the issue, those senators voting against the ERA were: Democrats; Dempsey Barron of Panama City, Lew Brantley of Jacksonville, W.D. Childers of Pensacola, Louis de la Parte of Tampa, Tom Gallen of Bradenton, Jim Johnston of Pensacola, Julian Lane of Tampa, Curtis Peterson of Lakeland and Bob Saunders of Gainesville.

Republicans against the ERA included: Richard J. Deeb of St. Petersburg, Don Gruber of Miami, Warren Henderson of Sarasota, Tom Johnson of West Palm Beach, David Lane of Ft. Lauderdale, David H. McClain of Tampa, Ken Plante of Orlando, Walter Sims of Orlando, Chester Stolzenburg of Ft. Lauderdale, Russell Sykes of West Palm Beach, John Ware of St. Petersburg and Charles Weber of Ft. Lauderdale.

The rationality of any further legislative action resulting from this Florida State Legislative session is highly questionable when the same legislators refused to guarantee the equal rights of all men and women by law.

"SORRY BETTER LATE THAN NEVER."

Pitts and Lee confession coerced?

Freddie Lee Pitts and Wilber Lee have spent the last eleven years in prison. They have spent nine of these years on death row with the horrible spectacle of the electric chair looming before them. Re-examinations of their case and the evidences used against them have pointed toward their innocence. In addition, the unveiling of the interrogative tactics which they underwent have convinced many that their confessions and guilty pleas were coerced through actual and threatened force.

Pitts and Lee were convicted and sentenced first in 1963. Since their convictions, evidences have surfaced showing that the State of Florida railroaded the two black men into prison by beating confessions out of them.

In a second trial in 1972, an army investigator testified that a visit with Pitts before the first trial indicated that Pitts had been beaten. The investigator testified that Pitts' head was badly bruised and his eyes were bloodshot. To indicate the racial atmosphere at the time of the first trial, the investigator quoted a comment made by Joe Townsend, a lie detector operator for the Florida Sheriff's bureau:

"The whole carload of these niggers is guilty."

In 1968, Willie Mae Lee, the prosecutor's key witness, testified that she had lied on Pitts and Lee because the police threatened to put her in the electric chair or in the chain gang. This testimony was not allowed in the second trial in 1972.

Besides the disallowance of this salient testimony, many other irregularities characterized the second trial. First, the members of the jury were all white with an average age much older than the two defendants. This composition of jurors violated their right to be judged by a jury of their peers. In addition, the racial history of Marianna, the site of the second trial, ensured a guilty verdict from an all-white jury. Marianna at the time was recovering from racial outburst at its local high school. During these outbursts, the local KKK rode through the black section of the city in a motorcade, leaving a dummy hanging in effigy with the inscription "dead fucking nigger."

The prosecution's successful suppression of the testimony of Curtis Adams, Jr., a white man who confessed to the crime but refused to testify unless granted immunity, was another irregularity in the second trial. In addition, Warren Holmes, a Miami criminologist and polygraph expert, was not allowed to testify in regards to the truth of Adam's confession. Although

THE ALTERNATIVE

By Eddie Bell

Adam's confession was proven to be true by lie detector and polygraph tests, the all-white jury convicted Pitts and Lee a second time. Logic can account for this conviction only as the substitution of racism for justice. In spite of the many suppressions, the case presented by the defense clearly indicated the innocence of the two defendants.

But in cases which blacks are accused of violating the rights of whites, history has proven that facts are the least important evidences. In such cases the demarcation between suspicion and guilt withers away, the trial becomes only a legal veneer to exhibit to a potentially condemning external world.

Pitts and Lee have suffered too much and too long because certain white people cannot discipline their racial emotions.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

'Tutorial'

Editor:

I am writing to complain about the "tutorial" program that the History Department runs, supposedly to help students with trouble in Western Civ classes. When this program was first run by Dr. Hair, it did a lot of good in helping those students with problems in understanding the lectures and reading, but now Dr. Hair has left FSU, and the program is being run by Dr. Oldson.

Since he took over in fall quarter, nothing has gone right. Tutors do not show up on time, or else come and spend the time bullshitting about school and their personal problems. Even those who try to help often do not know enough history to explain things.

Instead of trying to improve things, Dr. Oldson becomes very arrogant and defensive when students try to see him to complain — and it is hard to see him, because he is never around his office, and no one knows where he is.

He even blames the students themselves for the failure of the program, saying we really do not care about it!

The History Department should either stop pretending that it cares for students learning the material, or else should not put professors like Oldson in charge of such a program. Even the tutors complain about how it is run now, so something should be done fast.

The FSU Circle of Omicron Delta Kappa, a national leadership honorary, is now accepting membership applications. ODK, now more than sixty years old and 120 chapters strong, recognizes achievement in college scholarship, athletics, publications, social and religious affairs, music and fine arts.

"Membership in ODK presents a unique opportunity for recognized leaders among the students, faculty and staff of the university to work closely in both academic and non-academic ways to improve the educational environment and bring about better relations between all segments of the university community," Dr. Stephen Winters, Director of the Division of Basic Studies, said.

Application forms are now available in Room 351 Union and 116 Dodd Hall and can be filed by the applicant today. After today, applications will be accepted only under the sponsorship of an active member of the ODK circle. Membership selection is scheduled for April 16.

The mood of the veterans appeared to change when Rep. Marshall Harris of Miami addressed the crowd. Harris has been criticized for what veterans call reluctance to have the state give them aid.

"I'm the black hat in the crowd," Harris said, and explained that there were many other special interest groups that also were looking for state funds.

"Though you're in need, so are others," Harris said. "I would not support any educational fee waiver bill because it's a federal problem."

The last speaker to address the veterans outside the Capitol was a crippled black veteran from FAMU, identified only as Sergeant Brown," who told his audience, "We have legislators who were where you are now."

"They've made it now and they've forgotten you," said Brown. "They've gotten to the top of the ladder and now they're throwing stones down at those who haven't."

Brown urged the veterans to continue their attempts to get closer to the legislators by writing letters, marching and lobbying, "so that the legislators will empathize with us."

After speeches by nine representatives and several march organizers, the veterans headed inside the Capitol to speak with the legislators and their aides.

'Joy of Streaking' documents

BY TOM KIRWAN

It was only a matter of time, in this case a matter of weeks, that somebody would publish a book examining the streaking craze.

Just this week "The Joy of Streaking" hit the newsstands to fill the gap. Touting to be "a corpus of information that can serve as the foundation for the flourishing of a streaking culture," the book is a breezy look at the first stages of the streaking fad.

FSU's daring initial streak is exposed on two pages, while dozens of photographs document the goings-on at universities across the nation.

Realizing that such a book has to be seen and not read, author George Pleasant holds down the verbiage in his introduction and lets the photographs speak (streak?) for themselves.

The net effect is a bit devastating: 40 pages of the wackiest streaks you could imagine. The book documents streaks by unicycle, parachute, motorcycle and bicycle. A number of Washington D.C. streaks are shown as well as a few "weird place" streaks—at an ice rink, at a basketball game, at the Acropolis and at the Watergate Building.

On the deficit side, the book hurts because of a lack of documentation. What develops is a mish-mash of streaks: no effort was made to identify the streaks and give even the barest facts of the streaks the book's photographs document. Instead, unfortunately, the author tries (and fails) to supplement the photography with witty captions, which our memories, he resorted to using a number of photographs of poor quality and dubious appeal when compared to what has been produced more recently.

For kicks the book throws in some superimposed photos of improbable streaks in various locations. These seemed to be a waste of time and the real streak photos are much more amusing.

"The Joy of Streaking" cost $1.95 and is available at the University Bookstore, unless they're sold out by now. Ballantine Books published the book and it can be ordered through most bookstores.

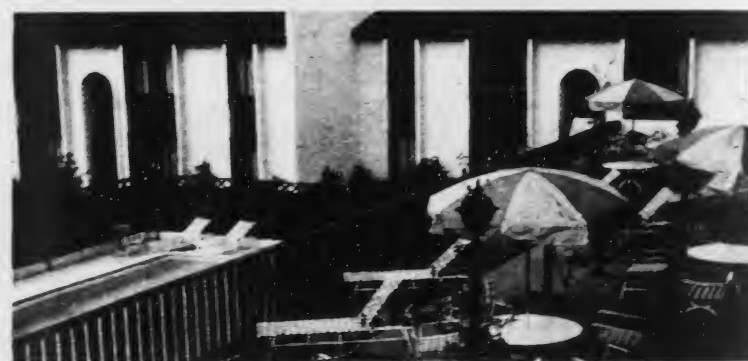

Overall, if you enjoyed streaking (or spectating), you'll probably get a good kick out of this book.

Review

come off as more corny than humorous.

In his rush to capitalize on the craze, the author has produced only a tiny fraction of what happened: the book documents only the barest beginnings of the craze. Only a few of the now famous streaks are shown. Perhaps this is more of an asset than a deficit, though, for the book captures the true spirit of the early streaks that later often degenerated into crowd pleasing and ass grabbing.

And because the author was working to produce a book while the fad is still fresh in Starting the night off right were the Ozark Mountain Daredevils. Somehow, the crowd wasn't as appreciative of their music as I expected.

Featuring such unusual instruments as clavichord and something that sounded like a bass Jew's harp, the Daredevils' music was acoustically oriented.

One song featured a bluegrass fiddle accompaniment that was smooth and easy. Another, named "Look Away" had a fine country honky-tonk piano intro that blended with a flowing five-part harmony.

Their music and humor were clean and uncluttered. Some of their music was reminiscent of the Grateful Dead, minus pedal steel.

'Plaza Suite' promises entertaining evening

BY RICHARD LEE

Laughs, energetic performances, and a full house audiences combine in the FSU Studio Theater's successful production of Neil Simon's hit Broadway comedy "Plaza Suite."

Set in Suite 719 of the Plaza Hotel in New York City, Simon's fast-paced play examines the more humorous aspects of the male-female relationship.

Each of the three acts is a separate story of unlikely partners in equally incredible situations. Each is directed separately also, which lends a touch of personal expertise with only minimal disruption in the continuity of the play. The first act, directed by Steve Crosby, explores the deteriorating state of matrimony in North American society. Although Crosby's direction slightly suppresses the comic tone of the act, a light but penetrating depiction of dissatisfaction and unfulfillment is achieved nicely.

Karen and Sam, played by Tina Moore and Danny Westbrook, are a late middle-aged couple celebrating their anniversary in the Plaza. Karen is warm, loving, submissive, and scatter-brained. She has mistaken the number of the room where she and Sam spent their honeymoon; she confused the date of the anniversary, and, later, can't remember how old she is. Yet, for all this she is the normal aging businessman's dream.

Sam, however, is not normal. Tired of Karen's boring domesticity, Sam seeks outside entertainment to confirm his masculinity and massage his massive ego.

Moore, as Karen, handled the role with more than competence. Although she never entirely relaxes onstage, the tension which results adds to the frantic, joyful personality of the character.

Westbrook was cast well in the role of overworked, dissatisfied, guilt-ridden Sam. His performance was smooth and convincing.

Act Two, directed by Katherine Talbert, is the exuberant highlight of the play. Jesse, a self-styled lady killer and pseudo bon vivant, is a successful Hollywood producer who invites his old high school girlfriend to the plaza and then attempts a hilarious seduction.

Sandy Smith, as Muriel, registered a supercharged and incredibly funny performance. Her amazing timing and control onstage delighted the audience.

Louis Cutolo, as Jesse, matched Smith's energy and turned an accomplished performance himself.

Both Smith and Cutolo should be congratulated for their well-sustained, antagonistic repartee.

The third act, directed by Jeffery Sparks, complimented the preceding act with more laughs and fine performances.

It is about Norma and Roy Hubley and the difficulties they have getting their daughter married. Mimsey, the daughter, locks herself in the bathroom, and the comedy begins when Roy attempts to break down the door, nearly breaking his arm. He then climbs out on the ledge in order to get to her through the bathroom window when the storm begins.

Again, the performances were capable and quite entertaining. Francine Schiffres, as Norma, and Wendell Collins, as Roy, were cast extremely well for their roles, convincing and delighting the audience.

The play will run through Saturday evening in Conradi Theater, Williams Building. Curtain is 8:15 p.m. and it is free for FSU students with ID.

Sandy Smith and Louis Cutolo share a drink in "Plaza Suite," Act II, which is playing in Conradi Theatre, Williams Building, tonight through Saturday at 8:15.

Doobies draw 10,000

BY ERIC MOSS

I'll never know how Keith Knudsen of the Doobie Brothers was able to play drums for over two hours in that Tallahassee chill without a shirt on.

But play he did, and it certainly turned on the 10,000

Daredevils did, "If You Wanta Get to Heaven, You Gotta Raise a Little Hell," which may say something.

The Doobie Brothers were... well, they were the same band that did "Toulouse Street" and "The Captain and Me."

For a boogie band, their musicianship is a fine as the best around. They may even be the best around.

Aside from their past hits like, "Listen to the Music," "Without Love" and the Byrd's "Jesus Is Just All Right," they played some new stuff that was also "just all right."

"Another Park, Another Sunday," undoubtedly destined to be their next hit single, featured a slower, gentler best and mellow harmonies.

Sandwiched between established hits were standard hard rock motorcycles songs like, "Road Angel," which impressed nearly everyone with traded riffs between drummers Knudsen and John Hartman.

Their finale was straight theatrics, with flashing lights and thick smoke billowing around them onstage. Somehow, they managed to play a song in the midst of all this.

Aside from the streakers who made a brief appearance on the other side of the stadium, the only truly remarkable performance was bassist Tiran Porter's. I got a real feeling from his unusual picking style as well as his warmth onstage.

My companion and I left before the encore, but I doubt it was more impressive than the rest of their show. I never really liked pre-packaged performances anyway, but I suppose this was the best of the lot.

Popular poet reads works

Highly acclaimed poet, Rosemary Daniell of Atlanta, will read selections from her new book of poems on Monday, Apr. 15 at 3:30 in Conradi Theater, Williams Building.

Daniell's book, "A Sexual Tour of the Deep South," is soon to be published by Holt, Rinehart and Wilson. Her poems have also appeared in numerous magazines and journals, such as the New York Quarterly and Atlantic Monthly.

First writing poetry in 1962 in a workshop conducted at Emory University by FSU poet Van K. Brock, Daniell has become an active force in promoting poetry in Georgia. Besides teaching poetry in schools and prisons throughout Georgia, she also reviews poetry for the Atlanta Journal-Constitution and organizes readings of recognized poets as well as for new talent.

WHO IS THE BEST TEACHER AT FSU?

Can you name one teacher who was better than all the others you had as an undergraduate? Or one you taught with and recognized his or her ability to really communicate with students? This is your chance to see that teacher recognized, not only with honor but with $1,000. Three such awards are presented annually by the Amoco Foundation (formerly Standard Oil of Indiana) to the University's most effective undergraduate teachers.

If you know someone who deserves this award, please fill out the following form and leave it with the secretary of the Religion Department, Williams Building, or send it via campus mail to Dr. John J. Carey, Religion Department, Florida State University.

Graduate Spouses Discuss Marital Stress

Florida State Chapter of the Society of the Sigma Xi will have a buffet supper at 6:30 p.m. and panel discussion on Monday, April 15, at the University Club, Dogwood Way.

The panel discussion on "Graduate Education and Scientific Research: A Contributor to Marital Stress?" will begin at 7:30 p.m. and is open to the public.

Panel members, the spouses of graduate students, will cover a broad area including financial problems and standard of living, time problems, finding jobs in the same geographical area, child care, and changing personal growth rates.

Panel participants will be Judy Brown, Pam Erickson, Connie Guy, Jim McMahon and Jim Stewart. Panel moderators will be Drs. Margaret and Winston Menzel from the Departments of Biological Sciences and Oceanography.

Higher Ed Symposium Scheduled

The sixth symposium for students and faculty in Higher Education will be Tuesday, April 16, when Dr. John Roueche will deliver remarks concerning "State Level Leadership in Curriculum Development."

Dr. Roueche is professor of Junior College Education at the University of Texas at Austin. His formal presentation is scheduled from 10:30 a.m.-12 noon in Room 240, University Union. Afternoon informal discussion groups will be from 2:30-3:30 in Room 222, Education Building.

These symposia are sponsored by the FSU State and Regional Higher Education Center, Dr. Louis Bender, director. A grant from the Kellogg Foundation makes the series possible. All faculty, students and State Department of Education personnel are invited to participate.

Amoco Foundation Nominations Due April 22

It's that time of year again... when everyone on campus has the opportunity to do something about true excellence in teaching.

In recognition of excellence in undergraduate teaching among the Florida State faculty, the Amoco Foundation (formerly Standard Oil of Indiana) annually sponsors three $1,000 awards.

The committee charged with the selection of recipients of these awards is currently accepting letters from students and faculty who wish to nominate persons they deem worthy of this recognition.

To make it easier to nominate the teacher of your choice, a coupon is being run this week and again next week in the Flambeau.

The deadline for submitting nominations is April 22, according to Dr. John J. Carey, chairman of the committee and a winner last year. Other recipients last year were Kay Bonner of Home Economics and Marilyn Gombosi, Music. Dr. Carey is associate professor of Religion.

"We hope to receive at least 100 nominations this year," said Dr. Carey, "so that the choice is truly representative."

Faculty of all ranks with two years of service are eligible except those who have previously received Coyle Moore or George Miller Awards or been named a Standard Oil Distinguished Professor for the past six years.

Last year's winners were chosen from 183 faculty members who were nominated by their colleagues or students. Final selections were made from 15 semi-finalists by a special faculty committee and ratings taken from 15 students in a class of each nominee.

Amoco's purpose in sponsoring the annual awards is to promote excellence in undergraduate teaching by recognizing outstanding teachers at Florida State.

Award winners are selected on the basis of resourcefulness in teaching and stimulation of student interest.

Gridders scrimmage Saturday

Florida State's football team will end its second week of spring practice Saturday with a scrimmage at 2 p.m. at Campbell Stadium that will be open to the public.

Head coach Darrell Mudra has informed the Flambeau that he has narrowed his field of prospective quarterbacks from eight to three. "We are going to go with Ron Coppess, Mark Orlando and Billy Prescott for now," Mudra said. "We feel as if this will give us a better opportunity to work harder with these three."

Orlando started a number of games for the Seminoles last season and the sophomore-to-be Prescott got the starting nod in the season's finale at Gainesville. Coppess is a transfer from a junior college in Kansas.

Mudra has outlined a plan which should keep the competition at the quarterback spot healthy. "We will look at two quarterbacks all the time and the third quarterback will be alternated if we feel the man in the spot is not doing a good job."

The Seminoles have now gone through two weeks of practice without any serious injuries, quite a departure from last year's injury-riddled spring program.

"I'm pleased with the way things are working out," Mudra related. "However, I'm never as pleased as I would like to be."

Bats explode as Herring rolls past Tampa, 11-1

Two big-run innings and the continued fine pitching of senior Ron Herring led the Florida State baseball team to an easy 11-1 victory over the University of Tampa at Seminole Field last night.

The win, coupled with the Tribe's 7-4 win over the Spartans Wednesday night, gave the Seminoles a sweep of the two game set.

Herring, who has been the most consistent pitcher on the staff lately, strolled through the first seven innings of the game giving up only three hits and striking out 11. He put down a Tampa rally in the eighth, but lost a bid for his second shutout of the season in the ninth when Tampa came up with three singles.

As far as FSU's offense went, it can be summed up in two innings, the third and the seventh.

The Seminoles jumped to a 4-0 lead in the third frame on three hits and a costly Tampa error that eventually opened the gates for the rally. The big blow in the inning was a two-run triple by designated hitter Jim Foxwell. All four of the tallies were unearned.

That was all the offense until the seventh. Then the Seminole bats, lifeless throughout much of the season, came through with their biggest single inning output this year. 13 Tribesmen came to bat in the inning as the Seminoles came through with seven runs on eight hits.

The win was Herring's third of the season against two losses, while the loss went to Tampa ace Sam Howell. Howell was thrown out of the game in the wild seventh inning after arguing vociferously and making a threatening gesture to the umpire.

Raising their record to 20-15 on the campaign, the Seminoles also fared well in Wednesday night's game.

In this contest, FSU lashed out 11 hits, but had scored all of its runs by the end of the third inning.

Again the "big inning" was the key as the Tribe broke loose for six runs on only three hits in a wild third inning that saw 11 men bat.

Freshman Jim Busby got things started with a single. After a walk to Guillermo Bonilla, Carlos Lezcano lined a single to drive in Busby for the first tally.

A walk to Windle Higginbotham, a Bill Daniel single, John Drews reaching base on a throwing error and a perfectly executed squeeze play forced in the other five runs. FSU now goes up against its second Mercer team of the week as the Tribe meet Mercer of Atlanta tonight in a 7:30 contest at Seminole Field.

WFL purchases Detroit Lions

BY SATIRESVILLE

Literally robbing the NFL Football League blind, the newly established World Football League made an unprecedented move by signing the entire Detroit Lions football team Thursday.

It was reportedly the largest mass signing since the Declaration of Independence.

The Lions, previously based in Detroit, will now play their home games in Saskatoon, Saskatchewan. Duke LeDuck, owner of the Saskatoon Canadians (what a clever name!), was interviewed in his home shortly after the signing. He was unavailable for comment.

The General Manager of the les Canadians, Jaques Goldberg, was misquoted as saying he dished out an unreported $8,000,000,000 in small bills to Lem Barney alone.

Barney was quoted as saying, "No more watermelon and grits for me. I'm going to move momma to Beverly Hills."

Steve Owens, star running back for the Lions, has said he will not report to Canada. "I will not report to Canada," said Owens.

Joe Schmidt, coach of the Lions, had a few words for the press. "Jacques called me this morning and told me of his plans to purchase the team. We negotiated for awhile and he finally agreed to pay me $35,000 a year to coach the team, and if I wanted to come out of retirement and play, I could get $850,000 a year or $2.10 an hour, whichever worked out better."

"So I said, 'Hell' and I signed as soon as he brought the contract over. Now I hear that Barney's contract calls for a 12 figure number. Hell, I ain't reporting."

Netters top Clemson 5-4

CLEMSON, S.C. — Florida State ran its tennis record to 8-4 here yesterday with a 5-4 victory over Clemson.

Reggie Genois, Ricardo Bernd, Juan Ortiz and Gordon Jones won singles matches for the Seminoles while Jones and Enrique Andrade won the No. 3 doubles to clinch the victory.

Singles

Reggie Genois (FSU) def. Murphy Nunna 6-2, 2-6, 7-5; Herb Cooper (C) def. Charlie Diggins 6-7, 6-4, 7-6; Ricardo Bernd (FSU) def. Ali Akbar 6-2, 6-3; Sasaf Husain (C) def. Enrique Andrade 6-2, 6-3; Juan Ortiz (FSU) def. Stephan LaPorte 6-2, 6-1; Gordon Jones (FSU) def. Pike Rowley 6-2, 6-1.

Classic won their first round matches Wednesday with Floridians Larry Turville and Gery Groslimond advancing to the quarter-finals.

Quarterfinal matches begin today at 1 p.m. and tickets cost $1. Saturday's and Sunday's matches will start at 1 and 2 p.m. respectively and tickets will cost $3 for each day's play. The Forest Meadows Racquette Club is located north of Tallahassee on Meridian Road.

Top-seeded Ramiro Benavides, Bolivia's number one player, will meet seventh-seeded Gary Groslimond of Daytona Beach today at 3 p.m. Groslimond was a member of the Stanford University team that won the NCAA title two years ago.

Rick Fisher, another former Stanford player and the tournament's number two seed, advanced to the quarters with wins over Graham Snook of New Zealand (6-2,6-3) and Guy Fritz of Baltimore (6-4, 6-3).

Tracksters dual meet with Miss. State at Godby

The Florida State track team will run its first dual meet of the season against Mississippi State Saturday at 2:30 p.m. on the Godby High School track.

Due to heavy rains the past few weeks, construction of the Seminole's new Chevron 440 track is not yet completed, forcing the move to the Godby track.

Although Mississippi State will be very strong in the jumping events, their main strength lies in the overall track balance in all events.

The Bulldogs have several outstanding athletes of national caliber. Seigha Porbeni, a native of Nigeria, is a talented triple and long jumper and along with Tim Bates and Vernon White make up the backbone of the Bulldog track team.

White, an excellent sprinter, will be in stiff competition with the Seminole's Vesco Bradley in the dashes. Bates will be prominent in both the 440 and mile relays, along with individual performances in the 440 and 220.

The Seminole will counter with many outstanding athletes of their own. All-America Danny Smith will run in the 440-yard relay, 120-yard high hurdles, 100-yard dash and 220-yard dash. Tyrone Frederick and Bradley will be counted on to score well in the middle distances and sprints.

Many of the Seminole will be evenly matched in their events, facing opponents with equal performances. Tribe pole vaulters Keith Ingram and Ron Fletcher will find strong competition in MSU's Joe Gant, who has equaled their best vault of 15-6. In the high jump, both Jeff Nedimyer of FSU and Leslie Whitehead of MSU have cleared 6-11.

Florida State Coach Mike Long outlined what the Seminole must do to win the meet. "We must win our share of the events in which we match up evenly with MSU and win all the events in which we are favored."

After the MSU meet Saturday, the Seminole will host South Carolina, April 20 at 7:30 p.m. on the new track

Deviney wins 14-8 despite Cowart

Deviney Hall took off right where it ended the football season Wednesday afternoon with a convincing 14-8 win over Salley 7th. Deviney blasted out 18 hits to the gritty Salley's 14.

Deviney was heard rumoring a trade for Salley's third baseman Paul Cowart after he made tough play after play look effortless and brought oohs and aahs from the 150 people in attendance.

Mike Wilensky, Deviney Hall second baseman, said, "That cat Cowart at third was something else. I don't see why he is playing for such a bush league team like Salley 7th. The kid is a definite All-Intramurals."

Magnolia 2nd held off a late DeGraff 2nd rally to win 10-6. Pete Walker had a perfect day at the plate going 4-4 as Landis 4th east beat the Kellum 5th Possums 6-3.

Independent teams seem to take over from the fraternities in their high scoring games of Wednesday.

The master batters scored an impressive 19-4 win over the St. Slaughters Revenge. The Lake Worth Loadies needed eight runs in the final inning to defeat Yuck Fou Two 18-10.

The Quick Grits were really only mush as they lost to the Hucksters 14-6. Fred Culver, worming his way into the game

FSU has set a May 15 deadline on housing applications and apartment managers are urging students to "start looking around now." It's that time of year when students must decide whether on-campus dwelling or apartment life is for them.

One option open to students is residence in an on-campus facility. At FSU, 12 undergraduate residence halls, accommodating approximately 3,550 residents, and the new undergraduate dorm, which will house 240 students, comprise the undergraduate housing program.

Residence halls at FSU are divided into visitation and non-visitation living units. Those halls offering visitation this fall are Broward and Magnolia, men's dorms, Gilchrist and Dorman, women's dorms; and Cawthon, Deviney, Kellum, Landis and Salley, coed dorms. Only three dorms, DeGraff, Jennie Murphree and Reynolds will remain non-visitation.

Gregory urges youth of country to organize

BY EDDIE BELL

Cautioning the youth of America against the CIA, big business and the prejudices of their parents, black social critic and political activist Dick Gregory urged his audiences last Thursday night "to organize" against the country's "moral bankruptcy."

Gregory, a 1968 Presidential candidate, accused the CIA of conspiratorial assassinations and other clandestine activities.

The assassinations of John and Robert Kennedy and the attempted assassination of Alabama Governor George Wallace were cited by Gregory as examples of the "tyrannical actions of the CIA." In addition, Gregory blamed the "violent tactics" employed by federal officials in suppressing demonstrations at Kent State and other universities on the desire of the CIA to eliminate threats to the status quo.

Gregory cited Watergate as a fulfillment of Nixon's promise to take crime off the streets.

"Someone should have asked, where are you going to take it, Pres?" Gregory said. "We've got a president that keeps talking about under no circumstances will we grant amnesty to draft dodgers, but he wants immunity for his own crimes."

Gregory elicited much applause and laughter from the standing-room-only audience with his comments on inflation.

"With the price of food so high, it's darn near cheaper to eat money," Gregory said. "Have you seen the price of onions lately? My wife used to cry when she peeled them; now she cries when she buys them. If the price of onions keeps rising, in three or four months it will be a status symbol to have them on your breath."

The gasoline shortage was another topic of satire for Gregory. He blamed the shortage on big business.

"Big business knows more about what's going on in your head than you know about what's going on in their head," Gregory said. "They knew that all they had to do to get the Alaskan Pipeline through was to make it uncomfortable for you for five or six weeks and you'd let them put pipes through your house."

Gregory also told the Ruby Diamond crowd of a news story reporting a large amount of heroin being shipped into the country sewn into the bodies of dead American GIs.

"Who would be slick enough to do that except the CIA?" Gregory asked, attributing the control of drug traffic in the U.S. to the Central Intelligence Agency (CIA).

In a serious tone, Gregory said the future of America rests with young people who must "turn America completely around and put it on the right path."

"The only morality this country has got left is you," Gregory said to the predominantly youthful audience. "If you all don't organize across the country, you're in trouble."

Annual residence-hunting to begin

BY CRESTON NELSON

FSU has set a May 15 deadline on housing applications and apartment managers are urging students to "start looking around now." It's that time of year when students must decide whether on-campus dwelling or apartment life is for them.

One option open to students is residence in an on-campus facility. At FSU, 12 undergraduate residence halls, accommodating approximately 3,550 residents, and the new undergraduate dorm, which will house 240 students, comprise the undergraduate housing program.

Residence halls at FSU are divided into visitation and non-visitation living units. Those halls offering visitation this fall are Broward and Magnolia, men's dorms; Gilchrist and Dorman, women's dorms; and Cawthon, Deviney, Kellum, Landis and Salley, coed dorms. Only three dorms, DeGraff, Jennie Murphree and Reynolds will remain non-visitation.

According to a pamphlet distributed by the housing office, a student's choice of on-campus residence is based essentially upon four criteria: their decision regarding participation in visitation or non-visitation programs, their desire to live in a coed or non-coed facility, their interest in special developmental programs offered in particular units, and their desire to have a telephone in their rooms.

Special programs are being planned for certain residence halls this fall. Among these are the Gilchrist-Broward Halls music appreciation program, the Dorman Hall Spanish House, and the Landis Hall Curricular Career Information Service (CCIS).

The cost of university housing for Fall Quarter will range from $169.00 to $195.00 per quarter for a standard double room and includes services as coin-operated laundry facilities, linen service and Post Office boxes. Single rooms, rooms with a bath, or a double occupancy suite in Salley Hall each costs an additional $30.00.

Cash and Osceola Halls are privately-owned residence halls adjacent to the campus, not operated by FSU. Both Cash and Osceola halls offer meal plans.

The new undergraduate apartment buildings will be open for the first time Fall Quarter. The accommodations for the 240 residents will be equally divided between men and women.

Those students who are currently living in residence halls and those students who were living in residence halls, but who are now interning, will have first option on the new apartments.

The cost for the apartments will be $80.00 per resident per month. As of Friday only 135 students had applied for residence in the complex.

According to Bonnie Glisson, Assistant Director for Administration in the Housing Office, most people living in dormitories are freshmen. A large majority of this group is women.

"There is a reluctance on behalf of women and their parents to leave the campus area," Glisson said.

Although she is aware of a higher level of disturbance in dormitories, Glisson felt that most students live in residence halls "because they really like it." She added that, in her opinion, it is less expensive in the long run to live on campus.

Regency Realty Corporation, Meridian Management Company, Commonwealth Capital

Corporation, and Fidelity Management Co., Inc. are the major realtors dealing in apartments in Tallahassee.

Regency Realty's holdings include Perimeter Plaza, The Plaza and Parkwood Apartments. It offers sole twelve-month leases and the price of a one bedroom apartment ranges from $105.00 to $160.00 per month.

Objectives of task force in question

BY MIKE BRENNAN

Vice President for Student Educational Services Stephen McClellan, who established a task force following the Student Supreme Court's decision in the Gary Goldacker visitation case, and chairperson of the task force John Bonanno, appear to be in conflict over the objectives of the task force.

Bonanno was reported to have told the task force members at their first meeting Friday that the purpose of the task force was to clear up the ambiguities between the Pow Wow and the Student Government constitution in jurisdiction over cases involving visitation violation.

Bonanno was reported to have further stated that the task force's recommendation would have no effect on the Goldacker case and would be applicable only to future cases.

However, McClellan said, in a telephone interview prior to the meeting Friday, that the findings of the task force would bear directly on the Goldacker case and that it would be best to have the question of jurisdiction cleared up before he made a decision on the case.

"I think it is in the best interest of students who have been similarly affected by this to have the situation resolved," McClellan said.

He also pointed out that Goldacker will not have any permanent record of a housing violation because all records expire with the end of the housing contract.

Last Wednesday, task force member and Student Supreme Court Chief Justice John Fleming threatened to resign from the task force if the findings of the task force were to be used to decide the Goldacker case.

"As a member of the Student Supreme Court, I would view it as a conflict of interest for me to take part in recommending whether a decision by the Court should be affirmed or reversed," Fleming said.

Reps to visit campus

Florida state legislators will be on the FSU campus this week as part of the annual spring legislative visit coordinated by the Inter-Residence Hall Council (IRHC).

Bob High, president of IRHC, said that approximately 50 legislators responded to invitations to be a part of the annual visit.

Students can get more information about the annual affair tonight at 7 in Room 252 Union. A schedule will be available at the meeting telling where each legislator will speak, High said.

Ziegler criticizes remarks by Ford

KEY BISCAYNE, Fla. — White House Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler sharply criticized Sunday as "inappropriate" remarks by Vice President Gerald L. Ford on his future plans should President Nixon resign or be compelled to leave office.

Speaking of Nixon, Ziegler said, "He is going to be here until 1977."

Ziegler made the comment to a TV interviewer as he left the Key Biscayne Community Church where Nixon and his family attended Easter worship services.

It was the first public comment by a White House official on the interview which Ford gave to John Osborne of The New Republic magazine which has upset presidential aides.

In the article, Ford discussed a possible future cabinet should he assume the presidency before Nixon's second term ends and he said Ziegler definitely would not be asked to remain as press secretary.

Asked about Ford's remarks to Osborne, Ziegler said grimly, "I don't think that's an appropriate thing to talk about on Easter Sunday. It's not appropriate. He is going to be around here until 1977."

In the article Ford repeated that he does not believe there will be a mid-term succession to the presidency and "he does not want it to happen."

But in discussing his vision of a Ford cabinet, the vice president made it clear that Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger would stay on and Defense Secretary James Schlesinger would be dropped. The article has been widely quoted and Ford — appearing somewhat uncomfortable about it — has been questioned further on this current speaking tour. His press secretary, Paul Miltich, said Ford emphasized to reporters that he does not expect to be president, but was willing to answer speculative questions on what he would do as president because of the inherent responsibility of any vice president to be prepared for the White House.

Tax reform bill to be introduced to Congress

RAPID CITY, S.D. — Sen. George S. McGovern, D-S.D., said Sunday he will introduce a comprehensive tax reform bill patterned after the proposals outlined during his 1972 presidential campaign.

He said the bill, to be introduced when Congress returns from its Easter recess, would raise more than $20 billion in new revenue and provide substantial tax relief for the average taxpayer, small businessman and farmer.

The bill will include a plan first advocated by economist Joseph Pechman of the Brookings Institution to increase the individual exemption to $850 and the low income allowance to $150. It would provide for automatic increases in both items plus the standard deduction to keep pace with the cost of living.

SLA marks Westbrook

SAN FRANCISCO — Colston Westbrook has been living a hide-and-seek existence of deadly earnest, staying one step ahead of gunmen for a fanatical sect whose trademark is cyanide laced bullets.

But Sunday was Easter and Westbrook just wanted to soak up the bright California sunshine and get out of his mind the danger than may have stalked him since April 3.

"What I'm doing just now — today is Easter and I'm trying to enjoy Easter," he said. "I'd like to enjoy Easter before I die."

Westbrook is one of three persons hiding because of a public announcement from the terrorist Symbionese Liberation Army that they are marked for death. The SLA, which claims responsibility for the murder of the superintendent of Oakland schools and the kidnapping of newspaper heiress Patricia Hearst, has said the three are FBI and police informers.

In addition to Westbrook, SLA gunmen seek Robyn Steiner, who dated one of the sect's members, and Chris Thompson, former proprietor of a soul food stand.

"My plans are to keep alive," Westbrook said in a telephone call to United Press International. "I'm on vacation. I go in and out of the front place. Business is as normal except for the threat on my life."

Crowd jams 100-acre farm

Fiddlers Convention breeds rock

UNION GROVE, N.C. (UPI) — The Old Time Fiddlers Convention, which began 50 years ago with a small group of "pickers and singers," seemed more like a raucous rock festival this year with 100,000 people jamming a 100-acre farm.

The crowd, mostly in their 20s and younger, made the pilgrimage to this rural North Carolina hill town to drink, smoke grass and — in some cases — to listen to blue grass and string band music.

Police described the throng as orderly, although some 200 persons were arrested on drug, alcohol and traffic charges.

Promoter J. Pierce Van Hoy denied the two-day event had been cheapened by the flock of young people. The crowds, he said, were a sign of renewed interest in hill music.

"If the older folks are not here, what's keeping them out is that this kind of thing requires stamina," said the 56-year-old Van Hoy. "It's a challenge."

"They can't keep up in a big area like this. They can't climb the hills. They can't cut the mustard."

Tommy Jarrell, one of the oldest fiddlers at the convention at 73, disagreed. The young people, he said, were more intent on being part of the scene than hearing the country tunes which brought the convention fame.

"A lot of people got disgusted last year. There's so damn much racket down there in the main tent, ain't nobody can hear anything," he said.

But Jarrell, a major figure in the world of string band fiddling, still feels the convention necessary.

"Not too many folks can play this kind of music," he noted. "It's about gone. They better get it while it's here."

A new breed of young musicians was drawn to the event, many like the Swamp Root String Band from Rochester, New York.

"When they first got up to play," said Jarrell, "I said to myself, now I won't hear nothing but a damn bunch of kids. But they were good. They even played some of my tunes."

"It's a change from the humdrum everyday rock and roll. It's a lot less commercial," said the group's Joe Rickard. But because of the crowd, the Swamp Root String Band isn't sure it will return next year.

"Most of the people are here to see the other people. You can hear the rock and roll tapes coming out of their cars. They're not that interested in the music," said a woman band player in the group.

On Sunday, police said the crowd was "moving out right steady," leaving behind a clutter of beer cans and rubbish.

Mysterious sphere found

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (UPI) — A Jacksonville woman whose son found a mysterious sphere that can roll around without being pushed said she is sending it by jet today to Dr. J. Allen Hynek, an astronomer and UFO expert at Northwestern University in Illinois.

Mrs. Jerri Betz said she still has no clues to what the ball is. It is described as metallic and a little smaller than a bowling ball.

Mrs. Betz said limited tests conducted by the Navy showed the object, which weighs about 25 pounds, is made of high grade steel and contains three or four other smaller spheres inside.

Mrs. Betz said any further tests by the Navy would require cutting the metal, and she wanted to avoid that. She said she hopes Dr. Hynek can come up with some sort of answer for her.

Mrs. Betz said she, her husband Antoine and her son Terry, a 21-year-old pre-med student, were walking through their estate in Fort Georges Island north of here last week when Terry spotted the object.

She said it was lying in the grass, but there were no indentations in the ground to indicate it had fallen from any great height.

Mrs. Betz said the sphere has several odd properties.

"Once when a television camera crew was here, we placed our toy poodle next to it to indicate its size," she said.

"When the dog got next to the sphere, she began to whimper and cover her ears with her paws, something I've never seen her do before."

She said another time she placed it in the middle of a table. Without anybody touching it, it rolled to the edge and then began to move around the four sides, she said.

Daniell began writing in workshop conducted by FSU 1962 in an Emory University poet and professor Van K.

Brock. She continued writing under the tutelage of southern poet and novelist James Dickey and later Daniell conducted the Emory workshop herself.

Daniell has been an active force in poetry in Atlanta and Georgia: in organizing readings of recognized poets as well as new talent; in reviewing poetry regularly several years for the Atlanta Journal-Constitution book section; and in coordinating the Georgia Poets-in-the-Schools program statewide for the last three years. She has also participated extensively in teaching poetry in the schools, prisons and other public institutions in Georgia and other states and is an effective reader of her own poetry which she has read widely throughout the southeast.

Daniell's reading is sponsored by the FSU Union Program Arts Committee and is one in a continuing series of readings organized under the auspices of the Appalachian Poetry Center in cooperation with various groups and organizations. The public is invited.

Co-op expands operation, cuisine

The Piscean Connection, a cheese and meat co-op that began six months ago in Tallahassee, was recently forced into store-front operation after being evicted from the co-op's apartment location and headquarters in Alumni Village.

The co-op was served with an eviction notice on April 4 for "using our Alumni Village apartment as a place to package and cut the products for the co-op," according to a co-op spokesperson.

"We were faced with the choice of closing up or going into it full-time," the spokesperson said, "so we opted for opening up a store."

The new Piscean Connection storefront will "be a blend of an Italian cafe, art gallery, gourmet grocery and a video access center as soon as possible," a co-op spokesperson said.

The Piscean Connection will offer "Italian, Jewish and other international cuisine, espresso coffee, fresh juices and cheese."

"People visiting the Piscean Connection will be able to eat and drink while listening to classical music or good jazz, in addition to having an outlet for creating and displaying beautiful things," a co-op spokesperson said.

Co-op representatives are presently trying to locate an adequate storefront location, and solicit money and community support by offering $5 membership to the co-op, as well as a newsletter with "free classified ads and space for people's opinions," according to a co-op spokesperson.

Meanwhile, the Piscean Connection truck will be at the Alumni Village vegetable co-op every Thursday at 5 p.m. and at the FSU Trailer Park on Thursdays at 7 p.m.

A co-op representative also said that they "will deliver if you live in the FSU area."

The Piscean Connection co-op offers meat and cheeses ranging from Braunschweiger to provolone, "at prices well under those of the major supermarkets, giving people an alternative to 'rip-off' prices," said a co-op spokesperson.

For more information, write The Piscean Connection at P.O. Box 20046, or call 575-6932.

Nurse practicing course begins

Dr. Robert C. Hunter, director of the University Health Service at FSU, is sponsoring a 19-week training course for Nurse Practitioners beginning today.

The course involves seven weeks of classroom study and a 12-week internship. Working concurrently with campus physicians, the program intends to provide training in physical diagnosis, physical examinations and will include basic laboratory and x-ray studies.

According to Dr. Hunter, the course is "part of an effort to increase primary medical care in the Big Bend area by expanding the role of the registered nurse."

"The program is supported by a $30,000 grant from the Florida Regional Medical Program, and there will be no tuition charge for those accepted," Dr. Hunter said.

Applicants should be registered nurses with three or more years of clinical experience. Acceptance of the number of applicants will depend on the availability of physician supervisors.

Classes will be held in the University Health Center with the internship arranged through the supervising physician.

Housing

Leases offered by other companies vary from six to nine months. Only two apartment complexes contacted, Tally Ho and Colony Club, offer quarterly leases.

Most apartments include all utilities with the exception of electricity in the monthly rental fee. The majority also require deposits for rent and damages.

The majority of students interviewed are happy with apartment life. Most cited privacy as the main factor in their move off campus. "I felt like I was 'staying' in the dorm while I feel like I'm 'living' in the apartment," one apartment resident said.

One former dorm resident stated that she wouldn't go back to dorm life, but wouldn't give up her first year in a dorm.

"It's harder to meet people once you move off campus and most of my friends are people I met as a freshman in the dorm," she said.

Others interviewed complained of the difficulty of meeting people in an apartment complex. However, most stated that the tenant's happiness "depends on getting into a good complex."

There was some disagreement as to whether apartment life is more expensive than on-campus housing. Some argued that money saved on food costs makes up for the difference in dorm and apartment rates. Others said that money is a real problem.

All tenants warned would-be lease signers to "really check the contract" before they sign. They especially urged students to look for special clauses.

Bradley explodes to two track victories

BY BRUCE RABEN

Vesco Bradley walked sheepishly to where I was standing on the infield of the Gandy High School track Saturday afternoon and after winning his second event of the day, there was little else he could do but smile.

Bradley's win in the 100-yard and 220-yard dashes paced Florida State to their first outdoor dual meet win of the season over an outmanned Mississippi State track team 104-41.

"These wins make me very happy," Bradley said grinning. "It has been a long road back since my injury at the Florida Relays last year and I hope I'm finally getting to the point where I was at the Junior College Nationals."

Bradley won Saturday's 100 in 9.5 and came back moments later to take top honors in the 220 with a time of 21.3.

As a freshman at Seminole JC in Sanford, Bradley won the National JC long jump with a leap of 24-6 and took second place in the 100 and 220 to earn the award as the meet's outstanding performer.

An injury and laboring in the shadow of All-American Danny Smith have not helped Bradley gain any recognition at Florida State.

So what does he do? He goes out and beats Smith in the 100 and 220. However, Smith did manage his own victory in the 120-yard high hurdles — his specialty event.

In other events, Bobby Brooks, running his first three-mile race of the year, beat a six-man field by nearly half a minute with a time of 14:13.1.

"For his first race of the season, it was just super," head coach Mike Long said. "Bobby has only run that race better one time, and it was last year."

Mark Herman took first place honors in the 440-yard intermediate hurdles and was the leadoff man in the Seminole winning mile relay team.

NCAA fourth-place finisher Tyrone Frederick won his specialty by running a 1:52.7 in the 880-yard run.

Randy Hutchinson led a Seminole contingent of field event winners by taking the javelin throw with a heave of 221-11 feet.

Charlie Harris and Rudy Falana finished one-two for the Seminoles in the triple jump and reversed the order in the long jump.

Long jump — 1, Falana (FSU); 2, Harris (FSU); 3, Porbeni (MSU); 22-4.
Pole Vault — 1, Fletcher (FSU); 2, Gant (MSU); 3, McVey (MSU); 14-6.
Shot put — 1, Nespoli (MSU); 2, Brown (FSU); 3, Benson (FSU); 50-11 1/2.
Javelin — 1, Hutchinson (FSU); 2, Lewis (MSU); 3, Narozanich (FSU); 221-11.
440 relay — 1, MSU; 2, FSU; T. 41.6.
Mile run — 1, Burr (FSU); 2, Ramers (FSU); 3, James (FSU); 4:18.4.
120 high hurdles — 1, Smith (FSU); 2, Brown (FSU); 3, Glover (MSU); T. 14.2.
440 run — 1, Bates (MSU); 2, Garren (FSU); 3, Deaton (MSU); T. 49.0.
High jump — 1, Nedimyer (FSU); 2, Lee (FSU); 3, Whitehead (MSU); 6-8.
100 dash — 1, Bradley (FSU); 2, Smith (FSU); 3, White (MSU); T. 9.5.

Hitting or pitching comes through to give Seminoles sixth straight win

"Our pitching has been so good of late, I haven't been able to work my relief pitchers in a week," head baseball coach Jack Stallings said Friday night after his club had topped Mercer of Macon 5-0.

"I don't know what I can do about our pitching," said Stallings Saturday afternoon after FSU had outlasted Mercer for its sixth straight win 13-11. "You can't go out there and relax and then expect to turn your good stuff on again."

With no idea of what to expect from his team today, Stallings will send the Tribe, with six straight wins, against Florida International of Miami for a day-night doubleheader beginning at 1:30 on the Seminole diamond.

It was that kind of a weekend for Stallings and his band of young swatters. The Tribe batsmen had to scrap for every run Friday, while in the game Saturday 14 hits produced 13 runs.

The pitching for the two weekend contests was just as inconsistent. Larry Jones permitted only four hits in shutting out the Bears in the first contest. But Saturday, it took four Seminole pitchers to retire the Bears and give the Seminoles their 22 win against 15 defeats.

Saturday the Seminoles jumped out to a seven run first inning lead on the strength of a Jim Foxwell three run homer. The blast, his second in two days and third of the year, was a 370-foot shot over the leftfield fence.

Twelve Seminoles went to bat in that first inning and seven connected for hits, sending starter Claude Smith to an early shower.

Two run singles by Windle Higginbotham and Marty Maier in the fourth and sixth innings kept the Tribe's momentum alive, but in the meantime Mercer had been pecking away inning by inning.

In the eighth, the roof caved in for Seminole reliever Danny O'Brien who had replaced Larry Rothchild in the fourth. Mercer touched O'Brien for three straight hits and three runs and then added two more runs off the third pitcher of the day, Dave Brown.

Mike Kelly finally got in the last out of the eighth and retired three men in order in the ninth to pick up his first victory against one defeat.

Seventh Annual Bridal Fair

Bridal Fair

The seventh annual Bridal Fair will be presented in the Union Ballroom at FSU tomorrow, April 16, from 12 noon until 9 p.m. The fair is being presented in conjunction with the Leisure Program Office and Modern Bride Magazine. Admission is free and the public and all students are welcome.

Two fashion shows featuring the latest in wedding and trousseau fashions will be presented by Rheinlaunders of Tallahassee. The fashion shows will be at 3:30 and 7:30 p.m., and doorprizes from local merchants will accompany each show. Music will be provided by music students from FSU, and refreshments will follow each showing.

The Bridal Fair deals with every aspect of the Bride's world from the moment she accepts the diamond ring until the moment she says "I do."

Local and national merchants will also display their crystal, china, silver, cookware and home appliances. In short, everything for the bride will be found at this fair, so don't miss it! See you tomorrow.

Young Democrats

The Florida State University Young Democrats will be holding Elections on April 15, 1974. The meeting is in 411 Bellamy Building (on the University Campus) at 8 p.m. All members are asked to attend.

Congratulations Veterans It Was A Great Walk to the Capitol!

Now we have to keep working on the individual legislators. We must use our new lobbying status, and keep the issue constantly in view. Don't let them forget how important our education is to us!

Use your list of Senators and Representatives. See them, talk to them, write letters to them. We have absolutely nothing to lose and much to gain. Keep up the pressure. It's our future that's being decided, so raise your voice! We ARE being heard!

Consumers Unite!

You're a consumer; you buy things of one sort or another, right? So help yourself save money on your purchases by simply stopping by Room 327 Union and picking up a free consumer's card, which entitles you to an average of about 10% off the purchase price of items bought from participating merchants.

Everyone be sure to pick up this updated list of merchants because lots of new businesses have been added. Now you can even get discounts on food and beer. A word of reminder — be sure to present your discount card BEFORE the merchant rings up your sale or he won't be able to grant the discount. In addition, we will soon have an informative series of consumer information brochures available to students. If you're receiving poor service or being downright ripped-off, we'll help you find out how and where to take action.

In the meantime, please attend the Consumer Association meeting Tuesday, April 16, at 7:30 p.m. in 327 Union, and offer your ideas and participation to help get this and many other consumer-oriented projects going.

Bicycle Trails

Fill Out This Questionnaire!

The FSU Environmental Action Group is continuing their campaign to improve and expand the Tallahassee bicycle trail system. They need lots of information about your problems with the existing system, as well as your suggestions for future improvements. Here's your chance to voice your frustrations as a bicycle rider! Fill out the following questionnaire and address it to: EAG, FSU Box 6608, Tallahassee, Florida, 32306. If you mail it on campus, remember to use the campus mail system — it's free! For additional information, call Bernie Windham, 488-6370 during the day, and 224-8386 after five.

Fijis hold Bigham to one single, lose to SAE anyway

Home run slugger Paul "The Hammer" Bigham was held to a measly single by the Fijis, but SAE still managed to pull out a 6-4 victory and raised its record to 2-0.

In other action, Chi Phi could manage only three runs compared to the 27 they got last outing, but it was still one run more than Sigma Nu and gave the Chi Phis their second win in as many games.

Pi Kappa Phi won its first game of the season in an extra inning triumph over Phi Delta Theta. Tremaine and Huller each had three hits in the contest and without first names, they could be a song and dance team as far as I'm concerned.

ATO was held scoreless by Lambda Chi Alpha in losing 14-0.

Sigma Phi Epsilon and Tau Kappa Epsilon played one of those dull, defensive, low-scoring games like the old White Sox and new Dodgers. When everyone awoke, Sigma Phi had won 2-1.

Pi Kappa Alpha beat Kappa Sigma 6-4 and Pi Kappa Tau went wild in defeating Alpha Epsilon Pi 24-0. The Phi Taus have scored 35 runs in their two games.

Sorority softball action got underway with the Delta Zeta defeating the Tri Sigs 13-4. The Tri Sigs pitching staff had trouble finding the strike zone and the DZs used the extra walks to their advantage. Six of the free passes eventually came around to score.

Rugby wins two games

AUBURN, Ala. - Florida State's rugby team scored a 36-0 victory over Auburn University Saturday afternoon, and the FSU "B" team won, 11-0.

Bubba Wade, Armand Vari, Steve Arnsdorff, Jim Tyson, John Fowler, Bill Crusselle, Jim Welsh all scored four-point goals and Keith Montford tallied an additional four points kicking. Crusselle also scored four points kicking in addition to the other four points he tallied.

In the "B" team, Mike Alley scored a four-point goal and Tom Beal tallied a four-point goal and connected on a three-point penalty kick to account for the Seminole scoring.

FSU is now 17-4-1 for the season and will play host to the Atlanta Old White rugby club behind Florida High on Saturday beginning at 2 p.m.

I-M news

The intramural fraternity tennis tournament gets underway Wednesday, April 17 and all entrants must be signed up today. Players who have a tennis background should make note of such on the entry form for the purposes of proper seeding.

The women's intramural tennis draw has been posted outside the I-M office - Room 117 Tully Gym - and all entries should come by and check their first round opponents.

Monday and Tuesday will be provided for the play of these first round matches and all results must be turned into the I-M office.

Softball schedules for the women are now available in Room 117 Tully Gym. All teams are urged to come by and pick up a copy. Games are scheduled for fields four and five, Monday - Thursday.

FSU dorms to host legislative rap sessions

Florida senators and representatives will be coming to FSU dormitories this week to participate in the Inter-Residence Hall Council-sponsored rap sessions.

Invitations were sent to each Florida legislator. Among the 50 who responded to the invitations are Reps. Elaine Gordon, Ralph Turlington, and Carrol Webb. Sen. Richard Pettigrew also responded.

Magnolia Hall will be among the first of the dorms to host the legislators. Rep. Marshall Harris, Chairman of the Appropriations Committee, and Paul Steinberg are scheduled to meet with interested students there at 8:30 tonight.

Wednesday night's tentative schedule has Sen. John Vogt and Reps. Arthur Rude and Roger Wilson meeting with students at 9:30 p.m. in the Reynolds Hall parlor. The Landis Hall program will begin at 8 p.m. and tentative speakers include Reps. Ted Cohen, Carrol Webb, and Elvin Martinez.

Reps. John Malloy and Eugene Tubbs will speak in the lounge of Dorman Hall Wednesday night at 7:30. On Thursday night, Reps. Hyatt Brown and Paul Nuckolls will speak at Dorman at 7:30.

Reps. Curtis Kiser, Mary Singleton, and Pat Thomas are scheduled for Degraff Hall at 7 Thursday evening.

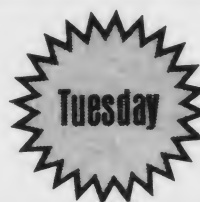

Bob High, President of the Inter-Residence Hall Council and coordinator of the event, described the main objective of the rap sessions as "to let the legislators meet the students and let them get to know one another."

He expressed the hope that this year's sessions will be even more successful than in the previous two years. "We are hoping for a good turn out by dorm residents and other interested students," he said.

All of the dorms are participating in the program with the exception of Diviney and Kellum. A finalized schedule of events should be available from the IRHC later today.

Court says Nixon's bombing was legal

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court Monday let stand a lower court decision that President Nixon had legal authority to order the bombing of Cambodia in 1973, disposing of what might be the last legal challenge to the Vietnam War.

The high court swept aside the longstanding challenge to Nixon's power as commander-in-chief at the start of a session that will focus sharply on obscenity laws and free press issues.

In a brief order issued without comment, the court refused to hear an appeal from a ruling favorable to Nixon handed down by the U.S. 2nd District Court of Appeals.

That court had reversed the original ruling of U.S. District Judge Orin G. Judd of New York City that the Cambodian bombing in the spring and summer of 1973 was an unconstitutional exercise of presidential power. The appeals held the courts had no right to intervene in the matter, and the Supreme Court refused to disturb that ruling.

The Supreme Court had refused, throughout the Indochina War, to consider antiwar suits seeking a ruling on whether U.S. military operations there required the constitutional authority of a congressional declaration of war.

Lower courts generally ruled that the constitutional test was satisfied by the Gulf of Tonkin resolution obtained by President Lyndon B. Johnson in 1964 and by congressional approval of military appropriations bills.

The Cambodian bombing suit, pressed by Rep. Elizabeth Holtzman, D-N.Y., and four Air Force officers, had once sparked a legal tug-of-war among Supreme Court justices.

When Rep. Holtzman asked the court to delay the appeals court order — in effect forcing Nixon to stop the bombing — Justice Thurgood Marshall refused the request, but Justice William O. Douglas granted it three days later.

Marshall then polled vacationing Justices by telephone and got a majority to overrule Douglas. The bombings proceeded until Aug. 15, 1973, when they were halted by a deadline imposed by Congress.

The court took these other actions on its first day of return from spring recess:

— Agreed to decide whether the Internal Revenue Service has the right to subpoena bank records to determine a depositor's identity where there is suspicion of tax fraud. The case involves a dispute between the IRS and a Middlesboro, Ky., bank.

— Agreed to rule whether school officials must establish evidence of wrongdoing before they can discipline students. The case stems from the suspension from school of two Mena, Ark., girls accused of spiking the punch at a school party.

The obscenity issues come before the court in an appeal of an Albany, Ga., movie house owner fined $750 and sentenced to 12 months probation for showing the film "Carnal Knowledge" in violation of local obscenity standards.

That appeal and another filed by a Los Angeles group convicted of mailing obscene material involves the issue of whether obscenity should be judged by local or statewide standards.

Free press issues are raised by a Miami Herald appeal against a Florida statute that requires newspapers to publish the reply of any political candidate to any publication which "assails personal character" or charges him with "malfeasance or misfeasance" in office or "otherwise attacks his personal record."

Other free press suits involve the right of prisoners to grant newspaper interviews and the right of reporters to demand interviews with specific prisoners.

In state universities

Bill would limit students

BY RICHARD LEE

A bill which would limit the number of students enrolled in Florida's tax-supported state universities cleared its first hurdle in the legislature yesterday.

The House Education Subcommittee voted Monday to approve the bill which will be passed on to the Education Committee before reaching the floor of the House.

The sponsor of the bill,

House Speaker Terrell Semmes, D-Tampa, said that it is aimed at encouraging students to attend the newer state institutions which now have low enrollments.

The ceiling would also have the opposite effect of curbing the increasing burden on the larger, over-populated state institutions such as FSU and the University of Florida.

The bill sets full-time enrollments at maximums of 28,000 for UF; 25,000 for FSU, University of South Florida, and Florida Tech; and 15,000 for Florida A&M, Florida Atlantic, University of West Florida, Florida International and North Florida.

Representatives of the State University Chancellor's Office told the subcommittee that the Board of Regents and most state university administrators support the concept of keeping universities from growing too big.

"It's cheaper to try to send students to schools which can accommodate growth instead of building at those which are nearing their capacities," Chancellor Robert Mautz said.

Mautz said he expects a growth in the system "until about 1983."

"Unlike universities in Ohio and some other larger states, our schools are still growing," Mautz said. "When enrollments eventually taper off, we don't want our smaller schools to hurt financially."

Women's bank formed

(ZNS) The first feminist bank in the United States had its charter approved this month.

The "First Woman's State Bank Trust Company" had its charter for New York City approved by the state banking board on April 3rd.

Among the members of the bank's board are feminist spokeswoman and novelist Betty Friedan and City Councilwoman Carol Greitzer. Woman's Bank says it will open to all depositors — both women and men — but that women will be given the top policy-making positions.

The bank was established to counteract the credit and lending discrimination often suffered by women.

Drive nets 9300

The petition drive to support the Flambeau in its efforts to remain in the Union has thus far netted in excess of 9300 names, organizers announced yesterday.

"We're going to keep the drive going for the rest of this week," said Steve Pisacanno, who is helping to coordinate Student Government's end of the effort. "We hope to pick up the remaining 700 names in Alumni Village and at several other places on campus."

All completed petition forms should be turned in either to Student Government or to the Flambeau by the end of this week, organizers said.

Well wishers send Nixon $43,000

KEY BISCAYNE (UPI) — President Nixon was "heartened and moved" to get more than $43,000 from 5,000 supporters wanting to help him meet his bill for back taxes, but he is not accepting any donations because "he feels he must pay every penny himself," a White House spokesman said Monday.

The account of contributions and Nixon's position came 12 days after the Internal Revenue Service ordered him to pay about $467,000 in back taxes and interest for the years 1969-1972, and after the IRS gave him permission to take an extra 60 days to file his 1973 returns, which would have been due otherwise at midnight Monday.

Typical of the letters was one from an unidentified donor who wrote that "as a fellow American voter and taxpayer, I am deeply sympathetic to your current circumstances which have developed out of partisan political activities."

Nixon continued to stay out of public view at his bayside villa. He planned to end his Easter vacation, which he began with his family Friday, and fly back to Washington by Tuesday for resumption of his struggle against impeachment.

The President's press spokesmen said he spent part of Monday reviewing national economic matters, conferring with his aides and talking by telephone with Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, who was in New York.

They said Kissinger briefed Nixon on his latest efforts to get peace in the Middle East including talks over the weekend with Syrian and Israeli officials and also about his meeting in New York with representatives of Mainland China.

The White House said 5,001 letters containing a total of $43,657.71 had been received as of last Saturday and that the donations averaged about $10 but ranged from six cents by a schoolchild to $5,000 from a businessman. None of the contributors was identified and the statement said "all of the mail was unsolicited."

Nixon was said to have seen some of the letters and he was described as "heartened and moved in the past 10 days by an outpouring of public support relating to his personal income taxes."

Nonetheless, the President "feels he cannot accept the contributions" and he has instructed one of his assistants to return the contributions to the donors with a letter expressing his gratitude," the White House said.

About a quarter of the letters to Nixon were said to have come from anonymous donors and to have included almost $2,600 in cash. That money, the White House said, will be given to the Red Cross to help victims of the recent tornadoes in the midwest and the south.

Nixon was said to have gotten another 500-odd letters and telegrams of support from individuals who did not send any money and 113 letters of criticism during the 10-day period following the IRS tax ruling.

CSN&Y to reunite for gala summer tour

(ZNS) It's official: Crosby, Stills, Nash and Young will get together for a series of concerts this summer, opening with a festival in Fort Collins, Colorado on June 29th.

Promoter Bill Graham says that the various personality hassles that have caused the group to split up repeatedly have been settled — at least for the time being.

Graham says that the four will be joined by a drummer and a bass player and will do between 15 and 20 "Watkins Glen-type shows" across the U.S. between June 29th and Labor Day. Graham says that Crosby, Stills, Nash and Young will appear with three or four other groups — but they will be the major attraction at each festival, and will play an average set lasting three hours.

Dates for the concerts have not been finalized, although the four have signed for a July 6th appearance in Los Angeles. The group also plans to record a studio album sometime in August.

Elliot Roberts, the manager for the four, said that he was finally able to get them all together again during a meeting in Hawaii two weeks ago. He said that Neil Young was the last one to agree to the national tour, mainly because Neil had other obligations that conflicted with rehearsal plans.

On the current tour, says Graham, the group will do some of their old hits, and some entirely new material as well.

Said Graham, after patching up the various disagreements between the four, "They're like problematic lovers."

Weird sphere still a puzzle to experts

JACKSONVILLE (UPI) — she did not know his first name. The owners of a mysterious metal sphere which has puzzled Navy experts as to its origin said today a scientist from Berkeley, Calif., will fly here Tuesday to examine the object.

Mrs. Jerri Betz, whose husband and son found the shiny 25-pound ball in some grass last week, said she and experts at Northwestern University had decided not to ship the object to Chicago for examination because it would be "too much of a risk."

Betz had originally planned to ship the object to Northwestern for examination by one of the nation's leading experts on unidentified flying objects, astronomer J. Allen Hynek.

Betz said the Berkeley specialist was a Dr. Harder, but

Band streaks

(ZNS) Dr. Hook and the Medicine Show streaked the audience recently at a Danish concert. After finishing their set, the group came out nude for an encore.

They ran around stage naked for awhile and then put on their pants for the last song.

A Copenhagen newspaper said, "The streaking part did not embarrass anyone. People were probably disappointed that the group didn't play a full song in the nude."

Price controls lifted

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Cost of Living Council (CLC) Monday lifted wage-price controls on supermarkets, food processors and all other retail and wholesale segments of the food industry.

The major decontrol action by the CLC affects about 2.5 million workers in 330,000 firms around the nation. It ends 2½ years of government economic regulation of the food industry.

A willingness of labor and management to work for improved collective bargaining in the future was given as a key reason for the decontrol decision.

But the action would have occurred soon anyway, since the CLC and the rest of the government stabilization program will go out of business on April 30. The Economic Stabilization Act expires on that date, unless Congress intervenes with last-minute legislation to control a few inflation-prone industries.

'New Student Register' to be distributed today

BY EDDIE BELL

After causing many hassles and headaches, "The New Student Register" will be distributed today, according to Dale Green, president of Tau Kappa Epsilon (TKE) fraternity.

TKE, a service fraternity, agreed to sponsor the Register after the previous sponsor, Gold Key, decided to discontinue their sponsorship. Green said this decision has caused his fraternity a great deal of unfavorable publicity and unjust criticism because of a delay in the delivery of the registers.

New FSU students received material last summer telling them of plans for the book. It was designed to "acquaint you with your fellow classmates," according to the material new students received.

In order to get a copy of the Register, students were asked to send $5 to the publisher in Virginia. Then "soon after the fall quarter begins," the Registers would be distributed in the Union, the material said.

Students who paid for the Registers had frequently complained to Lou Goldhagen, assistant to Vice President for Student Educational Services Steve McClellan, she said.

Green blamed the delay on the Registrar's Office and the publishing company which printed the Registers.

"The university withheld the names of the new students for three months. This caused a long delay in receiving the orders," Green said. "In addition, a severe paper shortage last summer caused over a quarter delay in producing and shipping the registers."

Green accused the publishing company of negligence, and said they failed to send the fraternity a master list of students who purchased the Registers until last week.

However, David Aronofsky,

Student Body President, and Goldhagen suggested that TKE had a share in the responsibility for the delay.

Both Aronofsky and Goldhagen said the Registers have been in the TKE house for "about a month."

Bill calls for financial exposure

BY HENRI CAWTHON

A conflict of interest bill which would restore public confidence in politicians," has been filed by Sen. Richard Pettigrew (D-Miami), a candidate for the U.S. Senate.

The bill, calling for the required "disclosure of financial interests by candidates and public officials," was sent to the Rules Committee after floor consideration last week.

"The lack of public trust in elected officials unquestionably impairs our ability to develop constructive legislation," said Pettigrew, former Speaker of the House of Representatives.

Under the disclosure bill a candidate or public officer would be required to submit his federal income tax return, a statement of his net worth, and the identification of all business connections to an Ethics Commission.

Failure to comply with these regulations would be grounds for "removal from office, impeachment (or) expulsion . . ." according to the bill.

"The problem is that the public out there has a different view of us than we have of ourselves," the Miami attorney said in last week's floor debate.

"If we are to continue to operate in an atmosphere where few citizens believe in those who legislate, our effectiveness will obviously be undermined," Pettigrew said.

Pettigrew also filed a measure that would reduce the amount of individual campaign contributions from $3,000 to $1,000. This bill has passed through the Senate Judiciary Committee and is scheduled for floor action.

New fee plan is a shoddy attempt

The new fee plan, which was tentatively adopted by the BOR last week, appears to be a shoddy, ill-constructed attempt to "insure the integrity" of the State University System budgeting process.

Acting in the wake of a legislative committee which charged state universities with padding enrollment figures to gain additional funds, the BOR recommended to the state legislature a fee system which would require undergraduate students to pay $13 a credit hour and graduate students $16.50 an hour.

University Chancellor Robert Mautz said he had found evidence of "phantom credit hours" at state universities and "was appalled by the apparent effort to subvert the fundamental philosophy which is the basis of legislative appropriations to the State University System."

University presidents vehemently opposed the new plan, with FSU President Stanley Marshall saying that the revised system would be "courting chaos on a very large scale."

However, the BOR proposal will not be enacted unless the legislature decides to approve it without question. If, on the other hand, the legislature does not accept the plan, then the present flat rate of $190 per quarter for undergraduates and $240 for graduate students will be retained.

Student Senator Apollo Visko said, "The use of a new fee schedule to 'insure the integrity' of the university system budgeting process is a short-cut solution to a long-term problem."

"If the integrity of the system is the primary concern to the legislature, they should examine the present system to determine the problems and then propose a solution to those problems," Visko said.

In the new system, it is not made clear as to what the refunding process would be for a student who is registered for eighteen hours and then drops to fifteen. Will the student lose the additional $39?

Another flaw pertains to a student who registers for 3 hours and only pays for three hours worth of activity fees. Would this student be entitled to full-time use of all facilities funded by the student activity fee?

Also, it seems likely under the new plan that students would be required to pay $20 for the use of the Health Center facilities, $10 of which would come out of the students' pockets after they had already paid for their course hours.

While the new fee proposal may benefit some students, it would probably cause an additional hardship for most and add to what is an already confusing registration method.

The Flambeau encourages the legislature to carefully consider the plan and recognize its obvious shortcomings. In the future, it would be advisable for the BOR to put some time and thought into their recommendations and not be half-assed in their inane attempts to save face.

Li'l Abner and androgyny

Why would a full-grown man, a "citizen, father and taxpayer" stand up in front of a committee of the Florida Legislature and claim that, "they'd have to bring out the federal militia" to "enforce" the Equal Rights Amendment if it were ratified?

And why would well-dressed, socially prominent women travel to Tallahassee from all over the state just to tell the legislature that they "enjoy being girls" and want to remain frilly, weak and dependent on men?

The immature nonsense spouted by opponents of the ERA—during the recent successful effort to prevent ratification in Florida—can tell us a lot about how far many people are from adopting a rational attitude toward sex difference, sex roles and sex itself. There is something a little sick about adults who actually believe that girls are made of "sugar and spice and everything nice" and that Daisy Mae and Li'l Abner roles are proper stereotypes for responsible adults.

It's true that the "spectre" of homosexuality hung heavy over the Florida legislative chambers during the recent debates on the proposed amendment to the U.S. Constitution. Sen. W.W. Childers, D-Pensacola, is convinced the ERA would legalize homosexual marriages. He obviously feels that this would be the worst possible blow to American society short of a Communist take-over.

But the fear of homosexuality is only part of the story. There is a general fear that we are moving toward a "unisex" society with all the vague horrors that it somehow implies. This fear is based to a large extent on the simple fear of change and the usual reactionary contention of conservatives that everything old and established is by definition good. If a rigid division of sex roles was good enough for grandpa and grandma back there on the farm, they reason, then surely it is good enough for everybody forever.

The primacy of sex roles is drummed into children's heads with sermons about "little girls don't do that" and "little boys don't do this." The sermons are reinforced by real-life examples of subservient housewife-mothers and authoritative working fathers.

The explanation for this fanatical devotion to restrictive roles, however, goes beyond this. Early training might be overcome if it were not for the fact that both boys and girls eventually become convinced that the "other sex" does not feel, or think, or react, or yearn as they do. The "foreign sex" is feared as all foreign things are feared. The fear of women, I think, is particularly strong since male is defined as "normal" and female is so often not defined at all.

There is simply no truth to contentions that the difference between men and women extend beyond the woman's capacity to bare children, a difference in secondary sex traits and some differences in size. All else is merely acculturation.

Every human being, male or female, has both masculine and feminine traits. If you look up the words masculine and feminine in a standard dictionary, you will find that they are defined as simply male and female. This is inaccurate and not even consistent with everyday usage. If it were, then saying that a certain woman is "very feminine" would be as absurd as saying that a cat is "very feline": if feminine MEANS female, then ALL females are by definition "very feminine."

This simply isn't so. A woman can be stronger, more courageous, more analytic, less emotional, more domineering and more creative than a man. A man can be gentler, more nurturant, more intuitive, softer-spoken and less aggressive than a woman. All such traits are a matter of development. Nobody is born brave and aggressive—or compassionate and supportive.

PAGE FOUR

By Sandy Shartzer

The idea that all of us are partly "masculine" and partly "feminine" is defined under the term "androgyny." Carolyn Heilburn defines androgyny (from the Greek roots "andro" for male and "gyn" for female) as a "condition under which the characteristics of the sexes, and the human impulses expressed by men and women, are not rigidly assigned." (From the book "Toward a Recognition of Androgyny.") If roles are not assigned, each individual is free to choose his or her own combination of so-called masculine and feminine traits.

Androgyny is the synthesis of masculism (the philosophy of male superiority) and feminism (the opposition to male superiority). It does not, in itself, involve homosexuality. Homosexuals (gays, lesbians) can play male and female roles just like heterosexuals. And the fact that you prefer heterosexuality does not have to affect the unique combination of personality traits you have. A heterosexual woman can be more masculine than a lesbian.

There can be no true equality of the sexes — and no effective destruction of rigid and oppressive sex roles — without androgyny. Feminism is the battle, but androgyny is the goal. Androgyny on the other hand, is not really the same thing as a so-called state of "unisexuality" — the latter implies everyone is alike; androgyny allows everyone to be different.

An acceptance of the fact that sex roles are imposed, not "natural," will be particularly hard for lifetime housewives. If the present order of things (at least for those women still leading a traditional life) isn't inevitable, then women who have spent their lives in unending, cretinous housekeeping will feel they are to blame for their own fate.

Their protests to the contrary aside, few full-time mothers and wives look back on their lives with complete satisfaction. Somewhere back there they had dreams that got lost and aspirations that were vetoed. Their only other "out" — blaming men for their wasted lives — is equally repulsive to them, particularly if the men in their lives have been kind and ample providers.

Change, however, is inevitable. An equality of rights and roles for the sexes is not just an idea whose time has come. It is an idea which is overripe to the point of rotteness — we should have been beyond masculism and feminism and into androgyny long ago.

'Crucible

"The Crucible," by Arthur Miller, opens on the Mainstage of the Fine Arts Building on April 18, at 8:15 p.m. The show will continue through April 20 and will run again April 25-27.

The play is a dramatization of the Salem witch hunts which took place in the late 17th century. In it, Miller explores what happens in a community which is ruled by intolerance and superstition.

To evade punishment, a group of girls caught dancing at night in the woods claim that they were victims of the devil and accuse several harmless women of practising witchcraft. Soon the entire community is caught up in mass hysteria. The dramatic confrontations which follow make this an exciting and suspenseful play.

Dr. Moses Goldberg, theater professor, will direct "The Crucible." John Schneeman

Famous trio

To appear

The Florida State University Artist Series will close the 1973-74 season with an appearance by the Beaux Arts Trio, which has been called the finest ensemble of its kind in the world.

The concert is set for Thursday, April 18, at 8:15 p.m. in Ruby Diamond Auditorium.

Dr. Hardin Goodman, chairman of the University Artist Series committee, said a limited number of individual tickets will be on sale this week at the University Union Ticket Office.

Tickets are $1 for full-time Florida State students, $1.50 for their spouses and $3 for all others.

The Beaux Arts Trio — pianist Menahem Pressler, violinist Isidore Cohen and cellist Bernard Greenhouse — is now in its 19th season, having played to great critical and audience acclaim in more than 2,500 engagements throughout America, Europe, Africa, the Middle East and Asia.

The late Arturo Toscanini termed their performance "an inspiring experience," and the late Maestro Charles Munch called them "worthy successors of the last great trio — Thibaud, Casals and Cortot."

Learn Violin By Suzuki Management Credit Course Being Offered

Kari Pugh, assistant professor of music, music instructor Pamela Andrews, and private string teachers Uni Thomas and Julia Spurgeon

Bridal Fair Is Today

Clothes, crystal, silver, china and a host of other items will be on display during the annual Bridal Fair today, April 16. Sponsored by the Leisure Program Office, the Fair will be held from noon until 9 p.m. in the Union Ballrooms.

Two fashion shows, at 3:30 and 7:30 p.m., will feature University students modeling bridal gowns, trousseau items, sportswear and dresses, with clothes furnished by Rheinhausers.

This summer will start Tallahassee's first Suzuki violin program for children 4 to 6 years of age.

The Suzuki method, developed in the 1950's by Japan's Dr. Shinichi Suzuki, already has revolutionized string teaching in the United States, Dr. Pugh said.

While first reports of Suzuki's success in teaching violin to very young children were greeted with skepticism in this country, a 1964 tour by 10 of his students left a trail of astonished American audiences and produced a flurry of interest in his methods.

Suzuki programs were soon established in a number of areas, and thousands of American children have been taught to play the violin with a degree of style and beauty that once would have been thought highly unlikely, if not impossible.

The basis of the Suzuki method is a rote learning system similar to that used in teaching foreign languages — the student is simply taught to repeat what he hears. "It has been demonstrated that any child who can hear well enough to speak normally can learn to play the violin in this fashion," Dr. Pugh said.

A second and equally important key to the method is the involvement of parents in both lessons and practice.

"This is a family-centered approach in which the parent learns to play along with the child and is the keystone of the learning process," she explained.

As the Tallahassee program is envisioned, parents will take part in lessons — one group session and one private lesson per week — and in three to four brief practice sessions each day.

The movement to establish a Suzuki program in Tallahassee began last month with the organized efforts of local residents Mark Nice, Pat Evans and Sylvia Ochs.

The effort quickly gained the support of the four teachers and Dean Wiley Housewright of the Florida State University School of Music, and now has the joint sponsorship of the School and the Tallahassee Arts Council.

This summer's classes will take place in the Florida State Music Building, and tuition will be $30 per quarter. Informational workshops for parents and children will be given during May.

Those interested in brochures about the program may write to the Suzuki Program, School of Music, Florida State University, Tallahassee, Fl. 32306.

Management Credit Course Being Offered

A credit course in basic concepts of management is being offered by the Florida State Division of Continuing Education April 23 through May 30.

Titled "Credit Institute in Basic Concepts of Management," the course is especially designed for employees of state and local government. It will focus on the managerial process, planning, organization and staffing. The introductory course requires no previous knowledge of management techniques.

The course is open to any high school graduate employed by state or local government and may be taken as either a four-hour credit course or for non-credit. It is not necessary to have been previously admitted to Florida State to enroll in the course.

Registration may be completed in the Division of Continuing Education at 118 N. Woodward St. from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday. For further information call the Division at 599-4660.

Amoco Awards Nominations Due

In recognition of excellence in undergraduate teaching among the Florida State faculty, the Amoco Foundation (formerly Standard Oil of Indiana) annually sponsors three $1,000 awards.

The committee charged with the selection of recipients of these awards is currently accepting letters from students and faculty who wish to nominate persons they deem worthy of this recognition.

To make it easier to nominate the teacher of your choice, a coupon was run last week and will appear again Wednesday on the Dateline page of the Flambeau.

The deadline for submitting nominations is April 22, according to Dr. John J. Carey, chairman of the committee.

Salut au Restaurant Program Is Apr. 28/29

Restaurant operators will be honored at the 22nd annual Salut Au Restaurant program to be held at Florida State April 28-29.

The occasion is designed to give recognition to those selected by their own associations for extraordinary service to their communities, exceptional accomplishments in the restaurant industry and leadership in advancing the standards of public hospitality.

Registration for the two-day event will be held Sunday from noon until 5 p.m. at the Downtown Holiday Inn, Tallahassee. At 6 p.m. there will be a reception and dinner held in the University's Faculty Club dining hall.

Monday's activities get underway at 10 a.m. with a coffee in Weichert Lounge in the College of Business followed by the education session in the adjacent Starr Conference Room.

Following a Salute to the Ladies luncheon at the Holiday Inn Downtown, there will be a "Share Your Success Workshop" also in the Starr Conference Room. The highlight of the program, the Honors Award Banquet, will be held at 7 p.m. at the Holiday Inn, preceded by a reception at 6 p.m.

DATELINE, an official page of record, is published by The Florida State University to communicate information to students, faculty and staff. The University Calendar is a weekly feature, published each Monday. Events for which a campus space reservation is made by the Tuesday preceding the Monday of publication are automatically included. All other Calendar items should be submitted to the Events Coordinator, 238 Union, or to the Office of Information Services, 324 P/A Building. Other notices for DATELINE should be submitted to the Office of Information Services. All news must be submitted four days prior to date of publication.

Diaz and FIU end Seminoles' win streak at 7

Juan Diaz doubled in the winning run in the second extra inning after driving in the tying run in the seventh frame to give Florida International a 5-4 win and a doubleheader split with Florida State Monday at Seminole Field.

The Seminoles won the first game of the doubleheader when Jim Busby smacked a home run to pace the Tribe to the 2-0 triumph — which stretched the soon-to-be-broken win streak to seven games. The split left FSU with a 23-16 record on the year.

The Tribe swatters will now have a three-day break before returning to action against the nationally second-ranked Miami Hurricanes.

The Seminoles picked up two runs in the fourth inning of the second game and another tally in the fifth to lead the Sunblazers 4-2.

But, two singles, a balk and Diaz's tying run batted-in moved the game into extra innings.

Neither team was able to score in the eighth and the Sunblazers broke the ice with the winning run in the ninth. Manny Fuentes started the inning with a single, but was forced out on a fielder's choice off the bat of Ralph Alvarez.

Diaz followed with his shot that rolled to the rightfield wall and scored Alvarez.

Randy Davidson nearly brought the Tribe back with a double in the bottom of the ninth. Davidson went to third when FIU's centerfielder had trouble handling the ball. However, Davidson was left stranded when pitcher Terry Willis got Jim Busby to pop up, thus ending the threat and the game.

Busby was the hero of the first game with three hits, including the home run in the fifth. Jim Foxwell followed Busby with a double, and Steve Tebbetts, running for Foxwell, scored on an error on Guillermo Bonilla's ground ball.

Ron Herring pitched his sixth complete game of the season in the opening contest and allowed just five hits in picking up his fourth victory against only two defeats.

Junior Dave Brown was pinned with the loss. Brown was sailing along with a perfect relief job before he ran into Diaz and company.

Shumann Tops all

Earl Humes and Mike Shumann lead a contingent of Florida State football players selected as offensive and defensive players of the week after the Seminoles completed their second week of spring football practice.

Humes intercepted two passes while Rudy Maloy and Greg Johnson impressed coaches with their defensive line play.

On offense, Shumann hauled in numerous quick sideline hitches and proved quite adept working with three different quarterbacks.

Rudy Thomas, sophomore running back from Quincy, and senior lineman Bobby Jones joined Shumann as offensive players of the week.

Also receiving considerable praise was walk-on Lee Nelson. Nelson, battling Humes for a starting shot at the left corner position, had nine tackles and two assists.

Last week's defensive player of the week Joe Camps had another outstanding day — highlighted by a 98-yard pass interception return for a touchdown.

Brooks 2nd At Daytona

Having to stop and put his shoe back on cost Florida State three-mile runner Bobby Brooks victory in this weekend's 6th annual Easter Beach Run at Daytona Beach.

Brooks, coming off a three mile win over Mississippi State Saturday, finished second Sunday in Daytona.

Former Seminole Jeff Galloway took top honors in the open division run but the trophy went to Frank Shorter when Galloway failed to register for the event.

Bill to p

By Henri Crawford

A bill to place university students on the Board of Regents (BOR) cleared the Education Committee Monday with a dissenting vote.

The original bill, submitted by Sen. Gordon (D-Miami Beach), called for the addition of three student members to the board.

However, this was amended to call for two student members, and to add three students to the current nine-member board might result in tie votes, according to amendment.

FSU Student Body President Aronofsky testified in favor of an amendment which would require the governor to submit the bill to the BOR from the Senate. The bill was submitted by the State Council on Higher Education (SCSHP).

Proposed by SCSHP Executive Secretary Davis, the amendment was voted on by the committee heard arguments by Richard Pettigrew (D-Miami) that

HEW expects desegregation

By Eddie Bell

The U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW) is expected to reject Florida's plan for desegregating state universities for the second time, according to Hendrix Chandler, corporate secretary of the Board of Regents.

Chandler said that HEW is not satisfied with the ratio of blacks to whites in the student bodies and faculties of state universities.

Bill to put students on BOR advances

By Henri Cawthon

A bill to place university students on the Board of Regents (BOR) cleared the Senate Education Committee Monday with only one dissenting vote.

The original bill, submitted by Sen. Jack Gordon (D-Miami Beach), called for the addition of three student members to the BOR.

However, this was amended in committee to two student members, since an addition of three students to the current nine-member board might result in tie votes, according to the amendment.

FSU Student Body President David Aronofsky testified in favor of an amendment which would require the governor to appoint students to the BOR from a list of nominees submitted by the State Council of Student Body Presidents (SCSBP).

Proposed by SCSBP Executive Secretary Bill Davis, the amendment was voted down after the committee heard arguments from Sen. Richard Pettigrew (D-Miami) that it would be

"I'm really indifferent to the fate of the bill," said Aronofsky, after the committee failed to ratify Davis' amendment. "I don't agree with the concept that the governor can appoint any student he or she wishes to; it could become too political."

Earlier the committee voted 6-3 in favor of Senator Lew Brantley's (D-Jacksonville) bill to place one community college student on each board of trustees.

Initially, Brantley had asked for an elected student member, but Pettigrew challenged the constitutional grounds and the bill was amended in favor of governor-appointed students.

Another amendment to Gordon's bill specified that one graduate and one undergraduate student should be appointed after the one-year terms.

The bills are presently in the Senate Rules Committee and should reach the floor in the near future.

The House Standards and Conduct

Committee passed the financial disclosure bill Tuesday, after amending the proposal to make income tax returns an optional disclosure.

The bill requires elected and appointed officials to reveal sources of income and possible conflict of interest areas.

NUMEROUS BICYCLES clutter the grassy areas in front of the Bellamy Building. Assertions by university officials that bikes are among the most popular methods of transportation among students can't be challenged by this scene.

HEW expected to reject desegregation plan again

By Eddie Bell

The U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW) is expected to reject Florida's plan for desegregating state universities for the second time, according to Hendrix Chandler, corporate secretary of the Board of Regents.

Chandler said that HEW is not satisfied with the ratio of blacks to white in the student bodies and faculties of state universities.

"HEW feels that our desegregation plan does not provide adequate information on the cost factors involved in increasing the ratio of black students in white universities and white students in black universities," Chandler said. "In addition, HEW feels the plan lacks speciality."

Recently, officials from the state universities met with HEW to discuss the plan. As a result of this meeting, HEW promised to send Commissioner of Education Floyd Christian a detailed letter in reaction to the plan.

Chandler said that Florida's plan was initially rejected in June of last year because it lacked details and did not include a plan for the desegregation of junior colleges in the state.

"We have submitted a good plan," Chandler said. "HEW wants us to make improvements in a faster timetable than we are able to do under the circumstances."

Chandler cited excessive drop-outs among minority students in junior and senior high schools as an important factor in the inability of white universities to meet desegregation requirements.

The Board of Regents has hired an attorney to draft a new desegregation proposal in the event they will have to defend themselves in court, Chandler said.

HEW will make a final decision on the plan on June 21.

FEA poll is anti-Nixon

By Laurin March

The Florida Education Association (FEA) in a recent teacher leader survey pertaining to the Nixon Administration and Watergate cover-up, concluded overwhelmingly that Nixon is a "crook."

More than 85 percent of the leaders polled thought that Nixon had agreed to a cover-up when the Watergate break-in was exposed, and that he was also involved in the planning of the Watergate affair.

A majority of respondents were in favor of impeachment or resignation of the President.

None of the participants gave credence to the idea that the President was "very concerned about consumer welfare," and 90 percent believed that the present administration is "primarily concerned with big business and political contributions."

All of those surveyed stated that they had

"dealt with the Watergate affair in classroom discussions."

When asked how Watergate has affected teachers and educators, two respondents said, "A credibility gap has developed between students and educators . . . a new message comes through — 'cheat as long as you can get away with it,'" and "We try to teach morality while our leaders wallow in slime."

About 150 elected FEA officials, staff and committee heads throughout the state participated. The survey was conducted in February and tabulated in March.

The FEA poll corresponds with a recent National Education Association (NEA) survey, in which half of the nation's teachers believed Nixon should resign. A remarkable 87.1 percent of the participants in the NEA poll agreed that "Nixon has been impaired in his ability to govern as a result of the Watergate scandal and other administration instabilities."

'Concerned' Hearsts return home as FBI issues warrants

LA PAZ, Mexico (UPI) — The parents of Patricia Hearst left Mexico to return to San Francisco yesterday saying they were "concerned" about reports that their daughter was present at a $100,000 bank robbery but they could not believe it.

"Of course we're concerned. That's why we're going back," Hearst said before leaving the airport here on the southern tip of the Baja California peninsula where he had spent the Easter weekend at a plush resort.

Mrs. Hearst spoke to reporters Monday night after hearing news of the bank holdup over the radio.

"I'm so upset I can't talk to you," she said. "It's so bizarre. I can't believe it. Please leave us alone."

Meanwhile, the FBI yesterday named Donald DeFreeze, believed to be the mysterious Symbionese Liberation Army leader "Cinque," as one of the robbers who accompanied Patricia Hearst in the robbery.

A federal warrant obtained by the FBI charged that DeFreeze, an escaped convict who calls himself "General Field Marshall" of the terrorist SLA, was one of nine persons who carried out a raid Monday on a branch of the Hibernia Bank, shooting two persons in the getaway.

In a federal warrant sworn out Monday night, Hearst was named as a material witness in the bank robbery after witnesses and photographs from hidden cameras identified her as one of the four women and a man who entered the bank while the others waited in two getaway cars.

Patricia, who was kidnapped by the SLA Feb. 4, was not charged with the bank robbery because the photographs indicated a gun was being held on her by one of the SLA members.

A study of the 1,200 photographs taken by the bank's television cameras during the commando-like raid led to the identification of DeFreeze, the FBI said.

Aide: Watergate tapes will clear Nixon

KEY BISCAINE (UPI) — A high White House official said Tuesday President Nixon will hand over to the House impeachment inquiry evidence that will prove his innocence in the Watergate coverup. But he indicated Nixon will not comply fully with a subpoena for more than 40 taped conversations.

The official was interviewed by UPI as Nixon prepared to end his Easter vacation at his bayside villa and return to Washington to host a dinner for the ambassadors to the Organization of American States Wednesday evening and address the 83rd Continental Congress of the Daughters of the American Revolution Thursday morning.

"We're going to turn over absolutely what we think to be the hard evidence of all the totality of the President's knowledge and actions," said the official, who declined to be identified. "There will be verbatim transcripts of materials directly from the tapes in extensive quantity."

"We are in the process of compiling and we will provide comprehensive and conclusive documentation of his innocence. . .," the official said, adding he was "personally confident if these materials to be turned over are objectively assessed, these matters can be disposed of quickly."

The official conceded that the White House response might not satisfy the House Judiciary Committee, which issued the subpoena, but he insisted it will represent "all evidence available that deals with the President's actions."

He confidently predicted Nixon will not resign or be removed from office by impeachment. And even if the House brings impeachment charges, the official said, Nixon will go to a summit meeting in Moscow the last week in June.

Nixon intends to respond to the subpoena early next week when Congress ends its Easter recess. The committee, which is investigating possible grounds for impeaching Nixon, set a deadline of April 25 for the reply.

Earlier, the White House said it would reply by April 22, when Congress returns, but a spokesman would not say the President's lawyers would comply with all the terms of the subpoena and members of the Judiciary Committee have acknowledged they have no way to force compliance.

James D. St. Clair, the President's chief Watergate counsel, is in the process of making a legal assessment of the tapes to be released, and "he's very confident the hard evidentiary material" will clear Nixon, the official said.

"If the compulsion is to get the President, everything that is exculpatory is not going to be satisfactory," he said. "They're going to be looking for more and more."

"I believe if this matter is dealt with objectively and responsibly by all parties that I've seen nothing or heard nothing that suggests there is an impeachable offense," he said.

But he expressed concern that "emotional misconceptions" and the political climate might work against the President.

"If it continues to drag out, many Americans will say they don't much care what the facts are, who's guilty, who isn't. They would join in whatever is necessary to do away with the problem."

He said "some on the Democratic side would like to have it drag out through the summer. . . and to have a trial of the President at the time of the congressional election in November."

"It would be a tragedy," he said, and "would involve the full array of our relations with the Europeans, Soviets and other leaders."

Calley term is reduced

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Army Secretary Howard H. Callaway Tuesday reduced Lt. William L. Calley's My Lai massacre sentence from 20 to 10 years on grounds Calley might have sincerely believed he was only obeying orders.

Callaway's decision makes Calley eligible for parole in six months and moves his case into the hands of President Nixon, who could reduce the sentence further or overturn the conviction.

California police arrest Panthers

OAKLAND, Calif. (UPI) — Police Tuesday raided a house occupied by members of the Black Panther Party.

Panther leader Bobby Seale said 15 were arrested.

A police spokesman confirmed the raid and said it was done in cooperation with Berkeley police, who had a warrant for a suspect on an assault charge.

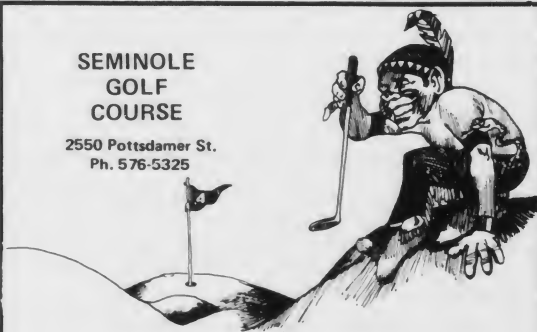

Berkeley police said the raid was conducted in East Oakland following an assault incident Monday night in nearby Berkeley. They declined to give details.

Seale said 50 policemen arrested the Panthers and booked them into the Oakland jail, where total bail was running "over $300,000." Charges included possession of hand grenades, stolen property and conspiracy, he said.

"The whole block was cordoned off," he said. "We suspect that provocator agent workers are behind the scene," Seale said.

Gay rap group 'non-oppress'

A gay rap group is now being offered Tallahassee community, providing counseling and discussion of general interest to the gay community.

According to Dr. Michael S. psychiatric social worker with Counseling Center, the peer counselor of the group consists of "a small, pilot offering non-professional counseling may broaden their knowledge of hom and the gay community."

"Not much has been done in the subculture-specific problems many have," Schwartz said. "Many programs assume homosexuality person's major problem, and seek instead of dealing with the problem person perceives themselves as having. As a therapist, I will accept anyone's definition of their own problems."

Schwartz said that many in various health professions have stepped back from regarding homosexuality as pathological, and have reoriented treating homosexuals as persons with problems, related or not related to orientation.

"Homosexuality traditionally has been a stumbling block to dealing with specific problems a homosexual has," Schwartz said.

Bikers save energy, don't pollute planet

(ZNS) A 10-speed bicycle is the most efficient user of energy there is: it even beats walking.

Zoology professor Vance Tucker of Duke University reports he has compared the energy needed to peddle a bicycle over a given course with the energy needed to walk the same course. Professor Tucker finds that bikes require only half the energy needed to cover the same distance by walking.

Tucker adds that there is one other advantage too: the only exhaust given off by a bicycle is the carbon dioxide from the peddler, and this is breathed in by green plants as they grow.

Citizens organize to save land

By Richard Lee

Opponents of the proposed industrial rezoning of a parcel of land bordering Lake Cascades near the FSU Seminole Reservation are gearing up their efforts to gain public support on the issue.

Fearing that industrial development of the land may lead to contamination of the interconnecting chain of lakes and waterways which the tract adjoins, the group has begun a campaign of petitioning and public education on the issue.

The opponents of the rezoning are concentrating the petition drive on the FSU campus because one of the larger pieces of property which would be affected by such contamination is the Seminole Reservation.

Robert Withers, owner of the tract on Lake Cascades, has attempted unsuccessfully for over a year to negotiate with the city of Tallahassee for public acquisition of the land. "It was only after all avenues were exhausted in our bargaining with the city that Mr. Withers decided to apply for rezoning and sell his land," Carl Pennington, attorney for Withers, said.

However, FSU President Stanley Marshall gave the negotiations a shot in the arm last month when he offered to swap university land for the Withers tract.

Since then the negotiations have begun to go steadily downhill again. The dispute centers around the relative values, now and in the future, of the two pieces of land in question.

Withers expressed interest in a tract of university land located near the airport, but FSU balked on the trade, believing that its land would gain in value because of the location. Citing the inevitability of the disproportionate resale values, FSU officials rejected Withers' offer.

"I can't understand FSU's speculative approach to this swap, since any capital gains which the university would make on the airport property would necessarily go to the state," Pennington said.

Pennington said that both he and Withers are becoming very pessimistic about the possibility of reaching an agreement with FSU.

"Mr. Withers believes that his land should be in public ownership because of its beauty and its position on the lake system," Pennington said. "However, he is perfectly willing to go through with the rezoning and sell it, if no acceptable settlement is reached."

"We've been involved with this thing for a long time, attending commission meetings where there are little flurries of activity, but nothing ever happens. This time we want to close the deal for good," Pennington added.

Robert Kimmel, Assistant to the Vice President for Student Educational Services, said that the university has alternate tracts of land which will be offered to Withers at the bargaining table.

However, according to Kimmel, the university is also concerned about several other privately owned pieces of land on the waterway which, like Withers', may be sold to developers in the future.

"We want to proceed slowly in these negotiations and consider the possibility of acquiring these lands also," Kimmel said. "It would be wiser, in my opinion, because development of these lands would offset any good we could do by saving the Withers tract."

The Leon County Planning Commission is scheduled to meet and reach a decision on Withers' applications for rezoning on May 28, giving the university a little over a month to consider its options.

Gay rap group provides 'non-oppressive atmosphere'

A gay rap group is now being offered to the Tallahassee community, providing peer counseling and discussion of general issues of interest to the gay community.

According to Dr. Michael Schwartz, a psychiatric social worker with the FSU Counseling Center, the peer counseling aspect of the group consists of "a small, pilot program offering non-professional counseling so persons may broaden their knowledge of homosexuality and the gay community."

"Not much has been done in the area of the subculture-specific problems many gay people have," Schwartz said. "Many health center programs assume homosexuality to be the person's major problem, and seek to cure this instead of dealing with the problems the gay person perceives themselves as having. As a therapist, I will accept anyone's definition of their own problems."

Schwartz said that many members of various health professions have steered away from regarding homosexuality itself as pathological, and have reoriented themselves to treating homosexuals as persons with various problems, related or not related to their sexual orientation.

"Homosexuality traditionally has been a stumbling block to dealing with the more specific problems a homosexual encounters," Schwartz said.

The drop-in gay rap sessions aspect of the group have evolved from the ongoing gay peer counseling group.

The current rap group discusses issues of interest to the gay community including: monogamous relationships, bisexuality, openness and the nature of gay life in Tallahassee.

Program coordinators for the rap group believe that there is a strong need for members of the gay community to be able to interact with each other in an "open, non-oppressive atmosphere."

The rap group "provides an opportunity for open and candid discussions on the very real issues confronted by gay people in university and local community life," program coordinators said.

"The rap group also allows the individual to realize that he or she is not alone, and that problems or questions that they might be facing have been successfully dealt with by others before them."

Individuals who are interested in discussing questions related to their sexual identity with a gay peer-counselor should first contact Schwartz at the University Counseling Center in Bryan Hall, 599-3540.

Information regarding the time and place of the drop-in rap sessions is also available through Schwartz.

U.S. paying for dictator Thieu

On January 27, 1973 the United States pledged to halt further intervention in the internal affairs of South Vietnam. Yet, one year later, the U.S. government is providing for over 70 per cent of the expenses necessary to keep the Thieu regime in power.

Even though U.S. military advisors have long left Vietnam, our taxes are now paying for over 6,000 U.S. civilians to do military jobs in Vietnam. U.S. tax dollars are also supplying the Saigon military with ammunition to carry on continued fighting which has resulted in 76,000 casualties in the first six months of "peace with honor."

Last year ten million U.S. tax dollars was used by the Saigon government to operate a police and prison system which is characterized by American-made tiger cages and barbaric torture methods.

Political prisoners are reportedly plunged into a barrel filled with water, while police use rubber-covered truncheons to beat against the sides of the barrel; the blows causing the water to be forced into the prisoners' internal organs, in hopes of making them divulge information.

Less than two per cent of all U.S. economic aid given to the Saigon government is used for health, education or agricultural production.

And while U.S. motorists were constantly warned of the energy crisis in America, the government had been supplying 22,000 barrels of oil per day to the Saigon military.

In all, the U.S. taxpayer was billed $1.5 billion this year to keep the Saigon government alive.

But President Thieu does not feel this is enough money to properly run his dictatorship. There is now a bill before the U.S. House of Representatives and Senate which would give an additional $474 million in military aid to the Thieu government.

U.S. tax dollars are still killing people, torturing political prisoners and, in effect, ruining an entire country. It has already been repeatedly proven that the Nixon administration is morally bankrupt and totally incapable of making an ethical decision.

The American public must now take on the responsibility of ending U.S. genocide in Vietnam by any means necessary. If Americans choose to remain inactive then they too must bear the guilt of murder.

The Victorian era is passing

When I heard that Russ Meyer's (he's known as the "King of Legitimate Porno") film "Vixen" wasn't going to be shown last weekend, some questions immediately came to mind concerning the state of movies at FSU.

Interestingly, rumor had it that this film was dropped purposely after some pressure from somebody about showing an "adults only" film of this type on campus.

The whole situation reminded me of what happened a few quarters ago when "The New York Erotic Film Festival" was supposed to appear, and didn't. Supposedly, Sheriff Raymond (You're In a Heap of Trouble) Hamlin had a hand in the matter.

Then, along came Tempest Storm, naturally accompanied by her constant companion — controversy.

LPO (then referred to as UPC) had figured out a reasonably equitable way to present her "exotic dance" without offending those who didn't want to be offended. The rest is history.

When I finally found out the real reason behind "Vixen's" cancellation, I could hardly hide my excitement. To put it plain and simply, the movie didn't arrive in time to be shown!

Granted, Joe Siclari and the LPO Film Committee didn't share my excitement, but for an altogether different reason. They didn't make their money.

Finally, "adults only" entertainment is being offered on campus without censorship or repercussions.

Have a look at Spring Quarter's film bulletin. There are 17 X-Rated or "adults only" films listed for viewing. Among the more interesting titles are: "Naughty Nurse," "Lovemaking One," "The Dirty Girls" and "Appleknockers and the Coke Bottle."

Films like Luis Bunuel's "Belle De Jour" and Claude Lelouch's "A Man and a Woman" both have erotic sequences that were at one time considered obscene (especially by Tallahassee standards at the time of their release.) Erotica aside, these movies were excellent on their own merit, directed by masters of their craft.

The issue here is not judging the artistic quality of erotic films, only that at long last the Victorian era is passing. Who knows, maybe next year the BOR will catch up to LPO.

This quarter's Director's Showcase features the work of Radley Metzger, famous for his high budgets and beautiful women. I first saw "Camille 2000" when it was released in 1969. With my older brother's ID in hand (I was about 15 at the time) I somehow managed to sit through the entire thing. As a matter of fact, the only thing that kept me in my seat was the pride I felt knowing I could pass for 18.

The movie was boring, although lavish in set design and lighting effects. With "Camille 2000," I was permanently turned off to Radley Metzger's brand of sexploitation.

OUT ON A LIMB

By Eric Moss

Yet, I couldn't help but feel that this film had a RIGHT to be there, just like it has a right to be in Moore Auditorium.

In the Spring Film Bulletin it says, "In the history of film, sex has constantly been infused in the medium and constantly suppressed. These films are all of sexual matter, some explicit. No one under 17 will be admitted."

I suspect that had Elizabeth Kovachevich (bless her) read this while still a BOR member, Fellini's "La Dolce Vita" wouldn't be allowed. Even this fine movie is tamer than "Fuses," currently planned for April 27.

There will always be factions in this society that will condemn universities for various attempts to corrupt the morals of today's youth. Right wing rhetoric can be quite convincing to the uneducated people who feel sex movies will give "ideas" to their sons and daughters.

Even Ann Landers said that parents should wake up and take a look around, because "young people do, and will continue to think about sex."

Now that 18-year-olds are adults, whether they're in college or not, who is responsible for "dictating morality?" It's as stupid for the BOR to say, "It's a no-no to violate visitation" as it is to say, "These movies are unfit for college consumption."

Applause to Joe Siclari, former Film Committee Chairman David Lee, and LPO for being realistic (and gutsy) enough to treat college students as adults. Not too many others do.

By the way, we still need 700 more signatures on the Flambeau petition.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Phone calls?

Editor:

Your article of Thursday, April 11, concerning your Dean's congratulatory letter in a way touched both a sore nerve and at the same time made some valid points. Many times a student does receive letters congratulating him or her upon attaining the Dean's list which do give the appearance of a "Dear Occupant" type of letter. Interestingly enough the issue you raised produces a "we are damned if we do and damned if we don't" situation.

The College of Education also sends a congratulatory notification that is similar in appearance to a formal announcement with the student's name and the quarter typed in and personally signed by the Dean. If the student's parents do not receive such congratulatory information, we are somewhat besieged by letters and phone calls wondering what happened. At the same time many students get quite upset if they are also left out or we are delayed in sending them their notification.

I would feel that if some other constructive means were offered by you then perhaps it would be of much better and more lasting importance. Would you suggest a phone call to the over 400 eligible students in Education saying "Hey, congratulations?"

Office of Academic Advisement

Fires strike at Cash Hall; no inquiry planned

Two fires were discovered shortly before 5 a.m. yesterday in the third floor north wing of W.T. Cash Hall.

Only minor damage was reported in the incidents. The Tallahassee City Fire Department was summoned to Cash Hall, but both fires had been extinguished by the time the units arrived on the scene.

Both blazes were discovered in waste baskets, and at least one resident mentioned the possibility of the fires being "deliberately set."

However, Fire Chief Earl Levy said that at present no investigation into the cause of the fires is being conducted. Levy is scheduled to meet with members of the Fire Prevention Team today to determine whether a future investigation is necessary.

Eviction of Flambeau not fatal

Though the Flambeau is in danger of being forced to move from its Union facilities when its contract with the university expires in August, the newspaper is not on the brink of bankruptcy, according to the chairperson of the Flambeau's Board of Directors.

Rick Johnson, who serves as president of the nine-member board, said that the Flambeau would be able to absorb the costs involved in any move out of the Union.

"Naturally we would prefer the plan which would give the paper the facilities it needs for the smallest amount of money possible," Johnson said. "But a move would not destroy the publication's finances."

Meanwhile the Flambeau petition drive to elicit support from the university community moved into its final phase yesterday with organizers scrambling to collect several hundred more signatures.

"We want to get a little bit more than the 10,000 we were originally shooting for, to allow for any duplications or errors that may show up," said Steve Pisacano of Student Government. "We would also like to urge those students who still have petitions to get them turned in as soon as possible."

Petition tables will be set up today at the library and the Business Building.

SEVERAL HUNDRED STUDENTS and members of the community were able to see the latest in wedding day fashions as the 7th annual Bridal Fair presented a pair of fashion shows yesterday.

Fires strike at Cash Hall; no inquiry planned

Two fires were discovered shortly before 5 a.m. yesterday in the third floor north wing of W.T. Cash Hall.

Only minor damage was reported in the incidents. The Tallahassee City Fire Department was summoned to Cash Hall, but both fires had been extinguished by the time the units arrived on the scene.

Both blazes were discovered in waste baskets, and at least one resident mentioned the possibility of the fires being "deliberately set."

However, Fire Chief Earl Levy said that at present no investigation into the cause of the fires is being conducted. Levy is scheduled to meet with members of the Fire Prevention Team today to determine whether a future investigation is necessary.

"WHEN CAN THERE BE A MIDDLE IN THE MIDDLE"

'Handicapped Awareness Week' in progress

By Creston Nelson

"Helping Others Understand" is the theme of the First Annual Handicapped Awareness Week which began last Friday at FSU.

Many special activities have been planned for this week by the event coordinators in an effort to inform and demonstrate to the community some of the problems encountered by handicapped students.

Events scheduled during the week include wheelchair tours of the campus by FSU administrators, provosts and faculty members, appearances by handicapped students on television and radio and publication of articles written by visually impaired and wheelchair students.

FSU representatives participating in today's wheelchair tours include Union Director John McCarthy, who will be pushed through the Union area, and Executive Vice-President Bernard Sliger and Provost Phillip Fordyce, whose cross-campus treks will begin at the PS/A Building.

Visual aids and pertinent information will be displayed in the Union Courtyard throughout the remainder of the week. An obstacle course will be set up to allow non-disabled students an opportunity to maneuver the Union area. Blindfolds and wheelchairs will be provided for those interested in participating.

All students with visual, aural or ambulatory disabilities are invited to attend a round table discussion Friday afternoon at 3:30 in the Union. Students will have the opportunity to voice their concerns and opinions of adjustment and survival at FSU.

Handicapped Awareness Week is being co-ordinated by the Office of Disabled Student Affairs, who condemned some 30 buildings around campus earlier this year in an effort to make known their inaccessibility to disabled students.

According to a Disabled Students Program pamphlet, the program "endeavors to assist students who have some condition that impairs his or her mobility, or requires special physical aids, facilities and equipment to function properly."

Two organizations have evolved from the original program. People United to Remove Barriers (PURB) is aimed toward the removal of all environmental barriers to the disabled students at FSU. People Aiding Disabled Students (PADS) consists of persons who volunteer their services to tutor, type, drive, use sign language and perform any other related tasks that are needed by the disabled students.

Persons wanting further information on Handicapped Awareness Week or the Disabled Students Program should contact the Office of Disabled Student Affairs, 209 Bryan Hall, 599-3910.

'I, Fred Fin, being of sound mind...'

(ZNS) Stanley Mazanek is "tall" and weighed a tenth of a $650 richer—thanks to the death of his pet guppy, "Fred Fin."

It all started last year when Mazanek was a student at the University of Arizona and received a form letter in the mail offering a $5000 life insurance policy during the next six months for just one dollar.

As a joke, Mazanek decided to insure his guppy, Fred Fin, instead. He meticulously filled out the forms, pointing out that Fred was about an inch Mazanek then sent the form back to the Globe Life Insurance Company along with one dollar.

A few weeks later, much to Mazanek's surprise, back came an official computer printout insurance policy on Fred Fin's life.

Then it happened: a few months later Fred Fin died, apparently of natural causes. Mazanek, remembering his policy, promptly filed a claim.

A Globe representative came to town and quibbled about a settlement. Says

Mazanek, "We sat around and argued like a couple of drunk horse traders," finally agreeing to settle for $650.

What did Mazanek do with his cash? He explains, "I spent a little, bought two more guppies, and took my wife out for a fish dinner."

Philosophy symposium to commemorate Kant

A philosophy symposium commemorating the 250th birthday of German philosopher Immanuel Kant will bring leading scholars from the U.S., Canada and Germany to FSU April 19-20.

Initially proposed by Dr. W.H. Werkmeister of the FSU Philosophy Department, the theme of the symposium will be "Kant and Our Times."

Heading the list of visiting speakers will be Dr. Frederick P. Van De Pitte of the University of Alberta, Edmonton, Canada, considered by symposium organizers the leading Kant scholar in the Western hemisphere.

Professor Gerhard Funke, professor of Philosophy at the University of Mainz in West Germany and president of the International Kant Society, will also attend the symposium.

Other visiting speakers will include Dr. George A. Schrader of Yale University; Dr. Ted. B. Humphrey, Arizona State University; and Dr. Lewis White Beck of the University of Rochester, New York.

Werkmeister and each of the visiting scholars will present a paper at the symposium, with all sessions held in the United Ministries Center. The first symposium session is set for 9 a.m. April 19.

The public is invited to attend all sessions of the symposium at no charge.

The symposium is sponsored by the FSU Department of Philosophy and funded through a grant from the university's Graduate Research Council.

Campus News

THE AMERICAN STUDIES LECTURE SERIES will present one showing of Marlene Dietrich in "Blonde Venus" tonight at 7 in Room 126 Bellamy. The film will be followed by comments from Dr. Peter Stowell of the FSU English Department.

THE FSU WATERSKI CLUB will meet tonight at 6 in Room 108 Montgomery Gym. The written portion of the driver's test will be given tonight.

THE FSU MARKETING CLUB will meet tonight at 7 in the Starry Conference Room of the Business Building. There will be a guest speaker from International Business Machines (IBM). Club representatives invite all business majors to attend the meeting.

BORA OZTOK, A RENOWN, professional Turkish dancer will perform and offer instruction in Turkish folk dances tonight at 7:30 in the Union Ballroom. A $2 donation is requested of all participants. Turkish refreshments and pastry will be served and a movie on Turkish dances will be shown.

THE AMAZING GRACE EDU-GROUP'S meeting scheduled for tonight has been changed to Thursday at 5:30 p.m. at the Women's Center.

THERE WILL BE A PLANETARIUM SHOW and observation session tonight at 7:30 on Landis Green, rain or shine.

Mitchell to enliven Down Under

THE MANY-TALENTED CHUCK MITCHELL will perform in the Down Under this weekend on Friday and Saturday with 9:30 and 11:30 shows. Tickets are $1.

Multi-talented Chuck Mitchell brings folk music, poems and a bit of acting to the Down Under this weekend in a show which one reviewer calls "a study on taste, intelligence and sheer musical enjoyment."

A veteran coffeehouse/college concert musician, the boyish looking Mitchell is a seasoned performer with a penchant for performing an unusual variety of material.

His repertoire includes materials other performers don't attempt, at least not all in one evening. . . poems, songs and pieces by Bertolt Brecht and Kurt Weil, T.S. Eliot, G.M.

Hopkins, Carl Sandburg, Shakespeare, Kurt Vonnegut, even Flanders and Swann and the Fantastics.

And if that isn't enough, the 32-year-old musician throws in a fresh collection of contemporary songs by famous and little-known writers, including himself.

What the agent doesn't talk about is interesting too: Mitchell is the ex-husband of Joni Mitchell.

Mitchell will bring his unique act to the Down Under on Friday, April 19, and Saturday, April 20, with shows at 9:30 and 11:30 each night. Admission is $1. Advance tickets are on sale now in the Union Ticket Office.

Mike 'open' at Down Under

Music in the Down Under on Wednesday nights? That's right.

Beginning tonight the Down Under is initiating a weekly "open mike" night when anyone or any group is welcome to play and entertain.

To be held on Wednesday nights, the mike will be open from 8-12. There will be no admission charge for the weekly music fest.

Already lined up for tonight's "open mike" is the bluegrass-folk group, Friends. Friends consists of Rob McKay on fiddle, Joe Shannon playing banjo, harmonica and guitar and Bev Watkins on guitar.

Guitarist George Vorachek will also perform tonight. Vorachek has appeared at the Down Under previously where he established himself as a popular entertainer.

Along with these performers, the Down Under will host other entertainers on "open mike" nights too. "Anyone who wants to come and play on Wednesday nights is welcome to do so," according to Michael Harris, organizer of the "open mike" programs.

Touring chorus to perform

The 40-voice chorus of the Industrial University of Santander, Bucaramanga, Colombia, visiting the United States for the fourth Lincoln Center International Choir Festival, will perform in Opperman Music Hall Friday, April 19 at 8:15 p.m.

Admission for the concert will be $1. Tickets are on sale at the Union Ticket Office and will be available at the door on the night of the performance.

The Colombian group is one of 11 foreign choruses touring the U.S. during the months of April and May to perform the music of their countries at universities, colleges and schools in 23 states.

The Industrial University of Santander was founded in 1948 to train engineers and technicians for the state of Santander. Today with 4,000 regular students and a large extension program, the university offers degrees in engineering, science, medicine, the humanities and other areas.

The chorus has participated in festivals and competitions throughout Colombia since its inception in 1962.

Midler being ripped off?

Bette Midler's manager has charged that a Los Angeles filmmaker is attempting to rip off Midler's fans.

The filmmaker in question is Peter Alexander. Alexander is about ready to release a "religious satire" titled "The Divine Mr. J.," in which Midler plays the part of the Virgin Mary.

According to The Los Angeles Free Press Editor Chris Van Ness, however, the film was shot three years ago before Bette achieved stardom, and she appears for just a few minutes. Van Ness also says that filmmaker Alexander is actually Peter McWilliams, a best-selling poet.

Midler's manager, Aaron

Russ, is considering a lawsuit to stop the film from being distributed. Russ believes that "billing Ms. Midler so prominently violates the premise of truth in advertising," and Russ added, "I doubt you'll be seeing this in your neighborhood theaters."

CHARLIE CHAPLIN, pictured above as The Tramp, wrote, directed and starred in "City Lights" which is proclaimed as his best film. It plays in Moore Auditorium on Thursday at 7:30 and 10 p.m.

Chaplin shines in 'City Lights'

"City Lights," Charlie Chaplin's 1931 comedy masterpiece, will be presented Thursday, April 18 at 7:30 and 10 p.m. in Moore Auditorium by the Union Film Committee as part of its retrospective of the films of Chaplin.

Admission to the movie is $1 for students and $1.50 for non-students.

Although "City Lights" was released two years after talking pictures had taken over the American screen, Chaplin felt that sound would destroy the universal appeal of his tramp character. He decided to make the film a silent one — his only concession to sound was the hauntingly beautiful score he composed for the film.

Chaplin's studio, United Artists, had reservations about releasing a picture with only a synchronized score. So Chaplin rented a theatre in New York and premiered the picture himself. The risk was justified. "City Lights" proved to be one of Chaplin's greatest successes, earning over $5,000,000.

Now considered Chaplin's masterpiece, "City Lights" contains the greatest moments of pathos.

Chaplin, as The Tramp, becomes intrigued with a beautiful blind girl (Virginia Cherrill) he sees selling flowers on the sidewalk. He soon devotes all of his effort to raising the money to pay for the operation which will restore the girl's sight. In the process, Chaplin befriends a drunken millionaire who causes him innumerable hardships.

The closing sequence of the film is a moving and sublime moment in film history, according to many film critics.

When Chaplin reissued the picture in 1950, one critic remarked that "the best film of the year is twenty years old," and the few recent reviews have confirmed the film's appeal.

"The greatness of Chaplin resides in the wealth of possibilities he presents and from which his audience may choose," another critic wrote.

"In many ways 'City Lights' is the prototypal Chaplin film," another critic wrote, "containing most of the important elements of his work at or near summits of perfection."

FLORIDA STATE UNIVERSITY

WHO IS THE BEST TEACHER AT FSU?

Can you name one teacher who was better than all the others you had as an undergraduate? Or one you taught with and recognized his or her ability to really communicate with students? This is your chance to see that teacher recognized, not only with honor but with $1,000. Three such awards are presented annually by the Amoco Foundation (formerly Standard Oil of Indiana) to the University's most effective undergraduate teachers.

If you know someone who deserves this award, please fill out the following form and leave it with the secretary of the Religion Department, Williams Building, or send it via campus mail to Dr. John J. Carey, Religion Department, Florida State University.

I wish to nominate _____ for the Amoco Foundation Award for excellence in undergraduate teaching.

Conferences Slated

Collective Bargaining

A two-day conference on the collective bargaining process will be held April 22-23 at the Downtown Holiday Inn, with representatives from both labor and management sides of the issue.

The conference is sponsored by the Division of Continuing Education and the College of Business in an effort to provide government and business with a better understanding of the bargaining process.

Speakers include Art Hallgren, vice president of the Florida AFL-CIO; Robert Garrett, manager of employee relations of the Hudson Pulp and Paper Corporation; and William Pierce of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service. In addition, University faculty members in the field of business and law also will participate in the program.

The conference is designed for state and local governmental officials, private business managers and educational administrators who seek a comprehensive understanding of the collective bargaining process.

For further information about registering for the conference, contact Ken Kasten, Division of Continuing Education, 118 N. Woodward St., or call 599-4660.

Cancer Drive Begins

The American Cancer Society Crusade began on the University campus Monday. It will continue through April 30.

A contact person within each department will coordinate collection of contributions.

Serious consideration of the Cancer Crusade for its contributions to education and research is in order, said Mrs. Rosalie Washington, campus chairman.

During 1973, the American Cancer Society granted to Florida State University four faculty research grants, one medical student fellowship, and several nursing scholarships totaling $103,000. During 1973, the entire Leon County area contributed approximately $43,000 to the Cancer fund. The 1974 goal is $46,000.

The students, under the leadership of Louis Collins and Julie Sewell, have planned a benefit basketball game, to be held on May 2 at 7:30 p.m., at Tully Gym, featuring the students vs. administrators.

For information concerning the University Cancer Crusade, contact Mrs. Washington at 599-3820.

Government Placement

The Office of Career Planning and Placement will hold its annual Government Placement Conference April 18 in the University Union Ballroom from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Approximately 37 federal agencies will be represented. They will be recruiting for personnel from all disciplines, especially science majors, accountants, and other technical fields.

All Florida State and FAMU students, especially those with a 3.5 GPA or FSEE eligibility, are strongly urged to attend. For additional information, contact the Placement Center, 228 Bryan Hall, 599-4820.

Career Service Job Openings

As of April 15, Florida State currently has promotional opportunities in the following career service vacancies:

Computer Systems Analyst II, Computer Programmer II, Computer Operator III, Management Systems Analyst II, Accountant III, Lab Machine Shop Supervisor, Lab Technologist, Radio/TV Writer, TV Production Manager, Assistant Postmaster, Maintenance Repairman, Storekeeper I, Cashier I.

Administrative and Professional: Executive to the President, Director of Administrative Services, Director of University Relations and Coordinator of Special Projects.

If you are interested in any of these positions and meet the requirements of the University's Internal Promotion Program, contact the Employment Section of the Personnel Relations Dept. An Equal Opportunity Employer.

News You Can Use

Rep. Paul McCloskey has informed Student Government officials he will not be here tonight for the Student Government Program on Impeachment, which has been cancelled.

The Artist Series will close the 1973-74 season with an appearance by the Beau Arts Trio on Thursday, April 18, at 8:15 p.m. in Ruby Diamond Auditorium.

Arthur Miller's "The Crucible," a forceful drama about the Salem witchcraft trials of 1692, will go on the Fine Arts Building stage April 18-20 and 25-27. Curtain time is 8:15 p.m. for all performances, and tickets are on sale in the Fine Arts Building Box Office.

The 40-voice chorus of the Industrial University of Santander, Bucaramanga, Colombia, visiting the United States for the fourth Lincoln Center International Choir Festival, will perform in Tallahassee Friday, April 19. The concert will begin at 8:15 p.m. in Opperman Music Hall. The performance featuring Colombian folk songs is free and open to the public.

Soprano Barbara Ford, music instructor at Florida State, will be presented in recital Saturday, April 20, at 8:15 p.m. in Opperman Music Hall. It is free and open to the public.

The program, entitled "An Evening of Music for Soprano and Clarinet," will include works by Meyerbeer, Schubert, Faure, Chausson, Jacob, Bliss and Louis Spohr. Miss Ford will be assisted by pianist Karyl Louwenaar and clarinetist Dennis Zeisler.

Florida State sophomore Scott Holshouser, Athens, Ga., has taken second place in the national finals of the Collegiate Artist Piano Competition in Los Angeles.

The contest, sponsored by the Music Teachers National Association, is open to U.S. college pianists between the ages of 18 and 27.

Holshouser won the Florida competition in Jacksonville, then the seven-state divisional competition in Birmingham before taking part in the national finals.

Now a student of Leonard Mastrogiacomo, associate professor of music at Florida State, Holshouser studied for 11 years with Ira Gerchevski in Athens.

Seminoles tee up in Houston Classic today

HOUSTON — Florida State's golf team, ranked seventh nationally, faces its stiffest challenge of the year today, as the Seminoles join 25 other collegiate squads in the 20th Annual Houston All-America Intercollegiate Invitational Tournament.

The AAIL annually brings together a strong field of collegiate golfers and this year's tournament is no exception as seven of the nation's top ten teams will be participating.

"The field just seems to get stronger and stronger," said Tribe Coach Scott Fletcher.

"You certainly can't afford a letdown against a field like this."

Included in AAIL field this year are Florida (ranked No. 2), Houston (3), Arizona State (6), Oklahoma State (8), Alabama (9) and LSU (10). In addition, five teams from the second ten are also participating, including Georgia, Indiana, North Texas State, SMU and Texas.

The tournament will be the first for the Seminoles since they won the Southeast Collegiate title at Dothan, Ala. last month. The Tribe has a string of three tournament victories going, having won the Crystal River Invitational as well as their own tournament prior to the Southeast title.

The Seminoles will have three seniors and two juniors teeing off at Houston. The seniors include Bob Impaglia, Doug Fischesser and Johnny Godwin while the juniors are Todd Crandall and Rusty Cappelen.

Team consistency has been a key for the Tribe this year and Fletcher sees that as the Seminoles' biggest factor going into the AAIL.

"We haven't had any individual winners this year," said Fletcher, "but we usually place two or three players among the top finishers and everyone knows he has to do his job if the team is to do well."

B.F. Goojit could not get its tires rolling or its bats in gear losing to the Selby Lizards 7-4. The Pool Sharks held off a last inning rally to defeat Thereby 8-7.

In dormitory action, Magnolia 1st banged out 16 big hits and scored 11 runs in defeating Salley 8th 11-4.

Kellum 2nd edged Cawthon 3rd 6-2 in a tightly played defensive contest. Landis 1st had no problems in beating Magnolia Basement as they ran away with the games 5-0.

New Chevron 440 track ready for Sat. South Carolina meet

The Florida State-South Carolina track meet, set for Saturday night at 6:30 p.m. will be the inaugural meet on FSU's new Chevron 440 track.

The track, which has been under construction for the past three months, will only be the third of its kind in the South. There are about 15 Chevron tracks in the nation.

"The Chevron 440 track is coming to the front as the nation's number one track," said Seminole Coach Mike Long.

The biggest appeal of the track is "it offers the best track for both workouts and meet conditions," commented Long. "It's comfortable to train on and offers a fast running surface at meet time."

The rubberized surface is clean and soft, making workouts more comfortable. The surface will remain uniform throughout competition and rain will have minimal effects.

The track has been expanded from six to eight lanes, allowing joggers to workout on the two outside lanes while team workouts are being held. Also added is a steeplechase course for championship meets.

After the South Carolina meet Saturday, the only other meet scheduled for the new track is the Southeastern Championships on May 18.

Computer out of fall registration

By Creston Nelson

Computer registration will not be implemented fall quarter. The decision to return to class card registration in Tully Gym was announced yesterday by Homer Fisher, Associate Executive Vice President.

Fisher attributed the cancellation of computer registration to the "concern of deans that don't have the budgetary knowledge to develop a class schedule at this time."

"Allocations are not available for the next fiscal year until the end of this legislative session," Fisher stated. "We can better serve the students by holding registration when an accurate schedule can be published."

In a letter dated April 11 addressed to provosts, deans, and department heads, Fisher said "The primary concern which has been expressed to me relates to the inability of departments to develop an adequate schedule of classes for the 1974 fall quarter at a time when budget allocations are still uncertain."

"Accordingly," the letter continued, "the Registrar's Office with the concurrence of the Executive Vice President and Provosts plans to schedule registration for the 1974 fall quarter at the beginning of the quarter."

"The Registrar and his staff will work with all persons involved in the registration process to ensure that the fall quarter class schedule is as accurate as possible and that registration procedures are designed to operate effectively."

Fisher said advanced registration during spring quarter for the fall term may never be possible at FSU. However, he hopes to "spread registration times" in order to minimize lines at Tully Gym.

Fisher also mentioned the possibility of registration through the mail during the summer for fall quarter in the future.

"We hope to improve computer registration by adding modifications and procedures during the interim when the computer is not in use," Fisher said. "This should eliminate most of the problems experienced during the preceding two quarters."

Fisher assured that the Registrar's office "will send students appropriate information about registration times and procedures for fall quarter during the summer."

THE CURTAIN RISES TONIGHT on the mainstage production of Arthur Miller's "The Crucible," a powerful drama about the Salem witchcraft trials of 1692. The play begins at 8:15 tonight in the Fine Arts Building. "The Crucible" will run April 18-20 and April 25-27.

UFF wants access to records

By Laurin March

The United Faculty of Florida (UFF) recently confronted the Board of Regents (BOR) in an attempt to gain access to now secret personnel files.

The files are currently inaccessible to the faculty members, which is in direct violation of the Florida Sunshine Law, according to the Senate Education Committee.

The BOR responded to the committee that the Sunshine Law is inapplicable in the faculty file situation, but the state claimed that the BOR is in error and gave them 90 days in which to change their policy.

Proposed Senate Education Committee Bill 176, which would make the files open to the public, is "disadvantageous" according to UFF representatives. By granting public access, the records may be used against a faculty member to benefit private interests.

The UFF does not want Bill 176 to pass committee because UFF representatives say that the files now contain materials which are "in error."

Gifford Hale, president of the Florida Higher Education Chapter at FSU, said the files "must be cleared of erroneous materials before they are made public."

"If they are not cleaned up, the administration could face lawsuits for

'In some instances there have been attempts to solicit derogatory material for the files. This has been admitted by the administration.'

— Gifford Hale

libel by disseminating falsehoods," Hale said.

"In some instances there have been attempts to solicit derogatory material for the files," Hale said. "This has been admitted by the administration."

According to Peter Boespflug, Director of the FSU Communications department, the files may contain "evaluations which do not present a valid picture of the teacher due to bias of the evaluator. The contents may include crank letters or notations which may jeopardize the person's future."

"These files act as a dossier, following the instructor wherever he goes," Boespflug said. "They have been used as a sort of 'blackmail' to keep the teacher in line, or to intimidate resignations."

"Who views the Provosts or the President?" asked Hale. "No one. Faculty members should have the right to decide who is to review their files, whether it be within the administration, a faculty-designated organization, or the faculty member."

The UFF representatives said they hope that the BOR will develop a system that will open the administration's secretive policy to faculty scrutiny.

According to the UFF, faculty members have the right to "read, initial and append comments to all matters placed in the personnel file."

"Access to truth is one thing," Hale said. "No government or management has the right to disseminate falsehoods about anyone."

"The file contents may be compared to the White House enemies list," Hale said. "You can always find something against somebody."

"Anything can end up in those files." "Some faculty personnel files contain material that is erroneous, misused and often unknown to the individual concerned. These are clear violations of professional and constitutional rights," Hale said.

Bill to restrict visitation is filed

A bill that places all decision making-power on the matter of visitation in state university dormitories in the hands of the Florida legislature was filed in the House Monday.

The proposal, sponsored by Rep. Richard H. Langley (R-Clermont), would completely remove the state Board of Regents (BOR) from the decision-making process.

Included in the bill, which will face its first test in the House Education Committee, are actual limits for visitation. Visitation in "any actual living area at any time" would be restricted to the parents of the student, while visitation in reception areas would have to end by 11 p.m. week days and 1 a.m. weekends.

According to lobbyist and student government vice president Jan Pietrzyk, an aide to Langley reported that the bill stemmed from a poll taken in Lake County in which a substantial majority of those questioned said they favored such a visitation structure.

"I don't even think the bill will make it out of committee," said David Aronofsky, SG president and also a lobbyist in the legislature. "It doesn't have the chance of a snowball in hell of passing into law."

Jury indicts Christian

State Education Commissioner Floyd Christian was indicted Wednesday on charges of conspiracy to commit a felony, perjury and soliciting or accepting bribes totalling $79,000 for funneling state contracts to firms controlled by a friend and former business associate.

The Grand Jury also indicated one other person, but withheld the name until the person is arrested.

Robert N. Bussey, the former St. Petersburg banker-attorney who was involved in the educationally-oriented firms that received $1.5 million in state education contracts, was named as a co-conspirator but was not indicted.

Christian, who was arrested by Sheriff Raymond Hamlin, announced he will not resign but will take a leave of absence until the trial ends.

Nixon laughs off Demo win

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon is "not dismayed or disheartened" by the defeat of a Republican candidate in Michigan for whom he campaigned and would stump for any other GOP contender who invited him, the White House said Wednesday.

"The results were far closer than expected a few weeks ago," said deputy presidential press secretary Gerald L. Warren when pressed for comment on Democrat J. Robert Traxler's victory Tuesday in Michigan's traditionally Republican 8th Congressional District.

The President made his first campaign appearance of the year last Wednesday in the eastern Michigan "thumb" on behalf of GOP candidate James Sparling, Jr., who lost to Traxler by about 3,000 votes.

Traxler had said the special election to fill a House seat held by Republicans for the past 42 years was "a referendum on Nixon's policies and moral leadership."

Asked if the President believed he was the major issue in the campaign, as Traxler contended, Warren replied,

"There were many issues in that campaign."

"There was a good turnout," Warren said. "It was very close but not obviously a runaway. The President would have preferred to see Sparling win. He ran a good race and lost."

"The President is not dismayed or disheartened by the defeat, and is somewhat cheered by the fact that the results were closer than expected a few weeks ago," Warren said of Tuesday's results.

AvC cut from bill

By United Press International

The House Education Committee Wednesday rejected an amendment to eliminate the mandatory public school course on Americanism vs. Communism and passed a bill to require consumer education programs in the schools.

The committee said that the AVC amendment, proposed by

Male 'pill' 5 years off

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) — A University of Washington researcher said Wednesday "the pill" may be ready for men within five years.

Dr. C. Alvin Paulsen, who has safely tested 100 volunteers with a combination of hormone and drug, told a national medical meeting on planned parenthood he is looking for a simple, reversible method of male contraception.

"We want young men to become interested in sterilization because it will be reversible," he said. "Now men are waiting until they have three or four children before they get vasectomies — which for the most part represent permanent sterilization."

"I hope we can have something within five years. Somewant the pill. Some might prefer injections. We would like to have lots of options."

Patty a 'criminal'?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Attorney General William French Saxbe said Wednesday that newspaper heiress Patricia Hearst is part of the group of "common criminals" who kidnapped her and that she participated willingly in their holdup of a San Francisco bank.

"It is my personal conclusion that she was not a reluctant participant," Saxbe told a news conference referring to the $10,000 bank robbery Monday by members of the Symbionese Liberation Army (SLA).

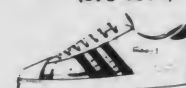

Saxbe's conclusion differed with speculation by the FBI that Miss Hearst, 20, may have been forced to take part in the holdup.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Cement plan

(Editor's note: The following letter was received from a student unhappy with the numerous pavings which have recently taken place on campus. The letter describes a fictitious situation.)

Editor:

The University Grounds Department (known in administrative circles as the Steam Roller Express) planner Joe Smith today announced that his organization had attained its 50% goal two years ahead of schedule with the laying of the third sidewalk behind Chemistry Lecture Hall. The grounds department goal was originally set by the University Space Committee which set June 1, 1976, as the date to have completed paving 50% of the FSU campus.

In recognition of the Department's success, a small ceremony will be held Thursday, April 18 behind the Boiler Plant when ground crew workers will construct cement foundations for the new Fuel Storage Tanks. This small project will carry FSU past the 50% mark, initiating a new five-year '90-10 plan' (90% cement and 10% astroturf to be located primarily in Campbell Stadium).

All members of the University community are invited to the ceremony which will be attended by several visiting dignitaries including Elmer Smith of Tallahassee's largest construction company, Smith and Sons.

Despite widespread support for the grounds department steam roller success, a few groups have indicated concern. For instance, A.L. Wett, spokesperson for YSA, expressed concern as to whether groups of five students or more would need permits before gathering for fear of violating traffic obstruction ordinances. Similar concern was also expressed by Jim King of the FSU Streakers Society.

However, a quick call to FSU's campus security, who referred us to the University judicial office, who referred us to the Vice President's office, after which the special task force's spokesperson informed the Flambeau that permits would absolutely never be required and if they were, students will be the first to know.

Lastly, planner Smith said that anyone wishing to speed the 90-10 plan to completion should send donations to Cement, University P.O. Box CIP.

Foul balls

Editor:

I would think that Tuesday's Raben analysis of the "Aaron controversy" leaves out critical factors. These must be looked at to understand why Commissioner Kuhn acted as he did.

The real reason Bartholomay, the Braves' owner, wanted number 715 to be hit in Atlanta is simple... money. Attendance has been lower than expected, which was why the Braves left Milwaukee in the first place. I think using Aaron, trying to manipulate his efforts this way is wrong. Further, Raben stated, "The Braves are going to lose, whether Aaron plays or not... what difference is one game going to make?" Who says so? Who said that the Mets would be World Series Champions in 1967? What about the year of the Red Sox? I never found many who even said the Mets would make the World Series last fall... which was lost by one game. In a close race, one bunt, one error, much less a home run, could swing a season. How many games would have been lost had not Aaron played in those twenty seasons? I'm not an athlete, but it would seem to me that every game is important. Aaron, while preferring no. 715 in Atlanta, I'm sure he would have hit it anywhere he got the chance. His personal comments indicate this.

The "wife swap" admonishment is advised. Wife swapping certainly shouldn't be recommended. I'm not saying baseball should punish those players, but why such behavior should be ignored or allowed to undermine public support by implicitly okaying it is beyond me. It appears to me that such behavior is wrong and should be labeled as such. Acting as "fed horses in the morning, each neighing after his neighbor's wife" doesn't generate support. It doesn't blacken baseball's power structure to oppose such behavior. To the contrary, it brightens personal character.

For more blackening is the assault on sportsmanship and personal effort for the sake of money, instead of taking an achievement for what it is. It is more blackening to ignore or encourage activities which do not yield happiness and stable character. So while it is unpopular, in a sense, the manner in which Kuhn acted, I think, is far more brightening to discourage or stop those events that were occurring. Despite the abuse he's taken, I hope he continues to perform as he has in the past.

Vietnam veterans are recipients of a purple shaft

Editor:

In wartime, a U.S. serviceman receives a medal called "The Purple Heart." He receives this when he is wounded in battle resulting from enemy action. The young Vietnam-era veteran has received this medal many times for his gallant action in battle. However, another award that he has received which has not been deserved is "The Purple Shaft."

The enemy was a little harder to recognize, but it was definitely there. It consisted of the remarks of his "superiors" that he was a non-professional and not of the same caliber as previous veterans. He was labeled as a killer by his peer groups in Europe. And even at home, the people who praised him when he was in uniform, now call him hippie and continually lambast him for lack of "patriotism."

But the Vietnam veteran understood why these remarks were being made and took it on the chin. He knew that he had done the best job he could, even though he had to continually search his soul every day to find some reason for the morally unjust conflict that he was involved in. He knew that he would be haunted by the memory of these experiences of war and degradation for the rest of his life.

After serving his time and putting his life on the line for his country, the young Vietnam war veteran sought to restore some normalcy to his life. For a lot of veterans, this meant returning to school for education, and trying to make up the years that he now lagged behind his peer group. He had entered into a contract and fulfilled his obligation. He believed that the government would fulfill its obligation as it had done for veterans in the past.

But the government has somehow decided that the veteran should not receive the same education benefits as the World War II and Korean War veterans had received. They had received payment of their tuition and fees plus monthly support.

Trying to buck the U.S. Government bureaucracy is sometimes an almost unnegotiable obstacle, especially for the soft-spoken Vietnam veterans. Unfortunately, certain legislators of the state of Florida feel that it is a Federal problem and should not concern the people of the state. So these legislators are working diligently to block efforts for the passage of a waiver bill for the veterans of this state. After all, what has the veteran done for the state and what can he possibly do for it in the future? Florida is 46th in the nation in assistance to its veterans, although it ranks in the top ten in the number of veterans.

Do you believe that the Vietnam veteran is a second-class veteran and should be trained to become a second-class citizen? Or do you believe that he should receive benefits on a parity of his World War II counterpart? I believe that the Vietnam veteran has been a recipient of "The Purple Shaft" long enough.

SQUARE DANCE FANS will converge in the Union Ballroom tonight from 8-11. A 50 cent charge includes refreshments, and music of the Wabash Cannonballs. Leaders say interested persons need not know how to square dance, since a caller will be provided.

BLACK CULTURAL CENTER and Black Student Union meet tonight at 8 in Room 201 Longmire. Lucius X, representative of Honorable Elija Muhammed, will speak on "The Black Man Today: Is He For Real?"

THE SECOND IN A series of ecology lectures will be held tonight at 7:30 at the Tallahassee Federal Auditorium on North Monroe Street. Tonight's lecture will center around ecology as a political philosophy, with Ken Megill, author of "The New Democratic Theory," Dr. Thomas R. Dye, FSU professor of government, and Arthur Canaday, general counsel to Gov. Reubin Askew, as the featured speakers.

THE FSU DAME CLUB will present a program on budget meals in the recreational hall at Alumni Village tonight at 7.

CPE ECOGRAPHY CLASS meets tonight at Alumni Village Recreation Center at 8. The program features three films including "Boomsville," and "House of Man: Part 1 and Part 2."

STUDENT GOVERNMENT CABINET will meet today at 5 p.m. in the lobby of Kellum

Hall. It is a public meeting and all students may attend.

THE UNITED FARMWORKERS Support Committee meets tonight at 7:30 in the basement of the United Ministries Center. Topic of discussion is the arrival of Cesar Chavez, or the boycott of non-union grapes, wine and lettuce, which begins April 25.

If you have spring fever, may we recommend a large dose of WTAL. It will do one of two things:

- (a) totally cure you of spring fever, or
- (b) be just enough to do you in permanently.

FSU-UM play two today

Florida State's baseball team, coming off a seven game win streak, will try to stop the charging University of Miami express, hosting the Hurricanes in a day-night doubleheader today and a single night game Friday.

The two teams will play the first contest at 3 p.m. and the two night games will commence at 7:30.

Following the Miami series, the Seminoles play two games against Georgia Southern in Statesboro, and return home Monday night to face Florida Southern.

An ironic twist in the schedule is that Miami is ranked second nationally, while Georgia Southern is fourth. In the College Division, Florida Southern is ranked third.

won seven of its last eight ballgames and has shown signs of breaking the early season slump.

"We certainly have our work cut out for us," head coach Jack Stallings said. "I guess we will find out if we have shaken out of the doldrums or not."

The Hurricanes are 33-4 on the season and included within is a 26-game win streak, broken last weekend by Rollins College.

Leading the UM attack is Orlando Gonzalez who carries a .411 bat. Manny Trujillo adds support with his .333 batting average.

'Security wall' draws student fire

By Henri Cawthon

Kellum Hall was the scene of a heated debate between residents and FSU Housing Office representatives yesterday concerning the erection of a "security wall" in the dorm's lobby.

The concrete security structure, which was finished Wednesday, requires residents to show their IDs and state their room numbers to a "checker" before they can enter the dorm elevators through a partition in the wall.

By the end of the confrontation, Housing official Chat Sue agreed to close the checker's desk in the lobby until security regulations are drawn up at a proposed meeting of Kellum residents and Sue.

"It's (the wall) designed to keep people with bad intentions out of Kellum," Director of Residential Development Carol Ritchey said.

A Kellum resident, identified only as "Margaret," told Ritchey, "You should have told us about this so-called protection. This is like pre-school when our parents would put a key around our necks."

Ritchey said that a letter was sent to the residents of Kellum explaining the purpose of the wall, but "Margaret" pointed out that the letters were received after construction of the wall was begun.

Student Body President David Aronofsky, who was present at the confrontation, said that "the Housing Office had no business making arbitrary decisions without contacting the students beforehand."

DISGRUNTLED KELLUM RESIDENTS confront Housing Office officials over the recent construction of a security wall in the dorm lobby that prohibits residents from entering the dorm without their student ID. Bernatowicz

DESPITE UNIVERSITY POLICE ATTEMPTS at tighter security, Salley Hall residents continue to prop open the doors of the dorm, rather than carrying their dorm keys with them at all times. Bernatowicz Aronofsky suggested that a uniformed security officer be stationed at the dorm, an alternative that met with enthusiastic approval from the Kellum residents.

Jim Sewell, Information Director for Campus Security, said that nine armed robberies have been committed on campus in the last year.

Sewell told the group that one incident, a youth selling cocaine and marijuana door to door in a dorm, had stolen a resident's wallet when he left the room.

When Campus Security was called in about the robbery, an officer ended up struggling with the youth over a gun in a dorm bathroom.

"Non-students have come into this hall solely for the purpose of armed robbery," Sewell said.

Kellum resident Lori Goodman said that she thought the new security measure was "absurd."

"If you don't have your ID, you can't get to your room," Goodman said. "Even if you know the checker at the desk, they won't let you in."

Rap sessions called a 'complete success'

Students flock to meet with Florida legislators

By Creston Nelson

More than twenty legislators came to FSU dormitories during the week for the third annual round of legislator-student oriented "rap sessions."

Termed a "complete success" by event coordinator Bob High, the event saw several hundred students meet with legislators.

"Although response from legislators was greater last year, this year's student response made the rap sessions more successful than past years," High stated.

He cited a thirty per cent turnout at Magnolia Hall's Tuesday night session as proof of student interest in the event.

David Garvin, Salley Hall program coordinator, was especially happy with Wednesday night's session.

"We had twice as many students participating Wednesday night as on Tuesday and, from what I've heard, our turnout was one of the best on campus," Garvin said. Four out of five legislators scheduled to appear at Salley participated in the sessions.

Among those state representatives participating in this year's program were Paul Steinberg, Marshall Harris, Dennis McDonald, and Eric Smith. Sen. Kenneth A. Plante also met with students and

Sen. Bruce Smathers is tentatively scheduled to appear on campus April 30.

Students urged to submit petitions

Over 9800 signatures have been collected in the Flambeau petition drive, but some of the Student Government drive coordinators fear that many petitions have not been turned in yet.

"We only lack 200 names to make our initial goal of 10,000," Debby Alley, drive coordinator for Student Government, said.

"We believe that many signatures have already been gathered by some individuals on petitions that they have not turned in to us," Alley said.

Alley urged anyone with a Flambeau petition out to "turn it in as soon as possible" to the Student Government or Flambeau offices on the third floor of the Union.

Flambeau petitioners will be at the Fine Arts Building today and at the Flea Market in the Union Courtyard on Saturday.

LEGISLATORS CHAT informally with students during their visits to the FSU campus scheduled throughout this week.

Nixon receives subpoena for tapes

WASHINGTON (UPI) — U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica Thursday ordered issuance of a subpoena directing President Nixon to supply Watergate investigators with tapes and other evidence of some five dozen White House conversations.

In a four-paragraph order, Sirica directed that Nixon answer the subpoena by special prosecutor Leon Jaworski no later than 10 a.m. EDT May 2.

Jaworski, frustrated by White House refusal to provide requested evidence for the Watergate coverup trial due to begin Sep. 9, asked Sirica on Tuesday to authorize a subpoena to obtain the evidence.

At that time, Jaworski said the materials were necessary

"either as evidence which the government would seek to offer in its case or which might be helpful to one or more of the defendants."

Seven former high White House or Nixon campaign officials have been indicted for plotting to hush up the bugging scandal.

It will be the second subpoena Jaworski has served on Nixon. The President, who has repeatedly said he has already provided Jaworski with enough evidence to prosecute his case, complied with the first Jaworski subpoena at the last moment.

Special court authorization was required for this subpoena because under court rules, a subpoena for materials needed for trial is answerable at the time the trial begins.

This week-end's agenda

AN ALL-DAY SEMINAR DEALING with the many legal problems of rape and sexual assault will be held from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m. Saturday in Moore Auditorium.

The seminar will include a discussion of the apprehension of rape offenders, incarceration and rehabilitation, attitudes towards victims by law enforcement agencies and hospital administration, according to one of the seminar organizers, State Representative Elaine Gordon.

"ALTERED STATES OF INTERACTION," a different way to meet people, will meet tonight at 7 in the Leon-Lafayette Room in the Union.

CPE'S EVERYDAY ELECTRICITY EDU-GROUP will meet Sunday afternoon at 2 in Room 119 Diffenbaugh.

THE "MARCHING SQUAWS," a precision dance and drill team being organized at FSU, will have try-outs today at 5 p.m. in Montgomery Gym. A panel of faculty members, graduate students and ROTC will judge the competition.

"Try-outs are open to anyone with the ability to kick their leg over their head and a knowledge of basic marching techniques," according to the drill team organizers.

THE AMERICAN CIVIL LIBERTIES UNION (ACLU) is having a Spring Fund Raiser Saturday night at 8 at Bill and Bud Bell's, 2107 Woodstock Lane. Admission is $5 for non-students and $2 for students.

THE FLORIDA BETA CHAPTER OF Pi Beta Phi is having a dance-a-thon beginning tonight at 7:30 and continuing until 7:30 a.m. April 20. Pi Beta Phi members will be sponsored for each hour they dance, and the collected funds will be donated to Muscular Dystrophy, in connection with the Pike Bike Race.

Anyone interested in sponsoring a Pi Phi for the dance-a-thon should contact Julie Stein at 599-9381.

A PRESENTATION OF THE ROCK OPERA "Jesus Christ Superstar" will be offered Sunday night at 8 in the Chapel of the Upper Room, 705 W. Jefferson.

A MEETING TO DISCUSS the priorities and direction of the Center for Feminist Services will be held Sunday at 5:30 p.m. at the Center, Building 212, Mabry Heights. The meeting is open to women and men.

"HISTORY OF THE MOTION PICTURE," Mass 380, desperately needs the course text: "Bobbker, 'Elements of Film.'" Anyone interested in loaning the book to a class member should leave their name, address and phone number in Room 424 Diffenbaugh. The text will be returned to the loaner at the end of the quarter.

More men than women favor right to abortion

(ZNS) More men than women apparently believe that a woman has the right to have an abortion.

A survey by the Gallup Poll organization has found that 43 percent of the women questioned support a woman's right to an abortion, while 49 percent opposed it. Fifty-one percent of the men questioned supported a woman's abortion right, while only 38 percent said they disapproved.

Editorial

SG president should review

FSU Student Government President David Aronofsky, who has held office for a mere two months, has already mastered the distasteful and often fool-hardy art of making over-statements, under-statements and down-right stupid statements.

Aronofsky, along with his seemingly endless stream of off-the-cuff remarks, has also started to ignore issues which are of vital importance to students.

Last Monday, after a bill passed which would place university students on the Board of Regents, Aronofsky said, "I'm really indifferent to the fate of the bill. I don't agree with the concept that the governor can appoint any student he or she wishes to; it could become too political."

Aronofsky reportedly made these statements after an amendment which would require the governor to appoint students to the BOR from a list of nominees submitted by the State Council of Student Body President failed to pass the Senate Education Committee.

The bill is probably the most significant piece of legislation now before the state Senate concerning students. For years, the BOR has been totally inaccessible to students, and has repeatedly devised and enforced rules and regulations which are totally void of any student input.

And while it is granted that the governor may not select students who would diligently represent their fellow students, the potential benefits far outweigh any arguments to kill the bill because it could become "too political."

Aronofsky has also listed Student Government's only source of revenue, the money received from the activities fee, as not being a "top priority."

Student Government's power base is dependent upon how much money it is allocated to fund projects and initiate programs on its own. Two years ago, the allocation was $6.20. Last year it went to $3.10 and this year, the administration has already introduced one plan which would give Student Government $1.20 to operate on for the upcoming year. However, Aronofsky says the administration is just playing a game and the budget will not be cut that low.

Yet, as unbelievable as it sounds, Aronofsky did suggest that sections of the Seminole Reservation be sold in order to secure additional funds for Student Government.

The Flambeau sincerely hopes that President Aronofsky sits down and re-evaluates some of his priorities and realizes the dangerous direction in which he is leading Student Government. Surely, if Aronofsky's haphazard leadership continues, then Student Government could well sink to such dismal depths that it may never recover.

And yes, David, the visitation bill does have "the chance of a snowball in hell of passing."

Libertarian looks at ERA

Back in 1964, when Congress passed the Civil Rights Act, complete with a provision against the right of a citizen to dispose of his property as he sees fit (the section on public accommodation) and a provision against an entrepreneur's right to hire only those persons he wants for his private business (the section on employment), it was clear that the erosion of private property had been accelerated. Neanderthal racists and welfare statist fought over the Act and got all the publicity.

Meanwhile, Barry Goldwater tried to bring out the real issue — that without property rights, there can be no practical rights. Your person, your self, is your ultimate property. A private restaurant is an extension of the owner's person, but a public school, by definition, belongs to the collective. The Civil Rights Act naturally failed to make the necessary distinction. One evil (racial segregation forced by rednecks) was replaced by another (racial integration forced by liberals).

Now comes the Equal Rights Amendment, recently defeated in the Florida Senate. The libertarian's instinct is to suspect the amendment of mischief similar to the Act of '64. After all, if liberals are behind it, there must be something wrong with it. Well, children, not so! The passage of ERA would not aid the cause of limited government, but neither would it hinder the proponents of laissez faire. The ERA would not apply to private employment. It would prohibit discrimination by Government as the employer... and it would neither improve nor worsen the situations resulting from the '64 attack on individualism.

In fact, passing the ERA might facilitate some libertarian reforms, in an indirect fashion. For example, libertarians and responsible conservatives have been arguing against the draft for years — they want a volunteer army. Won't the drafting of 18-year-old girls accelerate the legislation for an army of willing soldiers on a permanent basis? Besides, men have been enjoying a monopoly on front-line deaths. Why shouldn't women have the same privilege as the boys?

Traditionalists argue that ERA-as-Law would be a push to defeminize women. Balderdash! The defeminization of girls is already well underway, on college campuses, but the passage of the Equal Rights Amendment won't have an effect, one way or the other... the legal concept of equality under the law is hardly the cause of girls who shuffle about campus with hairy legs. Defeminization is just another facet of the decline of Western civilization; just further proof that we live in the Age of the Slob. Law didn't cause our sorry cultural state. The worship of mediocrity did. The ERA is not involved with this issue. Sexy women, who know what it takes to be beautiful, will still look delectable on the day after ERA ratification.

GUEST COLUMN

By Brad Linaweaver

Libertarians can argue, as they usually do, that the amendment is not worth supporting because it does nothing to change the moral climate of our nation — a nation that is fast becoming the welfare state. But, by the same logic, the ERA is not worth opposing!

It is unlikely that there will ever be a Human Rights Amendment concerned with freedom, limiting the power of Government — ending censorship, ending taxation for welfare schemes, ending vice laws, ending permissive treatment of real criminals, and ending the zoning laws — so why expect the ERA to deal with rights? It deals with equality instead. The majority of people have never wanted freedom. They want security. Hence the Liberal Establishment. The one real virtue of the ERA is that it would undercut the unearned security that has been woman's by tradition. In the long run, that might prove to be a healthy thing.

Anyhow, the ERA will become the law of the land, probably sooner than later.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Coaches fed

Editor:

As a group of student employees of the Outpost, we would like to register a complaint which concerns itself with student funds.

We feel that it has become our duty to inform the reading students of this university that the fabulous FSU All-American football team and the Athletic Department sometimes engage in what appears to be a growing cancer in this society: knowledgeable corruption and misuse of funds.

The football team has to be fed and at the Outpost we do that. But when open corruption flourishes before a person's eye, and that person is paid the wage of a chimney sweep ($1.60 per hour) after working for this fine institution for many months, it naturally dawns on us that something is working out of line.

This unnatural effect occurs when the team comes in for its meal when the other excellent serving lines are closed due to the spring break. By contract, the good help at the Outpost responds by feeding the team.

But the "staff" coaches follow the team and demand that they be fed, and sometimes the coaches bring in their families or parts of their families. ARA bills the Athletic Department and FSU pays the bill for quality steaks, spaghetti, pizza and numerous other things.

Sigma Theta Tau, the national honor society of nursing, will install a new Tallahassee chapter in a ceremony at Moore Auditorium Saturday at 2 p.m. Ruth Hepler, National Executive President of Sigma Theta Tau, will officiate. Shirley Martin, Dean of the School of Nursing and Phillip Fordyce, Provost of Division II, will speak to an audience of students, faculty, alumni and guests.

Financial aid qualified stud

Over 1400 qualified students are not receiving financial aid "simply because they have not applied for the funds," according to Financial Aid Director James Carr.

The Florida Student Assistance Grant and the federally funded Basic Educational Opportunity Grant (BEOG), are two grant programs available, and neither is being used to full potential, Carr said.

The Florida grant program is based on need and any undergraduate student may apply. Only 150 of 1500 qualified students are receiving aid from the program. Undergrads may receive a maximum of $1200 per year by applying before the May 15 deadline.

Shirley Martin, Dean of the School of Nursing and Phillip Gordyce, Provost of Division II, will speak to an audience of students, faculty, alumni and guests.

Approximately 124 people will be initiated at Saturday's ceremony. According to Donkin, "a national by-law requires that all those wishing to be inducted be present at this ceremony."

Membership in the local organization, NHS, has always been restricted to students. However, when Beta Pi is officially installed as a chapter of Sigma Theta Tau, nursing faculty and alumni will be eligible to join, Donkin said.

"PLEASE HELP MAKE NEXT WEEK THE BIGGEST OF MY CAREER."

The brewers of Budweiser, in cooperation with ABC Radio, asked me to remind you that April 22-27 is National College "Pitch In!" Week.

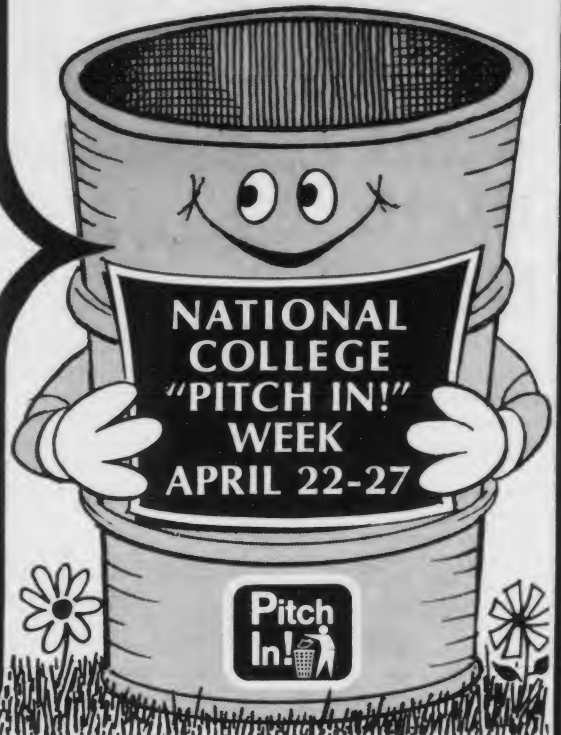

All week, all over America, students like you will be filling up litter cans like me.

If there's an official "Pitch In!" Week program in your campus community, join up. If there isn't, you can still support the national effort. Just pick up any litter in your path next week and bring it to me.

Thanks, see you

FLORIDA STATE UNIVERSITY

Kant Birth Noted

A symposium marking the 250th birthday of German philosopher Immanuel Kant will bring leading scholars from the U.S., Canada and Germany to Florida State today and tomorrow.

Heading the list of visitors will be Dr. Frederick P. Van De Pitte of the University of Alberta, Edmonton, Canada, called by symposium organizers the leading Kant scholar in the Western hemisphere. He received his Ph.D. degree at FSU, working under Dr. W.H. Werkmeister, now professor emeritus of philosophy.

Also attending the symposium will be Prof. Gerhard Funke of the University of Mainz, West Germany, president of the International Kant Society; Dr. George A. Schrader of Yale University; Dr. Ted B. Humphrey, Arizona State University, and Dr. Lewis White Beck of the University of Rochester, N.Y.

Dr. Werkmeister and each of the visiting scholars will present a paper at the symposium, which will center on the theme "Kant and Our Times."

All sessions will be held in the United Ministries Center, 548 West Park Ave., with the first session set for 9 a.m. today. The public is invited.

The symposium is sponsored by the Florida State Department of Philosophy and funded by a grant from the University's Graduate Research Council.

News You Can Use

A second phase of the adult aerobic fitness program, a six-week starter course, will begin Wednesday, April 24, at 5 p.m. This program is designed to provide a means by which adults can gradually improve cardiovascular endurance and modify their body composition. Those interested in entering this program may call Dr. Doug Smith at 599-3280 or 2431 for further information. A maximum of 10 new participants will be accepted.

"Altered States of Interaction," a chance for people to meet new people in a different way, will be held tonight at 7 p.m. in the Leon/Lafayette Room in the Union.

An innovative child development session, called an Intermix by Dr. Don Rapp and Dr. Joyce Williams of the Department of Home and Family Life, will be held Thursday, April 25, from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. in the State Room of the Union.

All students and faculty who are interested in educational techniques are invited. Call Dr. Rapp at ext. 2063 for further information and clearance to attend.

Cabinet Signs Auto Contract

A contract to provide maximum economies in the rental of automobiles for official state business has been approved by the Cabinet. It is effective immediately.

All rentals of automobiles by state agencies must be made under the terms, prices and conditions of this contract, which is with the Hertz Corporation.

Exact figures on classes of vehicles and rates have been sent by the University Comptroller to all provosts, deans, department heads and principal investigators. Copies may be obtained in that office. Any questions concerning this contract should be directed to the Department of General Services, Division of Motor Pool, telephone 488-4290.

Discounts called for in the contract will apply to the uniform base rates in Florida and also to the regular undiscounted rates available throughout the United States.

Any special rates available to all customers at the time of rental, which would result in a lower net rate than that offered herein, will be provided at the time of rental. There is no drop-off charge for rentals that begin and end in Florida.

Hertz Credit Cards and Hertz "One-Time-Travel-Orders" are the acceptable methods of payment that will positively insure that the discount will be received.

The four classes of vehicles are A, sub-compact (Pinto, Vega, Gremlin); B, compact (Dart, Hornet, Maverick, Chevy II); C, intermediate (Cutlass, Torino, Matador, Chevelle); D, full-size (Galaxie, Impala, Fury, Ambassador.)

For reservations, the toll-free number is 1-800-654-3131.

This contract does not prohibit the use of rental vehicles from other companies that have lower net rates. However, the Department of General Services directive requires the use of Hertz unless it can be shown that another company has lower net rates. Where Hertz vehicles are not available, another company may be used. A statement as to the unavailability of Hertz vehicles must be attached to the travel reimbursement request.

Earth Week Begins Monday

The FSU Environmental Action Group, in conjunction with ecology-minded organizations across the nation, is sponsoring Earth Week on campus. Activities begin Monday, April 22, on Earth Day and continue through Saturday, April 27. The following tentative agenda has been established:

Monday, Earth Day: Help humanity with education about environmental problems. The E.A.G. will set up a book display in the library with information about "Spaceship Earth." The display will be up all week.

Wednesday, Earth Festival: Live music starts about 3 p.m. Some local merchants will set up outdoor equipment displays, including canoe and bicycle exhibits in the area between the Union and the swimming pool.

Thursday, Environmental flicks: Times and places to be announced.

Saturday, The Earth Week Bike Trail Exploration and Picnic: Everyone invited. More information later.

The E.A.G. is urging the University to procure the lands adjacent to the Seminole Reservation on Lake Bradford. The deadline is May 24.

Weather permitting, members of the E.A.G. will picnic at Lost Lake tomorrow.

Everyone is invited. Go west on Springhill Road about 15 miles and follow the sign on the right.

The E.A.G. meets every Monday at 7:30 p.m. in the Deviney Hall lobby. Meetings are open to the public.

REP. RAP — State Rep. Paul Steinberg (D-Miami) met with residents of Magnolia Hall dormitory as part of an annual program to give students a chance to talk with legislators. The discussions ranged from political corruption to veterans affairs and rights for the handicapped. The lawmakers were invited by the Inter-Residence Hall Council and approximately 45 of them scheduled meetings with dorm students during this week and next.

Rape Crisis Seminar Is Tomorrow in Moore

Rep. Elaine Gordon of Miami is spearheading a free all-day seminar, "Rape: Crisis of the 70's," tomorrow in Moore Auditorium.

A number of agencies, with the cooperation of Gov. Reubin Askew, the Attorney General's office, Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services and Division of Continuing Education at Florida State, will take part.

The purpose of this seminar is to bring about constructive programs and legislation aimed toward reducing the incidence of rape, and increasing the number of successful prosecutions, said Rep. Gordon, who is being assisted by Rep. Jane Robinson.

A panel of experts from various agencies, the court system, hospitals, doctors, victims and possibly even offenders will discuss the problems that exist.

Participants will include: Dr. Geraldine Booser, psychologist and director of the Sex Offender Rehabilitation Program at South Florida State Hospital; Ms. Carolyn Snurkowski, assistant attorney general in the criminal division; Stewart D. Price, director of the Governor's Crime Prevention Committee; Judge Alfonso

Sepe, criminal division of the Dade County Circuit Court.

Judge Frank Orlando, circuit court judge, Broward County Circuit Court; Dick Ervin, public defender, Tallahassee.

Mary Dunetz, chairperson of the Dade County Rape Task Force; Dr. Dorothy Hicks, medical director of the Rape Treatment and Trauma Center at Jackson Memorial Hospital, and Dr. Marie Mehl, Center for Family Learning.

Hungary Honors Follinus

Dr. Janos Follinus, a research associate at Florida State, has been awarded one of the highest orders available to civilians in Hungary for continued, outstanding achievement in a professional field.

A native of Budapest, Follinus received the Order of Work in Gold, awarded him by the Presidential Council of the Hungarian People's Republic for his economic publications published in Hungary and other countries.

Affiliated with the Center for Slavic and East European Studies at the University, Follinus has been a regular participant in joint seminars organized by Dr. George Macesich, economics professor and director of the Center.

Cold Drink Costs to Rise

The price of canned soft drinks sold on both the Florida State and FAMU campuses will be increasing, according to Jack Bassett, concessions administrator, who said that since 1971 the wholesale price of canned drinks has risen 22 percent.

Labor costs have increased approximately 20 percent. To offset the rising costs, the sales price of canned drinks will change from 20 cents to 25 cents per can. The price increases will be effected in the near future.

DATELINE, an official page or record, is published by The Florida State University to communicate information to students, faculty and staff. ## Olympic bicyclists race this weekend

The nation's top bicyclists will compete this weekend in the Tour of the Apalachicola National Forest, Tallahassee's first Olympic development bicycle race.

One of two major trial runs in the country, the Eastern Regional Olympic Development race will begin on Springhill Road at 8:00 a.m. Saturday for a 95-mile run.

For spectators, there will be two criteria, the first at Meridian Hills on Saturday and the other on Capital City Country Club Drive on Sunday. Both criteria begin at 8:00 p.m. with a banquet and awards supper to follow Sunday's race.

Members of the Tallahassee Velo Sport Club, which sponsors the races, will be riding against former Olympians for national recognition.

This afternoon at 2:30 a qualifying time trial for the tour will begin on Springhill Road at the junction of 267 and 267A.

Tom Wallace, events coordinator, calls the 35-mile Country Club criterium "the hillest in Florida."

"We hope to surprise some riders with our terrain," he added.

In preparation for the tour,

12 members of the Velo Sport Club have been riding as much as 500 miles each week. FSU's Ted Thomas will be in Tallahassee's favorite Mayor Russell Bevis will be on hand for the beginning of Sunday's criterium and the race is scheduled to be televised.

Weekend sports offer plenty

Florida State athletic fans can get an eye-full this weekend as five Seminole sporting teams will be in action.

The FSU baseball team begins the weekend's activities, hosting the University of Miami squad tonight at 7:30 in the final game of a three-game series.

Tennis will also be available this weekend as the Seminoles will be playing the Hurricane netters. Miami's team is seventh in the nation and this will be the Seminoles' last match, and FSU fans' last opportunity to see many of the Tribe netters. The time of the match has been switched to 1 p.m.

Florida State's highly rated rugby team will host the Atlanta Old Whites at 2 p.m. Saturday on the fields west of Tully Gym.

Saturday night provides a full slate of activities for Seminole fans as the track and football teams will be competing.

South Carolina will be in Tallahassee to help the Seminole tracksters inaugurate the new Chevron 440 track next to Florida High School. The 6:30 dual meet will feature the number three ranked team in the nation (South Carolina) versus the number seven ranked Seminoles.

Spring football completes the weekend's action with the third intersquad game of the players through a 7:30 practice spring. Seminole head coach to familiarize the team with Darrell Mudra will send his night football under the lights.

FSU stuns Miami twice

Florida State's baseball team taught nationally ranked Miami a few things about the art of comeback rallies and pitching finesse in sweeping the Hurricanes 2-1 and 7-4 yesterday.

Ron Herring will try to make it a three-game Seminole sweep tonight when these same two teams square off at 7:30 on the Seminole baseball diamond.

The Seminoles were forced to come back in both ballgames from early inning deficits and displayed in the persons of Danny O'Brien and Mike Kelly some excellent pitching.

In the nightcap, Miami jumped on top with single runs in the first three innings, highlighted by Benny Castillo's 330-foot line drive home run in the Kelly.

But with junior righthander Mike Kelly on in relief holding the Hurricanes at bay, FSU exploded for four runs in the fourth, added two more in the sixth and finished the scoring with a single run in the seventh.

Consecutive singles by Guillermo Bonilla, Bill Daniel and Windle Higginbotham, a sacrifice fly by Carlos Lezcano and a single by Jose Lugo accounted for the four fourth inning runs.

Kelly, holding Miami hitless for 5 2/3 innings, did not yield a run until two were out in the ninth. He retired 18 of the first 20 men he faced, the only two baserunners reaching by way of walks.

Freshmen Lezcano and Jim

Busby provided the big hits in the Seminoles first game comeback. Daniel scored the Seminoles' first run from second base on Lezcano's sinking double which hit on the leftfield line.

Busby's third home run of the season in the sixth produced the tie-breaking and eventual winning run for the Tribe.

O'Brien scattered seven hits and didn't walk a man in recording his sixth victory against four defeats. Kelley raised his record to 4-2 with the victory in relief.

The twin wins raised FSU's record to a respectable 25-16, including nine of its last ten. The two losses gave Miami its longest losing streak of the season and dropped the Hurricanes record to 33-6.

Student 'serious' in frat-related beating

By Creston Nelson

FSU freshman Steven Butdorf was still listed in serious condition yesterday following a severe beating early Saturday morning which resulted from an alleged incidence of fraternity "road-tripping."

Butdorf was admitted to Tallahassee Memorial Hospital (TMH) Saturday morning in critical condition and is still in the Intensive Care Unit at TMH.

Theta Chi fraternity pledges Butdorf and William Snyder, both 18, were taken to a wooded area south of Tallahassee late Friday night and stranded. The two were expected to walk the several miles back to town.

According to Snyder, he and Butdorf got as far as the truck route when a car full of teenagers they had never seen before stopped and offered them a ride.

Snyder said that Butdorf entered the car which then sped off before Snyder could get in. Snyder kept walking and several minutes later he came upon Butdorf, who had been badly beaten and then dumped along the side of the highway.

Snyder flagged down a car and asked the driver to get help. Butdorf underwent surgery for multiple fractures and cuts on his legs, elbows, hands and head at TMH shortly after he was admitted.

The incident brought expressions of surprise and sympathy from FSU fraternity officers and members. The Inter-Fraternity Council (IFC) called an emergency meeting for last night to discuss the incident.

IFC president Lewis Collins said that he had "no statement" to make until after the emergency meeting, but said that he was "not sure it was a road-trip."

However, Ron Clark, IFC Secretary-Treasurer, was "shocked" by the occurrence.

"Hazing was ruled out by all of the national headquarters of each fraternity and by the IFC," Clark said. "I'm only sorry that something of this degree has to happen to show all fraternities that such practices can't go on."

Other Greeks were concerned that the incident will hurt the reputation of Greeks and of the IFC. "The IFC was just reaching its full potential and now we get kicked in the face," one spokesperson said.

Most fraternities contacted denied that they have any sort of hazing activities.

Gary Hirsch, a member of the Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity, said, "I've been here for three years. We have our pranks, but everything is super-regulated." Hirsch added that "nothing is done to endanger or embarrass pledges."

Lambda Chi Alpha member Doug Mannheimer said, "The vast majority of fraternities don't have hazing. This is the exception, not the rule."

One fraternity claims to have "rid itself of the old-fashioned pledge training and hazing syndrome of the 50s." According to fraternity literature, "An individual's time is too important to be wasted with a period of second-class citizenship when he is involved in an organization with so much potential for human growth."

There was some speculation that the road trip may not have been organized by the fraternity but rather was promoted by individual fraternity members. However, Theta Chi president Jeff Saunders declined to comment.

STUDENT GOVERNMENT PRESIDENT DAVID ARONOFSKY takes time out from yesterday's softball game with the Flambeau to swat at a pesky fly. Despite two triples and a double by the plucky insect, who claimed to be SG comptroller, the Flambeau was able to pull out a 22-10 victory. (see page 6.) Bernatowicz

Would up allocation from $3.10 to $34.50

Bill filed to give full A and S fee back to SG

By Henri Cawthon

A bill which would give state university Student Governments control over all funds generated through the Student Activities and Services Fee was filed in the state legislature Friday by Senator Jack Gordon (D-Miami Beach), vice-chairperson of the Education Committee.

Of the $34.50, which FSU students currently pay in the $190 tuition fee, FSU's Student Government (SG) has allocative control over only $3.10.

A running feud has developed between SG and Vice President for Student Educational Services Stephen McClellan, concerning the administration's authority to control the greater percentage of the activity fees.

"The original idea of a Student Activity Fee was to allow the students to allocate their own money for non-academic services," Student Senator Doug Mannheimer said.

Last year SG had allocative authority over $6.30 of the $34.50 fee, more than twice this year's amount.

According to the bill, "the purpose of the Student Activity Fee should be to aid in financing activities, services, organizations and events that are of interest and benefit to the students," and therefore, "the allocation and expenditure of the . . . funds should be determined by the student government association."

Gordon is the same lawmaker who proposed the placement of three university students on the Board of Regents.

FSU's Student Government currently allocates monies for itself, the Center for Participant Education, the Black Student Union, Student-Community Interaction and various other student organizations and activities such as concerts and lectures.

Fiscal control over intramural funds from the activities fee was transferred from SG to an administrative agency last year, along with the implementation of a new funding group; Student Academic Programs. Both actions removed substantial allocative control and funds from the jurisdiction of SG.

"FSU students can't even influence the funding of their student union," said

Mannheimer. "Five years ago fee but the administration has steadily cut into our budget," McClellan was not available for comment.

Committee set up to decide 'appropriate' security system

Following a heated confrontation between Kellum Hall residents and FSU Housing representatives, the ID checking system at Kellum has stopped and a committee has been set up to determine a more appropriate security system.

Chat Sue, the Area I Housing Coordinator, decided to establish the committee following Thursday's meeting of residents and Housing officials.

The committee is composed of Kellum Hall residents and the primary purpose of the committee is to decide on a "more appropriate security system," which will later be approved by the Kellum residents.

The controversial ID checking system was implemented by Housing authorities as a security measure due to reported assaults and robberies within the dorm area.

Some of the residents' arguments against the ID security method included: the Housing authorities' failure to notify the residents prior to the implementation of the plan; the irresponsibility of personnel working within the security system; and the "incompetency" of the ID card security system.

An alternative security method that the Kellum committee will closely examine is that of a stationed security officer, suggested by Student Body President David Aronofsky at the meeting Thursday.

The recently erected concrete security wall will remain in the Kellum lobby because first floor residents have complained about noise emitting from the lobby and the wall decreases the noise to a lower level.

Whether the Kellum committee will have appropriate security methods implemented by the end of spring quarter is questionable, according to one committee member.

"This committee is probably going to be a waste of time," the committee member said. "They (the Housing authorities) knew that they blew it. Now they are trying to make up for it."

Contempt citation for Nixon not likely

WASHINGTON — Chairman Peter W. Rodino says the House Judiciary Committee probably will not cite President Nixon for contempt of Congress for whatever tapes he refuses to surrender under subpoena this week for the committee's impeachment inquiry.

Rodino, D-N.J., told UPI in an interview that the committee will continue to press for all of the subpoenaed records of 42 presidential conversations related to the Watergate coverup. But he added he is determined to avoid a constitutional confrontation with the President.

He said this means he would not press for a House contempt citation against Nixon. Neither is there any chance that the committee would seek to dispatch the House sergeant-at-arms to the White House to take physical possession of the materials it wants.

A high-ranking White House aide let it be known last week, in a series of off-the-record interviews, that Nixon's lawyers had no intention of surrendering everything the committee requested. But he indicated the White House would at least supply the committee with verbatim transcripts of most of the presidential conversations.

"We're going to turn over absolutely what we think to be the hard evidence of all the totality of the President's knowledge and actions," this official said. He said the materials would provide "comprehensive and conclusive documentation of his innocence."

If Nixon has not complied fully with the subpoena by midsummer, when the committee is planning to vote on impeachment charges, it was considered likely the committee would consider his resistance as evidence in itself of the President's guilt of an impeachable offense.

Consumers spend more despite rapid inflation

WASHINGTON — Despite rampant inflation, consumers are spending like mad and the phenomena has economists mystified.

The devil-may-care attitude runs exactly opposite to traditional behavior in such times of economic uncertainty. People usually start salting away more of their paychecks in bank accounts and conservative investments, building nest eggs in case things get worse.

As recently as the mid-1960s, a 4 percent inflation rate was considered outrageous. Yet in the last 12 months consumer prices have risen 10 percent and there is little relief in sight.

This upward price spiral now has joined hands with a serious economic slump. In the first three months of 1974, the growth rate of the U.S. economy nose-dived by the biggest margin in 16 years.

The combination of events, according to textbooks, should have produced a nation of misers. Yet the personal savings rate — the percentage of income that citizens put into financial institutions, dropped between January and March.

Smooch after smooch

Kissing marathon 'puckers' on

FORT LAUDERDALE
(UPI) — After 24 hours, an even dozen couples were still locked lip-to-lip Sunday in the great Fort Lauderdale Beach Smoochathon.

The 12 couples were all that remained of 40 pairs who at 1:30 p.m. Saturday started out the kissing marathon at "The Button," a bar along the famed beach here.

The prize for being the last couple was an all-expenses-paid trip to Toronto and one pair vowed to keep kissing for another 24 hours if they had to.

When Steve Powell, 19, and his girlfriend, Sue Calcaterra, 18, both of Ft. Lauderdale, heard it might be another 24 hours, they gave up, leaving the 12 who remained.

"Yeah, it got old after awhile, but we still like each other," Powell said after quitting in the 24th hour. "We won't be doin' much kissin' for awhile, though."

The kissers were allowed five minutes break each hour, during which most of them ran to the rest rooms or grabbed a hurried hamburger.

Most of the contestants, according to onlookers, managed to get a couple of hours of dozing in during the first complete day, but one couple was more inventive.

"They tied a belt around their heads to keep their lips together and I think they got four or five hours of sleep each," said Gary Granger of a local radio station (WSHE) which is sponsoring the contest along with Warner Brothers Records.

"All of them are lying down, some of them just on the floor, some of them in sleeping bags and some across a row of chairs," Granger said. "Occasionally, though, a couple gets bored and gets up and dances around for awhile. Some of the couples, mostly attired in bluejeans and numbered t-shirts provided by the sponsors, read books to keep their minds busy and drank milk shakes by the on straws through the their mouths."

WE GOT THE BREAD YOU NEED

Who would you pick?

(ZNS) A priest in Peru complained last week that he has difficulty in attracting people to confession — while another priest has people lining up to confess their sins.

Father Jose Guerrero said that he sometimes waits for hours for a single sinner to appear. He stated that a colleague of his in the nearby town of Arequipa has a line of people waiting at his confessional. Father Guerrero added that the priest in Arequipa is deaf.

PAPER WASTE SITS unrecycled by Florida State and Tallahassee recycling efforts. Confusion exists as to where responsibility actually lies.

Local recycling facilities go unexploited by city, FSU

By John Stevens

Apparently, neither FSU or the city of Tallahassee is making an effort to recycle all their vast quantities of waste paper by utilizing the existing recycling facilities.

Since 1941, N.R. Williams has been running a recycling plant where waste paper is extracted from garbage, compressed into bundles and shipped to various mills throughout the south. The waste paper is then processed into products such as housing insulation and paper towels.

According to Francis Tillman, who is in charge of Interdepartmental Supplies for the University, FSU's waste paper is picked up by the city of Tallahassee, and then dumped in a landfill without bothering to separate the paper from the rubbish, according to one source at the City Garbage Department.

Contradicting this, Emory Brown, Head of Refuse Collection, said that all waste paper is taken to the National Recycling Center which is run by Williams.

However, Williams said that only some of the paper comes to him and that "some garbage truck drivers take advantage of this facility and bring in all sorts of garbage other than paper."

"The City has never picked up a piece of garbage that they've dumped here,"

Williams said, referring to various types of "junk" he said that he is constantly saddled with, interfering with his operation.

Williams also criticized the City for billing him for non-existent garbage service.

Williams would not say how much he paid the City for waste paper, for competitive reasons, but he said that because of the paper shortage, a ton of waste paper that he sold to a mill 18 months ago for $14 would now fetch $35.

Williams also accepts waste paper from individuals, paying $1.50 for a pound of computer printout sheets, two cents for a pound of IBM cards, 50 cents for a hundred pounds of magazines, and $1 for a pound of newspapers.

Estimating that it took about twenty gallons of oil to produce one ton of paper from trees, Williams said that one ton of waste paper could be recycled for ten gallons.

Williams praised the Environmental Action Group for its efforts to save waste paper, but attacked the City for its lack of interest.

Because of Williams' complaints about getting solid garbage other than paper in shipments of refuse in 1968, the City refused to bring him any waste paper for two months, during which time both sides tried to reach an agreement.

Williams said that this action had hurt him financially and "delayed the expansion of my place."

"There's been about a dozen people that have tried to recycle paper here except they've gone broke," Williams said. He has been contending with fluctuating market prices for his packaged waste paper and City managers for 33 years.

"Sometimes I wonder how I've survived myself," he concluded.

WONDERING WHERE TO GO NEXT?

If you're about to graduate, consider the alternatives. A secure, good-paying job might be one of them, if you can find one. But another alternative, provided you like adventure and a challenge, is the Peace Corps and VISTA.

You won't get rich, except in spirit. And you probably won't find yourself behind a big desk. What you will find is a meaningful two-year experience in one of 69 foreign countries if you join Peace Corps. In VISTA we have 3,000 projects across the U.S.

We need college graduates who can qualify as teachers, medical specialists, agriculture specialists, business consultants and skilled tradesmen. And if you have a liberal arts degree, we have plenty of programs to offer.

This week, April 22-24, representatives for Peace Corps and VISTA will be on the FSU campus. Talk to them in the Union Arcade. Now is the time to apply for summer and fall programs. Don't put it off. We have a better alternative.

If you have spring fever, may we recommend a large dose of WTAL. It will do one of two things:

- (a) totally cure you of spring fever, or
- (b) be just enough to do you in permanently.

Wounded Knee leaders on trial

"If Wounded Knee occupiers get convicted, then that means that every American Indian in this country has no treaty rights. If this happens, then the rest of America does not have constitutional rights. So if we get convicted, you all get convicted — and that's the truth."

—Russell Means
American Indian Movement leader now on trial in St. Paul for his part in the Wounded Knee takeover.

"Watergate won't be any surprise to anybody in Indian Country. Instead, it will let the rest of the Americans understand what we've been going through in our many years of work with the Federal Government. Now they know the lack of advocacy. They know the lack of trust. They know what it's like to have crooked people working for you. We've all had that kind of experience."

—Leon Cook
at a national Indian meet in 1973.

"At one time, I thought all I could ever be is drunk. When I found out I could fight for my people, I became a man. . ."

—Pedro Bissonette, an Oglala leader in the occupation of Wounded Knee, who was shot by a Bureau of Indian Affairs policeman on October 17.

"Not a single charge has been filed against any of the oppressors, the BIA police and goon squad. Meanwhile scores of Indians who have spoken out for liberation have been indicted and are facing many years in jail."

—Russell Means
"We need to be vigilant in this country so that the forces of oppression do not work further into the life of our country and so that we seek to release those, such as the American Indians, who have been living under oppression in this country for many years. . . Oppression is not only against black people and against Indians — that oppression turns around and oppresses the oppressor. That's why I have supported the American Indian Movement."

—Rev. Paul Boe who refused to testify about Indian activities at Wounded Knee during the occupation on the grounds that he was a clergyman.

American Indian Movement (AIM) leaders Russell Means and Dennis Banks are currently on trial in St. Paul, Minnesota, for their participation in the 71-day occupation of Wounded Knee. Each is charged with ten felonies in a trial which is entering its sixteenth week.

Our forgotten tribe

The fascinating story of Tallahassee's first inhabitants — the Apalachee tribe — is often glossed over so that the story teller can go on to the tales of Spanish conquistadors and Andrew Jackson.

That situation is an injustice, considering the fact that the white man only arrived in Tallahassee 400 years ago.

No one can be sure exactly how long the Apalachee Indians lived here before the gold-happy Spaniards made their appearance in the region called Apalachee. We do know that the first Indians — mostly small nomadic tribes — made Florida their home some 10,000 years ago.

The Apalachee tribe was a small tribe which was widely scattered throughout the Big Bend. A peaceful tribe, they depended on fishing and farming for sustenance.

Historians have had to piece together much of what we know about the tribe. Much of what we do know about the Apalachees is the result of excavations at the Lake Jackson mounds north of Tallahassee. Now a state park, the site is believed to have been the religious center for the Apalachees. Unlike many Indian mounds the Lake Jackson mounds were not used to bury the dead. Historians believe high priests lived at the top of the man-made mounds and, like the Oracles of however, as the whole crew is believed to have drowned in a storm.

The famous explorer DeSoto a few years later also made an appearance in Apalachee and stayed here long Delphi, counseled the tribe on religious and other matters.

The first white men to come in contact with the Apalachees were the Spanish. The Spaniards first arrived in South Florida in search of gold and silver. Indians there told them of the gold-laden land of Apalachee and they were soon off to "discover" Tallahassee's early Indians.

The first Spaniards didn't stay in the Tallahassee area long, however, as the only thing gold colored coming from the earth was clay. Not to be easily discouraged, the Spanish party made their way to St. Marks and built boats in hopes of sailing across the Gulf of Mexico to the land of the Incas. They didn't make it, enough to celebrate Christmas mass at the Lake Jackson mounds.

With the explorers came the rabid Spanish missionaries, who successfully set up a string of missions between Tallahassee and St. Augustine aimed at converting the heathens to Christianity. The missions provided foodstuffs for the Spanish forts who in turn gave the missions protection.

The Apalachees scattered after the downfall of the Spanish at the hands of the British. Some Indians did remain, however, and their descendants' fate would be sealed when the blossoming American government moved them on to reservations.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Childers kills ERA fight

Editor:

The news of the ERA rejection in the Flambeau of April 11th was especially disgusting for me since I am represented in the Florida Senate by W.B. Childers of Pensacola. Senator Childers commented that American hearts would break if girls were "drafted into barracks full of hardened military men and issued a G.I. issue of boots and uniforms." What about all the young men, "raised in the church" just like the girls, who were sent to war? The hearts of many American and Southeast Asian families are still bleeding as a result of our country's recent involvement in Vietnam and Cambodia.

Childers also remarked that women had equality already, but that seems a very ironic contradiction if you recall an article in that same issue of the Flambeau entitled "Surveys Show Few Changes in Faculty Attitudes and Activities." For the year of 1972-73, Bayer's survey reveals that only 20 percent of all university and college faculty were women. Since 52% of the population is women, I would not call this a sign of equality in higher education.

Well, Childers really asserted his conditioned masculine world view when he said that women "control 100 percent of the warmth and beauty in America." From my personal experience as a woman, I must admit that there are also some warm and beautiful men in the world. Those men are especially lovely with whom I can exchange a kind, understanding smile of mutual respect or earnestly discuss a variety of topics.

Many men, like Senator George Firestone of Miami, realize the necessity of granting women the same rights and responsibilities as men. Men should encourage women to share much more in the creative development of the world. Women need to meet the challenge of developing their potentials and expanding their awareness as they face a world on an equal plane with men.

Aronofsky reacts to Friday's Flambeau editorial

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Editor
This letter is for the benefit of the loyal readers of the Flambeau, some 14,000 of you (and probably a lot more) who read the editorials, along with the personals, sports page, classified ads, etc. I am one of you, and when I see something like the editorial written on Friday, April 19, by Mike Brennan, it makes me wonder whether or not responsibility in writing should not be a criteria for writing a page or column.

Mike, you at least had the foresight not to misquote me in what I think was supposed to be an attack on my ability as Student Body President. What you repeatedly fail to do, however, in this editorial and others, is finish the job by going into my reasons for my statements, which I have shared with you on numerous occasions. I am very indifferent to the bill that would put two students on the Board of Regents, which is probably going to pass despite my indifference. I think I reflect the sentiments of the majority of the students here in that indifference, because I give you all credit for having the common sense to realize that the appointment of any students to the Board, which makes most of the major decisions affecting our education, might not be in the best interests of the students at FSU or in the system. The students on the Board, in my opinion, have to have a little more going for them than a well-connected political family (which is how any governor usually makes appointments) for the concept to work. Token students accomplish nothing, and under this bill there is no guarantee that the students will be anything but token. Readers, you decide. Nor did I say I would like to kill the bill; what I did say, and what I told you, is that any student favoring the bill ought to get off his or her ass and go down to the Capitol and lobby for it.

Since I have yet to see you down there, Mike, and I am down there quite a bit these days, I can blow off the statement that the bill is the most significant piece of legislation as one made from a perspective of ignorance. There are some other pieces of legislation far more important to students, such as the various tuition and fee proposals, some of which recommend that the student cost of education be tripled next year. Considering most of the students at FSU are either broke or severely strapped for bread, without which there is no education here, I would have to say this is more important. The bill that would virtually eliminate any "need" requirement for financial aid, also related to money, or the current lack of, represents in my own mind, a greater concern than the Regents bill. But again, I'll let you, the readers, decide, because I have never been bothered by admitting I'm wrong. Student Body Presidents are human, Mike.

Going on, I have stated and do so again, that the Student Government budget is not my number one priority. It is a high priority, but not number one. Considering that the credibility of Student Government here when I ran for office had hit an all-time low, then perhaps by differing from my predecessors in certain regards I can change that. I have said that the budget is in competent hands in the form of the comptroller, the budget committee (which I am not on) and a Senate that is becoming more and more responsible every week. I have delegated the responsibility of the budget to these sources, which is required by the Student Body Constitution and statutes, rather than tamper with it, and I have spoken at length with these individuals about what I believe the budget should be and do. Considering I have veto power over the budget bill, anyway, which I hope I never have to use, I think it's in good hands. As for the Administration's role, I would remind you, Mike, that they are in the same boat as we are in terms of waiting around for next year's fee schedule. Because you aren't familiar with the Capitol this year, you can't be expected to know about the talk in the Legislature that the activity fee should be abolished, or a proposed bill that, if passed, would give

Student Government control over all A&S fees. At any rate, it's safe to assume that Activity and Service Fee funding will be drastically different next year and it's sort of hard to worry about something today that may not be here in a few months. I'd rather fight in the Legislature over the fee schedule right now than bicker over a few cents in the PS/A Building. Again, readers, you decide.

The Reservation has been a problem here for years. It's a

Senate to hear pro-pot bill

(ZNS) The United States Senate is scheduled to hold public hearings, for the first time, on the possibility of decriminalizing marijuana in the United States.

The Senate Subcommittee in Alcoholism and Narcotics is scheduled, within the next few months, to call a series of witnesses to discuss a bill introduced by Senators Jacob Javits and Harold Hughes.

Javits and Hughes were both members of the National Marijuana Commission; their bill calls for the removal of all criminal penalties for the simple use and possession of small amounts of marijuana in private.

So who needs to be rich?

(ZNS) A study conducted by the Urban Institute has found that the U.S. economy is controlled by a relatively small group of people which the institute calls "the super rich."

According to the institute, the "super rich" are all the people in the United States who have a net worth of $60,000 or more. Sixty thousand dollars might not sound like much, but the institute reports that only 4.4 percent of the adult population falls into this category.

In contrast to the "super rich," half of the adult population, if all of their assets were sold and all of their debts paid off, would be worth less than $3000, the institute concluded.

IRS is mighty determined

(ZNS) If you have attended or helped organize a rock festival within the last five years, your name may be on an Internal Revenue Service "enemies" list.

The IRS has a list of over 16,000 groups and individuals whose tax returns were specially selected for audits, according to an IRS memo released this week by Senator Lowell Weicker.

Oil company reveals profits

(ZNS) The Occidental Petroleum Company has become the first oil company to reveal its 1974 profits picture.

Occidental, the 11th largest oil company in America, reports that during the first two months of 1974, the company made a profit of $46.9 million.

This figure is staggering in economic terms because it represents a 1300 percent increase in profits over the same two-month period of last year.

A SIX MINUTE EGG?

IT'S POSSIBLE. GAS HAS BEEN MADE FROM COAL FOR MANY YEARS IN OTHER PARTS OF THE WORLD, BUT THE HEAT CONTENT IS SO LOW THAT IT TAKES TWICE AS MUCH FUEL TO COOK AN EGG AS WITH NATURAL GAS

NOW A GROUP OF COMPANIES LED BY CONTINENTAL OIL IS USING A COAL GAS PLANT IN SCOTLAND TO DEMONSTRATE A METHOD OF IMPROVING THE HEAT VALUE OF COAL GAS

WITH THIS DEMONSTRATION, AMERICA'S VAST COAL RESERVES CAN MORE EASILY BE USED TO SUPPLEMENT OUR DWINDLING SUPPLIES OF NATURAL GAS - FOR HEATING AND COOKING

Flambeau trounces SG forces

The Florida Flambeau softball team erupted for 22 runs, seventeen of them in the first two innings, as consistent hitting and tight defense added up to a 22-10 trouncing of the forces of Student Government yesterday.

The outcome of the contest on the Florida High baseball field was only in doubt for a short time as the Flambeau built a 17-0 lead before the first team was ordered from the field and replaced by reserves.

"I've never seen us looking sharper," said Flambeau editor Davis Whiteman. "Dale Friedley on the mound and Bill Dugger at third were just great."

"We've been shamed, what else can I say?" said Student Body President David Aronofsky, who played second base like my grandmother, and she's been dead for fifteen years.

financial albatross because it has always been shafted in the funding process. The cost to maintain the Reservation at a minimum level increases annually but the revenue has not been provided to keep up with it. I have said, and I say again, if we can't afford the Reservation, we ought to sell it. I can hardly help but think that the university could fund the place equitably, if they wished. By the way, readers, one solution the Administration talks about is a user's fee of anywhere from a quarter to a dollar out of your pocket each time you're out there. I oppose this as an excessive, unnecessary expense on the students here, who already get stuck every time they walk into any building here. But rest assured, Mike, if I wanted to get rid of the Reservation, which I'll never have to power to do, I would not be giving those leading the drive to save it free use of the office and access to a treacherously low office supply account.

Since you forecast the downfall of Student Government before the election if I did get elected, Mike, and since we're going pretty strong anyway, I tend to think your talents for forecasting events are about equal to those talents for writing mature, intelligent editorials about real issues, such as sex discrimination in faculty and staff pay, computerized registration, the dormitory built without fire escapes and piss-poor morale in the classrooms here. Thanks for the publicity, though, because whenever you write about me, I'm usually doing something right.

Student-Railpass.

Just about the cheapest way to see Europe outside of hitching.

Unlimited second-class rail travel in 13 countries. Two months only $165.

You buy your Student-Railpass here — you can't buy it in Europe. And the $165 price is tax free and a beautiful way to beat currency fluctuations. What's more, train schedules are as frequent as ever, while getting about by car or motor coach isn't always as easy as before.

Who's eligible?

Any full-time student under 26 years of age registered in a North American school, college or university.

You spend two whole months seeing practically the whole of Europe. And you travel in comfort. On trains so clean and so fast (up to 100 mph) you wouldn't believe it. Of course, you can also take our cozy little trains that meander through our remote countryside—that's part of the privilege, too.

It can mean the Summer trip of your life, so don't wait. See your friendly Travel Agent or clip the coupon and we'll send you all the facts.

See if you don't agree. The day of the thumb may be over. Fares subject to change.

Florida legislative session swings into action

SOMETIMES, the seemingly endless stream of roll calls and debates gets to be too much for one person to bear. Rep. Barry Kutun (D-Dade County) takes time out from the activities of the House for a quick leaf-through of his hometown paper.

THE CENTER OF ATTENTION in the House chambers is a two-layered podium seating various legislative officials and staff personnel. The camera at upper center is used to record all House sessions for the archives.

ONE OF THE RULES OF THE FLOOR in the Florida Legislature is that all men must wear suits and ties. Reporter Ray Starr of the Capitol Press Corps makes the best of this regulation with an array of colorful suits.

Marshall Will Speak At Faculty Meeting

A general meeting of the University faculty will be held at 4 p.m. tomorrow (April 23) in Ruby Diamond Auditorium. President Stanley Marshall will address the meeting to give his "reactions to several recent developments which affect the future of the University."

Marshall said all staff members who are interested also are invited.

In a memo to the general faculty and selected staff,

Marshall said: "Specifically, I will address the issues of current HEW posture on desegregation in the SUS institutions, enrollment reporting at Florida State, and the new fee schedule adopted by the Board of Regents."

"There are far reaching implications for the University in each of these matters and they require the understanding and consideration of all of us. I urge you to make every effort to join us for this important meeting."

Comptroller Will Resign

Roy J. McCaslin, Florida State comptroller, has announced his resignation, effective Aug. 1, to enter private business.

McCaslin came to Florida State in the Spring of 1971 as assistant comptroller and was appointed comptroller later that year. He previously had served two years as comptroller at Washington University in St. Louis, Mo.

Homer Fisher, associate executive vice president, in accepting the resignation expressed "appreciation to Mr. McCaslin for the services he has rendered the University during the past three years."

Fisher said the search for a new comptroller would begin immediately.

Danes Elect Sheline

Dr. Raymond K. Sheline, professor of chemistry and physics at Florida State, has been elected to the Royal Danish Academy of Sciences and Letters.

One of the most prestigious in Europe, the Academy approximates the U.S. Academy of Science. "The honor holds special significance," said Dr. Gregory R. Choppin, chairman of the chemistry department, "in that few scientists from foreign countries are elected." Sheline was elected to the Mathematical-Natural Science Section of the Academy.

The 52-year-old Sheline and his family lived in Denmark from 1955 to 1958, during which time he developed a nuclear chemistry laboratory in the famous Niels Bohr Institute. They returned to the United States in 1958.

A member of the Florida State faculty for 23 years, Sheline received the bachelor's in chemistry from Bethany College and the Ph.D., also in chemistry, from the University of California at Berkeley. His primary research is in the area of nuclear spectroscopy and structure.

In 1966, Sheline was named Distinguished Professor of the Year at Florida State. He is a Fellow of the American Physics Society and a member of "Who's Who in America."

Appreciate Secretaries This Week

The 23rd annual Secretaries Week, sponsored by the National Secretaries Association (International), is being observed April 21-27, with Wednesday, April 24, designated as Secretaries Day.

The AMERICAN CANCER SOCIETY Needs Your Help. Give to the Cancer Crusade .

DATELINE, an official page of record, is published by The Florida State University to communicate information to students, faculty and staff. The University Calendar is a weekly feature, published each Monday. Events for which a campus space reservation is made by the Tuesday preceding the Monday of publication are automatically included. All other Calendar items should be submitted to the Events Coordinator, 238 Union, or to the Office of Information Services, 324 P/A Building. Other notices for DATELINE should be submitted to the Office of Information Services. All news must be submitted four days prior to date of publication.

I-M news

The intramural department is located in the Student Union, 240 Union. The department is open to all students, faculty and staff. The department is open to all students, faculty and staff. The department is open to all students, faculty and staff.

"Sign a whole team or at a minimum, don't worry about it. If you're interested, just come on by and sign up. Bring your friends, roommates or lovers. Just come on, deadline is April 24."

And here's another one and will quote Sheline again as he said: "I know that these are hard write-ups."

"Something new - Mixed Double Foursum Golf. The intramural department has set its own rules with an emphasis on fun. Come by Tully Room 117 and guys, bring a girl, girls bring a guy or bring a teacher. If you can't find someone, come by and the department will help you out."

Monday, April 22, is the deadline for signing up.

The women's intramural tennis tournament has progressed to the quarterfinals and following is a list of the games: Anne Hope vs. Pam Mink; Karen Reeves vs. Julie Dunn; Kim French vs. winner Warren Benoit; Madeline Ackerman vs. winner Stump Masciello; Kathy Kolfrath vs. Leshe Portz; Sally Roger vs. Jane Langridge.

There will be an important fraternity managers meeting today at 4:30 in Room 214 Tully Gym.

I-M news

The intramural department has decided to broaden its scope of athletic offerings. Intramural asst. athletic director Bernie Waxman said, "Ladies and gentlemen, grab your gloves, bats and balls and hustle over to the intramural department to sign up for the Un-rec (men and women) Softball League."

"Sign a whole teams or as an individual. Don't worry about a thing — it's just for fun. If you're interested, don't be shy, come on by and sign up. Bring your friends, instructors or lovers, but remember, deadline is April 26."

And here is another one and I will quote Bernie again so readers will know that these are Bernie's write-ups.

"Something new — Mixed Scotch Foursome Golf. The intramural department has set its own rules with an emphasis on fun. Come by Tully Room 117 and guys, bring a girl, girls bring a guy or bring a teacher. If you can't find someone, come by and the department will help you out."

STUDENT GOVERNMENT

Brother Sun, Sister Moon

"Brother Sun, Sister Moon" will be shown free in Moore Auditorium Sunday, April 28, at 7 and 9:30 p.m.

The film is about a young person who, sensitive to his environment and appreciative of nature, animal life, and the value and dignity of his fellow human beings, makes a choice about his life's direction, even though it is against the culture of his day and his parents' wishes. His choice is to be in relationship with nature and with God with as few barriers as possible. This means a life of poverty and service to his fellow man.

Directed by Franco Zeffirelli (the director of "Romeo and Juliet"), the script is straightforward and the cinematography skilled.

Sponsored by the University Religious Council, the film is being shown free of charge and all FSU students are welcome.

Campus Happenings

LAKE BRADFORD: People and ideas are now forming to halt the impending ruin of the beautiful Lake Bradford Recreational Area by industry.

If you're interested, please call the Student Government Offices and leave your name and phone number, and we'll get back in touch with you very soon.

Do it now; time is short!

LAW STUDENTS: The Law Students Civil Rights Research Council (LSCRR) is sponsoring a seminar entitled "Prisoner's Rights in Florida." The guest speaker will be Mr. Kent Spriggs, who was attorney of record in the Quincy Five Case.

The seminar will be held on Thursday evening, the 25th of April, from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. in Room 325 of the College of Law.

BABYSITTING? TYPING? If you are interested in babysitting jobs or typing papers for other students in your spare time, or if you need a babysitter or typist, come by the Student Employment Office.

The names of interested students are kept on file in our office along with their phone numbers and pay rates. Come by or call if you are interested in this service.

Our phone number is 599-2975, and we're in Room 331 Union. We'll be looking for you.

VOLUNTEERS are needed to assist students who have visual and physical disabilities. If you can help by reading, typing, tutoring, taking students shopping or taking notes, or if you can use sign language or finger spelling, please get in touch with the Disabled Student Program at 599-3910 or come by 216 Bryan Hall.

Disabled students who need any of the above services are also urged to get in touch with this office.

International Club Hosts Banquet and Festival

The International Club presents its Annual Film Festival and its popular Annual Banquet.

The Film Festival will last for a whole week, from Monday, April 22 until Friday, April 26. Films from Lebanon, Cuba, Mexico and India will be shown at 7:30 p.m. each night at the Geology Building, and are free of charge. The films are very good this year, for example, "Lebanon, a Love Story," and "Mexico, a Frozen Revolution."

The International Banquet will take place Saturday April 27, at 7 p.m. in the Florida Room. Exotic and delicious foods from Mexico, India, Nigeria, Middle East, China, Korea, and many other nations will be served.

Admission is $4.00 for non-members, $3.00 for members, and $1.50 for children under 12. Tickets are available at the Union Ticket Office and at the door.

All students and faculty members are invited to attend this very enjoyable evening.

SG Cabinet Meeting

We want to directly involve students in current campus issues, so Student Government is bringing Government out into the open among the students.

Our weekly Cabinet Meeting will be in the lobby of Salley Hall this Thursday night at 10. Come and let us hear your complaints and suggestions.

SUPPORT STUDENT GOVERNMENT

Student Government Needs YOU!

Student Government needs students who want to become involved in any and all areas of university or legislative activities. There are a myriad of directions and interests being pursued, and many new areas which constantly demand inquiry and creative organization.

Become involved in what's happening to you and around you. We need your complaints, your ideas, your desire to improve the quality of life as a student to help us bring about some absolutely necessary changes.

YOU are the fundamental ingredient. Bring yourself to the SG Offices on the 3rd floor of the Union, and let's get together and make this university STUDENT-oriented for a change. After all, isn't that the way it should be?

Turn On with SCI

Do you feel happy when you hear jubilant voices of kids as they play football, baseball, or as they discover the fun of creativity? Do you turn on to the light in a child's eyes as he learns to say his name or as he finally understands his school work?

Then get involved with Student Community Interaction (SCI) and lend a helping hand with the creation of these miracles. SCI offers programs for volunteers interested in tutoring, recreational programs, working with the mentally retarded, handicapped, elderly, and juvenile delinquent.

Help someone: prove that you care. Contact the SCI office 388 Union, 599-4725. Somewhere someone needs you!

The World's Greatest Summer School

Appalachian State University has the WORLD'S GREATEST summer school. That's quite a claim to make, but it's true. Appalachian thinks that summer school is just as important as any other quarter of the year, and they back it up with a special curriculum. There are courses, workshops, seminars and other short courses to fit your schedule. An excellent faculty makes the courses worth taking. There are one-week, two-week, four-week, and six-week courses. The courses include some 66 special workshops - workshops dealing with what's happening in the world, specifically designed to deal with trends and new technology, including courses not offered during the rest of the academic year. If you're saying, "Sure, every university has summer courses," that's true, but no other university can offer the bonus of Daniel Boone Country, the most popular recreation area in the East. ASU is located in the heart of this beautiful, unspoiled area. There you will find the Appalachian Trail, the Blue Ridge Parkway, golf courses, majestic mountains, quiet streams, family tourist attractions, and the leading craftsmen and artists in the country and an average summertime temperature of 69 degrees. There's even a day camp for children. Let us tell you more. Just fill out, cut out and send in the request form below. We'll rush back information on the summer school at Appalachian State University, The Cool School.

Trackmen streak by Gamecocks as records fall

By Bruce Raben

Jeff Nedimyer stood alone and intently studied the bar sitting seven feet off the ground. An approach, a Fosbury Flop and Nedimyer had a new Florida State University track record.

Netters lose

Reggie Genois got his personal revenge.

Charles Diggins knocked off previously undefeated John Eagleton.

But it wasn't enough for Florida State's tennis team as the University of Miami netters won the remaining four singles and all three doubles matches defeating the Seminoles 7-2 Saturday afternoon on the Tully Gym courts.

Genois overpowered All-American UM netter Joaquim Rasgado 6-4, 6-4, with precise baseline shots and a quick, aggressive style of play.

Diggins highlighted his win with three straight aces and had his opponent muttering to himself throughout the match.

Andre Zietsman led the Hurricane charge in number two singles by ripping Ricardo Bernd 6-1, 6-1. Tavo Martinez, Alvarol Fillol and Joel Globisch also won singles matches for the Hurricanes.

Globisch and Fillol, reaching the NCAA doubles semifinals last year, had a scare in their encounter with Gordon Jones and Steve Diamond before outlasting the twosome.

Zietsman and Eagleton teamed to top Genois and Juan Ortiz in the number one doubles match, 6-7, 6-3, 6-4.

Rugby wins

Florida State's third-rated rugby team defeated the Atlanta Old Whites twice Saturday winning the A game 27-25 and the B match 20-7.

The Old Whites are a collection of former football and rugby players in the Atlanta area.

In all, two school records came tumbling down and two Seminole trackmen qualified for the NCAA Outdoors as the new Chevron 440 track was inaugurated by FSU's runaway 96-48 victory over the University of South Carolina Saturday night.

Nedimyer had told one alumnus, "Get me a pit and I'll do seven feet before long."

Timely Tribe tops Eagles

STATESBORO, Ga. — Timely hitting from the bats of Jim Foxwell, Jose Lugo and Mike Eissey gave Florida State a 4-2 win over Georgia Southern here Sunday and a split of the two-game series with the nation's number four ranked team.

The Seminoles, 26-18 on the season, will try to make it two in a row tonight at 7:30 when Dan O'Brien goes against the 3rd rated college division team (Florida Southern) on the Seminole diamond.

After tying the score at two in the eighth frame, the Seminoles struck for two home runs in the ninth to clinch the victory.

Windle Higginbotham got the Seminoles started after two were out in the final inning with a triple to right center. Eissey followed with a double to left center scoring Higginbotham and Randy Davidson's single to right got home Eissey with the insurance run.

FSU jumped out to a 1-0 lead in the fourth when Jim Foxwell cracked his fourth home run of the season over the left field fence. The Eagles tied it at one on Keith Chauncey's run scoring single in the fifth.

Southern took the lead in the seventh on a single, walk, sacrifice and a fielder's choice.

However, the Seminoles came right back to tie it in the eighth when Eissey single with two outs. Jim Busby, Lugo and Foxwell followed with singles scoring Eissey. Busby also had apparently scored, but the home plate umpire ruled him out for missing the plate on his slide.

Terry Farmer was credited with the win and Mike Kelly picked up the important save with relief help in the ninth.

Things were somewhat different Friday and Saturday nights as Miami and Southern ripped Seminole pitching for 17-3 and 13-3 wins respectively.

Seminole mistakes in the form of mental pitching lapses and shoddy defensive play aided both teams in running up large victory margins.

But a loss is a loss, no matter the score, and for the crucial five-game series with two of the nation's top rated teams, the Tribesmen managed to escape with three BIG wins.

And 2500 Seminole fans did not have long in waiting as Nedimyer left the bar hanging after just brushing it on his third attempt.

In defeat, Bobby Burr also set a new FSU record by finishing second in the mile run with a time of 4:02.4. Burr lost to the Gamecocks' Jim Shaper who nearly provided as many fans with their first viewing of a sub-four minute mile. Shaper hit the tape at 4:00.2

NCAA 120-yard high hurdle champion Danny Smith outspurred Gamecock freshman Bernard Allen to the wire in tying his personal outdoor best of 13.8 seconds.

Smith later came back to lead a trio of Seminoles to the first three places in the 100-yard dash. Smith's time of 9.6 edged out Vesco Bradley and Jessie Forbes.

Smith, Bradley, Forbes and Joel Garren teamed to outrun South Carolina's 440-yard relay foursome in 40.7 seconds.

Charlie Harris and Rudy Falana led the Seminole charge in the field events. Harris won the triple jump with his sixth leap over 50 feet this year.

Harris also finished second to Falana in the long jump. Falana scored over 24 feet and just missed placing in the triple jump with Harris.

Osborne Brown, a cast just off his broken thumb, won the shot put and placed second in the discus throw. Keith Ingram was the pole vault winner with a lead of 15-10 — his personal best.

The Seminoles captured the last two events of the night in thrilling fashion after the meet had already been clinched and both teams were running on pride.

Bobby Brooks led a Seminole sweep in the grueling three-mile run with a half lap margin between him and teammate Bobby Burr. Del Ramers finished third to the delight of the crowd.

Wes Koenig's super third leg and Tyrone Frederick's gutsy anchor leg gave the Seminoles a victory in the mile relay with a 3:16.3 clocking. Frederick had been nosed out earlier in the 880-yard run by Gamecock Mike Sheley.

In the end, the Seminoles had more pride and an impressive victory in their pockets.

Rabin

TEL AVIV (UPI) — Labor Minister Yitzhak Rabin, former chief of staff and ambassador to the United States, Monday won the nomination of his ruling Labor Party to succeed Golda Meir as prime minister of Israel.

But he said he expected problems in forming a new government coalition and may be forced to call a new general election.

Rabin may succeed Meir in Israel

TEL AVIV (UPI) — Labor Minister Yitzhak Rabin, a former chief of staff and ambassador to the United States, Monday won the nomination of his ruling Labor Party to succeed Golda Meir as prime minister of Israel.

But he said he expects problems in forming a new government coalition and may be forced to call a new general election.

A leading dove, Rabin indicated he would continue Meir's efforts to reach further peace settlements with Egypt and a troop disengagement with Syria.

Reddening through his freckles, Rabin, 52, warmly shook hands with his defeated opponent, Information Minister Shimon Peres. The Labor Party's central committee, its policy-making body, nominated Rabin by a vote of 298-254 with six abstentions.

Peres showed unexpected strength in the balloting, party sources said. But in a show of party unity, the delegates raised their hands in the smoky, packed meeting hall in unanimous support for Rabin following the reading of the vote totals from secret ballots.

The Labor Party will meet its leftwing coalition partner, Mapam, Tuesday to begin talks aimed at formation of new coalition cabinet. President Ephraim Katzir is expected to give Rabin 21 days, as allowed by law, to form a new government.

Meir will remain in power as head of her caretaker government until Katzir declares that a new government has been formed, if Rabin is able to form one.

"If after the specified period of time we find ourselves unsuccessful in forming a coalition government, it must be known that there is a real possibility of general elections soon," Rabin said in a prepared acceptance speech.

"Until the elections, a transitional government will rule but this will be a government in every sense with a prime minister with unchallengeable authorities and a government that will do all that is necessary to maintain the nation's defense power," he said.

Rabin, chief of staff in the 1967 Six-Day War, favors giving back to Jordan much of the West Bank captured in the conflict. On this point, he is expected to run into stiff competition from Labor's biggest coalition partner, the National Religious Party (NRP).

Sites holy to Judaism are in the west bank and the NRP wants to retain all of the area. If the NRP refuses to join a Rabin-led government, it will be virtually impossible to form a new coalition.

EVEN THOUGH WARM WEATHER HAS permeated the Tallahassee area during the last few days, this FSU student still finds a reason to keeping her hands warm while strolling between classes. Gary

All points bulletin issued

No new leads in Butdorf case

By Henri Cawthon

An all points bulletin issued by the Leon County Sheriff's Department has failed to provide any substantial leads in the case of a fraternity pledge who was seriously injured during an alleged "road-tripping" incident last weekend.

FSU student Steven Butdorf is scheduled for skin graft surgery today after he was apparently run over and dragged by a car driven by a group of teenagers early Saturday morning.

"We are viewing it as either a malicious act of criminal intent or an accident that took place as a result of an altercation between the student and the occupants of the vehicle," Major Gene Geiger of the Sheriff's Department said.

The FSU University Police, the Tallahassee Police Department and other county law agencies are aiding the Sheriff's Department in the search for a light colored Chevrolet model, reportedly dated between 1960 and 1967.

The incident occurred after Butdorf and William Snyder were taken to a wooded area south of Tallahassee by members of Theta Chi fraternity for initiation purposes. The two pledges were supposed to walk the several miles back to town.

According to Snyder, a group of teenagers stopped to give them a ride and when Butdorf had gotten into the vehicle it sped forward.

"Then they tried to run me over in reverse," Snyder said. "I found Will about 200 yards down the road. He had been run over but he was still conscious."

Both Snyder and Butdorf have said that they are not holding Theta Chi responsible for the incident.

Snyder said he didn't know what the motives were for the actions of the car occupants. The Sheriff's Department said that there wouldn't be an investigation into the motives until the automobile and its occupants are found.

Panel OKs vet tuition waiver

By John Stevens

The House Education Committee passed a bill yesterday waiving tuition for undergraduate veterans in public universities by a vote of 25-1.

However, according to Gary Snell and Greg Harris, both of the FSU Veteran's Information Center, this does not mean that the bill will survive since it must still pass through the Finance and Tax Committee, the Appropriations Committee, and be approved by a house vote.

According to Harris, only a couple of veterans of the estimated one hundred that registered to lobby in both the House and Senate after the veterans' march of April 11 have gone to the Capitol to talk with the legislators.

"An eleventh hour stand isn't enough," Harris said. "We veterans have got to get to the legislators now."

"If enough people don't let the representatives on the Finance and Tax Committee know they have a concerned constituency, it's possible that the bill will fail," Snell said.

According to Harris, the greatest danger to the bill's survival will be in the last committee that it faces, the Appropriations Committee, whose Chairperson is Rep. Marshall Harris (D-Dade County.)

Harris feels that veterans' affairs are a federal problem and do not concern the state, according to Snell, "and this attitude will probably lead Harris to refer the bill to a sub-committee where it will be buried."

Harris said that "just participating" in the veterans' march was not enough, and compared the effort of the marchers who aren't lobbying to that of a football player running the ball 98 yards and then stopping.

"That's not a touchdown," Harris said.

Snell urged all veterans and supporters to make an attempt to influence their legislators in favor of the bill, adding that "the people here at the Veteran's Information Center are students too, and can only put in so many hours a week at the Capitol."

"We can't do everything," Snell said, "we need students' help."

The Finance and Taxation Committee which will be reviewing the bill next is chaired by Rep. Ralph Turlington (D-Alachua County). A secretary for that committee said that the bill had not yet been received by committee staff members. The bill is scheduled for review in Room 26 of the House Office Building.

Marshall speaks today

Pres. Stanley Marshall

President Stanley Marshall will address a general meeting of the FSU faculty today at 4 p.m. in Ruby Diamond Auditorium.

Marshall announced that he would share his reactions to several recent developments which affect the future of the University. In particular, he cited the issues of desegregation in state universities, enrollment reporting at Florida State and the new fee schedule adopted by the Board of Regents.

House wants additional Nixon material

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Judiciary Committee has prepared an additional request of the White House for more material for the panel's impeachment investigation, its was disclosed Monday.

Rep. Edward Hutchinson of Michigan, ranking Republican on the committee, told reporters after a meeting with Albert Jenner, chief GOP counsel on the impeachment staff, "I joined the chairman in making the second request."

I could not be learned immediately whether the request had been delivered to the White House, what it contained or what aspect of the impeachment investigation it pertained to.

Hutchinson's disclosure that a second request for White House material came at the beginning of the week in which President Nixon has promised a response to a committee subpoena for 42 tapes.

The subpoena gave the President until 10 a.m. EDT Thursday to respond, but White House officials have indicated that Nixon's response would be less than total compliance.

Hutchinson, who has nearly completed listening to the 19 tapes which the White House supplied voluntarily, said he has "no reason to believe" that President Nixon is guilty of any major criminal acts. And he would not vote for impeachment otherwise, he said.

Hutchinson's statement was a denial of a Newsweek magazine statement which quoted "one well-wired congressional source" as saying Hutchinson "has decided on the strength of the tapes already at hand that he would support a bill of impeachment against the President."

"I would expect the White House to turn over all the relevant material subpoenaed and I don't know why they shouldn't," Hutchinson said.

But he would not vote to cite Nixon with contempt of Congress for a refusal to comply. He voted against the subpoena on April 11 and said Monday that the committee ought to "accept what they give us. The time has come when we have to make up our minds with the material at hand."

Other committee members have taken a "let's wait and see" attitude before committing themselves on what action to take. A committee meeting has been scheduled to start one-half hour after the Thursday deadline. An additional one may be held the preceding day.

Chairman Peter W. Rodino, Jr., D-N.J., has told UPI that he would not push for a contempt of Congress citation, and indicated that the committee probably would use refusal of material as evidence of Nixon's possible guilt of the allegation to which the Rep. Robert McCloskey, R-Ill., said, "If there is less evidence applied."

than the cooperation I think we should have, I'm going to indicate my displeasure."

Weird sphere called earthly

CHICAGO (UPI) — The mysterious metal ball found in a remote area of Florida appears to be a man-made "Chinese puzzle," an astronomy expert said Monday.

Dr. J. Allen Hynek, head of Northwestern University's Astronomy Department and a widely known UFO watcher, returned home Sunday night from a visit to New Orleans where he and four other colleagues studied the ball found near Jacksonville about three weeks ago.

"All of us agreed that the ball provided us with no evidence to think it was extraterrestrial," Hynek said. Its origin, he said, probably won't be known until its owner allows scientists to cut into the ball.

"It had no mystical properties that we could attribute to it while resting," Hynek said of the ball which rattles and gives off a high pitched sound when shaken.

"It's a Chinese puzzle — a brain teaser," Hynek said.

However, Hynek said he felt the shiny ball was no hoax. "The boy who found the ball found it in a remote, swampy area where very few people ever go. If it was intended to be a hoax, I'd expect the ball to turn up where people are likely to be."

Seeks Wallace votes

Adams to run for governor

By United Press International

Lt. Governor Tom Adams, who escaped impeachment by 17 votes less than a year ago, challenged Governor Reubin Askew for the Democratic nomination for governor Monday.

Bidding for the very substantial George Wallace vote in Florida, Adams said many friends had urged him to run as an independent but "I have been, as the record will reveal, a very loyal Democrat through the years even at times when it hurts."

Without calling Governor Askew's name, Adams issued a news release hitting the "consistent lack of leadership over these past nearly four years, coupled with a philosophy foreign to the views and values of the great mass of Floridians."

He mentioned that he was a George Wallace delegate to the 1972 convention while Askew was supporting "the ultimate Democratic nominee" George McGovern, though admitting that when the choice came down to Republican Richard Nixon and McGovern, "I held my nose and voted for George McGovern."

He said Wallace is a "personal friend" but he has not discussed his candidacy with the spunky little Alabama governor though he has talked by telephone to Wallace's top Florida lieutenant, H.G. (Bill) France of Daytona Beach.

Adams, 56, said he decided to switch plans and run for governor instead of Secretary of State because the people "have pled to have a meaningful choice, a viable alternative" to Askew.

'Hold the onions'

'Kissathon' passes 24-hr. mark

FORT LAUDERDALE (UPI) — The Ft. Lauderdale "Kissathon" passed the 48-hour mark Monday and a doctor gave the go-ahead to the remaining couples despite a few beard-inflicted blisters.

Two couples dropped out of the contest to see who can maintain a kiss the longest Monday morning, leaving eight to vie for the first prize — a trip to Toronto to see a concert by a rock group known as "The Kiss."

When the olympics of osculation began at 1:30 p.m. Saturday, 40 couples locked lips and began the long wait. A few dropped out right away and after 24 hours, only 12 were left.

After the other four dropped, Gary Granger, a spokesman for the radio station (WSHE) sponsoring the contest, said, "We're down to the hard core now. It looks like we're really down to serious business."

No one would predict how long the contest would last, but most observers said they thought it would pass the next 24 hours.

"They are using lots of breath spray and eating lots of breath mints, and they're taking their hamburgers without onions," remarked a bartender at "The Button," the tavern where the contest is being held.

A physician made a quick check of the contestants during one of the hourly five-minute breaks and pronounced all of them fit to continue. He said a few of the girls had blisters on their lips, especially those with boyfriends who hadn't taken the time to shave, but none of them was serious.

Granger said the couples spent most of their time lying down, some of them in sleeping bags, but occasionally they walk around or dance.

"When I came in this morning, one couple was at the window watching the sun come up over the ocean," he said.

The radio station and co-sponsoring record company (Warner Brothers) said the last 10 couples would receive some sort of prize — high fidelity earphones or gift certificates.

Responsibilities of landlords brought into focus

By John Thomson
Special to the Flambeau
First of a Series

Up until the passage of the Florida Residential Landlord and Tenant Act of 1973, there was little more than a thin veil of common law to protect a tenant from an unscrupulous landlord. What few statutes there were favored the landlord, who could contract through the lease just about anything he saw fit, including a waiver of what meager rights the tenant formerly retained.

It was, in the words of Rep. Alan Becker (D-Miami) one of the law's chief heralds, a "feudal relationship," one based on "ancient property rights." But the Landlord-Tenant Act changed all this and, in 24 pages of detailed law, codified the entire rental situation. Florida, following Hawaii, was only the second state to do this.

Much of the law, which is also called the Landlord-Tenant "Bill of Rights," has been in effect only since the first of this year. It spells out the rights and responsibilities for both parties. But, from the perspective of the advantages to tenants, here, briefly, are some highlights of the Act.

A landlord must keep all "structural components in good repair, adhere to local building, health, and housing codes, remove garbage, supply heat and have regular pest control service. He may not contract his way out of any of this except, in some cases, for a single house or duplex.

If the landlord fails to live up to any of the obligations, the tenant may report it to the appropriate local agency, such as the Code Enforcement or Consumer Service Bureau, or stop paying rent altogether, all without being evicted. If the matter goes to court and the landlord has not lived up to his responsibilities, then the tenant has an "absolute defense."

The tenant may be awarded a rent reduction, refund, or, if preferred, a termination of the lease.

Perhaps the most common annoyance for students is deposits, where the most significant changes were made. Under the Act, the landlord must notify the tenant, in writing, of how any advance rent, pet deposit, or security deposit is being held. If it is being held in an interest-bearing account, which is usually the case, the landlord must make interest payments to the tenant. Though a landlord may now choose to credit the interest payments to the security deposit, a bill (HB 2681) by Rep. Ted Cohen (D-Miami Beach) seeks to require either direct payment or a credit to the next month's rent.

After terminating a rental agreement, the landlord must return the deposit or notify the tenant, in writing and by certified mail, that a claim is being made against the deposit.

Sigma Chi sparks off Derby Week

By Mike Osinski

Sigma Chi's annual Derby Week began last Saturday and will continue throughout the week, featuring sorority competition for the "Spirit Trophy," a Derby Queen Contest, skits by sororities, a Greek Dance and the Derby Parade.

Derby Day began forty years ago in Georgia when members of Sigma Chi were chased by sorority girls trying to remove the men's derbies, according to a Sigma fraternity member.

The lucky lass who copped the topper was "rewarded" with a date from the Sigma Chi-ite. However, in 1971, two local Sigma Chis were injured when jumped by twenty "over-eager" sorority women. According to Derby Day reports, one of the injured Sigma Chis had refused to surrender his derby and was soundly thrashed by the women.

This year sororities will vie for the more mundane prize of a "Spirit Trophy," according to Derby Week organizers. The trophy will be awarded to the sorority that can obtain the most Sigma Chi signatures. The girls must earn the signature by making the fraternity member smile.

Other festivities include the Derby Queen contest at the Tallahassee Hilton. Each Sorority, with the exception of Alpha Kappa Alpha, who refused to participate, is represented in the Derby Queen contest. The participants will be judged on the basis of a five-minute interview, a bathing suit contest and an evening gown contest, according to contest organizers. The winner will be announced at Friday night's Greek Dance.

Sororities will also perform skits on Wednesday and Thursday nights in Ruby Diamond Auditorium, which will be open to the public.

Friday will feature a Greek Happy Hour on Park St. beginning at 4 p.m. The Greek Dance will be held Friday night at 8 at the Fairgrounds on South Monroe.

At noon Saturday, the Derby Parade will meander through the FSU campus. The highlight of the parade will be the Dec-A-King contest, in which the "sororities will try to humiliate their sweethearts" and the sweetheart "will try to make a fool out of himself," according to a Sigma Chi spokesperson.

Art Co-op sponsors on TV tonight

Organizers of the People's Art Co-op and the upcoming public auction of fine arts will appear on Prime Time tonight at 7, and will be available to answer questions on the air about the co-op and auction.

According to one of the auction organizers, the auction will feature a "wide variety of art from FSU students, faculty and community artists."

The auction will also include "national and international major works of art from such artists as Miro, Picasso, Motherwell, Zerbe and Renoir," an auction organizer said.

A showing of the works to be auctioned off will open April 27 in the Fine Arts Building Gallery and run until May 2. The auction itself will take place on May 3 in the Fine Arts Building.

The auction is sponsored by the People's Art Co-op and the Tate Art Gallery.

Carroll Award honors display of leadership

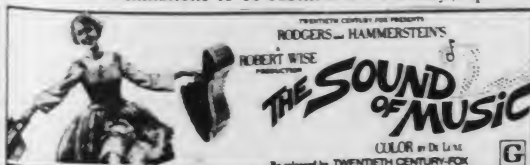

The Blanche Kingery Carroll Memorial Award is given each year to an FSU student who has made outstanding contributions to campus life in religious, moral and academic leadership.

The award consists of a gift of $100 and the names of the award recipients are engraved on the Carroll plaque which is displayed in the entrance lobby of Bryan Hall.

The Carroll Award was instituted in 1960 by Judge Donald K. Carroll of the First District Court of Appeals in Florida. The award is in memory of his mother.

To choose the recipient of the award, a committee of two students, a member of the faculty, a representative of the Division of Student Educational Services and a campus minister are appointed by President Stanley Marshall. Nominations for the award may come from any organized group on campus.

Nomination forms for the Carroll Award are available through the Office of the Chaplain in Room 234 Bryan Hall. Deadline for nominations to be submitted is Tuesday, April 30.

Brother's keeper

One student lies critically injured in a Tallahassee hospital. Another student fell off a western mountain cliff only last year. When will come the end of this barbaric custom they call hazing?

The specific details of the local incident are still under investigation, but one undisputed fact has already emerged — FSU student Steve Butdorf is in critical condition at Tallahassee Memorial Hospital as the result, direct or indirect, of a fraternity pastime called "road tripping."

Even though no official report has been submitted, a friend close to Butdorf gave the following account of what happened.

Butdorf and fellow fraternity pledge William Snyder were allegedly deposited late Friday night in a wooded area south of Tallahassee by members of the Theta Chi fraternity. The two started to walk back to town and attempted to hitchhike when possible. Early Saturday morning, a carload of teenagers offered a ride to Butdorf and Snyder, who, by this time, had walked as far as the truck route.

According to the account received by the Flambeau, Butdorf entered the car which promptly drove forward and hastily reversed its direction in an attempt to run over Snyder. After failing to hit Snyder, the car sped off down the road with Butdorf still a passenger. Snyder continued walking and, about two hundred yards later, came upon Butdorf who was lying on the side of the road after being run over by the car. Both his legs had been broken and numerous lacerations covered his arms, legs and head.

Snyder received help from a passing motorist and Butdorf was rushed off to Tallahassee Memorial where he now remains in serious condition. Today he will undergo surgery for skin grafts.

National fraternity charters have outlawed hazing which may endanger any pledge. The FSU Inter-Fraternity Council has also come down on pranks of this nature.

However, students are frequently subjected to these episodes of childish activity. We feel that the tolerance level of all has been exceeded in this case.

We call on President Marshall and his administrative staff to investigate the nature of all Greek initiation activities and the structure of admittance into a Greek organization.

If in fact, an investigation proves to find actions of irresponsibility which are cruel and unnecessary, the Flambeau can see no justification for the continued existence of these organizations on a university campus and we support the abolishment of any fraternity or sorority which continues to haze its members.

Sending a person into an environment which is unnatural to his/her everyday existence is as severe an act of insensitivity as is the severity of Steve Butdorf's physical condition.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Other side

Ms. Shartzer:

I feel very strongly that the other side should be heard. Please don't misunderstand, I am a feminist who wishes for nothing so much as that every average woman could fulfill her potentials; but as to androgyny, never! I do not want to be a man. I am a woman. What women and men must work together for now is not androgyny, but for getting back to the peaceful coexistence of the two opposite human forms: woman and man.

Opposite? Yes. The universe of made of opposites, this is the only way in which a meaningful balance can be accomplished. To try to ignore or abolish the opposite nature of humans is to destroy the essential nature of humans and therefore to destroy the human race.

Please let me explain what I mean about the opposite nature of the sexes. As a teacher of mine recently pointed out, women are made with a set of feelings which make them want to be entered. Men are made to want to enter, this is the opposite effect that is so essential to human nature, without which we would have no reproduction. There are no easy adjectives that can describe women and men's make-up, like weak and strong, etc. And of course, women have the same potential for any vocation they choose, just as men do.

I am not advocating that women be housewives and men be breadwinners. Each individual is unique and must make his/her choice with this fact in mind; not the fact that they are male or female.

I am advocating that neither women nor men are inferior or superior; each is essential to the whole and each makes up half of this whole. But the halves are necessarily different so that they may fit together. And without the whole, the halves are meaningless (I mean this generally, excluding those who choose otherwise, as homosexuals and lesbians do). To quote Heracleitus, "That which is in opposition is in concert, and from things that differ come the most beautiful harmony."

Linda Sarver

Flambeau

Editor:

One of the shoddiest attempts at journalistic reporting I have read was exhibited as lead story in Friday's Flambeau. The coverage of the "security wall" meeting in Kellum Hall showed not only a lack of insight into the problem discussed but also a lack of professionalism that was glaring in its absence.

Such necessary points of argument as that of the wall's legality under the housing contract and the resentment of the majority of the residents to the system were omitted while several misquotes and faulty statements were incorporated within the article.

When a reporter cannot even dig into the facts enough to ascertain the last name of a resident quoted, and quotes another resident who was not even present (and who had a misunderstanding of the situation itself) it seems only logical that this reporter should not be covering lead stories.

Louis Mazzari

Editor's note: Due to publication and copy deadlines, the reporter in question was forced to leave the Kellum Hall meeting before its conclusion to file his story. The resulting actions following the Thursday meeting were in the Monday Flambeau.

Health center

Editor:

How about a departure from the traditional? I've got a compliment for the University Health Service and I'd really like to share it. Frankly, there's just no comparison between the friendly, helpful people I've twice encountered there, both at the service desk and in the "conference room," and the impersonal, dreary routine which earmarks most doctors' offices "on the outside."

And—for a real "bonus"—the price is right! In other words, I can afford to feel less than up to par while a student here. And that's another BIG difference. A prescription (to relieve my sinuses) here costs $5.16, with no charge for the doctor's fee. Four months ago (before I was aware of the University facility) a lofty physician with a lavish practice in town charged me $13 for the same pills, plus a personal fee!

Bouquets to you-all at the University Health Service! I think you're doing a fine job!

History prof

Editor:

The members of the Department of History who have signed this letter are all much distressed by the criticism of the department's tutorial program which appeared in this morning's newspaper. We are distressed by the attack on a program in which we have conscientiously sought to give students in our beginning classes assistance in their orientation to a new subject. We are even more distressed by the virulence of its strictures upon a respected colleague, to whom conscientious attention to duty we can all testify.

All of us can personally attest to the fact that Professor Oldson always arrives early in the morning and stays until late in the afternoon, keeping office hours which match those of any faculty member on campus. If some student or students have dropped up unexpectedly and not found him, it is because he was in class or perhaps having a cup of coffee in our coffee room. But he has been in his office every day of every week.

We have also by our conversations with Professor Oldson been made aware of his real concern for the tutorial program. We have read the continuing memoranda requesting our help in getting good tutors. We have listened to his expressions of disappointment that so few of our students have taken advantage of the tutorial opportunity. In our last department meeting we did discuss the program and agreed with his estimate that it should be modified to better meet the needs of the students.

Obviously any program in any field of human endeavor is subject to criticism since it achieves less than full success. But the good will of the department, and the sincerity and conscientiousness of Professor Oldson cannot truthfully be questioned.

Literary mag maintains balance, survives

By Richard Lee

Notwithstanding the present campaign by prime-time TV to degenerate the sensibility of an entire population, there still exist vehicles for the expression of literary art.

The Apalachee Quarterly, north Florida's only literary magazine, has managed to survive for nearly a year, despite the financial tightrope on which such productions precariously balance.

Granted, poetry, short stories and essays cannot presume to offer any stiff competition to such commodities as underarm deodorant or denture cleansers on the nation's money markets, but no one would question the legitimacy of this activity, yet.

Thus far, three issues of the Quarterly have gone to press. Instead of showing some profit, however meager, or at least meeting production costs, the Quarterly has lost money on each issue.

Even so, The Apalachee

Quarterly is beginning to gain a reputation in the Tallahassee community for the quality of the material which many well-known artists have contributed to the magazine.

The contributors, most of whom have previously published in numerous literary reviews, range from university professors to free-lance writers.

Emilie Glen, winner of the Stephen Vincent Benet Award for best narrative poem, and Van K. Brock, who received the second place award in the 1972 Borestone Mountain Poetry Awards, are among the distinguished artists who have published their work in the Quarterly.

The magazine also includes graphic art. Photographs by Roger Camp and Barry Hodgins, sketches by John Reed, and comic strips periodically break the continuity and add an interesting multimedia touch to the magazine.

In the short time that the Quarterly has existed it has evolved into an excellent and entertaining review of the current trends in art and the criticism of art. As it becomes more established and financially stable, the development of the Quarterly will hopefully gain it further recognition.

"To attain quality status for the Apalachee Quarterly, to establish a reputation, takes a period of maturation — time to spread our name around and gain acceptance in the community," David Morrill said, co-editor of the Quarterly.

"Times are not particularly good for literary and arts magazines — for the arts in general, for that matter," Morrill said.

"So the production of the Quarterly is sort of an act of defiance against the aridity of the times, we hope, of course, that it's also an act of faith."

The Apalachee Quarterly is edited by David Morrill and Sandy Shartzer and published by DDB Press, Inc. It is available at Bill's Bookstore, the Union Bookstore, and the Co-op bookstore for $1.

Insecurities revealed in Nixon's signatures

(ZNS) A New York psychiatrist who specializes in handwriting analysis says that President Nixon's signatures indicate that the President has dramatically lost confidence in himself.

Dr. H.O. Teltscher, a Viennese-born psychotherapist, reports that he has analyzed Richard Nixon's signatures on documents which were signed before, during and after the Watergate scandal broke. According to Dr. Teltscher's observations, Nixon has changed in that short time from a confident man with a strong ego to a man who is haunted by personal doubts and insecurities.

Dr. Teltscher says he studied Nixon's signatures before the Watergate scandal broke. At that time says Teltscher, the President's handwriting was strong and bold.

However, after comparing this signature with a series of others produced by Richard Nixon through last year, the psychiatrist says there has been a pronounced change. According to Dr. Teltscher, the most recent signatures have changed from bold strokes to unassuming scribbles.

The most recent Richard Nixon signatures, says the doctor, appear to be written by a deeply shaken man who is isolated, unsure of himself and severely pessimistic about his own future.

IT'S TIME TO REFORM CAMPAIGN FINANCING

John W. Gardner, Chairman
Common Cause
Former Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare

"Wouldn't it be great if you didn't have to take a single dime from anybody?" said Senator Philip Hart of Michigan. He had in mind the uncomfortable, sometimes degrading, experiences that political candidates have when they go hat-in-hand to potential donors for contributions.

The costs of political campaigns have gone sky-high. And monied special interests are always glad to meet those costs in behalf of the candidate. The inevitable result has been corruption, scandal and public mistrust of the political process.

Today in most districts and states, candidates can't run for public office unless they are rich, or unless they are willing to put themselves under obligation to sources of funds. That isn't the kind of country we started out to be.

There are honest contributors who give out of conviction, and there are honest politicians who don't repay gifts with political favors. But let's face it: most large political gifts are made with the intent to buy influence, buy votes, buy politicians.

The first principle of free self-government is accountability of government to the citizen. Elections are the chief means through which citizens enforce that accountability. But if the winning candidate feels that his first obligation is to his big campaign donors, public accountability is destroyed.

Here are some of the necessary ingredients of reform.

- 1) There must be low ceilings on individual or committee gifts.
- 2) There must be limits on spending — although these must not be set too low or they will handicap challengers.
- 3) There must be full public disclosure of all gifts and expenditures. One of the most powerful forces for clean government ever discovered is the light of day.
- 4) There must be an independent enforcement commission with subpoena powers and the power to go to court. It is shocking but true that no federal campaign financing law has ever been seriously enforced by the Justice Department.

Many are now beginning to see that there is one further necessary ingredient if we are to have a responsible and competitive political system — namely, an element of public financing in campaigns.

Money for campaigns need not come totally and exclusively from public funds. The bill recently debated in the Senate permits a role for money from private sources, although it places a ceiling on the size of gifts. It encourages small private contributions by providing that they will be matched up to $100 each with public funds at the primary level.

No candidate in the primaries will receive any federal matched funds unless he or she has demonstrated the ability to raise small private gifts up to a specific threshold amount. This will screen out frivolous candidates or candidates with no constituency.

There are legitimate questions as to the mechanics of public financing, but these questions can be dealt with. The real question is whether we intend to put behind us once and for all a system of campaign financing in which money can buy political outcomes.

There is much more to do. And the time to do it is now. The American people are tired of being bilked and manipulated. It's time to give this country back to its people. For additional information, write Common Cause, 2030 M St. N.W., Washington, D.C. 20036.

WONDERING WHERE TO GO NEXT?

If you're about to graduate, consider the alternatives. A secure, good-paying job might be one of them, if you can find one. But another alternative, provided you like adventure and a challenge, is the Peace Corps and VISTA.

You won't get rich, except in spirit. And you probably won't find yourself behind a big desk. What you will find is a meaningful two-year experience in one of 69 foreign countries if you join Peace Corps. In VISTA we have 3,000 projects across the U.S.

We need college graduates who can qualify as teachers, medical specialists, agriculture specialists, business consultants and skilled tradesmen. And if you have a liberal arts degree, we have plenty of programs to offer.

This week, April 22-24, representatives for Peace Corps and VISTA will be on the FSU campus. Talk to them in the Union Rm. 240. Now is the time to apply for summer and fall programs. Don't put it off. We have a better alternative.

'Crucible' production evokes emotion

(Editor's Note: "The Crucible" will hold its final performances this week from April 25-27.)

By Pete Giatilis

The School of Theatre's revival of Arthur Miller's play, "The Crucible," which seems to draw a parallel between the Salem Witch Trials of 1692 and government investigations of alleged Communist subversion in this country in the late 1940s and the early 1950s, opened Thursday evening on the mainstage of the Fine Arts Building.

The production is an example of brilliant, absorbing theatre and proves the contemporary appeal of Miller's play.

Directed by Dr. Moses Goldberg, the play is well-staged on a three quarter thrust with audience seated on all three sides, and proves to be sheer genius in its unfolding.

The set and lighting, designed by Ralph Walker and Jon Middents respectively, reflects a Brechtian approach with wonderful simplicity.

Under the leadership of Abigail Williams, played by Kerry Shanklin with an amazingly subtle quality at times and at other times with a terrorizingly effective skill for deception, a group of girls have conjured the devil. Two of the girls have experienced hysterical reactions, one of them being Betty Parris, daughter of the materialistic, paranoid Reverend Parris, brilliantly portrayed by Tom Lantzy.

Reverend Parris, at the urging of the land-owning Putnams, announces the presence of the devil in his home to the people of Salem.

Arriving at the request of Parris is Reverend Hale, a deeply religious intellectual who has spent his life learning about devil-worship and its symptoms through books. The character of Hale is played with great sensitivity and honesty by Jon Claridge.

The accusations fly, the trials begin, and the Deputy-Governor Danforth, portrayed with powerful strides and magnificent tones by Burton Merriam, begins hanging.

The protagonist, John Proctor, an upright, honest, farmer, is drawn into the circle of fire resulting from his past folly — the seduction of Abigail Williams. Abigail, apparently out of her love for Proctor, accuses Elizabeth, Proctor's straight-faced wife, of witchcraft.

Elizabeth is then taken to jail along with many innocent Salem citizens. Proctor, in an effort to save his wife and friends, accuses Abigail in court and winds up one of the accused himself.

Patricia Oetkin is excellent in her very controlled handling of the role of Elizabeth Proctor. Oetkin progresses from a woman of stone to a woman of compassion with astounding believability.

John Schneeman's virile, passionate and compelling portrayal of John Proctor dominates the stage. Schneeman's stature along with his resilient characterization of Proctor captivates the audience movingly.

In view of all the perfection in the execution of this production there was one rather large shortcoming — the costumes. The design was taken from a historical vantage point; however, the actual costumes were so poorly constructed it was difficult to see what good historical accuracy does if it does not enhance the actors they are made for.

Aside from the costumes, this play offers audiences a meaningful theatrical experience with an evening of suspense, excitement, and the mass hysteria of Salem in 1692 or what could be Salem any time, any place.

America on a shoestring

(Show this ad to your folks.)

Here are a couple of great ways to spend part of your summer. (maybe all of your summer.) without worrying about gas. A Greyhound Ameripass, which gives you unlimited travel throughout America ($165 for 1 month and $220 for 2 months), and this invaluable guide on sleeping accommodations along the way. It covers Y's, college dorms, hostels, no-frill motels, even crash pads.

You can plan your own trip. Get on and off the bus anywhere and anytime you wish. Sleep cheap. Stay as long as you like. Then hop aboard another bus.

If you haven't been on one of our buses lately, you're in for a few pleasant surprises. There's new legroom. Air cushioned ride. Rest rooms on board. Real comfort. So you may decide to spend a few nights with us on the bus along the way.

Another nice thing: you can bring your bike along too. We'll carry it in our baggage compartment at no extra cost. You can do some extra exploring on your own wheels.

So if your folks voted thumbs down on your travel plans this summer, here's a sensible way to reopen the discussion.

Go Greyhound. And leave the driving to us.

DaPhartes; Mac Fishery's smell eradicates intramurals

One smelly inning by DaPhartes allowed Mac Fishery to take a 7-6 win hook, line and sinker. Alpha Kappa Psi banged out 19 hits to take an impressive 18-1 win over the Non Names and if I played like that, I wouldn't want anyone to know my name either.

Betty Boo's Boys cried all the home after losing a heartbreaking 5-4 game to Delta Sigma Pi. After being flushed earlier in the season, the Plumbers were finally drained by the Oakland Pathetics 7-6.

The Soft Ballers played it a little loose and as a result, dropped a 9-5 decision to Primo's Team. WGAS sent the Homewood Hawks packing with a 20-0 whitewash. They probably would have been better off just staying at home.

The Temptations shot down Pershing Rifles 21-6. And these guys are going to save us in a war?

Booters topped 1-0

One disallowed Florida State goal and one mental defensive lapse gave a predominantly German soccer team a 1-0 victory and put a disappointing finish to the Seminoles' eight-month season.

The Seminoles won the first game of the single elimination Mobile Invitational topping the University of West Florida 5-0.

John Johnson, Bob Seeger, Howard Radin, Rossano diGiovacchino, and Steve Ruckel scored a goal apiece for the Tribe.

The man-to-man marking by the Gothic team in the second round proved insurmountable to the FSU soccer club.

The fine teamwork of the first game was lacking in the second contest, but the team acquitted itself well in the tournament. I was unfortunate that its fine season should be capped by such a defeat.

Hugh Durham To be hosted

Friends of head Florida State basketball coach Hugh Durham will host a Hugh Durham Appreciation Night Thursday, May 2, at the Kinhega Lodge off Thomasville Road.

The $10 steak dinner will allow Durham's friends to show their appreciation for the man who has guided FSU's cage program for the past seven years.

Students have been invited to attend the dinner by the organizers and tickets can be purchased at the Old Dover Shop on South Adams. Reservations must be in by April 29.

Burroughs gets defensive honors

Brooks Burroughs has labored for the past two years as a member of the Florida State football team. As an offensive back, Burroughs did an awful lot of sitting on the bench.

Saturday night he was voted defensive lineman of the week by the coaches. Burroughs is now a nose guard.

To earn the honor, Burroughs accumulated ten tackles, one assist, recovered a fumble and blocked a field goal.

Linebacker Detroit Reynolds and defensive back Earl Humes joined Burroughs as defensive award winners. Reynolds had five tackles and 11 assists.

Humes, winning for the second consecutive week, was in on three tackles, three assists, one interception and a pass deflection.

Rudy Thomas and Mike Shumann led the offensive players for the second straight week.

Thomas scored three touchdowns on runs of 18, 22 and 27 yards and finished with 120 yards on 15 carries.

Sophomores Wade Johnson and Vic Rivas tied for the offensive lineman of the week at the guard and tackle spots respectively.

Elder wins; earns Masters invite

The longstanding tradition which has effectively excluded blacks from playing in the famed Masters Golf Tournament has been shattered by Lee Elder.

Elder, the most successful black touring professional in PGA history, captured the Monsanto Open in Pensacola Sunday and thus earned an invitation to play the Augusta layout.

Masters Chairman Clifford Roberts wasted no time in extending the invitation. He quickly sent word to Elder that he had "earned his invitation," that Masters officials "were delighted," and that they "were looking forward to seeing his next spring."

Bruce Turknett had two home runs for the winners and now has nine for the season. Paul Bigham still leads the league with 14 for the season and 634 for his career after poking a round tripper last week. was unable to get their bats over their shoulders.

Further reports on Deviney's efforts to obtain Cowart by way of trade have died somewhat. Salley 7th manager Byron Wright has ordered Deviney second baseman Mike Wilensky and third baseman John Powers to quit enticing Cowart with women of the world.

"He's an impressionable 18-year-old and isn't accustomed to all the publicity," said Wright.

When contacted at home, Deviney manager Do Right Wrong refused to comment. "I refuse to comment," he said.

One hundred professionals and 190 amateur golfers will help commence Wednesday's pro-am of the sixth Tallahassee Open golf tournament.

Baseball greats Mickey Mantle and Roger Maris have recently added their names to the list of those who will be competing for $5000 in cash prizes.

The tournament gets underway Thursday with the pros going after a prize check of $18,000 and a total purse of $90,000.

Florida has been given until 1976 to eliminate inequalities between Florida A&M University — the state's predominantly black school — and the other 10 state universities.

The U.S. Office of Civil Rights, in a letter to the Board of Regents and Governor Reubin Askew released Tuesday, said the inequalities must be eliminated "no later than the outset of the 1976-77 academic year."

Civil Rights Chief Peter Holmes instructed the state "to make a study of facilities, level of per capita expenditures, student financial aid, quality of programs, services and staff."

"Study also the number of library holdings, the number and quality of staff in the system in relation to FAMU, and eliminate any inequality no later than the outset of the 1976-77 academic year," said the letter.

Holmes instructed education officials to "analyze financial sources of whatever type" at each state-supported university and ask the 1974 Legislature for funding "to further increase the part of minority students in the higher education system."

The letter was an outline of "deficiencies" that Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW) officials told State Chancellor Robert B. Mautz earlier this month that they have found in the state's second plan for totally desegregating the university system.

The state has until the middle of next month to correct the deficiencies, and HEW has until mid-June to formally rule on the plan. HEW rejected an earlier desegregation plan, arguing that it did not contain specific steps to ease desegregation.

Holmes urged Gov. Askew to "continue to implement" his policy of appointing "at least one" black member to the Board of Regents and Boards of Trustees of each community college.

Hendrix Chandler, the corporate secretary of the Board of Regents, said that "it will be a tight squeeze" for the state to meet the 1976 deadline.

"They're calling for major action in only two years," he said. "But today, we're dividing the responsibilities and setting up task forces to work in each area."

Vice-Chancellor Philip Ashler said that the state has "a monumental task ahead," but that at least the Regents now know more of what is expected of them.

"The letter is very helpful in that it makes specific references to areas that concern them (HEW)," Ashler said. "It appears to me that they are asking more for philosophical commitments and then a time frame in which we expect to meet them."

Chandler complained last week that the state had gotten no guidelines from the Federal government and that "HEW itself doesn't seem sure of what it really wants."

Marshall discusses fee plan, padding

By Laurin March

FSU president Stanley Marshall met with the FSU faculty to discuss the weighty issues of revised student fee schedules, alleged enrollment "padding" and system-wide university desegregation.

The main area of concern centered around the recent Board of Regents (BOR) rulings that graduate students must pay for every quarter hour attempted. Previously students were able to register for 12 quarter hours, with any additional hours provided free of charge.

The approval of the per-hour charge by the BOR was facilitated by the charges of enrollment padding which Marshall termed "unjustified." The new policy would mean that students may have to spend an additional two quarters in school to compensate for the hours lacking.

Marshall believes that "this will force students to take only the required courses. Allocations will be reduced while operating costs will remain the same."

"This policy will be particularly difficult on the financially pressed student. He will be forced to reduce hours and remain in school longer, which will cost (him) more in tuition and living expenses. It will also cost the state. By taking only the required subjects, the quality of the student's education will go down," Marshall said.

Marshall believes that the BOR is "reflecting the opinion of the legislature and the people, not the faculty and students."

The enrollment padding issue has brought about an investigation throughout the university system by the Senate Education Appropriations Committee. The current investigation into FSU's enrollment figures has not been completed.

According to Marshall, the BOR believes that there have been attempts to coerce students into signing on for more than the necessary hours in an effort to increase the amount of money allocated to FSU.

"I have seen little evidence and FSU has not yet been found guilty. Records must be made available for the campus study and presentation to the BOR and legislature," Marshall said.

"There will be no witch hunts and our house will be set in order without the wish to harm anyone."

Marshall also discussed the department of Health, Education and Welfare's (HEW) ruling that the present "dual system" between FSU and Florida A & M University (FAMU) had to be abolished. Marshall said that "Tallahassee should not be singled out. Desegregation is a state problem, a system-wide problem."

While the possibility exists that FSU and FAMU may consolidate some departments or programs, Marshall denied any possibility of the two schools meshing into one.

"We've always supported FAMU, but we must defend FSU's position and cannot let it meet its demise. I will not stand idly by HEW's allegation that Tallahassee cannot support two major universities. I will maintain a spirit of leadership at FSU," Marshall said.

FSU PRESIDENT J. STANLEY MARSHALL addressed the faculty on the current issues of a revised tuition fee plan, system-wide state university desegregation and the alleged "padding" claim yesterday.

More contract appeals expected by Housing

By Richard Lee

An increase in the number of dorm residents filing appeals to break their housing contracts during the summer quarter is expected by university housing officials.

Whether it is the heat and noise of the dormitories, or the abundance of low cost housing off-campus during the summer, the seasonal increase in confrontations and contract violations has become traditional at FSU.

Another tradition is the ingeniousness of the dorm residents seeking to circumvent the strictly binding housing contract. Although many are merely tired of dorm life or wish to live with friends off-campus, they must prove the necessity of terminating their contracts to the increasingly suspicious housing appeals committee.

Many students have been released in the past from the contract by convincing the committee that they were financially incapable of paying their dorm fees. In order to justify the move off-campus the resident must submit a letter from their prospective landlord which verifies the rent to be considerably lower than dorm costs.

However, this may be difficult since the Housing Department drops the rent in Dorman Hall to $110 for summer quarter to meet this contingency.

The student is then required by the Housing Department to furnish the address of their future residence, and, as a condition of their release, they must remain in this or equally inexpensive accommodations, or risk a suit by the university.

Dorm residents may also break their contracts for medical reasons. According to housing officials, students with "severely contagious diseases" will be released from any legal obligation to complete the one-year term of their contracts.

The most difficult case to prove has been that of psychological hardship resulting from dorm life.

"The appeals committee is immediately suspicious of students making this complaint because most of them are just having problems adjusting to roommates or other conditions which can be solved by moving the student into another room or dormitory," a Housing Office spokesperson said.

The appeals committee will consider this type of case, however, if the student furnishes letters from psychiatrists or counselors confirming the student's psychological need for a move off-campus, according to the spokesperson.

The spokesperson added that a student will usually be released from the contract if their family moves unexpectedly to Tallahassee and they wish to live with them.

Last year many students broke their contracts by becoming part-time students and thus violating the requirement that all dorm residents be enrolled full time.

This year the Housing Department is tightening up on this type of violation. According to Ira Valentine, Housing Department Director, students contracted to live in the dormitories will have their class registration nullified if they take an underload.

Columnist reports scandal brought Spiro's resignation

(ZNS) Columnist Jack Anderson reports that the White House threatened to publicly expose Spiro Agnew's alleged relations with a call girl when the Vice President refused to resign last fall.

According to Anderson, a number of "personal pressures" were brought against the former vice president by Nixon's staff. Anderson states that the White House preferred to have Agnew resign rather than be impeached by Congress, because the President feared that once the House impeached Agnew, it might also impeach Richard Nixon as well.

As a result, says Anderson, the White House had threatened to leak allegations made by a Maryland contractor to Federal prosecutors. The contractor is quoted as saying that he had provided Agnew with a call girl in exchange for government favors. Anderson says that other sources linked the former vice president to a stripper-friend of burlesque Queen Blaze Starr.

Agnew has replied to Anderson that the contractor who made the charges was "a congenial liar... a wild man."

219 arrested at U. of Connecticut

STORRS, Conn. (UPI) — State police Tuesday arrested 219 students who refused to end their occupation of the University of Connecticut library building which they took over to dramatize demands for more opportunities and better studies for blacks.

The takeover by students, mostly black, began in the Wilbur Cross Library shortly after midnight. State police were called in six hours later by university President Glenn W. Ferguson after the students twice refused orders by school officials to get out.

About 100 state troopers loaded the students onto shuttle buses amid some shoving and pushing. A number of the protestors who had to be carried out were taken by four state troopers one at a time to the nearby Mansfield Training School.

All were charged with criminal trespass and were scheduled to appear in court in Willimantic on May 21.

One arrested student, Louisa Martin, said, "Some students were treated badly... some were dragged and pushed and in one case, a table was pushed over a student" during the arrests.

The takeover climaxed protests last week by about 200 students over the facilities and courses available to about 500 black students who attend UConn, the state's largest university.

In a statement issued when the takeover began, the students said, "Faced with inadequate facilities, the black students of the University of Connecticut come to occupy this library not only to get a more definitive and specific response to our demands but also to dramatize our urgent need for a cultural center wherein we may study together as a group unified in our ethnicity culture."

Among 13 demands by the students, four concerned the university's decision to split the anthropology department into two divisions.

The students have demanded that the new department be eliminated, and they want the works of two anthropology professors, William Laughlin and Benson Ginsburg, censured as racist.

Nixon gets 5 day delay

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon Tuesday won a five-day delay — until next Tuesday — in the deadline for responding to the House Judiciary Committee's subpoena for tapes and documents on 42 Watergate-related conversations for its impeachment inquiry.

At the same time, the White House said the President's lawyers had received a new committee request for additional materials, and that it was "more broad in scope" than the ITT and milk fund cases suggested in previously published reports.

Both the White House and House Republican Leader John J. Rhodes indicated Nixon sought the extension because of trouble transcribing the subpoenaed tapes in time to meet the committee's original deadline of 10 a.m. EDT Thursday.

Although neither side specified how approval was granted, it was believed that Rep. Peter W. Rodino, D-N.J., committee chairman, informally consented to Nixon's request for a delay, subject to a vote by his panel when it meets Thursday morning at the hour of the subpoena deadline.

The White House announcement of the five-day delay caught most other committee members by surprise, and their immediate reaction was critical of Nixon. But the committee seemed to have little choice but to go along with what Rodino termed "a reasonable request."

Deputy White House Press Secretary Gerald L. Warren, indicating Nixon did not intend to furnish the committee with the actual tapes it had subpoenaed, said the staff had been hard at work "compiling" materials but had found the task "time consuming."

ROTC high school bill passes Florida Senate

(UPI) — The Florida Senate voted 31-5 Tuesday to let high school students substitute ROTC training for physical education, sending the proposal to the House of Representatives.

The Senate shouted down a half-serious amendment by Sen. Kenneth H. Plante, R-Orlando, who said that if ROTC was as good as physical education, an hour with the marching band should be no less valuable to a growing student's physical development.

"The physical exertion they have to put forth, marching mile after mile, day after day, playing their instruments, is more than it takes one day a week to be out there marching with ROTC," said Plante.

Senate Minority Leader David C. Lane, R-Fort Lauderdale, told Plante, "I think this is a facetious amendment — if you put in marching band, it's not the purpose of the bill."

Chavez arriving Thursday

UFW president to rally support

United Farm Workers' President Cesar Chavez and his wife Helen will appear in Tallahassee Thursday night at 8 p.m. in the sanctuary of the First Presbyterian Church, for a meeting of local student and community supporters of the struggling farm workers' Union.

The purpose of Chavez's visit is to "raise funds and support for the striking farm workers' efforts to win back grape and lettuce contracts through a consumer boycott of grapes, lettuce and Gallo wines," according to a UFW support group spokesperson.

Along with support for the UFW boycotts of California grapes, Iceberg lettuce and Gallo wines, Chavez is seeking support for the Union's Florida legislative package — workman's compensation and unemployment insurance for all farm workers.

"An extension of such benefits would end dependence on state and federal welfare programs by enabling farm workers to pay their own way even when out of work or hurt on the job," local support committee member Bill McCauslin said.

Farm workers are currently denied unemployment insurance, and only about 70 percent are covered by the present Workman's Compensation Law, according to the Florida Division of Migrant Labor Director Jack Arnold.

"Unionization is the only long-term solution to farm workers' problems," Mack Lyons, Florida UFW Director, said, "but inclusion in legislation providing economic benefits to other workers is also part of the UFW's efforts in Florida."

Earth Week Festival today features music, information

With Earth Week in full swing, the FSU Environmental Action Group (EAG) has planned many celebrative events, beginning with an Earth festival today and winding up with bike tours on Saturday. Earth Festival activities are scheduled to begin at 3 p.m. on the Union Green and continue throughout the afternoon. Music will be provided by a local bluegrass band, the Bluegrass Revival, beginning at 5 p.m.

A group of information booths will be set up on the lawn and will include information on environmental legislation, ecology, conservation, camping equipment demonstrations and state park representatives. Sierra Club lobbyists are also expected to attend the festival, according to EAG members.

Bikers from all over Tallahassee will have an opportunity to join one of eight city-wide scenic tours starting from eight separate points beginning Saturday morning at 9:30.

The multiple tours will provide enough variety and flexibility to accommodate all interested bikers, according to the bike tour organizers.

EAG representatives stressed the importance of participation in the tour so that "the city will see the need for an enlarged and improved trail system, and the need for better upkeep."

Housing

"However, any student who doesn't register for the upcoming quarter and leaves the university will be reimbursed 50 percent of his housing fee for the quarter and released from contract," Valentine said.

The housing contract specifies that any student expelled from the university, or who presents a health or security risk to the residents of their dormitory will have his contract immediately terminated.

Chat Sue, Area Coordinator of Resident Student Development, said that the Housing Department would be more lenient with students asking to break their contracts "if the department wasn't in such a financial bind."

"It is an awful shame that students must resort to this line of thing to break their contracts," Chat Sue said. "But we are having a difficult time now and must insure our income."

Sue said that next year the requirement for students to occupy the dorms if they attend school during the summer will be dropped if it is financially feasible.

The first step in the procedure of filing an appeal on a housing contract is to fill out the appeal form in the housing office. At this time, the student should also submit any letters which substantiate their reason for leaving the dormitories.

An appointment is then set with the housing appeals committee which will review submitted materials, listen to statements made by the student, and vote on the appeal after the hearing.

Students may seek advisement in the Housing Office before beginning any of these procedures.

The deadline for filing the appeal for the summer quarter is May 15.

Visitation needs more regulations

Last week, a bill was filed in the Florida Legislature which would grant visitation privileges to only the parents of students who live in on-campus dormitories.

The bill, sponsored by Rep. Richard H. Langley (R-Clermont), would completely remove the state Board of Regents (BOR) from the decision-making process and toss the awesome responsibility of deciding visitation policy into the capable hands of the state legislature.

The proposal, if passed, would limit visitation to the dormitory reception area for student visitors, but would allow parents to see their kids in "any actual living area at any time."

Reportedly, the bill was devised after Langley took a poll in Lake County which showed that a vast majority of those questioned said they favored such a visitation structure.

The Flambeau is more than pleased to see that at least one legislator is willing to introduce legislation which reflects the feelings of his constituency. For the past three years, the emotion-laden issue of visitation has been crying for the practical solution which Langley offers.

It is beyond question that the BOR overstepped its boundaries last quarter and outraged what is usually a tolerant public by extending the visitation period by one hour on weekdays and two more on weekends.

We can think of no educationally sound reason for members of the opposite sex to visit each other alone in dormitory rooms. It has been repeatedly proven through a variety of surveys that students do not study better when a member of the opposite sex is present.

Furthermore, with the current energy crisis, it is not plausible to allow students to stay up until all hours of the night, burning fuel which could be used to heat the library. Some restrictions are necessary.

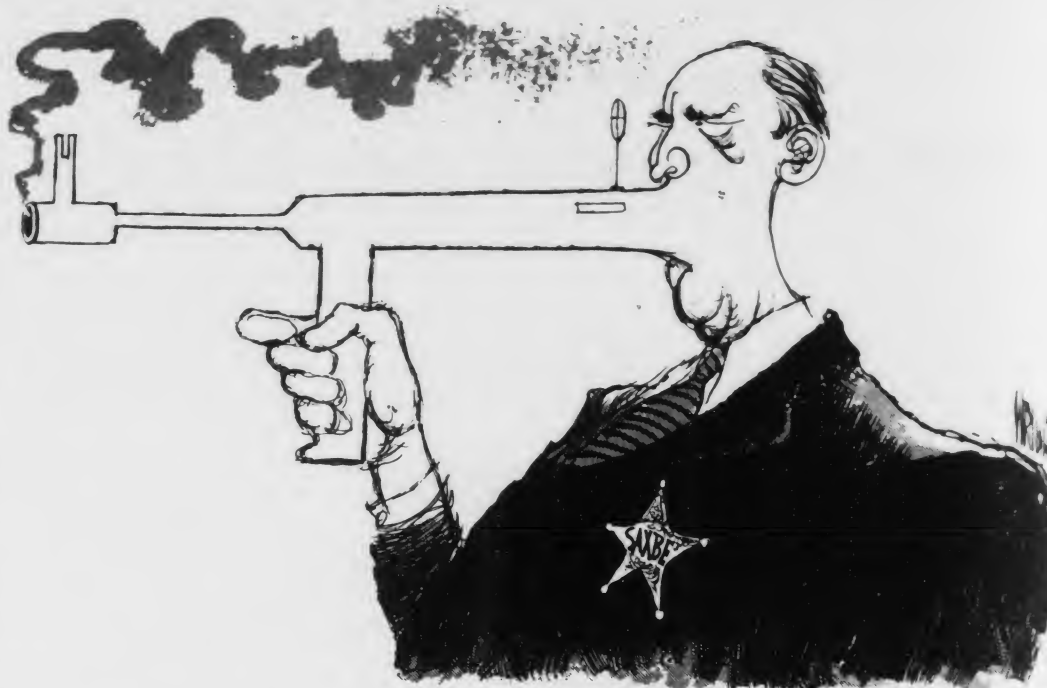

Along with the increased use of energy, the much too liberal visitation policy poses a great threat to the security of the dorms. Now, any old kind of riff-raff can come wandering in with no questions asked and stay for as long as they want.

Surely, this despicable situation can no longer continue unchallenged. The Flambeau thinks it is of the utmost urgency that the Legislature take the visitation situation under control and prevent any further immorality on campus.

Justice imposes a nightmare

For eleven years they have been entombed in Raiford, and for nine of those years the shadow of the electric chair loomed over them. What lies ahead for the hapless protagonists of Florida's most controversial and prolonged legal battle?

On the night of July 31 - Aug. 1, 1963, two white service station attendants at a service station in Port St. Joe, Florida, were kidnapped, murdered and robbed. Four weeks later, two black men were sentenced to death for the crime.

There is overwhelming evidence to suggest that the defendants are innocent. A white man, indeed, has confessed to the slayings and the man's mistress has corroborated his voluntary confession.

Yet, Freddie Pitts and Wilbert Lee are still languishing in Raiford Prison. They have been there for more than ten years. In the view of Gene Miller, Pulitzer Prize-winning reporter for the Miami Herald, the two men are victims of a gross injustice compounded by every bad aspect of criminal law in the bad old days of the rural South. The case cries out for national attention.

Unhappily for the two defendants, their imprisonment carries no trappings of martyrdom or of glamour. They are not identified with a single popular cause. Pitts was a 19-year-old soldier at the time of the crime. Lee, then 28, worked as a wood-pulper. Against the bright plumage of an Angela Davis or a Bobby Seale, Pitts and Lee are a pair of dun sparrows.

There was testimony to indicate that the defendants did, in fact, visit the service station sometime before midnight on the night in question. They were involved in an argument with the white attendants over the use of a "white-only" restroom. But, except for the erratic and contradictory testimony of one woman, Willie May Lee, there was no evidence to support the defendants' guilt - no evidence, that is, except a "confession" not worth the paper it was extorted on.

The Pitts-Lee case has everything: everything bad. The two men made no effort whatever to flee from Port St. Joe on the day after the crime. They made themselves freely available to the police - as it turned out, much too freely available.

Pitts was arrested on Aug. 2. He was then held incommunicado for five days of incessant interrogation and lie detector tests. Pitts has charged that he was beaten during this time and an army sergeant who saw him on Aug. 8 supports the charge.

At last Pitts "confessed" - but he repudiated his statement the next day. Nevertheless, a court-appointed defense attorney made a deal by which Pitts and Lee would plead guilty and leave the sentencing to the jury. Two weeks later, the jury brought a verdict of death.

The law provides that indigent defendants in capital cases must have counsel; implicitly this means effective counsel. The lawyers now in charge of the case charge bitterly that the trial lawyer, W. Fred Turner, botched the case. He made none of the motions for discovery, continuance or suppression of the confession that one would have expected. He made no effort to obtain evidence favorable to the defendants. In effect, he abandoned them.

GUEST COLUMN

By Bo Jo

The conduct of the state prosecutor's office was equally disgraceful. It is elementary as a matter of ethics and, in Florida, it is plain as a matter of law, that a prosecutor has an affirmative duty to disclose evidence favorable to a defendant. Half a dozen such items were known to the prosecutor; he did not disclose them.

Three years after this kangaroo court, a white man named Curtis Adams abruptly confessed to the murders of Aug. 1, 1963. Mary Jean Aikens, with whom he had been living in Port St. Joe, substantiated his statement. In return for immunity from prosecution, Adams volunteered to testify to that effect. Authorities refused to make such a deal, but Adams' statement created such doubt that in September, 1968, Circuit Judge Charles R. Holley conducted an extraordinary post-conviction hearing. He overturned the conviction and ordered a new trial.

The original prosecutor then appealed the decision. In Dec. of 1970, a three-judge state appellate court, in turn, reversed Judge Holley's decision and reinstated the death penalties. On May 14, 1971, the Florida State Supreme Court heard the appeal and ruled in favor of the prosecution, unfortunately for Pitts and Lee the eleven-year experience has been a nightmare.

As chairman of the Pitts and Lee Defense Committee at FSU, I beg each of you to please sign the petitions and come to a mass organizational meeting in Room 246 Union Thursday night at 7:30. WE MUST FREE PITTS AND LEE.

Libeled letter?

Editor:

On Friday, April 12, 1974 the Flambeau published a letter from Ms. Thelma V. Varner in which she attacked both the History department's tutorial service and myself. Ms. Varner's statements were, quite simply, libelous.

During the three quarters I have been in charge of this program (September 1973 - present), Ms. Varner has not been enrolled in any Western Civ course, has not been a tutor, and has not to my knowledge participated in a single tutoring session. She does not possess any first-hand experience with the tutorial program and must be relying on her imagination in making her accusations.

While disturbed by the vindictiveness of her attack, what I find most unfortunate is her unfounded criticism of the tutorial program. Unwilling to accept responsibility for her poor performance in one of my courses, Ms. Varner has attempted to undermine the tutoring program offered by the History department as an additional service to those taking Western Civ.

Flambeau article draws reader fire for 'biased' coverage of Butdorf incident

'Ridiculous'

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

First of all, I am not a member of a fraternity, nor do I approve of the fraternity system. However, I find it ridiculous that the Flambeau is implying that fraternities are now running over their pledges in cars as a part of fraternity hazing.

The circumstances of the Butdorf incident suggest that a group of young punks out of control decided to assault somebody with their car. Instead of following up this possibility, the Flambeau tries to turn the incident into a wild-eyed attack on fraternities.

Of course, the possibility that the incident involved fraternity members should be thoroughly investigated, but the Flambeau shouldn't judge the case before the facts are in.

In the future, the Flambeau should criticize the fraternities for their snobbery, rah-rah mentality, and disregard for pressing social and ecological problems; and not make unnecessary charges on the basis of the flimsiest and most improbable evidence. By doing so, you corrupt the truth and miss the main point, which is the social and ecological irrelevance of fraternities.

Michael Crawford

'Appalled'

Editor:

I was appalled by the inept manner in which the Flambeau chose to report the unfortunate incident concerning Steve Butdorf. Instead of objectively reporting the incident, the Flambeau distorted the story to be used in its seemingly ongoing crusade to downgrade the Greek System at FSU. By minimizing certain aspects of the story and highlighting others, the Flambeau has successfully achieved this goal.

While devoting over half the article to comments on "roadtripping" by other Greeks, the reporter seems to have neglected a number of facts relating to the incident.

The two pledges were offered a ride by several black males and possibly a black female, not merely teenagers. (This statement will undoubtedly incur the anger of a number of blacks, but the reporter went to great lengths to give a detailed description of the victims pointing out that they were not merely FSU students, but Greeks, whereas she neglected to give a description of equal detail of the assailants.)

Mr. Butdorf received a majority of his injuries not from a mere beating but from being run over and dragged beneath his assailants' car for some distance. This isn't simple assault and battery but attempted manslaughter. As an inactive Greek, I don't condone roadtripping, but it would seem that the major concern should be that this could have happened to anyone, not just two pledges being roadtripped.

As for the title of the article "Student 'serious' in frat-related beating," this seems to be a good example of "yellow journalism." The two pledges were roadtripping by a few members of one fraternity, out of the hundreds of Greeks on campus, and only an illogical person could presume that they would have done this knowing the consequences of their actions. As for the beating, if you wish to call it that, the only Greek involved was on the receiving end. The degree to which the fraternity was involved should be left up to the reader to decide, not presumed by the Flambeau.

Mark E. Lawrence

(Editor's note: It is the policy of the Flambeau to avoid making any distinction between white suspects and black suspects on a story of this type. While the allegation that the suspects in the case in question were black may be of importance to police investigating the incident, it is not important in an account which attempts to enlighten readers as to the facts of the incident. Dragging the issue of race into an arena in which it does not belong does little to soothe the prejudices many people still hold.

The description of the suspects was not equal in detail to that of the pledges for one other important reason: one pledge is in Kellum Hall and the other is in Tallahassee Memorial Hospital, all suspects in the case are still at large.)

campus because their car broke down, the same thing probably would have occurred. How about putting the blame where it really belongs, on either the parents of the teenagers or on the teenagers themselves. It is really a shame that there are kids like these running around in society to do these kinds of malicious acts. Hopefully, someday, somewhere, they will pay for what they did.

From here on out, however, don't be quick to throw the blame on the Greeks or others. Rather, put it where it rightfully belongs.

Edward J. Bagley

Blame kids

Editor:

First of all, I'd like to say that I am an independent and not a Greek. But once again the Flambeau has come through true to form.

Putting most of the blame on the Greeks for the recent unfortunate incident is rather ridiculous. It is true that they were responsible for Butdorf and Sydnor being out there, but had it been two other college students returning to

Sackett files bill on landlord-tenant relations

By John Thompson
Special to the Flambeau
Last of a Series

A bill filed last week (HB 3381) by Rep. Walter Sackett (D-Miami) would relieve the landlord of any responsibility under this provision if a tenant breaking a lease did not give seven days advance notice, by certified mail, of intentions to leave.

The landlord can only enter a home with the tenant's consent, or if the tenant "unreasonably" refuses, such as in an emergency.

This is an extreme simplification of the law. A brief pamphlet outlining the law is available through the Department of Community Affairs, Div. of Technical Assistance, 2571 Executive Circle East, Tallahassee 32301. A more detailed explanation, produced by the Florida State University Public Interest Research Group and Tenant's Association, may be obtained by writing the Tenant's Association, Room 321, University Union, FSU, Tallahassee, 32306.

While it may appear what is covered under the Landlord-Tenant Act is obvious, it had remained elusive until made statutory. The Act is part of a nationwide judicial and legislative trend toward reforming outdated principles governing rental relationships.

There are no readily available figures on how many court cases there have been under the Landlord-Tenant Act, but Sandra Shang, former director and now board member of the FSU Tenant's Association, said that group handles about 10 cases a week (in addition to numerous calls), some of which have gone to court, most of which are settled out of court. Shang, who authored the FSU tenant's handbook, said the bulk of student cases involve security deposit disputes and generally the tenant fares rather well. "Usually the landlord falls right into line," she said, and added that many landlords, especially the smaller ones, are unaware of the legal provisions. "It's a learning process for them, too," she said.

Rep. Becker, who has held seminars on the law on several college campuses, said his suggestion is that students become familiar with the provisions. "Don't be afraid to use them and to bring them to your landlord's attention," he said. "Many of the smaller landlords don't know the law either. It's very hard to get screwed if you know what you're doing."

Becker has a bill (HB 3255) now in the Judiciary Committee, which would include college and university dormitories in the Act. This would have a significant effect on the more than 15,000 dorm residents in the State University System and those residents at Chipola and Lake City Junior Colleges.

While the consequences of such a law, if any, are not clear, Hendrix Chandler, corporate secretary for the Board of Regents, said it could put the state universities out of the housing business altogether. This bill could run head-on into its philosophical opposite, a bill by Rep. Richard Langley (R-Clermont) now in the House Education Committee, which would abolish dormitory visitation in the state universities (HB 3381).

Becker's bill to prohibit landlord retaliation, such as increasing rent, decreasing services or not renewing a lease, for a tenant's having complained about his or her rental situation (HB 2353), is still in the Judiciary Committee. This protection is currently available under a ruling of "The Little FTC," a consumer protection public interest office established during the 1973 session. This bill, however, would elevate that rule to a more stable statutory authority.

Two bills filed by Rep. Ralph Halben (D-Palmetto) last Tuesday would chiefly be an assist to the landlord. One bill (HB 3667) provides for would make a tenant liable for landlord-tenant cases to be "monetary damage to the given priority on court landlord" if the tenant were to calendars. Another (HB 3551) break the lease.

Dr. Andreyka Appointed Vo-Tech Coordinator

Dr. Robert E. Andreyka has been appointed coordinator of vocational, technical and career education in the College of Education.

Andreyka joined the faculty in postsecondary education during the winter quarter and has been working with the former coordinator, Dr. Ralph O. Gallington, professor of industrial arts and vocational education, who is retiring.

"Dr. Andreyka brings with him proven competencies in the preparation of secondary and postsecondary vocational and technical educators," said

Dr. Irwin R. Jahns, program leader and associate professor of adult education. "Prior to his arrival, he was a research and development specialist with the Center for Vocational and Technical Education at Ohio State University. His primary assignment there was with performance-based teacher education curricula for vocational and technical education."

Andreyka received the Ph.D. from Kent State University in 1961. He has served as coordinator of vocational and technical education at the University of Akron, and as teacher-educator in trade and industrial education for five years at Kent State.

He is a member of the National Association of Industrial and Technical Teacher Educators, American Vocational Association, American Technical Education Association and the American Association of Community and Junior Colleges. He also holds membership in Phi Delta Kappa and Iota Lambda Sigma honoraries.

FSU Papyrologist Edits Ancient Manuscripts

Although he received the bachelor's degree from Yale University and the Ph.D. from the University of Toronto, Dr. Roger S. Bagnell reads only one word at a time.

The reason is simple. The slightly-built assistant professor of classics at Florida State University is a papyrologist... the only one at the University or even in Florida. He studies ancient papyrus manuscripts and pottery.

There's a lot of comparison work done by 26-year-old Bagnell as he slavishly pieces sentences together. "I look for parallels in things that others have read," he said, "trying to get the meaning and significance of such subjects as taxes."

According to Bagnell, who got interested in papyrology because most of his undergraduate instructors were into it, papyri are found in many languages. The bulk of it, however, is in Greek.

"One might think that because of its age papyri would be at a premium," said Bagnell, recently elected secretary of the American Society of Papyrologists. "Not so. The reason is that most of it has been buried and preserved by the sands in which it is normally found." And, he continued, the science isn't hurting for the lack of papyri. "There's a tremendous backlog," Bagnell said. "In one Vienna collection alone there are 80,000 unedited pieces."

Although papyri itself is ancient, the editing of it has gone on for only about 100 years. Most of the time, according to Bagnell, is spent in editing. And one problem the ancients had still exists today — poor handwriting.

Florida State now has two small archives of papyri and ostraca (pottery).

DATELINE, an official page of record, is published by The Florida State University to communicate information to students, faculty and staff. The University Calendar is a weekly feature, published each Monday. Events for which a campus space reservation is made by the Tuesday preceding the Monday of publication are automatically included. All other Calendar items should be submitted to the Events Coordinator, 238 Union, or to the Office of Information Services, 324 Ps/A Building. Other notices for DATELINE should be submitted to the Office of Information Services. All news must be submitted four days prior to date of publication.

Soviet Delegation To Debate FSU Team

A delegation from the Soviet Union will participate in a public forum with members of the University debate team tomorrow (April 25) at 8 p.m. in Ruby Diamond Auditorium.

Topic for the forum, which is free and open to the public, is "Youth in Contemporary Society." Time will be scheduled for questions from the audience.

Dr. Theodore Clevenger will preside over the debate, which will probe how youth can best participate in the state, in the socio-economic development of international relations will be in English.

Soviet representatives are Leonid A. Aslanov, faculty lecturer, and Anatoly V. Busygin, undergraduate student at Moscow State University, and Mikhail Y. Bogdanor, graduate student at Leningrad State University.

The delegation is visiting the FSU campus as part of a nationwide tour sponsored by the national Speech Communication Association of New York City. This will be the only appearance in Florida.

Members of the Florida State debate team who will participate in the forum are Jay Ter Louw and Mike Cooper. Marilyn Young, assistant professor of speech communication and director of forensics, is handling arrangements for the Soviet delegation's visit.

Jobs Open

As of April 22, Florida State has promotional opportunities in the following career service vacancies:

Lab Machine Shop Supervisor II, Mang. Systems Analyst II, TV Production Manager, Computer Systems Analyst II, Research Associate, Radio-TV Writer, Engineer III, Staff Assistant II, Secretary IV, Comp. Operator III and Account Clerk II.

Administrative and Professional positions open are Executive Assistant to the President, Director of Administrative Services, Director of University Relations and Coordinator of Special Projects.

If you are interested in any of these positions and meet the requirements of the University's Internal Promotion Program, contact the Employment Section of the Personnel Relations Department. An Equal Opportunity Employer.

News You Can Use

This week's starlight serenade will include "Liebstod," from Wagner's "Tristan und Isolde;" Sinfonetta in B-Flat," by Mozart; and works by Fillmore, Weber, Adler, Hummel, Nelhybel and Bernstein. The concert will be at 8:15 p.m. in the School of Music Amphitheater. In the event of rain, the concert will move to Opperman Music Hall. It is free and open to the public.

Pianist Leonidas Lipovetsky, assistant professor of music, will perform in a faculty recital Friday, April 26, at 8:15 p.m. in Opperman Music Hall. The recital will be free and open to the public.

There will be a free public performance Wednesday, May 1, at 8:15 p.m. in Opperman Music Hall of the children's opera, "Chanticleer." The parts will be sung by members of the Florida State opera workshop, including Catherine Ward, Don Juliano, Janet Ariosto and Anthony Gaines.

Florida State doctoral student Karen Peeler is director of the production, with Dr. Alan Thomas, the University's coordinator of opera, in charge of musical preparation and accompaniment. Costumes have been designed by Lucy Ho, and sets built by Joseph Pohnan.

Ten students from Taiwan, Republic of China, are bringing their "Chinese Youth Goodwill Mission" to Moore Auditorium Sunday, May 5, at 2 p.m.

Criminology Majors Vie For Joe Harris Award

Criminology majors at Florida State will have an opportunity to win a $50 award and have their name permanently inscribed on a bronze plaque for submitting a paper in the 1974 Joe Harris Award competition. Dr. Vernon Fox, chairman of the Awards committee, announced.

The award will be given for the best paper in any area of criminal justice, such as corrections, law enforcement, theory, research or personal experience. The only requirement is that the paper be typed, double spaced. It may be of any length. Papers must be submitted by May 1, 1974, to the office of the School of Criminology, 168 Bellamy Building.

For further information, contact any member of the awards committee: Dr. Alexander Bassin, Dr. Theodore Chiricos, Tim Crowe, Mrs. Carolyn Richardson, Dr. Vernon Fox, or call 599-3890.

State Plans Classes

From July, 1974, through September, 1974, the State will hold certain programs at the Koger Center.

Artful Dodger promotes art for the artists' sake

By Tim Thomason

Finding an intimately soothing and aesthetically fulfilling art forum in or near Tallahassee is no longer a quest for El Dorado.

Artful Dodger, a downtown art gallery-dealership, has recently opened an above-stairs gallery which is in the midst of its fourth showing.

Art for the artist's sake is the unpronounced spirit of this upper level gallery. "This is the only place around where a student can show his work along side his instructor," Dick Spain, owner and FSU Constructive Design graduate, said.

Spain hopes the gallery will establish itself so that he will be able to concentrate on his own work and on plans for a local, federally-backed, artists' guild which would provide artists access to expensive equipment otherwise beyond their financial grasp.

Results are stimulating and impressive.

Ceramics, ranging from utility items such as planters, urns, and vases to totally art-oriented clay sculptures, are on an unquestionably high creative and technical level.

In this particular show, the ceramic object is no longer simply "a pot" but rather a vehicle by which the observer finds excellent relief design, imaginative use of coil methods, as well as inspiring glazes; symmetry, where required, is exacting.

Accenting the ceramic portion of the display are the textile productions of Merri Belland, including wall rugs and hangings.

The hangings reveal the artist's pronounced acumen for spinning, weaving, and design; all of which lend themselves to her depth-evoking geometrics.

For those of us who have not, in a very long time, found a show where we can sit down on the floor and be with the work, without being stepped on, disturbed, or verbally evicted, the unattainable is at hand.

Work by some of Tallahassee's leading artists as well as that of artists across the state are currently on display at Artful Dodger.

Some works are simply for display purposes while most are for sale at reasonable prices.

"PLACE CLICHY," a print by Pierre Bonnard, is only one of the many prints which will be exhibited and sold on April 25 only in the Fine Arts Building art gallery.

Print sale in Union

A special exhibition and sale of old master, modern master and contemporary prints will be presented for one day only, April 25, in the lobby of the art gallery in the Fine Arts Building from 1-5 p.m.

All works displayed in the collection of prints are available for purchase and range in price from $10 to $4,500. Among the prints are works by Durer, Rouault, Picasso, Baskin, Tobey and Walmsley.

John Wilson, director of the Lakeside Studio of Lakeside, Michigan, where the prints were made, will be in the gallery to answer questions.

Opera goes 'to school'

Students in Tallahassee Middle Schools will have the chance to see a production of Seymour Barab's opera, "Chanticleer," in the weeks to come.

The production, sponsored by the Tallahassee Fine Arts Council and the FSU Opera Department, is part of their continuing project of taking the Fine Arts into the local public schools.

The first performance of the opera will be April 24 at Cobb Middle School with subsequent performances at other school on April 29, May 2 and May 7. A special performance, open to the public, is set for May 1 at 8:15 p.m. in Opperman Music Hall.

Play scheduled

The Tallahassee Little Theatre will present the dramatic play "And Miss Reardon Drinks a Little" on April 25-27 and May 1-4 at 8:15 p.m. with $1.50 admission for students and $2.50 for adults.

The play was written by Paul Zindel, author of the award-winning play, "Effect of Gamma Rays on Man-in-the-Moon Marigolds."

Review

The current show at Artful Dodger features the culminated efforts of the Florida A & M Ceramic Workshop.

Curtis Tucker, coordinator of the workshop as well as contributor to the show, combined working artists with pre-college (15 to 19 years old) ceramicists in an effort to see how each group might learn from and influence the other.

WONDERING WHERE TO GO NEXT?

If you're about to graduate, consider the alternatives. A secure, good-paying job might be one of them, if you can find one. But another alternative, provided you like adventure and a challenge, is the Peace Corps and VISTA.

You won't get rich, except in spirit. And you probably won't find yourself behind a big desk. What you will find is a meaningful two-year experience in one of 69 foreign countries if you join Peace Corps. In VISTA we have 3,000 projects across the U.S.

We need college graduates who can qualify as teachers, medical specialists, agriculture specialists, business consultants and skilled tradesmen. And if you have a liberal arts degree, we have plenty of programs to offer.

This week, April 22-24, representatives for Peace Corps and VISTA will be on the FSU campus. Talk to them in the Union Rm. 240. Now is the time to apply for summer and fall programs. Don't put it off. We have a better alternative.

Tribe falls 4-2 to Moccasins

Danny O'Brien had one too many jams facing him Monday night against college division power Florida Southern.

The Moccasins pounced on one of four opportunities with four second inning runs and withstood many Seminole comeback efforts to take home a 4-2 victory.

FSU will host Valdosta State tonight at 7:30 on the Seminole diamond and will go after victory number 27 against 18 losses.

Southern jumped O'Brien in the first, but came up empty handed. However, the Moccasins got all they needed off the shaky sophomore in the top of the second frame.

Dave Lampley opened the inning with a Texas Leaguer to right and advanced to second on catcher John Drew's passed ball. A walk and a successful sacrifice bunt loaded the bases, and O'Brien hit Hal Tyus to force the first run.

A double play scored the second run and an error by Guillermo Bonilla kept the Moccasin inning alive. Centerfielder Chuck Smith concluded the scoring with a two-run double to the leftfield corner.

FSU got a run back in its half of the second inning when leadoff batter Bonilla smacked a 375-foot home run to left. It was the Puerto Rican native's third round tripper of the season.

The Seminoles picked up another run in the eighth and once again Bonilla had the big hit. Freshman Jim Busby opened the inning by drawing a walk. Jim Foxwell singled to right, sending Busby to third and Bonilla stroked a run scoring single through the middle.

It looked as if Florida State would come back in the ninth as Drews and Randy Davidson opened the inning with singles and Marty Maier reached on an error to load the bases.

But relief pitcher Rick

Democrat sues Perry

(UPI) — The Tallahassee Democrat filed suit against Florida A&M University President Benjamin Perry Tuesday, charging Perry had violated the state's public records law by refusing to release a study on FAMU's athletic program.

The newspaper asked Leon County Circuit Court to order Perry to release a report on the investigation that apparently led to the firing last month of head football coach Jim Williams and his entire staff.

The Democrat charged in the suit FAMU must release the report because of the public records' law requiring public access to documents that involve the transaction of official business by a state agency.

Tomlin got Busby to hit into a double play and Jose Lugo to line out to second for the Moccasin's 22nd win against 12 losses.

Bonilla had three of the Seminoles' eight hits and both runs batted in to raise his team leading total to 31.

O'Brien seemed to get stronger as the game went along and during one stretch retired 12 of the 13 men he faced. He finished with nine strikeouts for the contest while allowing only two earned runs and surrendering nine hits. The loss dropped O'Brien to 6-5.

Sailors take two seconds

Florida State's Sailing Club participated in two regattas last weekend and brought home second place trophies in each.

Mark Powell teamed with Chris Perry to place in an SEISA meet at Tulane University. Pete Fontaine and Laurie Loomis also competed.

Ted Gillette and Mike Honeysett accompanied by crews Robin Every and Susan Stone travelled to Ohio State to participate in the O.S. Intersectional. The FSU teams finished first overall, but the last race of the day was disallowed, putting the Tribe in the second slot.

This Saturday, Powell and Mary Bennett will travel to St. Petersburg to compete in the Eckert Fun Regatta.

The FSU Sailing Club will host an all-women regatta May 4. Any women wishing to participate should get in touch with Ted Gillette (575-2883) or any other club officer by April 29 so eliminations can be arranged.

Polo club starting

All persons interested in playing/participating in a new water polo club at Florida State are invited to come to the Union Pool Thursday, April 25 at 5:30 p.m. Experienced coaching will be provided and scheduling and fees will be arranged at the Thursday meeting.

Tickets on sale

Friends of head Florida State basketball coach Hugh Durham will host a Hugh Durham Appreciation Night Thursday, May 2, at the Kinhega Lodge off Thomasville Road.

The $10 steak dinner will allow Durham's friends to show their appreciation for the man who has guided FSU's cage program for the past seven years.

Students have been invited to attend the dinner by the organizers and tickets can be purchased at the Old Dyer Shop on South Adams. Reservations must be in by April 29.

Trojan Pros score with big hitters

The Trojan Pros scored late Monday evening to notch a 10-9 victory over a grave Kript Kickers squad. Rick Berks had a pair of roundtrippers for the winners (nos. 1 and 2) and Jim Duff had a double and homer for the losers.

The Lascivious Lubricators scored nine runs in a big 5th inning to lick the Mangowhoppers 12-5. Greg Ryan was the top Lubricator with two hits and two scores.

Dennis Burke and Bill Horn led the Miracle Strippers to a 9-5 win over Arnold Air Society. Maybe Burke has found another sport in which to invest his talents.

The Nads took the Green Nuds into an extra inning before stopping the big Green Machine 10-9. Rick Ferris and Perry Banaikas had three hits apiece. Banaikas used to live on my floor and only got one hit all last season. Keep it going, Perry.

The Nu Forms topped the Hilltop Lampoons 16-1. Larry Shimket paced the Forms with three hits including his first home run at Florida State (636 more and you'll catch Don Birdseye).

WGAS bowled over the Softballers by a score of 8-1. Craig Murray had a home run for the winners.

Mushroom Magic was sky high for its clash with Uncle Punky's Fig Pirates gaining a 10-9 victory. Real burn-out for the Pirates.

Who's on First got no one on base as they were defeated by the Foul Balls 13-0.

Theta Chi rode tripped Alpha Phi Alpha 10-6 as Pete Vellman had a homer in the third (does anybody care what inning it was?)

Pershing Rifles got clobbered again. This time, Key Rats' Fred Stock and Mike Farr had three runs apiece.

The Temptations were Yuck Fu-led by Gary Snel's two home runs in a 21-10 loss.

I-M news

The intramural department has decided to broaden its scope of athletic offerings. Intramural asst. athletic director Bernie Waxman said, "Ladies and gentlemen, grab your gloves, bats and balls and hustle over to the intramural office to sign up for the Co-rec (men and women) Softball League."

"Sign as a whole team or as an individual. Don't worry about a thing - it's just for fun. If you're interested, don't be shy, come on by and sign up. Bring your friends, instructors or lovers, but remember, deadline is April 26."

And here is another one and I will quote Bernie again so readers will know that these are Bernie's write-ups.

"Something new - Mixed Scotch Foursome Golf. The intramural department has set its own rules with an emphasis on fun. Come by Tully Room 117 and guys, bring a girl, girls, bring a guy or bring a teacher. If you can't find someone, come by and the department will help you out."

Monday, April 29 is the deadline for signing up.

The Stadium Drive apartment building is the new home of members of the football team, according to Assistant Athletic Director.

"Coach Mudra would like to see sophomore and freshmen to academic control," Rowe said. Change in coaching philosophy will also cut down on expenses.

Most team members are living in the Cash Hall on Brevard Street. Across from Florida High School, Drive dwellings are much closer to the practice fields.

The Flambeau has received many complaints from residents concerning the methods by which the team is being asked to leave.

ATO reopens 'brawl' case before Grand Jury

The Leon County Grand Jury has begun hearing testimony concerning the brawl which occurred last January between members of the FSU football team and the Alpha Tau Omega (ATO) fraternity.

Four members of ATO appeared before the 18-member panel Tuesday morning and began giving depositions in the preliminary hearing which will determine whether the case will be heard in county court.

Accompanying the fraternity members were Dr. John Bonanno, FSU judicial officer, Jim Sewell, Information Director for the University Police, and William Tanner, head of the FSU Division of Public Safety.

According to Bonanno, the jury restricted its questions

Tuesday to the circumstances of the fracas in an attempt to reconstruct the incident.

The affair began when a car owned by a member of the football team was vandalized while parked in front of the fraternity house.

The owner claimed that one of the fraternity members was responsible and subsequently returned to the house with three other persons.

Upon entering the house the owner of the car and members of ATO present engaged in verbal insults after which, according to sources both on the football team and ATO, the four left feeling "humiliated."

An hour later, the four returned with a group estimated at between 30 and 40 persons. According to Jim Sewell, 20 members of the football team were among the group. From 12 to 15 of the ATOs were in the house at this time.

After much harassment, both physical and verbal, the beatings began.

Two fraternity members, David Faulk and Robin Szabo, were treated for injuries following the fight.

A tentative settlement was later reached between the FSU Athletic Department and ATO, although many members of the fraternity expressed disappointment that charges would not be filed against the football players involved in the incident.

Three days later the fraternity changed its decision and began taking preliminary steps to press charges against four of the football players involved in the fight.

Budget cuts warned for padding

House Appropriations records in FSU's economics department show that the charged yesterday that a average student is taking up to "random study" of graduate or her counterpart of 10 years ago.

Harris (D-Miami) also warned of drastic cuts in graduate school budgets because of "system-wide course stuffing."

In explaining his study, Harris said he took graduate records in the economics department over a 10-year period and did an analysis, saying he "thought it would give us a handle on budgeting."

"The average graduate student seven years ago had about 34 to 36 (credit) hours. Now the average student has had about 70 hours," Harris said. The FSU study just completed was made for the years 1964-1973.

"It is now obvious," Harris said, "that the Appropriations Committee can not depend on the universities for correct figures on which to base their appropriations."

"The study was developed to determine what level of funding would be appropriate," Harris said. "We have to develop a research vehicle to develop a way of analyzing the individual problems involved."

The Appropriations Chairman said his survey of the records at FSU was not determined to find more evidence of enrollment padding.

"I've got all the evidence of padding I need for one legislative session," he said. "What we're interested in now is devising a way of funding the university departments without relying on the 'padded' figures."

Harris added that the Economics Department was not picked for any specific reason, "other than the fact that we had to start somewhere. There had been calls about problems in Economics at FSU, and this seemed to be the logical place to start," he said.

Harris said that the legislature would normally take "a broad cut" when evidence of fraud is presented "We want to take a fair cut," Harris said, "and penalize the departments involved in the padding — not everyone in the university."

The probable way of future funding will be to establish departmental budget entities, with each department funded on an individual basis, Harris said.

Harris blamed the college presidents and the Board of Regents and staff for the alleged "padding," and disagreed with suggestions that the top officials didn't know what was going on.

Harris said it was without a doubt the "most slipshod management I've ever seen."

FSU President Stanley Marshall said in a faculty meeting Tuesday that he expected the university to be investigated by legislative committees, and "I hope we have firm standards that honest people can defend."

Stadium Drive new site

Team to move from Cash Hall

By Henri Cawthon

The Stadium Drive apartments may become the new home of members of the FSU football squad this fall, according to William Rowe, Assistant Athletic Director.

"Coach Mudra would like to keep the sophomore and freshmen together for better academic control," Rowe said. "It's part of a change in coaching philosophy and the move will also cut down on expenses."

Most team members are currently living in Cash Hall on Brevard Street. Located directly across from Florida High School, the Stadium Drive dwellings are much closer to the stadium and practice fields.

The Flambeau has received several complaints from residents of the apartments concerning the methods by which they were being asked to leave.

One irate tenant said that an assistant football coach, who is to become the new manager, treated her with disrespect and entered her residence without consent.

"He said he wanted to check the appliances and fixtures to see what needed repairs," said the resident, who wishes to remain unidentified.

"He also said that if I didn't move, my rent would be raised to a price I couldn't possibly afford — he never gave me a figure on the rent," she added.

Rowe said that no leases had been signed but that Mudra would probably make his final decision within two weeks. The Board of Regents must approve the move before action can be taken.

"We are still in the process of looking at the facilities — we haven't signed the lease yet," said Rowe. "The Athletic Department has been very pleased with the treatment the players have received at Cash," he said, "but we would like to have tighter control over the players for the season curfew hours."

The resident who complained told the Flambeau that the owner of the complex, realtor Neal Sapp, had not given the tenants sufficient notice of the move.

According to a secretary at Sapp's office, the displaced residents will be furnished with less expensive housing as a substitution.

"The new manager told us the rent would be raised even though he knew we were going to be moved unconditionally," said the begrudged tenant.

An apartment in the Stadium Drive complex consists of two rooms including a bedroom and a kitchenette. Unlike Cash Hall, the apartments do not have a swimming pool or a dining room facility. Rowe said that Mudra would probably allow the junior and senior team members to live where they wanted to.

CESAR CHAVEZ, PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED FARM WORKERS UNION, will appear in Tallahassee tonight at the First Presbyterian Church downtown. Chavez will be visiting several Florida cities to rally support for the UFW boycotts of lettuce, grapes and Gallo wines, and to raise funds for the UFW.

Lawyers want charges dropped

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Judiciary Committee's lawyers have recommended dropping as many as 30 of the 56 potential impeachment charges against President Nixon, including questionable financing of his California and Florida homes, it was learned Wednesday.

John M. Doar, the committee's chief

Bus hijacked to LA while on route to LA

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — "Take me to Los Angeles," said the hijacker.

Since it was on a bus, and the bus was then in Santa Ana, 40 miles from Los Angeles, and since that was where it was headed anyway, and since the regular fare was only $1.03, Driver Paul G. Wine had to rate it a pretty low class hijacking.

There were hostages. Three to be exact. It took them some time to realize they were hostages.

When they discovered it, two of them got off. But along the way, another person insisted on getting on.

When the Southern California Rapid Transit District bus on Line 58-D stopped at 5:45 a.m. Tuesday at 2nd Ave. and Sycamore St. in Santa Ana, it carried Wine and three passengers sitting in the rear.

The hijacker spoke only to Wine. He kept his right hand in the pocket of his olive drab jacket, saying, "You know what this is." Wine didn't know what it was, but he assumed the hijacker meant it was a gun.

The hijacker also told Wine to drive straight through, without letting anyone else board the bus. But at one point, when the vehicle was stopped at a red light, Mrs. Berneia Velita pounded on the door so insistently the hijacker relented and let her on.

As the vehicle began taking an entirely new route and picking up no other passengers, Billy Morse and Daniel D. Hein realized something was wrong and asked to be let off.

Tobacco Spit Contest won with 19.2 foot spit

MONTICELLO, Ark. (UPI) — Rita French bit off a chaw of tobacco, rolled it around in her mouth, puckered up and then choked.

"It wasn't too bad," she said Wednesday. "It was a little hot and a little sweet. I chewed it before when I was real small and my dad would take me hunting."

She was one of 20 contestants ranging in age from 12 to 60 at the first annual Arkansas Championship Tobacco Spitting Contest.

When she got the chaw in her mouth before a crowd of 1,000 Tuesday night, Mrs. French sputtered and had to get some coaching from her husband, Tim, a forestry major at the University of Arkansas at Monticello.

"Tim, I don't know what I'm doing," she said.

"Just lean way back and give it all you've got," her husband said.

"That's just what I did," she said. "And it worked. It wasn't very far but it worked."

The hometown spitter defeated the only other woman to win the best all-around female category. Her husband, who has been chewing tobacco for two years, won the accuracy contest.

But nobody could outspit draft proposal, which Jenner read to GOP committee members Wednesday, he and Doar would continue to investigate a large number of other allegations against the President, notably obstruction of justice in handling of the Watergate cover-up.

The recommended narrowing of impeachment charges would leave only allegations of criminal action and drop all non-criminal items, but one Republican present at the caucus said this was a coincidence that "just worked out that way." One of the original controversies surrounding impeachment concerned whether a president could be impeached for anything that did not violate a criminal statute.

Among the original 56 possible impeachment charges the lawyers cited to the committee in a memorandum March 1, Doar and Jenner were prepared to recommend eliminating allegations involving:

—The President's personal finances, including financing of his San Clemente and Key Biscayne homes, but keeping open an inquiry into possible fraud in preparation of his federal income tax returns.

—White House threats or promises of government favors in exchange for illegal corporate campaign contributions for Nixon's re-election.

—The Environmental Protection Agency's failure to prosecute antipollution lawsuits as a result of campaign contributions, and similar allegations involving pressure on federal agencies relating to campaign donations.

—Nixon's impoundment of funds appropriated by Congress and his attempt to abolish the Office of Economic Opportunity in violation of its statutory authority.

—The President's 1970 order committing U.S. ground combat troops to Cambodia, subject to release of a Senate study report on the issue.

Security guard replaces Kellum's 'wall' system

A security guard will replace the controversial "security wall" in Kellum, a decision determined in last Friday's meeting of the Kellum Committee and Housing officials.

The security guard will work from 5 p.m. until the closing hour at Kellum, spot checking the IDs of persons entering the dorm, signing in guests of dorm residents and assisting incoming guests "by directing them to the switchboard."

Kellum residents were informed of the decision by "An Open Letter to Kellum Hall Residents," which stated that the security guard system will be implemented "as soon as another Security Guard can be hired to work from 5 p.m. to closing."

Currently, there are regular security guards who work after Kellum closes. The open letter stated that these guards will be instructed to "improve security after closing hours" by "checking the ID of every person entering Kellum with the exception of those residents positively known to the employee," and to "make more floor checks."

Other security measures resulting from the Friday meeting includes locking all exterior doors at 5 p.m. so that all persons must enter through the main entrance, urging residents to lock their doors every time they leave their rooms and to "ask unknown persons in the building their purpose for being there."

According to a source at Kellum, all the new security measures will be implemented without a vote of approval or disapproval from the Kellum residents.

"The committee decided not to have the residents vote on the measures," a Kellum source said.

The Friday meeting resulted from last week's confrontation between Kellum residents and Housing representatives over the building of the concrete security wall in the Kellum lobby.

The residents' primary objections to the wall were that they had not been consulted before the wall's construction, and that the construction could be in violation of the residents' housing contracts.

The Kellum Committee, a group of concerned residents, was established following the confrontation, to determine a more appropriate security system in conjunction with Housing officials.

Although the security guard will take over the duties and purpose of the wall, the wall will remain a permanent fixture in the Kellum lobby to cut down on lobby noises that have been disturbing first floor residents.

THE CONTROVERSIAL, CONCRETE SECURITY WALL in the Kellum lobby will remain, but not for security reasons. Bernatowicz

Polluted lakes may result from rezoning of land

Editor's Note: According to figures compiled by the Recreation Council, the Seminole Reservation was used by 50,000 people during 1972 and 1973. Canoes were used by 9,990 people, 1,500 more rented cabins and 38,000 people made use of the various other facilities.

Editor:

This letter concerns your articles on Apr. 11 and 17 about the wilderness land which is connected by lakes and underground streams to Lake Bradford where our Seminole Reservation is located. I agree that this land is endangered by development plans and that, if industry is allowed to operate on the land, the entire chain of lakes including Lake Bradford and our Reservation will become polluted with industrial wastes.

Florida's population will double in ten years, and, because a State University and the State Capitol are located here, Tallahassee's population should more than double by then. Along with the increase in population, there is also an increase in leisure time due partly to increased mechanization brought on by our society's technocracy. This fact is indicated by the increasing popularity of the four day work week and national holidays that have been moved to Mondays, thus giving many people long weekends. Because of the increasing shortage of gasoline, residents of our community will not be able to travel on their long weekends but, instead, will be forced to stay at home and to find ways to spend their leisure time in or near Tallahassee.

The number of people who are becoming more affluent and better able to afford outdoor sporting equipment such as boats, diving, and fishing gear, canoes, etc. is also increasing. Last year 14,000 canoes were used on the chain of lakes which is now endangered by industrial development and there is no estimate as to how many people use the lakes for skiing, sailing, swimming, scuba diving, fishing, etc. but one thing is more than clear: every year the number increases. In fact, it seems as if nearly everything is increasing except the availability of unspoiled, natural wilderness areas such as the chain of lakes in question.

Even if FSU is unable to negotiate a land swap with Robert Withers, the land can still be preserved. It has not yet been zoned for industrial use and the Leon County Planning Commission (whose members are elected by the people of Leon County) has the obligation of keeping industry away from this land. It's members should be thinking of what is good for the entire community and they should not "spot zone" this one piece of land to benefit the private interests of one man, Bob Withers. That decision would be the "foot in the door" which would pave the way for many other land owners in the area to sell out to industrial concerns, turning another beautiful wilderness area into an industrial pig sty. If these lakes are destroyed by allowing them to become polluted with industrial wastes, where will students and residents of our community spend their leisure time? Where will they go? What will they do?

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Great paper

Editor:

As parents of a student at FSU, we have thoroughly enjoyed reading The Flambeau. It has served as a window for us on the life style at the university and enlarged our appreciation and understanding of all issues.

In fact, we would like to take this opportunity to tell you, your staff and all your contributors we think you are doing just great.

Recently, we read of the projected eviction of The Flambeau from its campus quarters. We are honestly shocked and dismayed at the alleged attitude of the administration.

The Flambeau is both the voice and face of the student body. It must be preserved. The Flambeau is an asset to the entire university community. It deserves the encouragement, protection and support of all friends of the university. Whatever is necessary to that end must be done.

We suggest this message be sent to the administration: if you'll let The Flambeau die or contribute in any way to its death, you will have destroyed an important part of a fine university — more important — your judgement and sincerity would be open to serious question by the student body to whom the Flambeau belongs, as well as to you.

We hope this letter will be just one of many you receive and add just another voice to your support.

Greek prank

Editor:

I, like many others on the Florida State campus, thought that "pledge hazing" by fraternities was a thing of the past. Those silly games that supposedly adult males engaged in were thought to have gone out of fashion at about the same time that swallowing goldfish and stealing rival school's mascots did. But, it seems that a certain core of fraternities still indulge in these childish games of yesteryear, and like so often happens, these childish pranks end up with some tragic results.

The recent road trip (I guess that is what you would call it) that the Theta Chi imposed upon two pledges terminated with one seriously beaten and run over by a car. For what purpose? If some fraternity member will tell me what purpose there is to leaving a half naked freshman five miles outside of town, I'll be glad to listen.

Perhaps fraternities serve some purpose on campus (although for the life of me I can't figure out what that purpose is), but the hazing of freshman pledges can serve none, and at times, like the one the Theta Chi were involved in this weekend, they can end in tragedy.

Fraternities need to take a long look at their organizations and ask themselves what purpose they serve. And these same organizations should take a look at some of the anachronistic "games" that they play and see if they really help the members develop a sense of brotherhood. I wonder if Steven Butdorf feels like a "brother" today.

Vets scorned

Editor:

For most of us who graduated from high school in the early 70s, Vietnam did not touch our lives as drastically as it did those in the preceding years. Those who went before us felt the pressure of the protesters and the supporters of the war. They felt the death of friends and bore the brunt of carrying out the U.S. policy in Vietnam. Those who served lost something in that war. Some lost physical health and still others lost some of the grip on life that they once had. All lost their youth there. They may simulate, but not recapture the carelessness. Life was all too serious for them. Actually, their lives were virtually in limbo. There was the constant threat of the war itself. These men were living day by day not knowing what the end of the experience would bring. Underlying this was the realization that they had no established lives to return to at "home." When they returned they would no longer be "boys," but most had not had time to take root in any life of their own.

Our men who did return home came back to no recognition of the dangers and sacrifices the war had brought on them. They were (and are) ignored and forgotten by us and sometimes actually scorned by those who believe(d) the Vietnam War to be wrong. How can we do this? We used the youth of these men and we give nothing in return.

These veterans are asking for the chance to further their lives through education. They are also asking for state funds for nursing home care. They ask very little considering what they have given and in many cases are still giving to this country. I feel they should not have to go to the legislators and fight for the Mattox Legislation. They have fought enough battles on the field and in themselves. Please contact one of our legislators and let him know you support the veterans in their proposals.

Bills propose more stringent felony sentences for 'hard drug' pushers

By United Press International

Two proposals to stiffen prison sentences for drug peddlers, and to do away with plea bargaining for reduced sentences in narcotics cases, got a chilly reception Tuesday from the skeptical Senate Criminal-Justice Committee.

The bills by Sens. David H. McClain, R-Tampa, and Lew Brantley, D-Jacksonville, are intended to set more stringent felony sentences for selling heroin, cocaine, morphine and other "hard drugs," without disturbing the misdemeanor penalties for simple possession of small amounts of marijuana.

"You just can't get convictions," said Sen. Kenneth M. Myers, D-Miami. "Prosecuting attorneys do not like mandatory minimum sentences — that type of legislation is anathema to them."

Brantley's bill would upgrade possession of heroin or morphine from a third-degree felony — punishable by one to five years — to a first-degree felony, punishable by 15 to 30 years. Under his new bill, the sale of heroin or morphine would also be a first-degree felony, rather than a second-degree felony as it is now.

The current penalty for sale of heroin or morphine is five to 15 years.

Sale of LSD, marijuana or amphetamines would be similarly upgraded to a second-degree felony under Brantley's bill.

McClain's proposal has similar penalties, along with a provision making jail sentences mandatory — eliminating the prospect of probation or suspended sentence.

"What we're trying to do is get at the professional pusher, who's out on the street selling hard drugs — I'm not talking about marijuana — for his own personal profit," said McClain.

McClain said that New York has had "a marked decrease in pushing" since it mandated prison sentences for drug peddlers.

Sen. Jack D. Gordon, D-Miami, said that this was not true, that drug addicts are selling heroin openly on New York streets and that police are reluctant to arrest them — or have been paid off not to bother them.

Russian debaters here

A delegation from the Soviet Union will participate in a public forum with members of the FSU Debate Team tonight at 8 in Ruby Diamond Auditorium.

The topic of the forum is "Youth in Contemporary Society: How can they best participate in the state, in the socio-economic development of their country and the development of international relations?"

Representing the Soviet Union will be a faculty member and a student from Moscow State University and another student from Leningrad State University. All three participants are active members of their campus youth organizations.

The English-speaking delegation will visit the FSU campus as part of a nationwide tour sponsored by the Speech Communication Association. The forum at FSU is the only appearance the delegation will make in Florida.

Campus News

THE FSU BANDS WILL PRESENT the second of their traditional spring quarter Starlight Band Concerts tonight at 8:15 in the amphitheatre behind Opperman Music Hall.

The programs feature all of the University Bands in selections including marches, original concert pieces for band and wind ensemble, pop selections, Broadway medleys and transcriptions of works by the masters.

GOVERNMENTAL ASSISTANT To The Governor on energy matters, Howell Ferguson, and Phillip E. Sorenson, Associate Professor of Economics at FSU will be tonight's speakers at the Ecology and Human Values Seminar at 7:30 at the Tallahassee Federal North Branch Auditorium, 1953 Thomasville Road.

Ferguson will speak on "Ecological Prerequisites, Oil Needs and the Question of Values," while Sorenson's topic for discussion will be "Alternate Sources of Energy: The Philosophical Impact."

Ecology and Human Values: A Humanistic Perspective is a series of lectures and discussions exploring ecological preservation and environmentalism in relation to the individual, business and government.

AS A CORRECTION TO a recent Flambeau story on financial aid grants, the story reported that freshmen and sophomores can apply for the Florida Student Assistance Grant. Actually, only incoming freshmen may apply for the grants.

Court orders FAMU pres to reveal study

A circuit court judge ruled yesterday that the president of Florida A&M University must make public a study of the school's athletic program or explain in court why he won't.

The Tallahassee Democrat asked for the writ of mandamus Tuesday, citing violation of the state's public records law.

The newspaper asked the court to force FAMU's President Dr. Benjamin L. Perry, Jr., and the Florida Board of Regents to make public the study which led to the firing of head football coach Jim Williams.

Experimental films shown

Classic experimental films history of cinema, have will be featured in an evening of underground short films Friday night, April 26, at 10 and midnight in Moore Auditorium for $1.00.

The films, consisting of some of the most important experimental films in the history of cinema, have subjects that range from surrealism and violence to mechanized ballet and avant-garde French fantasy to testimonies in Washington, D.C., about Communist infiltration into the film industry in the '40s.

Visiting artist to speak

Visiting artist Dave Hickey will speak on "Art System and What It All Means" today in Room 249 Fine Arts Building from 1-4 and 7-10 p.m.

Hickey is involved in a variety of art-related pursuits. He is an art critic, a country music songwriter, past editor of Art in America and former director of the Reece Palley Gallery in New York.

Hickey has also had several articles by him appear in leading journals, including Art in America and Artforum. He was also instrumental in opening "A Clean, Well-Lighted Place" in Austin which started the Texas art movement of the late 1960s.

Hickey is participating in the newly-established Visiting Artists Program coordinated by the FSU Art Department. In the program four artists will visit the department to share their ideas and experiences about art with students and

JON FINCH-FRANCESCA ANNIS-MARTIN SHAW
Screenplay by ROMAN POLANSKI and KENNETH TYNAN
From the play by William Shakespeare
Executive Producer HUGH M. HEFNER
A PLAYBOY PRODUCTION

Sat. Apr. 27 7:30 + 10:15pm.
Diamond Aud. only $1.00

Directing the films are such noted people as Salvador Dali, Luis Bunuel and Ferdinand Leger. Dwan Esper, who directed "Reefer Madness," also worked on one of these experimental films.

An exhibit of Chinese scrolls by Lee-Jan Jan will be featured in the Union Lounge gallery until May 3.

The scrolls, which are traditional Chinese watercolor brush paintings, depict landscapes along with flower and bird motifs which Jan said were inspired by Tallahassee springtimes.

Painter Jan studied landscape painting in Taiwan under several Chinese artists. He has exhibited his works in Taiwan's provincial art show, and galleries in both Taiwan and the United States.

Also on display in the Union Lounge gallery is a collection of handblown glass by FSU students. Some of the works are for sale.

Lambda unbeaten

The Lambda Chis ended the regular intramural softball season Tuesday undefeated (5-0) by topping the Tekes 10-4. Don Kennedy led the 12-hit attack with three singles.

In other action, the Pikes continued their winning streak with a 9-1 win over the Chi Phis. Bob Frier's triple and homer led the winners.

Alpha Epsilon Pi finally got its offense going, but leaks in the defense enabled the Kappa Sigs to roll 27-5. Bubba Peak had four singles and a triple for the Sigs.

Gerry Richardson's three singles led the Phi Taus to a 16-2 triumph over the Sigma Nus. The Fijis struck for 18 hits in downing ATO 17-2.

Cliff Lomax's double and a stout defense gave the Sig Eps a 4-0 shutout of Sigma Alpha Epsilon.

The Kappa Alphas grabbed an early lead and held on for an 8-2 win over the Pi Kaps.

The Phi Dels exploded for 21 runs in three innings to take a 26-0 win over APA Sphinx Club. Chris Lee had four hits for the victors.

The Sigma Chis scored five runs in the bottom of the sixth frame to run over the Theta Chis 14-8. Steve Beard homered for the winners.

Swimming ace signed

Florida State swimming coach Terry Carlisle has announced that high school All-America Peter Eunson, one of the top prep swimming prospects in Florida, has accepted a grant-in-aid with the Seminoles.

A senior at Clearwater High School, Eunson is considered by many to be the premiere distance freestylers in the state. He is the defending state champion in both the 200- and 400- yard freestyles, winning both events at last year's Class 4A high school championships.

He is favored to win the two distance events (the 400 has been lengthened to 500 yards this year) again this spring and has turned in respectable 1:46 and 4:40 clockings in early meets.

Martial Arts performed Sat.

Demonstrations of judo, aikido and karate will be in store for Tallahasseeans this Saturday as the 3rd Annual Martial Arts Night gets underway in Tully Gym at 8:00.

Differences exist between the forms of martial arts that will be displayed. Judo is a gentle grabbing and throwing your opponent and using his weight to your advantage.

Aikido is a way of harmony. This form is a defensive technique using the wrists and other bodily joints to let the attacker stop himself. The defender moves in harmony with his/her attacker.

Karate can be used as an offensive or defensive tool. However, the philosophy of karate emphasizes defense with the user employing all parts of the body for blocking, punching and kicking.

Demonstrations to the public will be of kumite and katas in a team showing. Clubs on campus and in the Tallahassee area will be the participants.

Admission is free for students and the public.

Turlington appointed successor

Christian resigns as Education chief

Indicted Florida Education Commissioner Floyd Christian resigned Thursday to avoid impeachment, and Governor Reubin Askew named State Rep. Ralph Turlington to the office, effective at midnight.

Christian said he was resigning "in the best interests of the Education System of Florida and because my attorney advised me that it will be impossible to obtain a fair trial if the case is heard by the Legislature and at the same time by the Court."

The dramatic announcement, read by Christian's attorney, Joe Jacobs, halted a blue-ribbon House committee's hearing on impeachment before it began.

Calling it the "proper thing," Chairman James Redman (D-Tampa), his voice trembling with emotion, immediately announced, "This hearing is adjourned and I dissolve this committee."

Governor Askew announced he was accepting the resignation "with a deep sense of sadness" because of Christian's 37 years of service to the school children of Florida. But Askew said it was the "wise course" under the circumstances.

The Governor urged Floridians to withhold judgment of Christian until a court and jury have decided his guilt or innocence after trial.

Christian did not appear at the brief committee meeting where Jacobs read the page-long announcement. But the attorney said he will be in Circuit Court before Judge John A. Rudd this morning for his arraignment and formal plea.

Christian has said he will plead innocent to the 19 felony counts of bribery, perjury and conspiracy involving the award of $1.5 million in contracts to firms that benefited former business associate Robert N. Bussey of St. Petersburg.

Christian decided to resign rather than insisting on his original course of taking an unpaid leave of absence until after the trial on the advice of many, including some legislators, that impeachment was inevitable.

Jacobs said it was impossible to think that impeachment with the attendant publicity would not prejudice his trial expected to be held in Tallahassee later this year.

A note of bitterness against the legislature crept into Christian's final farewell, in which he noted that two former legislators who were indicted during their terms were allowed to take leaves during their trials and were not impeached.

Redman, however, said there were two major differences between Christian and the cases of former Rep. Carey Matthews (D-Miami) and ex-Sen. Robert Brannen (D-Lakeland). For one thing, he said, there is just one chief state school official, a constitutional office with broad governing powers as a cabinet officer in fields other than education, while Matthews and Brannen were two among many. Also he said, Christian faces charges of misuse of his public office while charges against Brannen and Matthews did not involve their elective offices.

Rep. Marshall Harris (D-Miami) said the legislature was doing only what the constitution required it do, but he instructed the staff to draft a proposed constitutional amendment that might make such proceedings unnecessary in the future.

The only way under the present constitution to get an indicted cabinet official out of office before conviction is through impeachment. The proposed amendment would let the Governor suspend a cabinet official who is indicted on criminal charges pending trial.

"My family and friends have endured much during these past weeks and their steadfastness and support are a source of great pride to me," Christian said. "However, because impeachment proceedings could prejudice my chance for fair and impartial trial, I must regretfully resign."

Complaint lodged against International Program head

By Laurin March

Barbara Bassett, staff assistant in the FSU International Program office, has filed a formal grievance against Dr. Robert Coyne, director of International Programs, on the grounds of "breach of faith, neglect of duties, discrimination and violation of State personnel rules and regulations."

Bassett contends that Coyne was "using a procedure established for the purpose of improving an employee's performance to remove me in lieu of actual firing."

The job Bassett held required a 6 month probationary period, at the end of which she was to be rated in her competency. Coyne failed to complete the probationary review form by the designated time and Bassett automatically became a permanent employee.

Bassett was then fired on Mar. 6, at which time she informed Coyne of her status "as a permanent satisfactory employee with certain rights to job security."

Contacted by the Employee Relations Department of Personnel, Coyne changed Bassett's "fired" status to "conditional." She will be reviewed again at the end of 6 months to determine if she has gained her "lacking" job competency.

"I wish to stress the fact that the outcome of the conditional rating has been pre-determined," said Bassett. "He (Coyne) has already made up his mind that the outcome would be negative."

"In the period following the conditional rating (more so since the grievance began) I have been the victim of constant harassment, criticism, biased and unfair treatment," Bassett said. "Coyne has refused to sign my time card, preventing me from being paid, and is lessening my job duties and responsibilities in preparation for my departure." There have also been "numerous infractions of established personnel rules," according to Bassett, regarding her re-rating.

The procedure in the grievance case warrants a review by a 3-member board, with representatives of both Bassett and Coyne presenting arguments. Bassett wants the hearing before the board made public, but the administration has thus far denied the request. The hearing, according to a source close to Bassett, will be held "sometime next week."

Hitchhikers can relax a bit. It appears the pending legislation to outlaw hitchhiking may not even make it to the floor, much less be passed into law.

There are three bills which seek to make it a second degree misdemeanor to hitchhike or to pick up a hitchhiker, providing for a maximum 60-day sentence. Companion Senate-House bills, sponsored by Senator David Lane (R-Ft. Lauderdale) and Reps. Van Poole (R-Ft. Lauderdale) and Ander Crenshaw (R-Jacksonville), would "preserve the health, safety and welfare of the people of the state of Florida by prohibiting that certain conduct of motorists and pedestrians called hitchhiking," in the language of the bills.

Only one state, Maine, currently has a law entirely prohibiting hitchhiking, mostly by virtue of a vague statute.

Florida law now prohibits standing in a road to hitchhike or to solicit a ride on limited access highways. Similar laws are ineffect in 28 other states.

The third bill, sponsored by Rep. Harold Dyer (D-Hollywood), is now in the House Transportation Committee. Dyer said he intends to withdraw his bill and support Poole's and Crenshaw's.

The Poole-Crenshaw bill, which was the original proposal, passed out of the House Criminal Justice Committee by a slim 10-8 vote. The Lane bill will likely remain idly in the Senate Criminal Justice Committee, at least until action is taken on the House version, and that action may never come. Though the House bill has been reported favorably out of committee, it has not been placed on the calendar for action by the full house.

The possible reason for this, according to some observers, is that any floor debate on this bill might become a circus and, even if passed, the bill would probably not make it beyond the Senate Criminal Justice Committee, where a straw vote indicated there are not sufficient votes to pass it.

It may not be sound politics for the sponsors to subject themselves to potentially humiliating debate on an item certain to attract a lot of attention when it will probably be killed in Senate committee anyway. This is an election year, one in which a substantial portion of the constituency may be hitchhiking to the polls.

The bills were precipitated as a result of some spectacular crimes linked to hitchhiking, such as the Houston mass murders and the murder of a youth who was cemented into a wall in Miami last year.

ZODIAC*3.5 million phones bugged by IT&T

The Wall Street Journal reports that the various affiliate telephone companies of A.T.&T. secretly monitor approximately 3.5 million private phone calls each year.

According to the Journal, these calls are monitored by equipment which has no beeps, clicks or any other kinds of tone — allegedly so that the phone company can listen in on and check the proficiency of their operators.

The Journal adds, however, that there is no way of preventing phone company officials from monitoring private conversations which might be of interest to those equipped with the bugging device.

Only two states in this country oppose these silent monitoring tactics: California state law requires that a bleeper be used, and the state of Georgia requires both a monitoring license and the placing of orange stickers on monitored phones.

'Colaholics' studied by university researchers

Two Pennsylvania University researchers warn that a growing number of young people are getting hooked on "Coke."

"Coke" in this case is not cocaine. It is the real thing — Coca Cola. Elliot Diamond and John Piffnerling studied 48 Penn State students who are regarded as "colaholics" because they down enormous amounts of cola each day.

Diamond and Piffnerling found that many students literally suffered from withdrawal symptoms when they attempted to kick the cola habit. Many suffered from pronounced depression, nervousness and decreased alertness, they discovered.

A "colaholic," say the researchers, was anyone who downed anywhere from 48 to 111 ounces of cola a day. 111 ounces works out to be about 19 six-ounce bottles of Coke.

The Penn State researchers said that the addictive ingredient in cola seems to be its caffeine. A cocaine extract was once used in Coke, but it was phased out more than 50 years ago.

In addition to the usual chewed up fish were two soft drink bottles, an aluminum soup kettle, a carpenter's square, a plastic cigar box, a screw-top jar partly filled with nails, a two-cell flashlight, several yards of quarter-inch nylon rope, a rubber raincoat, a worn-out tennis shoe and a roll of tarpaper with 27 feet of it still wound on the spool.

Nixon bids for support

JACKSON, Miss. (UPI) — President Nixon, making a new bid to build support against his impeachment, told a cheering Southern audience Thursday that future presidents would applaud the way Americans of today met their problems.

The President was interrupted more than 30 times by shouts and applause during his 41-minute address before the 25th annual meeting of the Mississippi Economic Council.

"A day will come — I can see it now," Nixon said, "that an American President will stand here and will look back and say, 'They did not fail when the going was very difficult and American leadership so important to the world.'"

"If we meet the challenges that destiny has placed on us, the people of the world will look back and say, 'God Bless America.'"

Nixon arrived in Jackson shortly after the House Judiciary Committee in Washington granted him five more days to answer its subpoena for 42 more Watergate tapes. He did not refer to the Watergate case or to the Judiciary Committee's inquiry into whether he should be impeached.

The Jackson speech was the first in a series which he plans in the near future. He will make a swing West next week, speaking Friday in Phoenix, Ariz., and Saturday in Spokane, Wash. On May 11 he will deliver a commencement address at Oklahoma State University in Stillwater. It will be his first appearance on a college campus in more than two years.

An audience of 12,000 jammed the Jackson Coliseum for the talk and coliseum manager said another 8,000 persons were outside.

The main thrust of the President's speech at Jackson was on the economy and the resilience of the American spirit.

"The problem of inflation is a nagging one," he said. "But the problem is not going to be solved by putting the economy in a strait jacket from Washington, D.C."

He said the downturn in the economy would level off in this quarter and the economy would move forward in the last half of the year.

Change in fee system was desperately needed

By John Thomson
Special to the Flambeau

I came across the chancellor of the State University System, Robert Mautz, in the House Office Building during recent budget hearings. I overheard him say to a colleague, "I know now why they have red carpets in there. So you can't see the blood."

Later that same day, hastily summoned President Stanley Marshall appeared before the House Appropriations Committee to explain his embarrassment at the disclosure of enrollment padding at his school. He addressed a somewhat hostile gathering. One spectator, commenting on the eager audience, said to me, "It doesn't pay to make too many enemies." Red carpets, how appropriate.

The climate for change is unmistakable. The state's universities are in for some severe scrutinizing and it is certain fee structuring will be re-worked with dispatch. But it is not necessarily the recent Board of Regents proposal which is most likely to succeed.

There is a virtual consensus favoring substantial change in the fee structure. The present system is given to abuse, practically encouraging it. Seldom does anyone in the legislature lay blame on an individual, though. It is, rather, the system which they say is at fault.

The current fee structure dates to when there were only three institutions in the system. Nearly all students were resident and full-time. Now there are nine universities, five of which are located in major metropolitan areas and are primarily commuter campuses. Two of those are strictly commuter and have no on-campus housing. On-campus residents account for less than 50 per cent of the student population at all the schools. The average student age is much higher and the part-time enrollment at some of the newer universities is as high as 30 per cent of the total enrollment. The apparent goal is a fee structure which will loss of revenue.

It can be safely assumed students faced with tuition costs in proportion to the number of credit hours taken will, as a whole, enroll for less. This would result in a reduction of full-time equivalency (FTE) budgeting units, which would result in less money, cutbacks, and, it is said, in the loss of perhaps 300 faculty positions in the State University System (SUS). Compounding the likelihood of students' unwillingness to pay for heavy course loads is a recent College Scholarship Service study which showed a "dramatic" increase in self-supporting students.

Mautz did not again yield to the wishes of university presidents due to obvious circumstances. The Regents have been aware of what they call the "soft credit hour problem" since last fall when they docked the University of Florida $1 million for 151 non-existent students. Also, FSU, despite the fanfare surrounding its transgressions, is believed to be one of the lesser violators in the system.

Community colleges, as well, are thought to be involved in some padding of their own. But they operate, said a House Appropriations Committee staff member, on a much more sound budgeting system than the SUS, based on "cost allocation," using an average course cost per FTE. This, too, may be subject to change. The Community College Council of Presidents has been studying the possibility of per-hour tuition since the Division of Community Colleges reorganized its budget planning system a year ago. The Council was unable to reach an agreement on price then because of the varied course offerings from district to district and the abundance of non-credit courses.

Jack Eberly, financial specialist for the division, said he thinks a decision by the legislature to institute hourly tuition in the SUS could give impetus to a likewise move in the community colleges.

Though there are some who feel the BOR resolution, or something similar, will get legislative approval with ease, they are possibly outnumbered by those who do not.

"I am one who does not," said Rep. Marshall Harris (D-Miami) emphatically. Harris, chairman of the House Appropriations Committee and the man who called Stanley Marshall on the red carpet, said he favors a structure in which students would pay a set hourly fee up to an established normal full-time load. Additional hours would be charged on a progressively decreasing price. He said he opposes anything which would tend to slow student progress, such as an hourly fee structure without a price ceiling and no incentive to take heavy course loads.

The House Appropriations Committee staff also sees little promise in the BOR proposal. Staff director Joe Kyle said, contrary to its intent, it would not solve the FTE padding problem. The committee has under study a "cost analysis" fee system which would have the most radical effect on the universities by subjecting the entire system to evaluation.

Bluegrass music and crafts to swamp Miller's Landing

By Eric Moss

Once again, bluegrass music and a country fair atmosphere will swamp Miller's Landing as the second Bluegrass Festival and Arts and Crafts Fair begins May 2.

Promoters Stew Parsons, Roy West and Tommy Warren have joined forces with Dick Spain of The Artful Dodger to present a much more diversified format, in the hopes of attracting more people of varied tastes.

Last November's festival was almost purely bluegrass music with one small area featuring handmade crafts. Spain, along with assistants Lowell Webb and Pat Hicks, hopes to present a much more extensive and artistically pleasing array of items to buy and view.

Aside from the more typical stands featuring wood carving and leather work, Spain has planned an additional display area underneath a large tent. Included crafts are fine silver sculptured rings, necklaces, bracelets and earrings, a myriad of other kinds of handmade jewelry, pottery, ceramic objets d'art, samples of glassblowing, knotted macrame wall hangings and much more.

"There is an awful lot of talent here in Tallahassee that goes unnoticed," Spain said. "I'd like to see this develop into a good quality thing."

Spain added that there is no event or show in this city that effectively displays local craft work. "Because of this, we're losing all of the good artists in Tallahassee," he said.

"Hopefully," Papa Joe Butts and his son John will return to Miller's Landing with their carved wood statues, tables and mountain dulcimers. Papa Joe travels around the country in a converted bus, and is "supposed to be coming," according to Spain.

"We're going to feature bluegrass oriented art," Spain said. "It's not really fine art, per se, as there aren't any painting or prints."

"This will be more crafts than arts," he added.

Reservation must not be endangered

Unless University officials step up their floundering negotiations, efforts to save a wilderness tract of land from industrial development will fail, thus endangering the popular Seminole Reservation.

The land tract which borders on Lake Cascades, an interlocking waterway with Lake Bradford, is owned by Tallahassee businessman Robert Withers.

For the past year, Withers has unsuccessfully negotiated with the city of Tallahassee in attempts to have them make a public acquisition of the land. But after failing to reach an agreement with the city, Withers has now decided to apply for rezoning in the hope that he can sell the land to an industrialist who has visions of building laundry facilities on the property.

If Withers is successful in his rezoning attempt, the Reservation could suffer severe ecological repercussions from the laundry's waste materials.

However, last month, FSU President Stanley Marshall offered to exchange a small section of University-owned property located near the airport for the tract owned by Withers.

Both parties were originally receptive to the deal, but final negotiations went sour when a dispute arose over the conflicting appraisals of the two land areas.

"The University feels that its land is more valuable because of a location which places it near the airport where future expansion is inevitable," Withers said. "However, my tract on Lake Cascades should increase in value as residential and recreational development continues in the area."

Yet, the University maintains that it is primarily concerned with several separately owned pieces of land which surround the Withers' tract. They claim that if these pieces were sold in the near future for commercial purposes, then any good accomplished by the Withers purchase would be nullified.

Nevertheless, Carl Pennington, who is Withers' attorney, says he "can't understand FSU's speculative approach to the swap, since any capital gains which the University made on the airport property would have to go to the state."

The Seminole Reservation, along with being a frequently used recreational facility, is also an extraordinarily beautiful work of nature whose well-being must be insured at all cost.

And while University officials should be congratulated for their worthy attempts thusfar, the Flambeau trusts that they will not let the transaction fall through simply because they were overly intent on making a "good" business deal.

We further hope that Mr. Withers will not become so exasperated with current negotiations that he sells the land before realizing the vast amount of harm and destruction which would almost surely result.

"OKAY, JAWORSKI, YOU WIN---COME AND GET THE TAPES."

FSU-FAMU idle talk harmful

Some students who came to Tallahassee to get a degree from Florida State University may find themselves getting one from Florida A&M instead.

That disquieting possibility has emerged amid an outburst of loose talk by legislators and members of the Board of Regents. At one time or another, these irresponsible comments have talked of eliminating FSU's programs in business, education, law or nursing.

What has prompted all this talk is Florida's inability thus far to gain federal approval for its plan to desegregate the state university system. At stake are millions of dollars in federal aid.

Florida's desegregation problem, of course, is nothing new but stems from the state's racist past. Historically, black Florida A&M was the victim of discrimination and neglect.

Now that desegregation has become official state policy, Florida A&M has been unable to attract enough white students to satisfy bureaucrats at the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Ironically, FSU — which has done the best job of any of the state's nine universities in desegregation — may bear the brunt of solving FAMU's problem.

And all because of one mistaken notion which has been repeated over and over — the notion that it is FSU's presence in Tallahassee which has kept FAMU from attracting white students.

That notion is wrong, and FSU officials should be doing more to dispel it.

The fact is that only three percent of the state's high school graduates live within commuting distance of Tallahassee. Both FSU and FAMU must import students from elsewhere in the state and from out of state. When white students from Miami or Tampa or other areas downstate are trying to pick a school, they have many options: Miami-Dade Junior College, then Florida International; University of South Florida; University of Florida, and so on.

Those institutions divert more students from possibly selecting Florida A&M than FSU's presence in Tallahassee does.

As for the handful of students from the Tallahassee area, the existence of Tallahassee Community College has cost FAMU more potential white students than FSU ever could. It's a simple matter of economics and admission standards.

But we hear repeated with great regularity that there is no reason to have two universities in the same town. Nonsense. If the universities differ in their role and scope — as, for example, UCLA and Los Angeles State do in California — then there is as much reason to have two universities in one town as there is to have two universities in two towns.

GUEST COLUMN

By Bob Sanchez

The only catch is that the universities' purpose or role or whatever may not be defined in racial terms, not in public universities at any rate. As long as FAMU remains 93 percent black as it is now, it will be hard to convince HEW that its role is not being defined racially.

And until FAMU's problem is solved, nothing at FSU is safe. Those who think, "Oh, it just can't happen" should recall that FSU once had a School of Journalism that was carted away to Gainesville, and a School of Engineering Science that popped up later at the University of South Florida in Tampa.

One high university official told me he feels "we have the problem under control" and that FSU is talking privately with legislators, regents and others on a "one-to-one basis."

That is some comfort to students who hear constant rumors that their school or college may be defunct or at FAMU before they graduate.

But it would be more comforting if FSU officials showed more awareness of this threat to Florida State's long-range welfare, and if state officials would put a moratorium on loose talk about moving this or that program from FSU to FAMU.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Veterans

Editor:

The 'Walk' we staged on the Capitol April 11 opened the eyes of the Florida Legislature to the needs of the college veteran. We made our plight known to the state and the nation. The 'Walk' got the ball rolling nicely, but the crucial part is yet to come. On Monday, 22 April, the House Education Committee passed the tuition waiver bill (HB 2233) with only one dissenting vote. That vote was cast by Rep. Barry Kutun from Dade County, and it was not clear whether Kutun opposed the bill or just the manner in which it was presented.

The bill is now scheduled to go before the House Finance and Taxation and the House Appropriations Committees, where it is expected to meet its stiffest opposition. In order to make a success of our efforts, we must continue to push for this valuable legislation. It is essential that you contact the members of the two committees, Taxation and Finance and Appropriations, either through personal appointments or telephone calls.

Many of the representatives are still largely uninformed on the provisions of the legislation. When the bills are placed on the agenda to be acted upon, it is too late to try and acquaint them with the necessary information. The names and telephone numbers of the two committees' members are available in either Room 327 University Union or from the Information Desk at the House of Representatives Building, tel. 488-8027.

If any additional facts are needed, contact any of the Veterans' Information Center personnel in Room 327 University Union or call 599-2975. It is imperative that we work together to get this legislation passed that will enable us to continue our education and eat at the same time. This is only possible through the concerted efforts of us all.

Major fluctuations in fees, said Kyle, would be imposed by limiting or enlarging program enrollments, adjusting class sizes, by the amount of money allocated and for the more expensive programs, by issuing loans which could be forgiven after the graduate worked in the state for a number of years.

The committee still expects this to be drafted into a bill before long. It would, in effect, constitute the most thorough overhaul of the funding and fee system.

Student Senate refuses to approve food monies allocation to Int'l Club

Statutory complexities surrounded the Student Senate's refusal to "bend the statutes" and approve the allocation of monies for food-related products to the International Club in the Wednesday night session.

The International Club presented a resolution to the Senate requesting that the Senate approve a portion of the International Club's budget "to pay the bill from ARA for the International Club Banquet" this weekend.

Under the Student Government Finance Code, no organization funded through Student Government can use any portion of their funds for food or food-related products.

There was talk in the Senate chamber of "bending the finance code" to allow the International Club a temporary "exceptional" status, but the majority of Senators believed that this would set a "dangerous precedent" and that "it was not their duty to decide when they could and could not bend the statutes."

The Senate has also passed a resolution to ban the smoking of "tobacco-based products within the confines of the classroom" at FSU.

There is already a university regulation that "implicitly details that smoking is not permitted within confines of the classroom" according to Law School Senator Bruce Blackwell.

The Senate resolution merely "urges that the provisions of the regulations be enforced."

Tuition structure change inevitable

They would probably drop for courses like history, literature and political science. The analysis would even get down to the finer points such as most efficient class sizes.

Major fluctuations in fees, said Kyle, would be ironed out by limiting or enlarging program enrollments, adjusting class sizes, by the amount of money allocated and, for the most expensive programs, by issuing loans which could be forgiven after the graduate worked in the state for a number of years.

The committee staff expects this to be drafted into a bill before long. It would, in effect, constitute the most thorough overhaul of the funding and fee system.

Last week an appropriations subcommittee ordered an investigation of all graduate programs in the SUS, where most of the padding has occurred. The programs are expected to be reduced by 10 to 30 per cent.

Speaker of the House Terrell Sessums (D-Tampa) and House Education Committee Chairman William Conway (D-Ormond Beach) filed a bill Friday to establish a per credit hour fee structure based on four educational levels: lower level, upper level, beginning graduate and advanced graduate. Fees would be assessed at one-third of the base student cost figure at each level. This proposal would probably result in increased tuition.

A similar proposal was being considered by Senate Education Committee chairman Robert Graham (D-Miami Lakes) until he was persuaded by Dr. Kenneth Boutwell, BOR vice-chancellor for administrative affairs, to withhold his bill in favor of the Regent's plan. Graham was considering a provision to allow for the payment of voluntary and involuntary fees.

Involuntary fees, for example, would be matriculation and capital improvement. Voluntary would be the student activity and service fee.

Under existing law, if the legislature were unable to decide on its own courses of action, the BOR proposal would become law. But last Wednesday the Ways and Means Committee placed on the calendar a Senate bill which would require specific legislative approval of all BOR tuition proposals. In the event the legislature failed to act, as happened last year, the BOR recommendations would not take effect and the fees would remain the same as they were the previous year. There is much sentiment for this, since it would give the legislature more fee authority. One senator said, during Education Committee hearings on this bill, "The Regents have too damn much power, anyway."

McCartney to visit US

Paul McCartney is planning to visit the U.S. soon for a concert tour and recording sessions with his group Wings.

Marsha Hightower, a spokeswoman for McCartney, has denied recent reports that Paul has any plans to produce future new Beatles albums.

According to Ms. Hightower, McCartney plans to record a new album with Wings in Los Angeles or Nashville in about six weeks. They Paul will do an American concert tour this fall, she said.

Ms. Hightower denied that McCartney had anything to do with a reported deal made by the four ex-Beatles, a deal in which Capitol Records would allegedly be given two new Beatles albums in exchange for a release from all the Beatles' future commitments to Capitol.

McCartney has already fulfilled all of his contractual obligations to Capitol, but will probably remain with the label, Ms. Hightower said.

However, the new McCartney and Wings albums will not be released by Apple Records, the Beatles' label. According to Ms. Hightower, Apple is now in the process of being dissolved.

FLORIDA STATE UNIVERSITY

Fall Quarter Registration In September

Registration for the 1974 Fall Quarter will be at the beginning of the quarter, according to Homer Fisher, associate executive vice president.

The decision was made by the Registrar's Office with the approval of the Executive Vice President and the Provosts, because of the inability of departments to develop an adequate schedule of classes when budget allocations are still uncertain.

Acting Registrar Steven Mausert agreed with department chairmen and academic advisors who expressed concern about the effect such a lack of information would have upon the registration process.

Using the advance registration procedure would require preparation of the class schedule and the completion of academic advising before the end of the current quarter, Vice President Fisher pointed out.

Mausert pledged that he and his staff will work with all persons involved in registration to ensure that the Fall Quarter schedule is as accurate as possible.

The computer assisted advanced registration process will be resumed for the 1975 Winter Quarter with a number of revisions which should eliminate most of the problems, he added.

Florida SUS Students May Study in Israel

A new overseas program offering a year of work and study at the University of Haifa in Israel is being offered to Florida students in the State University System (SUS).

According to Florida State coordinator Dr. William Spencer, the program is set to begin July 1. Students will live on a kibbutz or communal farm until September classes get under way. During their two semesters at the university, they will be housed in dormitories or private homes.

Dr. Spencer said during their stay on the kibbutz, located near the campus, the students will study Hebrew and work along with other kibbutz members so they can gradually adapt to Israeli life and culture. University classes will be taught by Haifa faculty members in subjects such as Hebrew, Arabic, religion, government, politics, sociology, economics, physics, theater, and other liberal arts subjects. All courses taken are transferrable to a Florida SUS university. Students will be required to take either Hebrew or Arabic.

The University of Haifa is located atop Mt. Carmel in the Mediterranean port city of Haifa in northern Israel, one of the most stable parts of the country. One or two faculty members will participate in the program to provide instruction, academic counseling and in general, oversee the program. Dr. Spencer said any sophomore attending a Florida state-supported university or junior college, with a "B" average is eligible to apply. The cost of the program is $3,000, which includes room and board for an entire year, round trip air fare from New York to Israel, tuition, partial medical coverage and field trips.

The program is being administered by the University of Florida, but application should be made through the campus coordinator on individual campuses. Florida State students wishing to participate in the program should contact Dr. Spencer in the Department of History.

Sigma Chi Derby Tomorrow

The annual Sigma Chi Derby will be held tomorrow with a parade/motorcade through campus and traditional Greek games and competition.

Derby Day climaxes a week of fund-raising, sorority skits and house decoration competition. Events will start at noon when campus sororities will participate in a parade with members dressed as ghoulish and comic characters. The parade will end at the band practice field where the Derby contests will start at 12:30 p.m.

The games, such as relays, ice-water musical chairs and sack races, are held between sororities, with Sigma Chi.

Science Academy Selects Beidler

Dr. Lloyd M. Beidler has been selected for membership in the National Academy of Sciences — one of the highest honors that can be accorded an American scientist.

Beidler, a professor of biological science, is only the second Florida educator to receive the honor; the other is Dr. Michael Kasha, also of Florida State, who was selected in 1971.

The Academy selects fewer than 100 scientists and engineers each year. It is a private organization of scientists and engineers dedicated to the furtherance of science and its use for the general welfare.

President Stanley Marshall said, "Dr. Beidler's dedication and devotion to teaching has been a great source of pride to all of us, and this significant honor is richly deserved. We are extremely proud to now have two such outstanding educators on the Florida State faculty. I think this honor is further evidence of the national recognition the University has received in the field of science."

Beidler joined the Florida State faculty in September of 1950. He received the BS degree from Muhlenberg College and the Ph.D. degree from Johns Hopkins University.

A Fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, Beidler also is a member of the American Physiological Society, Biophysical Society, Optical Society, Psychonomic Society, Society of Sigma Xi and the Society of General Physiologists.

In 1959 he was the Bowditch lecturer for the American Physiological Society, having been chosen by the president of the Society from among the members who had done outstanding work. In 1961 he was the national lecturer for the Society of Sigma Xi.

In 1962 Beidler received the Berzelius Medal from the Royal Academy of Sweden in recognition of contributions to public education in science. He was co-sponsor of the First International Symposium on Chemoreception in Stockholm, Sweden, and has been chairman of a National Academy of Science-National Research Council Committee on Human Factors in Psychophysiology.

In 1971, Beidler was named Florida State's Distinguished Professor of the Year. A science program he helped develop for kindergarten through elementary school is widely used throughout the nation.

Beidler, whose major areas of interest are taste and olfaction, has authored many articles. He is married to the former Mary Lou Hackether. They have six children.

LILLIAN GISH, silent film superstar, talked recently in Washington with film critic Tom Shales about her long career and the development of silent films. Their conversation will be broadcast on WFSU-FM's "Options" Sunday at 4:30 p.m.

News You Can Use

Dr. Jim Nelson of the Department of Administration and Higher Education at Michigan State University will participate in the Symposia Series sponsored by the University State and Regional Higher Education Center.

Dr. Nelson will address students and faculty Monday, (April 29) in Room 240 Union, 10:30 a.m. — 12 noon and 2:30 — 3:30 p.m. in Room 216 Education Building.

Due to the mail strike in Canada, all mail destined for that country is being returned, said Richard Maxey, campus postmaster.

Maxey asks that everyone hold all Canada-bound mail until the embargo is lifted. Call the post office at 4146 for further information.

Nicholas Von Hoffman, a regular columnist for the Washington Post who is seen weekly on CBS' "Sixty Minutes" will speak Wednesday, May 1, at 8 p.m. in Ruby Diamond Auditorium.

The lecture, which is free and open to the public, is sponsored by members of the Florida State University Student Bar as a highlight of the annual Law Day activities.

Called "Mr. Left" on the CBS program, Von Hoffman has been asked to speak on the Watergate disbarments from a non-legal point of view.

DATELINE, an official page of record, is published by The Florida State University to communicate information to students, faculty and staff. The University Calendar is a weekly feature, published each Monday. Events for which a campus space reservation is made by the Tuesday preceding the Monday of publication are automatically included. All other Calendar items should be submitted to the Events Coordinator, 238 Union, or to the Office of Information Services, 324 P&A Building. Other notices for DATELINE should be submitted to the Office of Information Services. All news must be submitted four days prior to date of publication.

'Crucible' plays again

The final performance of "The Crucible," Arthur Miller's award-winning play, will be held tonight and Saturday at 8:15 on the mainstage of the Fine Arts Building.

The production is directed by Dr. Moses Goldberg who has introduced three-quarter round full thrust staging in the set.

The thrust stage, used for the first time in Tallahassee theatre with this production, presents a multitude of different problems for the actors and the director. It also provides the audience with a different perspective than a usual.

With a thrust stage, there are many more angles at which must play to while at the same time keeping the scene visually pleasing to the audience. The director must coordinate the actions on the set so they feel comfortable in the space and will enable the audience to see

The audience is close to the play, almost surrounding it because of this unique staging. This makes for the members of the audience to feel themselves an integral part of the action on stage.

Poet and author read

FSU professors David Kirby and Douglas Fowler will read poetry and fiction respectively this afternoon at 3:30 p.m. in the Open Door Coffeehouse.

writing department at FSU and his poetry has been published in journals such as The South Carolina Review and the Ark River Review.

undergraduate student of history at Cornell University to win first prize in writing competition. The poetry reading is one in a series being sponsored by the FSU Poetry-Arts Co-op.

"OUT OF THE BLUE," a film which presents the TV blooper that many viewers were witness to — the sex act being performed on television. "Out of the Blue" is one of the films to be shown in a Celebration of Erotic Films on Saturday at 10 and midnight in Moore Auditorium.

Want to see a movie?

A diverse group of films is playing on campus this weekend — films that should suit almost any taste or mood.

The popular "The Sound of Music" starring Julie Andrews will be shown on both Friday night (Ruby Diamond Auditorium) and Saturday (in Moore Auditorium). Shows for Friday night are at 7:30 and 10:30. Saturday's show is at 2 p.m. only.

Also playing on Friday and Saturday is "Spellbound," which stars Gregory Peck and Ingrid Bergman. Shows are scheduled for 7 p.m. only in Moore Auditorium.

Directed by Alfred Hitchcock, "Spellbound" was one of the first Hollywood films to deal with psychoanalysis. The movie portrays the way psychiatrist (Bergman) manages to reach into the recesses of an amnesia victim's mind and bring forth, bit by bit, the baffling secret that his temporary loss of memory has hidden from the police.

The movie also features a dream sequence designed by Salvador Dali.

Showing Saturday only in Ruby Diamond at 7:30 and 10:15 is Roman Polanski's "Macbeth." Wanting to bring out the contemporary nature of Shakespeare, writer-director Polanski set himself to the task of modernizing "Macbeth." He was able to do this in the movie without obscuring or changing the dramatic form of the play.

Last but not least, two sets of underground films will be on the screen this weekend. On Friday at 10 and midnight in Moore Auditorium Classic Experimental Films will be featured. Saturday at the same times, a Celebration of Erotic Films will be shown.

The "Celebration" features eight easily controversial films, some made in the early 1920s and other more modern ones. Among the erotic films are "Eveready," "Naughty Nurse" and "Lovemaking I."

'Crucible' plays again

The final performances of "The Crucible," Arthur Miller's award-winning play, will be held tonight and Saturday at 8:15 on the mainstage of the Fine Arts Building.

The production is directed by Dr. Moses Goldberg who has introduced three-quarter round full thrust staging in the set.

The thrust stage, used for the first time in Tallahassee theatre with this production, presents a multitude of different problems for the actors and the director. It also provides the audience with a different perspective than is usual.

With a thrust stage, there are many more angles an actor must play to while at the same time keeping the scene visually pleasing to the audience. The director must coordinate the actors on the set so they feel comfortable in the space and still enable the audience to see.

The audience is close to the play, almost surrounding it, because of this unique staging. This makes for the members of the audience to feel themselves an integral part of the action on stage.

Tribe swatters can do better

By Bruce Raben

Jack Stallings sat alone with a sportswriter of the Tallahassee Democrat in the Florida State dugout following a 15-1 shellacking at the hands of Valdosta State Wednesday night.

It was not the kind of game sportswriters love to talk with head coaches about.

Whatever, the Tallahassee men of inconsistency will try to do their thing somewhat better tonight against the University of South Florida in the first of a two game series. Tonight's clash begins at 7:30 and the two teams square off again Saturday at 1:30.

The Blazers pounced on virtually the same team that beat second-ranked Miami two out of three games and split with number four Georgia Southern.

But, the Tribe would have had trouble staying with Florida High Wednesday night. Everything—from the pitching to the hitting to the fielding—was a gross display of the better tradition usually held by Jack Stallings-coached baseball teams at FSU.

Pitchers go out onto the field wondering which fielder will betray them next with a two-base-throwing error or a missed pop fly. Fielders contemplate the time factor.

"Let's see, it usually takes a team ten minutes to score four runs, so I had better prepare to stay out here about 18 minutes."

And it stands to reason that you will have to play defense when you have no offense.

"God, I hope he doesn't throw me a curve ball. Maybe he will throw in one fast ball and I'll get a chance to swing."

Does Coach Stallings believe every time he yells, "let's go get 'em," before the Seminoles take the field in the first inning that his young swatters are destined to be in the opponent's season record book?

MOST RUNS SCORED—17 or 15 or 13—Opponent-Florida State.

It also seems to be about time that FSU pitchers realize that they are supposed to cover or back up a base instead of standing on the mound picking their seats.

When a ball is thrown over the third baseman's head, you're supposed to be there backing him up. And in case you haven't learned by now, when the ball is hit to the first baseman, you have to cover the first base bag. The runners are not going to wait for you to amble on over there.

How about what an old sage once said about it being unConfucius-like to throw behind the runner. That means, if a runner is between first and second base, you don't throw to first.

The number order is such that three follows two, two follows one and one is where circus man Windle Higginbotham is forced to play.

Higginbotham must do an acrobatic act trying to scoop balls on the second bounce from cannon-like arms in the infield, or he must fly sky high for a throw from another of those bullet-like throws.

O.K., I know its a young team and a young team is going to make mistakes. But, there is a difference between good baseball and youth versus dumb baseball.

You can play better baseball than the 49 runs you've given up in the last four games. Let's get it in gear, Seminoles.

District three race shapes up tightly

South Carolina, winning five games during the last week, took over as District Three's winningest independent team, but not by much.

In games played through Sunday, Apr. 21, Bobby Richardson's Gamecocks had a 35-5 (.875) record, just edging Georgia Southern which finished the week at 34-5 (.872). Miami was next with a 35-7 (.833) record and South Alabama was closing in on the leaders with a 24-6 (.800) mark.

Georgia Southern, which had been the front runner a week ago with a 30-1 record, had the toughest week, slipping to a 4-4 record. The Eagles lost single games to Lewis University and Florida State and dropped a doubleheader to Valdosta State.

Florida State (26-18) also slowed down Miami's rampaging express as the Seminoles won two of three games played in Tallahassee late last week. The Hurricanes also found FSU's crosstown neighbor, Florida A&M, a problem as the Rattlers earned a split of their doubleheader with Miami.

Key games this week found Jacksonville at Georgia Southern (Apr. 23-24), South Florida at Florida State (Apr. 26-27), Georgia Southern at South Carolina (Apr. 26-27), Tampa at Miami (Apr. 26-27) and South Alabama at Jacksonville (Apr. 27-28).

I-M force wins opener 13-0

The spotlight game of the early intramural softball season was played Wednesday night between the Intramural Force and Selby Lizards. Since they are responsible for these write-ups, they made sure to give themselves a dilly. Here goes:

The Czar of the league Paul Dirks threw out the first pitch of the season which was immediately rapped into left for a single. But, better things were ahead as Dirks immediately consulted with his catcher and settled down to fire a two-hitter, including a shutout.

The IM Force managed to score 13 runs despite the brilliant play of the Selby shortstop. He turned a nifty double play on one of the fastest men in intramurals (you have to run faster Bernie).

Dr. Bucky Wagner lashed four hits including two home runs for the winners to raise his lifetime (82 years) average to a respectable .075. The Force had 23 hits in all, including five round trippers.

The Blue Baiz played some tight defense allowing only five hits in shutting out PEK 4-0.

Modes Commodes has now come back from the gutter to win two straight games, topping the Ballers 10-4. Casey Fletcher led the winners' 19-hit attack with a homer and two doubles.

Rufus ( of Rufus and Dale) Noble had two doubles in pacing Salley 3rd to a 3-0 win over a stingy Smith 5th team.

Dave Meechen's two home runs supplied all the power Smith 3rd needed in downing Cawthon 3rd 18-6.

Kellum 2nd stopped Magnolia 1st 5-2 behind Bob Weber's three hits. Salley 8th won its second game of the season but the score was not sent over.

In women's softball action, Kellum Hall won its second straight game with a 17-6 win over Smith Hall. Cheryl Williams rapped out three home runs and a single to lead the winner's barrage. Delores Ellison had a pair of homers for the winners also. Leslie Eaton homered for the losers.

Ruth Warhurst had a perfect three for three day and scored four runs to carry the Alpha Chis to a 9-7 win over the Chi Omegas.

Players indicted in connection with ATO fracas

By Richard Lee

ROBIN SZABO (LEFT) AND DAVE FAULK of the Alpha Tau Omega fraternity were injured in the brawl which led Friday to the indictment of three FSU football players.

Three FSU football players were indicted Friday by the Leon County Grand Jury for their involvement in a fight with members of the Alpha Tau Omega (ATO) fraternity.

Two of the players, Joe Camps and Phil Jones, were served with a summons charging disorderly conduct and assault and battery. The third, Thomas McDougal, was served with a summons charging disorderly conduct.

Two other indictments were also returned by the Grand Jury which is investigating the Jan. 15 fracas, but no further arrests have been made.

The fight resulted from a confrontation between fraternity members and approximately 30 to 40 football players after accusations were made that a member of ATO vandalized a car parked near the fraternity house.

Two ATO members, Robin Szabo and Dave Faulk, were treated for injuries following the fight. Szabo filed a preliminary complaint against four team members involved in the fracas. The complaint was later dropped because, according to fraternity member Sam Bardwell, "the university judicial system was being unduly harsh with ATO and we were afraid that it might take action to expel some fraternity members."

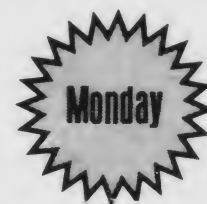

"The judicial system didn't even recognize that we were attacked," Bardwell said. "Faulk had been put on probation for almost two years and we didn't want to risk further disciplinary action."

However, the state attorney's office pressed the investigation which has resulted in the indictments.

The three players are scheduled to appear in County Court on May 8.

McClellan to head Relations division

By Mike Brennan

Current Vice President for Student Educational Services Steven McClellan will become Vice President for University Relations as the result of the on-going administrative reorganization plan, FSU officials announced yesterday.

It was also announced that Dr. Joe Hiatt, who is now Provost for Educational Services, will become Vice President for Educational Services upon approval of the Board of Regents (BOR).

McClellan, in taking over University Relations, will assume responsibility for Alumni Affairs, Development, Information Services and Publications, Athletics, Security, Auxiliary Services and all aspects of University Recreation. He will also retain control over the Health Services, which will not be included under the Auxiliary Services heading.

FSU President Stanley Marshall said the move "represents a major step forward by the University in serving and communicating with its publics on and off campus."

Hiatt's division will continue to be accountable for the Library, Continuing Education, DIRS and International Programs, but will add the areas of Matriculation Services, Academic Advising, Housing and Student Minority Affairs, all of which are presently in Student Affairs.

However, Hiatt's new positions must be approved by the Board of Regents (BOR) before he can officially assume his new duties.

Assistant Vice President for Student Services Eddie Bass will continue to supervise student educational services and his title will be "redesignated, to reflect his role as the principal student personnel officer," according to the University.

Student Government, activities and organizations will now report to Bass, who, in turn, will report to Hiatt.

Hiatt's appointment came in the wake of the naming of Homer Fisher as Associate Executive Vice President, in place of Vice President for Administration Robert Peirce, who recently resigned.

Fisher's office will cover the areas of Personnel, Comptroller, Registrar, ADP, University Planning, Systems and Research, Operations Analysis, Physical Planning, Physical Plant and Purchasing and Receiving.

Marshall pointed out that the reorganization does not reflect any new positions but would result in the loss of one vice president's position and one provost's position.

Marshall also said he feels the changes will enhance the efficiency and economy of the entire administrative sector and, in the case of student affairs, insure that student concerns will continue to receive "direct attention and major emphasis."

The proposed changes were endorsed by the University's Organizational Development Committee and by all university provosts.

"I am confident that these actions will enhance the governance and public services functions of FSU," Marshall said.

The University's academic structure was reorganized last summer and no further changes are planned at this time, according to University officials.

THE TRADITIONAL STARLIGHT BAND CONCERTS, featuring all University bands in a variety of musical presentations, perform for a crowd of sound-hungry students in the amphitheatre on a warm spring evening.

Election law violation charged

Grand Jury indicts Gurney

A Leon County Grand Jury has voted to indict U.S. Senator Edward Gurney on charges of violating the state's election law, according to a source quoted by Gannett newspapers yesterday.

The charge is apparently related to a $100,000 campaign fund which Gurney admitted at a press conference last December had been collected on his behalf but was not reported.

"He has been indicted, apparently it was mostly based on the news conference," Gannett quoted the source as saying. "It is related to the questions raised by Marshall Harris (a Miami representative)."

The indictment was drawn up Friday, the source said, but it is not certain whether it is one of the five sealed indictments handed to Circuit Judge John Rudd shortly before the jury recessed about 2 p.m.

A Gurney press aide said the Senator had not been notified of any grand jury action as of mid-afternoon Saturday.

"We've had no word at all," said John Gardner. He said Gurney was not available for comment.

Leon State Attorney Harry Morrison has handled the Gurney case before the Grand Jury, but he refused to say whether the jury has completed its investigation of Gurney.

Violation of the state election law is a first degree misdemeanor, punishable by a $1,000 fine and up to a year in prison.

State officials charged with election law violations are subject to removal from office, but federal elected officials apparently are not, according to Dorothy Glisson, director of the state elections division.

"It is not clear how the law applies to federal officials in several areas," Glisson said. "It is possible it could be cleared up in this case."

No member of Congress from Florida has ever been indicted by a Grand Jury, said Allen Morris, clerk of the House of Representatives and considered a knowledgeable state historian.

The 18-member panel, which last week indicted Education Commissioner Floyd Christian, began the Gurney investigation at the request of Harris.

Harris told Morrison that Gurney admitted violating the law in the Dec. 6 Jacksonville news conference when he said he knew in 1972 of $100,000 in contributions collected for him, but he had not reported it.

The Leon County Grand Jury last Monday viewed a videotape of the press conference. Harris was with the jury for more than two hours.

Gurney, who has announced for re-election, has maintained he is innocent of any wrongdoing, and has said the Tallahassee investigation is unnecessary, since he already is being investigated by two federal grand juries.

The newspapers said the source was not sure whether or not the indictment was one of the five handed down Friday afternoon. It is possible that the indictment has not reached Judge Rudd, and, if it has, it still may not have been given to law enforcement authorities for processing.

"But the indictment has been drawn up, there's no question about it," the newspapers reported the source as saying.

Morrison said it may be as late as Tuesday or Wednesday before all the persons named in the Grand Jury's indictments have been served summonses.

Mt. Hermon scene of Mideast fighting

Israeli and Syrian air and ground units pounded each other's positions on Mount Hermon Sunday in some of the bitterest fighting for control of the snow-capped mountain that has become a prize in the war of attrition on the Golan front.

The heavy fighting, marking the 48th consecutive day of battle, came as Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger flew to Geneva on the first leg of his latest peace mission to the Middle East. His major objective was to help work out a troop disengagement agreement between Israel and Syria which would stop the shooting.

Egyptian President Anwar Sadat, in an interview, called Kissinger "a man of miracles" who could produce a cease-fire on Israel's northern front. Kissinger played a major role in the Egyptian-Israeli troop separation accord on the Suez front.

Kissinger will confer in Geneva with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko, who flew in earlier in the day from Moscow, before flying on to Algeria and Egypt on Tuesday. Later in the week, he will begin his diplomatic shutting between Israel and Syria.

In Jerusalem, Israeli leaders said relations between Israel and the United States may be deteriorating following condemnation by the U.N. Security Council of Israel for the retaliatory raid on Lebanese border villages. The raids followed an Arab guerilla suicide squad attack on a border village in which 18 Israelis were killed and 16 more wounded.

In air battles over Mt. Hermon, Syria reported its air defense systems downed an Israeli jet early Sunday, the 28th Israeli warplane claimed by the Syrians since April 8. The Syrian air defense system was reported recently to have been bolstered by the newest Soviet-supplied SAM9 heat-seeking missiles.

Villagers in south Lebanon said they saw a plane fall in flames in Israeli territory but Israel denies any losses.

Syria said all its aircraft returned safely from the bombing and strafing attacks in which they inflicted "heavy casualties in lives and equipment" on the Israeli positions.

Soviet plane crash leaves no survivors

LENINGRAD, USSR — Western airline sources said no one survived when a Soviet passenger plane crashed in a ball of flame seconds after taking off from Leningrad airport Saturday.

The sources said at least 108 persons died in the crash, including a crew of about five. They were unable to say immediately whether any foreigners were aboard.

The sources said the turboprop Ilyushin 18 plane had just lifted off for flight when one of its four turboprop engines appeared to explode.

"We saw an enormous ball of flame in a field," a witness said. "Tens of ambulances all in a line were racing toward the airport."

The crash was the ninth known to have hit the Soviet airline Aeroflot in the past 18 months with the loss of at least 562 lives. Like previous crashes, this one was not reported in the Soviet press.

It was Aeroflot's first reported crash this year. The airline lost three planes in the last three months of 1973, killing an estimated 100 persons.

After the crash, the Ilyushin could be seen burning about two miles beyond the end of the runway, the airline sources said.

Mitchell, Stans judged not guilty

A federal jury in New York yesterday pronounced John Mitchell and Maurice Stans innocent on 18 counts of conspiracy, obstruction of justice and lying under oath. The verdict came after 10 weeks of testimony and 26 hours of deliberation.

Stans, once commerce secretary in the Nixon Cabinet, broke into tears at the verdict. Mitchell, who built a reputation as a tough law-and-order man as Attorney General, embraced his chief attorneys.

The two had been charged with impeding a federal investigation of financier Robert Vesco in exchange for Vesco's $200,000 contribution to the Nixon re-election campaign.

President relieved by jury acquittal

CAMP DAVID, Md. (UPI) — President Nixon was buoyed Sunday by the acquittal of former cabinet members John N. Mitchell and Maurice H. Stans and his aides suggested that the verdict discredited one of Nixon's chief accusers, former White House counsel John Dean.

Gerald L. Warren, deputy press secretary, said that word of the verdict was passed to Nixon during a meeting at Camp David, Md., with his two top aides. The meeting dealt with a subpoena from House impeachment investigators which Nixon must answer by 10 a.m. Tuesday.

"The President is very pleased for the two men and their families," Warren said. Other aides expressed delight at the verdict and said they thought the development might help Nixon in his own political struggle.

One high administration official issued a statement saying that the verdict discredited Dean, who was the key government witness in the Mitchell-Stans case. "The jury's verdict by implication makes him a liar, which makes one wonder how many other lies he's told," said the official, who refused to be identified by name.

found guilty and hung in the public eye for over a year that the jury has found them not guilty of anything," he added. "How many other good men are being publicly pilloried who are also not guilty of doing anything wrong?"

Until Sunday, Government prosecutors had maintained a perfect record in their cases against Watergate defendants — 25 convictions, in the biggest scandal in American political history. But with few exceptions, those who have been convicted or who pleaded guilty so far have been minor figures. Mitchell and Stans are by far the highest officials to have actually come to trial.

The nine-man, three-woman jury spent 26 hours deliberating the evidence before returning the verdict shortly after noon. Foreperson Sybil Kucharski said "not guilty" 18 times — once for each of the counts against the two defendants.

In talking with reporters afterwards, Mitchell said the verdict was reached by "12 good American people . . . part of the cross section of all Americans."

Stans expressed relief that the trial was finally over. As he put it, "This has been a long, wearing time, to live for a year with this hanging over my head. I knew I was innocent and I felt confident the jury would find that was the case."

Mitchell said his immediate plans were to "retire to a nice secluded place and buy myself a drink."

Though Stans has now been cleared, Mitchell still faces charges in connection with the Watergate cover-up, including obstruction of justice, conspiracy and perjury. Trial on those charges is scheduled to start in September.

TUESDAY, APRIL 30 has been proclaimed as a National Day of Humiliation, Fasting and Prayer by the U.S. Senate.

FSU ENVIRONMENTAL ACTION GROUP meets tonight at 7:30 in the lobby of Deviney Hall. Topics for discussion include bills in the legislature concerning environment, suggestions for projects and outdoor activities during the remainder of the quarter, and ecological effects of changes in the Seminole Reservation.

A PLANETARIUM SHOW is scheduled tonight at 7:30 behind Wescott. The show is last approximately 30 minutes and is sponsored by the FSU Astronomical Society.

FSU YOUNG DEMOCRATS will meet tonight in 411 Bellamy. The state convention will be discussed, according to leaders of the organization.

EDUCATION CHILD BIRTH of Tallahassee will sponsor a talk, "Anatomy and Physiology of Normal Pregnancy, Labor and Delivery" in the Tallahassee Memorial Hospital auditorium tonight at 8.

A LIMITED NUMBER of spaces are available in the Hotel and Restaurant Administration Department affinity flight to Europe, flying from Miami to Luxembourg June 20 and returning Aug. 20. All-inclusive round trip is $398.59. Interested persons may call Prof. Ashby Staff 599-2157 for further details.

DR. JIM NELSON addresses students and faculty today from 10:30 until 11:30 in 240 Union and from 2:30-3:30 in 216 Education. He will discuss "Planning 1980: A Challenge to Leadership."

THE VETERAN JUSTICE WAIVER BILL is scheduled to come up in the House Tax, Finance and the House Appropriations Committee the next few days, and will be of the Veteran's Interest.

Butdorf not bitter against fraternity brothers

By John Stevens

"I hold nothing against Theta Chi," Steven Butdorf said Sunday, adding that he still planned to join the fraternity.

Butdorf, who was assaulted Saturday during a fraternity road-trip, is still in Tallahassee Memorial Hospital, listed in satisfactory condition.

Presently in traction and scheduled to undergo still more skin grafting, Butdorf said that he hoped to be released by the end of the quarter, would spend the summer recuperating at home, and then return to FSU in the fall.

Butdorf said that previous stories on the road-tripping incident had not been reported "quite accurately."

After a half-serious wrestling match with fraternity members, Butdorf and William Synder were taken in a van to a dirt road near the truck route and left off.

"We walked out to the truck route, but we didn't know where we were, we didn't even know which way Tallahassee was," Butdorf said.

The two pledges tried to hitchhike and a car finally stopped.

Butdorf said he had left his glasses back at the fraternity house so they wouldn't get broken during the wrestling. He said he couldn't see too clearly and points out that he also forgot some of the details due to shock.

"I know that the occupants were black, but I'm not sure how many there were," Butdorf said, adding that he was either beaten or hit on the head after the suspects "tried to back over Synder."

Butdorf said he was then thrown out of the car, but was apparently caught up by something which caused him to be dragged 80 feet.

When Synder came upon him, he said he was conscious but in shock.

Butdorf emphasized that he didn't hold anything against Theta Chi and that the fraternity was "very upset" by the incident and had been visiting him.

"All of the fraternities are involved in road-tripping," Butdorf said. "Anyone who denies this is just putting up a big front."

Lewis Collins, President of the Intrafraternity Council, said earlier that the incident was uncommon and restricted to a few individuals. However, Butdorf characterized that opinion as "a bunch of garbage."

"I'm also very upset with the police," Butdorf said in connection with the impoundment of the van that had been used to roadtrip the two pledges.

Jim Sewell, Information Officer for the University Police, said that campus officials were working with the Sheriff's Department, but said he did not know why the van had been impounded.

The chief investigator on the case from the Sheriff's Department was not available for comment.

Ticketing for fun is truly unfair

Both students and faculty members are usually able to bottle up their frustrations and swallow their anger after being ticketed for what they consider to be an unjustified parking violation. However, the toleration point will surely be passed in the near future if University Police officers continue to issue citations in a manner which is totally void of any scruples.

Last Wednesday night around 11 p.m., a Flambeau staffer was out for a walk in front of Salley Hall when he noticed a police officer nonchalantly placing tickets on cars parked in back of Rogers Hall.

The officer, according to the staffer, was ticketing cars parked on the sidewalk for moving violations and others, for parking on the grass. In all, approximately fifteen tickets were written up.

Out of curiosity the staffer asked the officer what he was doing out "at this time of the night." The officer replied, "I have some free time tonight so I decided to take a ride over here to issue citations." He further added that he had "been over a couple of times during fall quarter."

The officer did admit that he knew of no parking facilities which were available for the cars in violation, but "that's not my concern."

"I don't care where they go to park. All I know is that it is illegal to park on the grass."

Needless to say, everyone is well aware of the rotten parking situation which exists on campus. Nevertheless, for the most part, everyone tries to cooperate and make due under almost impossible circumstances.

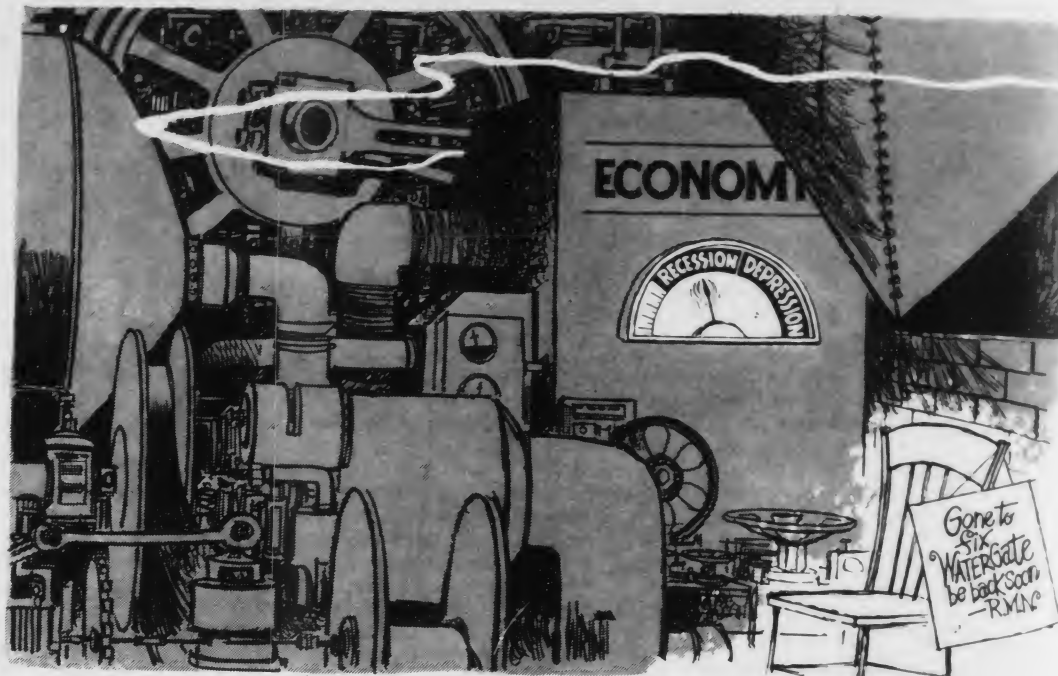

Yet, some security officers apparently seem to enjoy the bind which members of the FSU community are in and take advantage of the situation to increase their ticket count.

The Flambeau hopes that in the future, officers will become more sensitive to a problem which need not be compounded by ticket-happy officers.

Chasing after demon drugs

It has always struck me as strange that people are more frightened of the devices used to escape reality than they are of the things that terrify people into trying to escape in the first place.

The hysteria over "drug abuse" is a striking example. People I have talked to, who have never used drugs themselves, actually believe that the simple ingestion of a couple of pills can turn a normal, healthy individual into a monster. If you stop drug dissemination, they reason, 90 percent of the problems in the country will disappear.

The truth is that many people who use drugs—even illegal drugs—never get into trouble with any of them at all. And many people who never indulge are being shipped off to mental hospitals every day—where they will, ironically, be given drugs to keep them in line and "help" them.

A psychiatric counselor once told me that the majority of clients who came to her claiming to have drug problems have never touched the stuff. They had picked up on all the anti-drug publicity and thought drugs were an acceptable excuse for their bizarre behavior and their problems. They just couldn't face the fact that plain old life had caught up with them.

It is true that some people make drugs part of their problems. They are true "abusers," as dedicated to their addiction as overeaters or alcoholics or rapists are to theirs. Drugs don't solve their problems and tend to increase their lack of ability to cope.

On the other hand, drugs, like alcohol, can be a crutch. No one begrudges a cripple his or her crutch. What should the limited drug user who needs the help of a drug-crutch be so disproportionately damned?

When you think about it, drugs are a fairly mild form of escape compared to attacking people or killing yourself.

And aspirin, after all, is a drug. So are insulin, and Dristan, and antibiotics, and pills for heart conditions. Many of these drugs have side effects. People who are allergic to a certain drug can OD on small doses. Yet we have accepted the wisdom of using drugs for physical ailments. We have yet to accept the wisdom of their use for mental and emotional problems.

It is particularly strange that drugs routinely given out at mental hospitals and mental health clinics are illegal if sold on the streets. It is all right, seemingly, for somebody else (if they have state approval) to put drugs into your body even against your will. It isn't allright for you to decide when and what to put into your body.

I have a friend who, for several years, was into doing pot and LSD and mushrooms and various other things almost daily. He got to the point where simply smoking pot could put him into a coma-like state. He still has flashbacks from the LSD, which are 100 percent bad trips—he has to take 100 units of valium to help him get down.

Today, 20 pounds or so heavier because food is one of the few things he still "does", he doesn't drink, smoke dope or take drugs (except for the prescribed valiums). He has a constant sensation of being stoned that sometimes makes it hard for him to operate.

But he doesn't regret taking any of the things he took.

He admits he no longer talks drugs up. When the subject is mentioned, he usually drops out of the conversation. He doesn't advise people to take drugs as a solution to all their hangups anymore—but he doesn't discourage them. He considers his history of drug use as valuable and interesting experience.

Drugs, after all, can help people to change their life styles or to get over a crisis period or to see the world from a totally different perspective. They are sources of experience in an otherwise padded and preplanned middle-class world. They add drama to otherwise dull lives.

I felt long ago, and am even more convinced now, that what we should be doing is looking for better and less damaging drugs, not just damning drug use out of hand. Drugs are here to stay. Like the machine, they can be either a blessing or a curse.

And one thing is damn certain: problems with living are the real problems.

Important bill

Editor:

During the last five years the administration of FSU has eroded student control of the quarterly activity fee from $34.50 to $3.10. The rationale for such erosion has been that student government funds organizations in an irresponsible manner. However, an administrative spokesman has stated that the present student government budget is the best he has ever seen; and in view of the recent findings of padded enrollment, it is obvious that the administration is no more fiscally responsible than SG.

Presently there is a bill that has been introduced in the state Senate that would return control of the full $34.50 to the student governments of state universities. It is imperative that students support this bill, either by letter writing or by directly lobbying with their state senators.

Visitation

Editor:

It is my opinion that the editorial in Wednesday's Flambeau is extremely lacking in any sensitivity and understanding of life in a residence hall with visitation policies.

The statement "There is no educationally sound reason for members of the opposite sex to visit each other alone in dormitory rooms" is perhaps a valid assertion. However, students are not concerned solely with educational development in the college experience. The maturing process of an individual, to be beneficial, must include all aspects of his life, whether educational or social.

Residents have one usually very small area which is actually their primary living area. Their own room is where about all of their belongings are kept. Often, their daily activities of eating and studying, as well as sleeping, are done within the confines of the room. The resident should be allowed to behave as a normal human being with normal friendships and, even in these group-oriented conditions, live normally.

One loose assertion of the editorial concerned the energy crisis and students staying up late — does this mean that by "restrictions necessary" you feel we should have lights-out time and beddy-bye time, of course, sufficiently regimented and patrolled?

It is time for Regents, legislators and — it is sad to see — the Flambeau to realize that dormitories should not, as this name suggests, be just a place to sleep. They are the homes and complete living areas of a majority of students and the feelings of these residents should govern their living environment. Let the residents choose their visitation policies with a consideration for each other, and a definite regard for security, but do not dictate the types of conditions that are, in

Humans used as guinea pigs

There have been literally dozens of medical experiments in the past decade in which human beings have been used as "guinea pigs" without their knowledge or consent.

One such experiment, which received much attention recently, was the Tuskegee syphilis experiment in which 400 black men — all suffering from syphilis — were allowed to go untreated for up to 40 years. At least 28 men died as a result of the lack of treatment and many others suffered from permanent damage to their hearts and central nervous systems.

A survey by Science Digest Magazine indicated that the Tuskegee incident was not uncommon, and that many similar medical studies have been conducted in the past ten years. The subjects of a great majority of these experiments, says the magazine, are usually the mentally retarded, prisoners or the poor.

In one experiment in New York, 22 elderly patients were injected with live cancer cells under the skin to test their ability to reject the foreign cells. Interviews with the subjects later determined that none of the patients knew the purpose of the tests or that cancer cells were being used.

The British medical journal Lancet reports that a number of retarded children in a New York hospital were recently injected with hepatitis. And yet another case, prisoners in Iowa were treated to come down with a case of scurvy, even though its cause and cure are known.

Nixon widening money gap

Wisconsin Congressman Henry Reuss says that President Nixon has virtually reversed an economic trend of recent years in the United States where the poor were slowly catching up to the rich in terms of income.

According to Congressman Reuss, between 1950 and 1968, the low and middle income families in the United States had slowly been increasing their shares of the national income. In the same period, the top fifth, or the nation's wealthiest families, had declined slightly — from 42.7 percent to 40.5 percent of the total U.S. income.

However, says Reuss, "Enter Mr. Nixon and the trend is reversed." Reuss cites official U.S. Census Department figures which show that during each of Nixon's first five years in office, the rich have been getting richer and the poor even poorer.

Reuss blames this change in the economic trend on the fact that Nixon is indebted to the wealthy interests in America — particularly the powerful corporations and wealthy individuals who contributed $60 million to Nixon's 1972 campaign.

The lighter side of elections

The Watergate scandal may be scaring people away from politics — but what's happening in Ortonville, Michigan, is ridiculous.

In the recent election in Ortonville for tax assessor, no candidates signed up. On election day, however, there were four write-in votes, each for a different person.

Since no winner could be named, Oakland County Clerk Lynn Allen called a meeting of the four winners to resolve the tie. Not one of the winning candidates showed up.

Clerk Allen refused to give up. He went into the street, selected three passers-by and had them draw straws on behalf of the absent candidates.

The final winner was Ronald D. Richards, an Ortonville auto-factory maintenance man. Richards, when finally contacted, reluctantly agreed to take the job. He reported that he had no idea who had voted for him, adding, "I've got my suspicions, though."

Young competes for Senate

By Henri Cawthon

Emphasizing his naivete in the field of politics, darkhorse candidate Burton Young says he is competing with "political hucksterism" in the race for the Democratic nomination for Florida's U.S. Senate seat.

Young, past president of the Florida Bar Association (FBA), told the Flambeau last week that his stand on most issues would be decided by the results of the Burton Young Opinion Poll.

BURTON YOUNG

"According to our survey, overcrowding was the overwhelming concern of the Floridians we polled," said Young. "It is the responsibility of the incumbent government to channel new populations into non-urban areas."

"I would be in favor of tax cuts for new industries in the least developed areas," he added.

On the issue of campaign reform, the lawyer from Miami was outspoken: "The gas and oil industries gave the President's campaign $5.7 million in defiance of the Sherman Anti-trust Act, (and) the dairy industry got back $500 million in price subsidies for their contributions. The only way we can restore morality in government is by passing a strong federal campaign disclosure law."

Young is proud of the fact that he was influential in changing the American Bar Association's (ABA) view on marijuana laws. After Young spoke in favor of decriminalizing the possession of marijuana last year, the ABA adopted a resolution to lobby for such a change in the national laws.

"The injustice of the Florida laws on the possession of marijuana first caught my attention when I met a 17-year-old boy who was on parole from Raiford," said Young.

The boy had been convicted for possession. Young appealed to both the governor and the attorney general and the boy's sentence was shortened.

"I called the Florida Bar not as a member but as a concerned citizen," said Young, referring to his role in the matter. "Soon afterwards, national defense they changed the offense from federally-funded mass transit a felony to a misdemeanor." systems, limited amnesty and complete confidentiality for newspapers.

Double feature

A double feature of "M" and "Duck Soup" is showing in Moore Auditorium tonight.

"M," in its original uncut version, is based on the fiendish killings in Düsseldorf in 1929 which spread terror among the inhabitants of the city. Peter Lorre, in his starring role of the film, recreates the claustrophobic, psychotic universe of a child-murderer who is hunted by the criminal class as well as the police.

"M" is directed by Fritz Lang. In a New York Herald Tribune review both Lang and Lorre were praised for their talents. "It is in the final sequences that Peter Lorre can take almost equal responsibility with Fritz Lang for the creation of a masterpiece. The film reaches a

Songwriters can compete for awards

The National Entertainment Conference, an educational organization which counts 700 colleges and universities among its members, will now expand its services to aspiring student songwriters.

The prestigious NEC has agreed to participate in the 1974 American Song Festival, the country's first international songwriting competition, according to an announcement in Los Angeles by Malcolm C. Klein, festival president.

NEC campus officials will provide counsel to students who wish to enter songs in the $128,000 competition and supply official entry blanks, Klein said.

The first annual American Song Festival differs from established competitions in Italy, Lebanon, and Brazil in that it is open to amateur composers as well as professionals.

Contestants in separate amateur and professional divisions can compete in one or more of six music categories: (1) rock, (2) pop/middle of the road, (3) soul/rhythm/blues/jazz, (4) folk, (5) country/western and (6) gospel/religious.

A given song can earn its composer up to $30,000 in cash prizes plus a chance at instant fame and fortune.

Any number of songs in any category can be entered by a May 15 deadline. Cost of entry is $10.85 per song.

Money by check or money order and notice of intention to compete should be sent to American Song Festival, 5900 Wilshire Boulevard, Los Angeles, California 90036.

By return mail contestants will receive an official entry blank (if needed), a cassette for recording an entered song and a festival-published Songwriter's Handbook containing helpful information on marketing music.

heart-shaking crisis of terror and pity," the review said.

Another tone is set by the Marx Brothers' comedy "Duck Soup." The movie features Groucho as king of a bankrupt country which he destroys single-handedly, despite the help Chico and Harpo try to give him in its destruction; for they were hired by a rival king to destroy the country too. The rivalry between the two leaders eventually leads to one of the most grandiose and insane wars in film history.

Groucho once tried to explain the title of "Duck Soup" when he said, "Take two turkeys, one goose, four cabbages, but no duck, and mix them together. After one taste, you'll duck soup the rest of your life."

Among the dances to be featured during the evening are Palm 150, Dancers from Degas, a series of scenes related to Degas' famous ballet paintings, Dueling Dancers, a folk, hoe-down contest performed ballet-style, and Seagulls which is based on the book about Johnathan Livingston Seagull.

Tickets for the performance are $2 for adults and $1 for children under 12.

Studio play slated

The delightful, "laughing" comedy "She Stoops to Conquer" will be presented in FSU's Conradi Theatre May 1-4.

Based on a true episode in Oliver Goldsmith's life, "She Stoops to Conquer" depicts the experience of a young schoolboy who, while seeking lodging for a night during his return to school, is directed by a local wit to the home of the country's richest and most irascible squire. The squire, in good humor that day, realizes the boy has mistaken him for an innkeeper. He then proceeds to play the role of innkeeper to the hilt while the youth grows more and more arrogant in his demands. The next morning the boy discovers his mistake and embarrassedly sneaks out the kitchen door.

A Studio Theatre production, "She Stoops to Conquer" features Terry Presley, Bob Hansen, Marty Kappel, Mike Genevie and Chris Reynolds.

Curtain time for the play is 8:15 p.m. Students with FSU ID cards will be admitted free and non-students will be admitted for $1.

TV shows highlighted

Highlighting this week's programs on WFSU-TV are varying and diverse shows.

Featured tonight at 8 is "The Energy Crisis: End of the Beginning" which will present a progress report on the energy crisis after six months' experience. The program will be as up-to-date as possible in describing how energy shortages are affecting daily life in the United States.

Following this program will be a University of Chicago Roundtable with noted economists discussing charges that governmental price controls caused the energy crisis.

On a lighter note, an interview and a performance by Taj Mahal, blues singer-guitarist, will be presented on Interface Wednesday, May 1 at 9 a.m.

Wednesday night at 6 p.m., Jason Robards and Colleen Dewhurst, who are currently starring in Eugene O'Neill's Broadway play "A Moon for the Misbegotten," will be interviewed on Speaking Freely.

FLORIDA STATE UNIVERSITY

Symposium Stresses Population Awareness

Alvaro Garcia-Pena, president of the Population Reference Bureau in New York, and Dr. Riad Tabbarah, of the United Nations, will speak at the population seminar to be held in the University Union.

The Spring symposium, "Population Awareness: Survival for All," is presented by the International Student Office and the University Lecture Series.

It starts at 9 a.m. Thursday in the Leon-Lafayette Room with introductions by Ms. Aila McEwen, director of International student affairs.

Dr. Tabbarah, who is chief of the Population Policy Section, Population Division, United Nations, will speak at 9:45 a.m. on the United Nations world plan of action. There will be time for questions following his talk.

There will be two panel discussions during the day, one to focus on the reactions to the U.N. "Plan of Action" and the other to emphasize the role of population education in a world perspective.

That night at 8 o'clock, Garcia-Pena, a native of Colombia, will speak on "The World Population Picture:

Getting the Message to the People."

According to representatives of the International Students Office, it was because of an increasing awareness of the delicate balance between man and earth's resources that this subject was chosen.

Symposium participants will attempt to learn how population changes affect the individual and society. The basic premise of the conference is that "only through population awareness, through education, can we gain survival for all."

News You Can Use

The School of Home Economics will hold a Career Day Wednesday, May 1, from 1 to 4 p.m. in Sandels Lounge. All students who are interested in a career in home economics or who want to know more about home economics education are invited.

Tables will be set up with displays on clothing and textiles, home economics education, child development, housing, food and nutrition and on related organizations, including AHEA Fashion, Inc. and Omicron Nu.

The comedy "She Stoops to Conquer" will be presented by the Studio Theatre Wednesday through Saturday, May 1-4 at 8:15 p.m. in Conradi Theatre.

Florida State students will be admitted free. Admission for all others is $1, with tickets available at the door.

The 200-year-old play is based on playwright Oliver Goldsmith's eventful stay in the Irish town of Ardagh, where, at a 16-year-old schoolboy, he sought a night's lodging while on his way to Trinity College in Dublin.

The FSU Chapter of the American Meteorological Society will meet Wednesday, May 1, at 7:30 p.m. in 307 Love Building. Dr. Noel LaSeur, chairman of the Department of Meteorology, will speak on "Mesometeorology - Squall lines, Thunderstorms and Tornadoes." Refreshments will be provided and everyone is welcome to attend.

Selections ranging from the "Finale" from Beethoven's "Symphony No. 1" to "Concertino for Tuba" by Beneriscutto will be featured in the Thursday, May 2, program of the Starlight Serenade Concert Series.

The concert, featuring the University Bands, the Woodwind Ensemble and soloists selected through weekly competitions, will begin at 8:15 p.m. in the Music Amphitheater.

There is no admission charge and the public is invited. Also on this week's program are works by Nelhybel, Corelli, Chaminade, Lully, Reed and Bart.

In the event of rain, the concert will be held in Opperman Music Hall.

Miller's over tri

Pensacola's Allen Miller birdied the seventeenth hole at Killearn Golf and Country Club Sunday to capture a one-stroke victory in the 1974 Tallahassee Open over a trio of challengers.

The win was the first career triumph for the heavy-set Miller, who with the $18,000 first prize, has now pocketed over $24,000 thus far this season.

Tampa's Eddie Pearce led the threesome who finished one stroke behind Miller, Joe Inman, Greensboro, North Carolina, and Dan Sikes of Jacksonville tied Pearce for the second spot.

Miller led the tournament from start to finish, including his opening round of 65. With only four bogeys for the tournament, he followed with rounds of 69, 67 and 73 Sunday.

Thomas s in final so

Darrell Mudra could only say "Oh, yeah," to describe sophomore halfback Rudy Thomas.

For the third straight week, Thomas had sparked as the top back in the Florida State's weekly spring intra-squad football games.

Otherwise, things were a little ragged for the first year Tribe mentor's forces. "Our defense is so thin right now that it is hard for them to play equal football for any period of time. We have got to find some people to fill in for depletion defense."

Thomas led an offense which scored five touchdowns and kicked three field goals. Thomas had scoring punts of 14 and 20 yards. He also had one called back from 24 yards and finished with 95 yards in nine carries.

Freshman Larry Key had the night's longest run - a 54-yard touchdown burst. "We were pleased with Larry for the short time he worked," Mudra stated. "He is one kid we are definitely going to work more with."

Terry Jackson and Frank Clapp had touchdown runs of 34 and four yards to complete the scoring for the game. Almer Asian knocked home three-pointers from 45, 34 and 30 yards.

Transfer Ron Coppens led the quarterbacks, hitting on 5-7 for 51 yards. He also earned the ball six times for 29 yards.

Mark Orlando hit on 11 of 20 passes for 130 yards and Billy Pivonius hit 3-5 for 43

Miller's 'super birdie' takes win over trio in Tallahassee Open

Pensacola's Allen Miller birdied the seventeenth hole at Killearn Golf and Country Club Sunday to capture a one-stroke victory in the 1974 Tallahassee Open over a trio of challengers.

The win was the first career triumph for the heavy-set Miller, who with the $18,000 first prize, has now pocketed over $24,000 thus far this season.

Tampa's Eddie Pearce led the threesome who finished one stroke behind Miller. Joe Inman, Greensboro, North Carolina and Dan Sikes of Jacksonville tied Pearce for the second spot.

Miller led the tournament from start to finish, including his opening round of 65. With only four bogeys for the tournament, he followed with rounds of 69, 67 and 73 Sunday.

However, it was the seventeenth hole on this conservative day of golf that won it for Miller. Playing with Inman and tied at 13-under par, either player could card a birdie for the all important lead.

Miller hit his second shot twenty yards to the right of the par five 17th green. With the pin cut in tight on the right, Miller said, "I didn't have much of a shot. Finally I decided to just hit it."

The shot landed one foot from the pin and died. "It has to be the biggest shot of my career," the 25-year-old victor said afterwards. "I just couldn't believe it."

Miller started the day two strokes ahead of Sikes and three ahead of Inman. Pearce, who had his clubs accidentally driven to Georgia on Sunday, was five shots back.

Sikes, playing a hole ahead of Miller, caught the leader with a birdie on number ten to go 13-under. Miller went right back on top with a twenty-foot birdie putt on number 11. Sikes could not get to 14-under and never challenged after that.

Meanwhile, Inman, paired with Miller, could only manage to get within two strokes on the front nine. He carded two birdies and three bogies on the front to turn in 37, one better than Miller.

It looked as if Inman was going to make his move when he rolled in birdie putts at 10 and 12 to go 13-under. But he failed to pick up another birdie while parring in for a final round 71.

"I had my chances," Inman said. "But, every time I made a birdie, I followed it with a bogey. Some very poor mechanics and dumb rookie moves cost me this tournament."

Inman had moved into contention Saturday with a course record 63 that put him at 12-under par starting Sunday's play. Inman opened the tournament with rounds of 73 and 68.

Pearce was the only leader to finish the front nine under par Sunday, firing a two-under par 34. His final round of 69 included five birdies and two bogies.

He bogeyed 11 and 13 to fall back to 10-under par, but then made his move with birdies on 14, 15 and 17. His birdie try on 18 just slid by on the low side. That would have given him the early clubhouse lead at 14-under par.

Jim Simons, an ex-teammate of Pearce's on the Wake Forest golf team, nearly made a run of his own at the leaders. Simons hit a super second shot three-wood between trees to within yards of the par five 13th hole. A birdie there put him at 12-under.

However, Simons put himself out with a three-putt green on the par four 14th from about 35 feet.

Simons finished second to Hubert Green in last year's Tallahassee Open, while Miller had tied for fifth. Miller's best finish previous to Sunday was a second place in the Danny Thomas-Memphis Classic.

Bobby Hein had Sunday's best round — a 65 that put him in a group at 279 — nine under par.

Ken Still was the closest to the pin winner with a shot on the 14th hole that landed just 4'6" from going in. Still was awarded a Datsun 240Z.

Smith wins Drake

Florida State's Danny Smith outran Louisiana State's Larry Shipp to the wire of the 120-yard high hurdles and first place in the Drake Relays in Des Moines, Iowa.

Smith, who beat Shipp for the National Indoor Championship in March, was clocked in a wind-aided 13.4 seconds. Smith's former personal best was 13.5 outdoors last season.

Thomas sparkles in final scrimmage

Darrell Mudra could only say "Oh, yeah," to describe sophomore halfback Rudy Thomas.

For the third straight week, Thomas had sparkled as the top back in the Florida State's weekly spring intra-squad football games.

Otherwise, things were a little ragged for the first year Tribe mentor's forces. "Our defense is so thin right now that it is hard for them to play equal football for any period of time. We have got to find some people to fill in for depth on defense."

Thomas led an offense which scored five touchdowns and kicked three field goals. Thomas had scoring jaunts of 14 and 20 yards. He also had one called back from 24 yards and finished with 95 yards in nine carries.

Freshman Larry Key had the night's longest run — a 54-yard touchdown burst. "We were pleased with Larry for the short time he worked," Mudra stated. "He is one kid we are definitely going to work more with."

Terry Jackson and Frank Clapps had touchdown runs of 34 and four yards to complete the scoring for six points. Ahmet Askin knocked home three-pointers from 45, 34 and 30 yards.

Transfer Ron Coppess led the quarterbacks, hitting on 5-7 for 51 yards. He also carried the ball six times for 29 yards.

Mark Orlando hit on 10 of 20 passes for 130 yards and Billy Prescott hit 3-5 for 43 yards. Orlando and Prescott each had a pass intercepted.

Mudra also took a little peek at Jimmy Black in the quarterback spot. The FSU coach said he was pleased with the Merritt Island sophomore and planned to give him a more thorough look.

Jim Everett paced the receivers with five catches. Mike Shumann continued to look good, hauling in four. Joe Goldsmith also had two receptions from his new tight end position.

Five big defensive plays were recorded in the four quarters of play. Bert Cooper and Andy Stockton each had a pass interception.

Nose guard Brooks Burroughs continued to look good at his new spot and recovered a fumble as did ends Rudy Maloy and Mike Kiker.

Tribe's last innings heroics win two

Marty Maier stroked a two-out ninth inning single to drive home Florida State's second run to the Seminoles a come from behind 2-1 victory over South Florida Friday night.

Carlos Lezcano stroked a two-out single to center to drive home Jose Lugo with FSU's ninth run to give the Seminoles a come from behind 9-8 win over South Florida Saturday afternoon.

It was a gray hair weekend for Seminole head baseball coach Jack Stallings as his team battled back time and time again against the Golden Brahms for victories 27 and 28 against 20 losses.

"We are a comeback team," Stallings chortled after Saturday's win. "This has to be our biggest."

And in the end, it may prove to be the impetus the Seminole swatters need to finish the season in high gear.

Coming off a sluggish week of play, the FSU ballplayers weren't hot balls of fire Friday night nor early Saturday. But, after Stallings sent two runners flying for home from his third base coaching box, things started to happen.

"We needed to do something to wake this team up," Stallings said. "I knew they didn't have a chance at the plate, but we still had to get them to start playing aggressive baseball."

Down 5-0 Saturday as a result of seven straight first inning hits by South Florida—six singles and a double that knocked out FSU starter Danny O'Brien—the Seminoles started chipping away in the second.

Windle Higginbotham got one run back with a smash single to right which drove home Jim Foxwell with the initial Tribe tally.

Florida State got two more back in the fourth on a Jim Busby single and two errors by Brahman third baseman Tony Rizzo to cut the margin to 6-3.

Foxwell's leadoff double in the sixth started another Seminole rally. Guillermo Bonilla singled Foxwell to third and Lugo's fielder's choice got him home.

FSU got back another in the seventh when Maier opened the frame with a ground ball single to left. Busby's single to center sent Maier to third and a passed ball allowed the Seminoles to score number five as Maier came home.

Randy Davidson's run batted in in the eighth frame knotted the score at seven and set the stage for the last inning theatrics.

The Brahms scored a run in the top of the inning on singles and an error by Maier. But FSU refused to give up and came back with two of its own to make the weekend complete.

Foxwell opened the ninth with a single to the hole at short. Bonilla then faked a sacrifice bunt and slapped a single past the shortstop who had gone to cover second for the bunt.

Lugo's attempt to move the runners up failed when Foxwell was erased at third. But freshman pinch hitter Dave Chappell lined a single to load the bases.

A fielder's choice off the bat of Higginbotham saw the Brahman's go for a double play to the end of the game. But Harvey Nemeroff, running for Chappell, slid perfectly to break up the double play and allowed Bonilla to score the tying run.

Lezcano strode to the plate, took a ball, and then lined reliever Joe Lomascola's second pitch into centerfield to score Lugo with the winner.

Tribe reliever Mike Kelly picked up the win for the Seminoles with one and a third innings pitched. Kelly raised his record to 3-1.

However, freshman Bob Mayer was the strong arm when FSU needed it most. Mayer relieved O'Brien in the second and effectively held South Florida while his teammates chipped away and finally tied it in the eighth.

The Seminoles will see if they can hold onto whatever it is they have when the young swatters open a two game series with Southeastern Conference member Auburn University tonight.

Today's game begins at 7:30 and the two teams will also play Tuesday at 3:00.

Friends host Hugh Durham

Friends and foes of Florida State head basketball coach Hugh Durham will present Hugh Durham Appreciation Night Thursday, May 2 at Kinhega Lodge off Thomasville Road.

The $10 steak dinner will allow Durham's friends to show their appreciation for the man who has guided FSU's cage program for the past eight years.

Students, faculty and employees wishing to attend the dinner can purchase tickets at the Old Dover Shop on South Adams. Reservations must be made by Apr. 29.

What makes the Cool School cool?

There are many reasons why The Cool School, the summer school at Appalachian State University - is cool.

First, there are the courses. Appalachian will offer more than 800 courses this summer, including 66 special workshops, institutes and seminars.

Some of the special courses are truly unique - like a field trip for biology students to Alaska, a children's literature study tour of the Eastern U.S., problems in the education of Appalachian youth, religion in Appalachia, or how to be a motorcycle safety instructor.

Then, there's the cost. A two-week session (three quarter hours) costs $106 plus meals. A four-week session (eight quarter hours) costs only $336 for tuition, room, meals and laundry. For the family, there's a university-operated day camp for children.

Secondly, there's the place. Appalachian State University is located right in the heart of Daniel Boone Country, fast becoming the most popular year-round recreation center in the East. The average summertime temperature is 69 degrees and it's not always that hot. Nearby are the Blue Ridge Parkway, the Appalachian Trail and the highest peak in the Eastern U.S.

Your first tampon should be a Kotex tampon.

Because only Kotex tampons have soft, rounded ends... gentle insertion guides instead of two bulky tubes... and more protection than the leading brand. But the only way to be convinced is to let a Kotex tampon be your first one.

If it wasn't, here's a second chance.

After unsuccessful scrambling to secure a quorum, the State Council of Student Body Presidents (SCSBP) voted unanimously Saturday to pursue an amendment to a bill to place students on the Board of Regents (BOR) which would limit the Governor's power to appoint at his discretion despite claims by some Senators that the amendment would be unconstitutional.

Convened as a "work session" at FSU, the meeting had been referred to earlier, an "emergency meeting" called by Chairman Jerry Maygarde of the University of West Florida after the Senate Education Committee disregarded a SCSBP proposal to amend to have the students nominated by the Council rather than selected by the Governor.

The bill (SB429), sponsored by Senator Jack Gordon (D-Miami Beach) provides for the Governor to appoint two students to the BOR, at least one of them an undergraduate. The appointees would be approved by the cabinet and confirmed by the Senate, as are the current Regents. It would

Nixon to release edited transcripts

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon last night set forth a compromise plan to give the House impeachment panel edited transcripts of subpoenaed Watergate tapes and allow two ranking panel members to check the transcripts against the tapes.

Nixon took his offer directly to the public with an evening television appearance.

Working under deadline to tell what one aide called "the complete story of Watergate," Nixon sweetened his offer by inviting Rep. Peter W. Rodino (D-N.J.), the chairman of the House Judiciary Committee, and Rep. Edward Hutchinson (R-Michigan), the committee's ranking Republican, to verify the transcripts by listening to the tapes in private.

The President said he was making the transcripts available to the general public as well as to the Judiciary Committee — with coarse language, matters effecting national security and what Nixon considers irrelevant material, edited out.

Nixon's televised address responded to a subpoena from the Judiciary Committee, which demanded 42 tapes of conversations Nixon had with White House aides between Feb. 20 and April 18, 1973, a period when the Watergate coverup was coming unstuck.

The subpoena deadline is 10 a.m. EDT today.

The Judiciary Committee, which has said it would settle only for the tapes themselves, is investigating whether there are grounds to recommend impeachment proceedings by the full House of Representatives.

Nixon's televised appearance was part of a major effort to win public support for his assertion he had no part in the Watergate burglary coverup, and it came at a time when White House officials were expressing guarded optimism the tide of public opinion had turned in the President's favor.

The acquittal Sunday of former cabinet officers John N. Mitchell and Maurice Stans on charges related to 1972 campaign contributions fed that optimism.

But some Congressmen reacted angrily both to the substance of Nixon's offer, as disclosed during the day, and to his use of television in presenting it.

"I don't see why he should describe his answer to the Judiciary Committee on television unless he is trying to get public support," said Speaker Carl Albert (D-Okla.).

"There should not be 'supermembers' who have access to evidence not available to other members of the House," said Rep. Charles Rangel (D-N.Y.).

Nixon's offer to allow Rodino and Hutchinson to verify the transcripts, however, came close to a compromise plan that had been gaining support among Republican committee members, and there was some indication it might satisfy at least that group.

The Republican compromise plan, however, would have included the Republican and Democrat special counsel to the committee in the verification team.

White House sources said Nixon's plan was an effort to supply the committee the information it needs while also preserving some of the confidentiality Nixon insists is necessary to a free-flow of consultation between himself and his policy-making aides.

Nixon worked out his plan over the weekend at his Camp David, Md., mountain retreat.

His chief of staff, Gen. Alexander M. Haig, said the President would make public sufficient evidence "to tell the complete story of Watergate in terms of his actions and knowledge."

SCSBP plans pursuit student appointment

By John Thompson
Special to the Flambeau

After unsuccessfully scrambling to secure a quorum, the State Council of Student Body Presidents (SCSBP) voted unanimously Saturday to pursue an amendment to a bill to place students on the Board of Regents (BOR) which would limit the Governor's power to appoint at his discretion, despite claims by some Senators that the amendment would be unconstitutional.

Convened as a "work session" at FSU, the meeting had been referred to earlier as an "emergency meeting" called by Chairman Jerry Maygarden of the University of West Florida after the Senate Education Committee disregarded a SCSBP-proposed amendment to have the students nominated by the Council rather than selected by the Governor.

The bill (SB429), sponsored by Senator Jack Gordon (D-Miami Beach) provides for the Governor to appoint two students to the BOR, at least one of them an undergraduate. The appointees would be approved by the cabinet and confirmed by the Senate, as are the current Regents. It was sent to the Ways and Means Committee after the Education Committee approved it by a seven to one vote two weeks ago. A companion House bill (HB 3271) has been introduced by Rep. Kenneth MacKay (D-Ocala).

The SCSBP requested a definitive statement from Senate President Mallory Horne (D-Tallahassee) on whether requiring the Governor to appoint from certain nominees is constitutional. A representative of Horne's office was present at the meeting. The SCSBP also voted to make official nominations if the bill passed, regardless of Horne's opinion.

Senators Richard Pettigrew (D-Miami) and Ken Plante (D-Oviedo) of the Education Committee maintain it is unconstitutional to prescribe nomination procedures for the Governor. This contention also killed a provision in a Senate bill to place a student on each community college board of trustees which would have required that each student-trustee be elected by the student body (SB 362).

But a staff attorney in the Attorney General's office said it did not appear unconstitutional and that the legislature could limit the Governor's appointive powers for any board created by statute, such as the BOR. He stressed this was not an official opinion.

The SCSBP rejected consideration of opposing the bill in its current form, a position held earlier by some members, who said they feared the possible appointment of "token students" not truly representative of Florida students.

Jury indicts fourth gridder

A fourth FSU football player has been indicted by the Leon County Grand Jury for his alleged participation in a brawl with members of the Alpha Tau Omega (ATO) fraternity last January.

Jeffrey Gardner was charged with disorderly conduct and trespassing in an indictment handed down last Friday by the Grand Jury.

According to Mike Wright, Information Director for the Leon County Sheriff's Office, the Grand Jury also returned a fifth indictment which is still sealed. Wright said that he expects that indictment to be disclosed "very shortly."

Gardner is scheduled to appear in County Court on May 8 along with three teammates who were served with summonses this weekend charging disorderly conduct and assault and battery.

Bill Rowe, Assistant Athletic Director, said that the indictments will have no adverse effects on FSU's Athletic Department. Rowe said that "this is just one of those little battles you have to fight when you're in the public eye."

"The first burst of press coverage we got on this affair in January was totally uncalled for," Rowe said. "The story was all over Florida and beyond and I think this is just a case of the press trying to make something spectacular out of something which isn't."

Rowe added that any disciplinary measures will be invoked by Head Coach Darrell Mudra and not by the Athletic Department in the event that any team members are convicted.

Flambeau drive surpasses goal

The Flambeau petition drive to generate student support for the newspaper's attempts to stay in its current Union facilities has reached and passed its goal of 10,000 signatures, Student Government sponsors of the drive have announced.

SG Secretary of Communications Debby Alley said that an estimated 10,050 signatures were collected from students, faculty and staff members during the two-week drive which took place earlier this month.

"We're all extremely pleased with the outcome of the drive," Alley said. "We felt all along that students on this campus wanted to see the Flambeau remain in the Union."

"The administration knows that we have them and they know that those signatures represent the support of an awful lot of people," said Flambeau Editor Davis Whiteman. "I think they'll prove very valuable in any negotiations we'll have with the University."

House defeats straw ballot amendment*Voters won't decide on disclosure

(UPI) — The House rejected officials should reveal sources of income as debate on the full Disclosure Bill continued into its fourth day. The amendment, which would have sent the issue to the polls this November, was killed on an 83-34 vote.

Rep. Larry Libertore, D-Lakeland, sponsor of the Straw Ballot Amendment, said few of his constituents favor the disclosure bill, which requires elected officials and top-ranking employees in state and local government to report sources of financial income and possible conflict of interest areas.

The bill is aimed at preventing conflicts that may interfere with duties of public officials. Officials are required to disclose through income tax statements or a special form where their income comes from.

Rep. Ray Moudry, R-West Palm Beach, said people in his district and local officials do not want the law and a straw ballot would prove it.

But Rep. Leon McDonald, D-Live Oak, said the passage of a full disclosure law is the responsibility of the Legislature and not the voters.

"This good ole United States isn't like it used to be," McDonald said. "People have lost confidence in it. They have a right to know about me and what makes me vote the way I do and I'm not ashamed of it."

The bill would require that income statements of public officials be filed in Circuit Courthouses across the state and in the Secretary of State's office, open to full public inspection.

Major provisions call for:

—Prohibiting gifts other than food or beverages.

—Revealing business deals with government agencies including transactions between an official's business partner and the State.

—Telling percentages of income based on salary, stocks and bonds, real estate, personal property, trusts, business entities and other factors relating to finances.

—Revealing any business partnerships with public officials.

The bill applies to full- and part-time elected officials at all levels of government. It would also apply to top ranking state and local government employees.

Tanks enter Mekong Delta; the first time in 30 years

SAIGON (UPI) — Communist tanks appeared in the Mekong Delta Sunday for the first time in 30 years of wars and South Vietnamese government forces drove them back into Cambodia Monday, a Saigon military spokesman said.

The spokesman, Lt. Col. Le Trung Hien, said the tank battle shows a new Communist offensive has begun.

Five Soviet-built PT76 tanks opened fire Sunday evening on a government militia outpost near Tuyen Binh, 58 miles west of Saigon and a mile from the Cambodian border, Hien said.

Government ground and air forces were rushed in and four of the tanks retreated back into Cambodia, the spokesman said. The fifth was knocked out, he said.

Military sources said 75 Communists were killed in the tank battle. The government admitted to two of its own men killed and 12 wounded. One government M113 armored personnel carrier was destroyed, the spokesman said.

It was the first time in three decades of warfare in Vietnam that Communist tanks have been officially reported as far south as the Mekong Delta, which contains seven million of South Vietnam's 20 million people.

Wallace offspring gets a taste of discrimination

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (UPI) — George Wallace, Jr., son of Alabama's Gov. George C. Wallace, said Monday he did not get clearance from his father before he and a black woman went apartment hunting.

Wallace, a 22-year-old Huntingdon College student, and Huntingdon coed Evelyn Bradford visited four local apartment complexes as a part of a social problems class study to get the reaction of persons to unusual circumstances.

He and Bradford posed as an interracial couple about to be married and apartment hunting.

"I only told Daddy that we were having a sociological experiment at school," the mustachioed young Wallace told UPI. "It was fun. It gave me a lot of insight into people."

Wallace, who is dating a white girl, said one apartment manager was willing to rent to them as a perspective couple, and the others turned them away. He said several of them recognized him as the governor's son and were dumbfounded before they were told it was an experiment.

"One showed us around and the others were cold," he said.

"At first they looked at us, looked away and then acted like we had knocked the breath out of them," young Wallace said.

"I was really a little apprehensive about the whole thing," he said. "I thought the attitudes would be worse, but the times are changing."

Other Huntingdon students pretended to be blind shoppers, posed as female slaves offered for sale at $2500 each in the shopping mall, and some painted their faces green to get the reaction of fellow shoppers.

Harris angry at vets; attacks 'snotty' reference

(UPI) — Sharp-tongued House Appropriations Chairman Marshall Harris has accused the drafters of a mail campaign pushing for a tuition-free education at state universities for Vietnam veterans, of making a "snotty reference" to his being an executive of a Miami Federal savings and loan association.

The letter, being handled by a group of University of Florida veterans, does not mention Harris by name.

But he's been getting a lot of the letters, probably because he is one of the chief opponents to the legislation.

It would exempt the vets from paying tuition at state-supported universities and would cost, Harris claims, $18.5 million a year. He has proposed an alternative additional scholarships with a provision that federal stipends under the federal GI bill not be counted in applying the means test for qualifying for the state scholarships.

The letter-writers say opponents are claiming bank loans, backed by the Federal government, would take care of vets needs, then adds that such loans provide a nice profit for the banks and speaks of "certain" prominent legislators holding high positions with such banks.

Harris, who is a vice-president of a savings and loan association, disputed the claim, saying, "Such loans were made at a lesser rate to the financial institution than other investment opportunities." He said the associations participate strictly as a public service.

"I am sure in signing a mimeographed letter, you did not intend the snotty reference to me in one of my other roles, vice president of Dade Federal Savings and Loan of Miami," Harris said in replying to a form letter from a Gainesville veteran.

The vets say Harris kept the bill from reaching the House floor last year.

road-tripping was an exception and not a rule.

"The reason I'm in my position is so that I'll know these things," Collins said, adding that he had personally gone to all the FSU fraternities and questioned presidents and fraternity brothers.

"I sympathize with Butdorf, but I think his statements were rash and emotional," Collins said, charging that since Butdorf was a freshman and a pledge, he was not sufficiently acquainted with the fraternity system to make knowledgeable statements.

"The vast majority of fraternities don't roadtrip, and my fraternity, Sigma Alpha Epsilon, has a rule that anyone who road-trips a pledge will be expelled from the fraternity," Collins said.

Collins also said that the word "hazing" was nebulous since it could include anything from having the pledges learn the history and songs of a fraternity to roadtripping them.

"Nowadays, pledge education is a much better term than hazing," Collins said and added that some pledges had renamed Hell Week to "Help Week."

CSEF president supports Basset in complaint

By Laurin March

James Merritt, president of the FSU Career Services Employee Federation (CSEF), in conjunction with the American Federation of Teachers, announced support of Barbara Basset in her formal grievance against Dr. Robert International Program Department, yesterday.

Basset has accused Coyne of "breach of faith, denial of due process, neglect of duties, discrimination and violation of State personnel rules and regulations."

"In our support of Ms. Basset," Merritt said, "we've discovered that the grievance procedure as it now stands at FSU discourages employees from exercising their legitimate right of complaint."

"Right off the bat, it eliminates all the crucial bones of contention, such as demotions, pay cuts, firings and performance evaluations," he said.

"Under collective bargaining, administrators will find it more difficult to scapegoat Career Service employees to cover their own incompetence and deception," Merritt said.

After reviewing the case, local labor lawyer Kent Spriggs stated that this is "another clear-cut example of an administrator trampling on an employee's rights."

CSEF is attempting to establish "a more equitable grievance procedure with greater scope and with binding arbitration as the final step," according to Merritt.

Last Friday the FSU administration contacted Basset and told her to proceed with the grievance hearing she requested. However, the question of allowing the hearing to be presented before the public has not been considered by the administration.

"CSEF will contact a spokesperson from the office of the Florida Attorney General tomorrow," Merritt said, "in an effort to ascertain whether Basset is within her rights requesting the public hearing."

Senate votes to survey BOR tuition proposals

By John Thomson
Special to the Flambeau

The Florida Senate voted unanimously to require specific legislative approval of all Board of Regents' (BOR) tuition proposals last week. The practically guaranteed passage of this by the House means that if the legislature fails to act on a tuition proposal, then the proposal does not automatically take effect, as is currently the case.

The House Judiciary Committee also approved a bill last Wednesday which would make a tenant responsible for losses suffered by a landlord if the tenant broke the lease.

In other legislative business, major bills were passed relating to the establishing of a commission of ethics for state officials and employees by the House and the opening of certain personnel records of community college and state university professors in the Senate.

The number of bills introduced in the House and Senate passed 5000 last week. The latest include the BOR hourly tuition proposal, which was introduced in "concurrent resolutions" in both the House and the Senate.

The bill by House Speaker Terrell Sessum (D-Tampa) to limit enrollment and degree programs in state universities now has a companion bill in the Senate sponsored by Sen. Jack Gordon (D-Miami Beach). Gordon also introduced a bill which would give student government control over all activity and services fees.

Companion Senate-House bills propose establishing a "Florida Open University" patterned after the famous British school of the same name. It would be designed for adults unable to attend regular college classes and would make use of various public facilities throughout the state. There would be no campus. "External degree" programs based on similar concepts have been in operation at the University of South Florida since 1969 and at Florida International University since 1972.

Politicians beware of dirty dealings

In less than two weeks, the Leon County Grand Jury has handed down separate indictments against Florida State Education Commissioner Floyd Christian and U.S. Senator Edward Gurney.

Christian has been charged with conspiracy to commit a felony, perjury, and soliciting or accepting bribes totalling $79,000 for the funnelling of state contracts to firms controlled by a friend and former business associate.

Christian, who had originally planned to take a leave of absence until his trial had ended, was forced to resign last week after the state legislature mobilized impeachment proceedings.

Gurney, one of the few staunch supporters of President Nixon during the Senate Watergate investigation, is accused by the Grand Jury of violating the state's election law. It is alleged that Gurney had knowledge of an estimated $100,000 in campaign funds collected in his behalf, but that he did not report the amount to the election office.

Gurney, who plans to run for re-election, claims that he is innocent of the charge which resulted from statements he made at a press conference concerning the funds. He is also currently under investigation by two federal grand juries.

It must be pointed out that both Christian and Gurney have been charged, not convicted. But the allegations made against them sound all too sickly familiar in these days of milk funds, ITT dealings, back taxes, etc.

As of late, a new breed of criminals has pushed their way to the forefront of illegal activities — namely political crooks. Displacing long time and established performers such as robbers, murderers and kidnappers, the political crooks are starting to monopolize both grand jury indictments and criminal courtrooms.

It is most probable that the political shenanigans we have been forced to witness lately have been taking place for years. However, elected officials can no longer keep their dirty back-room deals from the public's eye.

If Christian and Gurney have, indeed, violated the law, they should be prosecuted to the fullest extent of that law and their illegal activities should be revealed to the public.

As political activist, writer and actor Dick Gregory said during a recent campus appearance, "It is a sick, insane, degenerate system that keeps saying that the young are immoral."

"But who do you think is keeping the prostitutes in business — the New Left?"

Road-tripping draws letters

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Stupid habits

Editor:

I think it is about time the students of this school took notice of some of the things that are happening around them and did something to stop the insanity within our fraternities. I am referring to the practice of "road-tripping" the new pledges.

Don't get me wrong, this in itself is not bad. It is the fact that these guys are dumped off somewhere and left to fend for themselves in a society that has too many "nuts" running around that like to play practical jokes on people by brutally attacking and often mangling anyone who happens to be out where they are.

Take, for instance, the guy this past weekend who was taken out, dumped off, and ended up in the hospital brutally beaten to the point where he almost lost a leg. Have we degenerated to the extent of placing fun and games above the well-being of another person? Don't you think it's about time we stopped acting like the naive children we once were and started thinking about the consequences of our actions before they happen — do we have to see a statistic first?

You future "pledges" out there have got to stand up and stop being sheep, following these stupid habits of initiation.

Pam White

Discrepancies

Editor:

In its relentless quest to discredit fraternities, the Flambeau has once again overlooked the basic commodity of superior journalism — factual reporting. I am referring to the article which appeared on Monday, April 22, dealing with the so-called "frat-related beating."

There were several discrepancies which I feel should be cleared up immediately. First, the "emergency IFC meeting" took place at its regularly scheduled time period on Sunday night, as it has for the entire year. Secondly, Steve Butdorf was not "beaten and then dumped along the side of the highway," but forced to get out, then brutally run down by the car and dragged for over 80 feet.

Third, the article termed the attackers "teenagers," whom the boys had never met. In reality, those responsible for this hideous and senseless act of cruelty were all young black males whose age is as yet undetermined by the police. It seems very strange to me that the Flambeau would completely overlook details of the investigation to find those responsible or that the attack may have been racially motivated.

Instead, the majority of the article was spent in discussing and criticizing fraternity hazing, leaving the story completely devoid of any real concern for the broken and mangled victim of this attack.

The story was no more than a cheap and petty attack on fraternities. This vicious assault could conceivably have been directed at anyone who has ever had car trouble, hitchhiked or walked around town. To imply that it was a direct result of fraternity hazing is utterly ridiculous.

In conclusion, I wish to extend my deepest sympathies to David Butdorf, his family and friends in the hope that in his long struggle ahead, David will not lose hope but pull through and achieve complete recovery.

Robert M. Davis

(Editor's note: First, the "emergency IFC meeting" of Sunday night was labeled and "emergency" by IFC President Lewis Collins. Secondly, initial reports as to how Butdorf received his injuries were confused. The Sunday edition of the Tallahassee Democrat, for example, drew its material from official police reports when it called the incident a beating. It wasn't until further in the investigation that police came to theorize that Butdorf was run down and dragged by the car, not beaten by its inhabitants. Thirdly, see the editor's note of Wednesday, April 24. Finally, the purportedly "cheap and petty attack on fraternities" was written by Flambeau staff writer Creston Nelson, a former pledge in the Delta Zeta sorority and an active participant in last year's rush activities of the Alpha Chi Omega sorority.)

that Mark E. Lawrence's letter was scandalous, libelous and unsubstantiated by the evidence submitted.

As hypothetically stated by Mr. Lawrence, the pledges "were offered a ride by several black males and possibly a black female, not merely teenagers."

In the April 22nd issue, it was stated by Synder that he and Butdorf got as far as the truck route when a car full of teenagers which they had never seen before stopped and offered them a ride. The Flambeau did not stipulate the race of the occupants in the car.

In all articles relative to the incident, there has been no detailed description of the assailants.

We feel that these statements and all others referring to persons outside the fraternity were made in an attempt to divert pressures off the fraternities. Attention should be focused on the crime and not those accused of committing it. The seed of the problem lies within the fraternity. Had it not been for their so-called "roadtrip," the incident would not have occurred.

Proceeds to go to art coop

Auction introduces local talent

The Auction is sponsored by the Tate Gallery and the People's Art Coop, with all proceeds going to the establishment of a Tallahassee community art supply coop.

and materials at the lowest possible cost," an auction organizer said.

With 190 different pieces, the auction will include lithographs, sculpture, paintings, etchings, jewelry and pottery.

A showing of the various art works to be auctioned off opened in the lower gallery of the Fine Arts Building Apr. 27 and will continue through May 3.

According to an auction organizer, the auction will include art work from community artists, FSU students and faculty members and also art works from the masters contributed by the Tate Gallery.

The Public Auction of Fine Art will begin at 8 p.m. on May 3, with a preview of the works at 7 p.m. Persons interested in bidding on a specific piece should attend the preview so that they can indicate their preference, according to auction organizers.

"The People's Art Coop is a community effort to supply local artists with art supplies of one dollar to just 20 cents per gallon.

Chemists have already shown that ethanol can be combined with gasoline to produce an efficient fuel that burns more cleanly than pure gasoline. The mixture has not been used in the United States because, until recently, ethanol was more expensive than gasoline.

Proxmire has called on the Federal Energy Office to study the feasibility of manufacturing ethanol on a massive scale so that it can be blended with scarce petroleum supplies to produce more fuel and lower prices.

Ethanol to cut gas costs ?

(ZNS) Wisconsin Senator William Proxmire says that the Federal government could add low cost ethyl alcohol to gasoline, thereby reducing the cost of gasoline by as much as 20 cents a gallon.

Proxmire says that the U.S. Army Laboratory at Natick, Massachusetts, has devised a new method of extracting ethyl alcohol - also known as "ethanol" - from organic wastes at very low costs.

According to Proxmire, the new process can cut the cost of ethanol from its previous price

Sex ruled 'occupational hazard'

(ZNS) Greece's highest court has ruled that sailors who die on shore leave while engaging in sex are the victims of "occupational hazards" - and that their families are entitled to full Navy pensions.

This unusual decision was handed down by the Greek High Court, which reversed the finding of a lower court in the case.

The widow of a Greek sailor who had collapsed and died of a heart attack while patronizing a Philippine brothel, sued to receive her husband's pensions from the government.

The High Court, after hearing the woman's pleas, ruled that many sailors on the high seas, away from their families, will naturally be overcome by strong sexual urges while visiting foreign ports. The court added that visits to brothels could be regarded as legitimate "occupational hazards" to such men - and that if they die because of "the need for recreation" their families should be fully entitled to the pension.

Horrors! Fourth annual 'Wierd Night' is nigh

By Brad Linaweaver

1971. The first Weird Night. Moore Auditorium was packed with wall-to-wall people, all present for a ten hour show of horror films—a dusk to dawn opus. Future Weird Nights would be more carefully orchestrated, and there would be open aisle space.

As bladders filled every three hours or so during Weird Night No. 1, the great challenge was the maneuver to the restroom, somehow, and then return to your hopefully reserved seat, somehow in time for Vincent Price's mental breakdown in a Poe film.

The timing on the first Weird Night was perfect. Mike Ogden, mysterious projectionist and architect of Weird Night, had figured it all out. As Christopher Lee met a dusty end in rays of wholesome sunlight (Horror of Dracula), the Tallahassee sun was just rising, to light the way home for the stoned legions who had made it through until morning.

A year passed away. Weird Night No. 2 arrived, the most successful Weird Night, the most organized...but lacking the essential weirdness of an earlier year's anarchy.

Diamond Auditorium was prudently selected for its many seats and wide aisles, but it sold out! As each reel of film was shown, it was immediately grabbed and transported to Moore where Weird Night No. 2 and one-half was being shown to a sadfaced audience that had missed the live midnight mass that Diamond Auditorium offered.

Weird Night No. 3 presented so many films that it didn't end until noon the next day.

Fifteen hours of celluloid nightmares and bad jokes and hamburgers and beer and caffeine and Lon Chaney Jr. and open graveyards, all left their impression on cinema freaks who had to see everything. The survivors wondered if perhaps they hadn't seen all horror pictures in that one night. But the beast was yet to come.

Now hear this: the fourth annual Weird Night is nigh! May 4th is the date. Hitchcock's masterpiece, Psycho, is the main feature and uncut. But have no fear, Weird Night purists, The Blob will also be in residence.

Come one, come all. See it all — dinosaurs and monsters and madmen and even horror actors are waiting for you.

Weird Night no. 4 may be the high point of your FSU years, the best possible realization of The Academy.

Braithwaite highlights International banquet

By Ghassan Raad

The International Banquet, held Apr. 27, was the culmination of the activities of International Week which began Apr. 18.

The theme of the banquet, "Festival of Nations," described well the purpose of the evening: to bring people of different cultural backgrounds together to work and deal with one another with respect and awareness of each person's value system and beliefs.

Traditional dishes from areas such as Lebanon, Mexico, the Republic of China, Nigeria, the Middle East and the United States were served. The fact that the international students themselves prepared the meals added to the enjoyment of the food.

Along with the varied flavors of the food, the 54 flags from around the world which decorated the banquet room and the musical program presented by Dr. Dale Olsen gave a United Nations atmosphere to the dinner.

Highlighting the banquet, attended by 250 people, was guest speaker, E.R. Braithwaite, present U.N. ambassador from New Guinea and author of the well-known novel, "To Sir With Love."

At FSU as a writer-in-residence because "writing is not a hobby with me, it is the focus of my life," Braithwaite began his talk by expressing his surprise at the lack of awareness by the university body of the tremendous resources that International students are for the community.

Braithwaite reaffirmed that the university is well-suited for a fruitful exchange of ideas and interaction between the nationals and the internationals. He stressed the point that "sour human relationships on the lower level could interfere on the higher levels of decision-making."

Braithwaite also contended that a great deal of history is taking place in the U.S. and urged the International students to be contributors to that history.

He confessed his amazement of the Americans' tendency to "frequently see themselves larger than what they really are," Braithwaite said, urging the International students here and overseas to give the Americans the opportunity to see themselves in more human terms, "rather than as superhumans."

Braithwaite concluded with a reassertion in his belief in the U.N. as an organization to discuss and bring suggestions and solutions to world problems.
